FIRST FORCES GOING ABROAD TO BE 40,000

Americans May Take Over Part of Line of the Belgians.

Washington, D. C., May 19.—All three arms of America's fighting forces, the army, navy, and marine corps, soon will be represented in the war zones.

With American destroyers already combating the U-boat menace in European waters and army regulars concentrating to carry the flag to Belgium and France, a regiment of marines was designated today to join the expeditionary force.

The marines will be attached to the army division under Gen. Pershing, which is under orders to proceed abroad as soon as practicable.

BIG INCREASE IN FORCE.

Although details are not being made public, it was calculated tonight that, with the marine regiment, the total American force now designated for [illegible] service in Europe is close to 40,000.

An army division at war strength comprises about 25,000 men, and upward of 12,000 are expected to be in the nine volunteer regiments of engineers now being organized. The former regiment and the marine regiment each will number more than [illegible]. The strength of the naval force in European waters has not been revealed.

Gen. Pershing and his staff will sail for Europe ahead of the troops, as there is much to be done on the other side to pave the way for final training of the force and to make ready for the [illegible] army the United States is preparing to pour across the seas as rapidly as the men can be trained and equipped.

MAY GET HIGHER RANK.

Gen. Pershing, before his departure, may be raised to the rank of lieutenant general or general and given command of all the American troops which may be sent to France.

The rank of lieutenant general, now held by Gen. Nelson A. Miles, retired, fell into disuse after the Spanish-American war.

With the rank of general, Pershing would be more nearly on the footing of Gen. Haig and Gen. Nivelle, the British and French field commanders. As a lieutenant general he would rank with Gen. Bridges, member of the British commission now in this country.

Gen. Pershing will be allowed to choose his staff and his troops. The work of preparing the latter for departure is proceeding rapidly and smoothly.

MAY GO TO BELGIUM.

When the American troops arrive at the battle front they may take places in between the little Belgian line, so tenaciously holding fast to a strip on the extreme west—all of Belgium that escaped the German invaders.

The war department today had no announcement to add to its terse bulletin of last night, which merely said that Gen. Pershing would lead a division of regulars abroad "at as early a date as practicable."

But President Wilson's statement explaining his reasons for not accepting, at this time, Col. Roosevelt's offer of a division, contained a phrase which has attracted much attention and suggested the possibility that American troops may go to Belgium—to help right the wrong which turned the world against Germany.

The president explained that the regular army officers whom the colonel wished to take with his division were needed for "the much more pressing and necessary duty of training regular troops to be put in the field in France and Belgium as fast as they can be got ready."

MARINES PICKED MEN.

The marines who will go with Pershing will be under the command of Col. Charles A. Doyen, commandant of the United States marine barracks in this city, who has been in the service for thirty-four years.

For the most part the marines will be drawn from regiments now on duty in Haiti, Santo Domingo, and Cuba. This means that Secretary Daniels will send the pick of his "sea soldiers."

Every marine will be an experienced man who has been frequently in action. The American marines have been recognized as the peer of any fighting body on earth.

Col. Doyen is a graduate of the United States Naval academy. He is 58 years old, but remarkably active for a man of his years. He has seen service in the Philippines and the orient, in Haiti and Santo Domingo, and in other places where our marines have been in action.

AUSTRIANS SINK FRENCH TORPEDO BOAT DESTROYER

Paris Dispatch Says the Craft Hit a Mine in Adriatic Clash.

BULLETIN.

San Francisco, Cal., May 19.—By orders from the navy department the wireless stations along the Pacific coast have sent out warnings to all vessels that an enemy submarine may be in the Pacific.

The orders were sent as a result of the announcement by the commanding officer of Fort Rosecrans that two men on duty at his lookout station observed a submarine late today off the entrance to San Diego harbor.

Apparently the submarine came from the south and was plainly visible before submerging, according to an official announcement by the Twelfth naval district at headquarters here.

Information from San Diego was to the effect that the lookouts might easily have mistaken a whale for a submarine.

PARIS, May 19.—The French torpedo boat destroyer Boutefeu was sunk by striking a mine in the naval engagement between entente and Austrian vessels in the Adriatic on May 15, according to a semi-official statement today. The announcement reads:

"A number of French destroyers and hydroaeroplanes took part in the recent naval engagement in the Adriatic, the destroyer Boutefeu striking a mine and sinking while assisting a British cruiser on which was the Italian admiral. The officers and almost all of the men were saved."

[The British cruiser referred to was the Dartmouth. It was struck by a torpedo after the main engagement but returned to port. The Boutefeu displaced 750 tons, had a speed of 31 knots, and was equipped with four torpedo tubes. It had a complement of eighty-one men.]

Patricio Not Sunk.

The Spanish steamer Patricio, reported torpedoed by a submarine, was not sunk, according to a Havas dispatch from Valencia today, but was picked up twenty miles off Cape San Antonio and brought to port under its own steam.

"The governor of Valencia," the dispatch adds, "made an official investigation, which established that the shelling occurred outside Spanish territorial waters, thus removing the case from the recent protest of the allies that submarines were operating within Spanish waters."

The Spanish note to Germany concerning the attack on the Patricio is framed in categorical language and does not admit of further ulterior negotiations, according to the Madrid Imparcial, says a Havas dispatch from that city. It contains a demand for reparation and requires guarantees that such an occurrence shall never be repeated.

Eight Killed by Torpedo.

LONDON, May 19.—The British steamship Highland Corrie was torpedoed without warning on May 16. Six members of the crew and two passengers were killed by the explosion. The following official statement was issued today:

"The Highland Corrie was torpedoed without warning on May 16. The torpedo struck the vessel amidships. Saloon passengers, Surgeon Russel, R. N., and Norman Lanyon, who embarked at Buenos Aires; one pantryman named Thomas, and five of the crew were killed by the explosion."

Had Thrilling Experience.

Douglas Duff, the fourth officer and the only survivor of the steamer Thracia, sunk by a German submarine on April 27, today said the submarine commander threatened to shoot him, but later said he wouldn't waste powder on an Englishman. Duff was left to his fate and picked up twelve hours later.

[No previous report of the sinking of the Thracia has been received. It was a Cunard steamer of 2,891 tons gross.]

Body of Chicagoan Found in Lake George

The police of Hammond yesterday identified the body of a man found in Lake George last Wednesday as that of John Lusk of Chicago, who was employed as a grocery clerk in Hammond. The body had been in the water for several weeks. The Hammond police think it possible that Lusk was murdered.

BEG YOUR PARDON!

THIS is by way of making known a new department of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE—one which, it is hoped, will serve not only as a vent for the emotions of readers who, with measurable reason, may feel that they are entitled to redress for wrongs unwittingly inflicted, but also as a medium for the improvement of this newspaper. The basic purpose of THE TRIBUNE is, of course, to diffuse information—correct information. Its achievement in doing this is, perhaps, more nearly one hundred percent than that of any other daily newspaper in the world. But mistakes get in.

Mistakes get in, now-and-again, against every human precaution that may be taken in connection with the work—only a very small part of which is, contrary to lay belief, sheer routine—of getting out this newspaper.

TELL US WHEN WE'RE WRONG!

Mistakes get in. THE TRIBUNE is ready to correct them when they are called to its attention. This, perhaps, is the best argument a newspaper may utter in urging its freedom from carelessness. The best reporters, the most experienced correspondents, the seasoned editors from time-to-time make mistakes that, while easily explicable and infrequently vital, are the cause of annoyance, trouble, embarrassment, humiliation, or grief to somebody.

An imperfect telephone-connection may cause the reporter at this end to mistake what is told him: he will cause the paper to say that 2232 Dovecote Drive is quarantined because of measles. If it should have been 2322 Dovecote Drive, let us know, and we shall gladly make the correction. Write—don't phone—to BEG YOUR PARDON! The occupants of 2232 Dovecote Drive are easily within their rights in feeling injured at such a mistake.

So, also, with John Smith when he reads that his daughter has eloped with the chauffeur, whereas it was John Smythe's daughter—or, if John Smith's, then not with the chauffeur, but a wealthy manufacturer of automobiles. Either way, John Smith has a grievance. Either way, THE TRIBUNE was in good-faith, was merely inadvertent, and was seeking to spread the correct news. So, John Smith, write to BEG YOUR PARDON!

ERRORS REPAIRED FREE.

Mistakes get in from out-of-town, from the Old World, from every source of news. When you see them, tell us: that is what the BEG YOUR PARDON! department is for. THE TRIBUNE is not happy when told it has made a mistake; but it is, having made it, glad to correct it. The new department, BEG YOUR PARDON! will be most successful when least busy. The belief behind the innovation is that the department, of itself, will operate as a corrective to the tendency to err on the part of all who take part in making THE TRIBUNE. They prefer to correct the mistakes before the paper goes to press! Every time you point out a mistake, you are doing something to make the man who made it more careful for the future.

FACTS—NOT OPINIONS!

Of course, BEG YOUR PARDON! is for the correction of misstatements of fact; it is not a forum for those who quarrel with the opinions of THE TRIBUNE and its special writers. The bureau is not designed as a depository for demurrers against ideas and policies; The Voice of the People is just that.

The process of redress for misstatements of facts is easy. When you discover a mistake—OF FACT, that is—write to BEG YOUR PARDON! If the circumstances require, send or bring proof of error. Keep in mind that THE TRIBUNE is not eager to be wrong, however slightly, although willing to say so when it is.

Discouragement because he was in the clutches of a loan shark concern is believed by the police to have led J. M. Mann, a city fireman living at 5137 Ridge avenue, to attempt to end his life last night in a rooming house at 304 Wells street.

Mann disappeared from his home two days ago, leaving his wife. He went to the rooming house in company with a man he addressed as "Micky" McGarry. Late last night Mrs. Sabina Mahon, proprietor of the rooming house, detected gas coming from his room. She called the police, the door was battered down, and Mann was found lying across the bed unconscious. He was rushed to the county hospital, where it was said he might not recover.

In his pocket were found several papers indicating he had obtained loans from the Imperial Credit company, 58 West Washington street. Two of the documents, one for a $200 loan, were canceled, and a third, dated March 1, called for payments of $8 a week until Feb. 1 of next year.

ITALIANS DASH HEAD ON INTO ENEMY DRIVE

Most Sanguinary Fighting of War Staged—Little Ground Gained.

LONDON, May 19.—The most frightful fighting of the world war—not excepting that on the western front—now is being staged between the Italians and Austrians aided by German contingents.

This information is contained in unofficial advices from the battle front and the official reports issued by the Italian and Austrian war departments.

It is declared by the Daily Telegraph correspondent at the Italian front that there are two offensives in progress. The Italian attack has been met by an Austrian offensive which has been in preparation for a long time.

North of Goritz the Italians have captured the heights of hill 652, the key to the Vodice position, in a long and severe action in which the attacking troops were compelled to advance from rock to rock.

Despite desperate resistance the Austrians were driven from the stronghold, with the loss of nearly 400 prisoners.

LOSSES ARE TERRIFIC.

Vienna officially reports [illegible] fighting in this sector, declaring that all attempts of the Italians to advance have been broken down by the Austrian artillery and infantry.

Vienna declares that the heavy losses of the Italians are made continuously good by supplies of fresh troops. Repeated dashes in dense columns against the heights of Vodice collapsed with terrific losses to the attackers, Vienna declares, and the Italian advance, considering the great number of men killed and wounded, is of no consequence.

AUSTRIAN ARTILLERY STRONG.

The Times correspondent with the Italian army says the Austrian artillery on the southern part of the battle line undoubtedly is strong and reinforcements are still arriving. Some fifty batteries have recently come from Galicia, and infantry as well as guns has arrived from the eastern front.

"For near a fortnight now," the correspondent continues, "I have been up and down the line of the present battle. Everywhere I found confidence and determination, and the solid results already obtained have reinforced these feelings."

TERRIBLE STRUGGLE AHEAD.

There is a long and terrible struggle ahead, the correspondent says. The condition of the terrain is unfavorable to the Italians.

"Looking again yesterday on the gorge of the Isonzo and the peaks of Monte Kuk," he writes, "I found it difficult to believe I had seen that great ridge scaled and captured so quickly.

"Slopes that dropped abruptly bristled with machine guns hidden in caverns, among rocks, and in trenches, but nothing could stop the little gray heroes of the Avellino and Florence brigades. The Italian army is strung to great effort, and successes of these first days are splendid augury for the future."

OVER HALF INCH OF RAIN FALLS "ALL AT ONCE"

Basements were flooded, below street restaurants became Venetian realism, property was destroyed, and lightning fretted the heavens last evening when Chicago was rain swept by a downpour of cats and dogs and pitchforks and all the other addenda of Pluvian displeasure.

In Hainley's restaurant in Monroe and Dearborn streets there was a foot of water. The waiters wished in vain for gondolas to serve their patrons, who perched atop their chair backs and waited for the next steamer home. In the States restaurant there was a slight tide, which, however, confined itself mainly to the subbasement, where a stock of $20,000 in shoes, of the O'Connor & Goldberg company, was damaged.

A tidal wave burst through a defective sidewalk and inundated six feminine tonsorialists employed in making beautiful their patrons in the Ladies' Barber shop at 141 North Clark street. The dismayed barberettes gained safety by way of the stairs.

The cupola of the Grayland school at Kilpatrick avenue and Irving Park boulevard was knocked off by lightning.

A willow tree fifty feet high was struck down in Lincoln park at Diversey beach.

The storm cooled the weather after a day of considerable heat. The temperature was 88 degrees at 3 o'clock and the total precipitation for the twenty-four hours was .61 of an inch. But it must be remembered it fell all at once.

FOOD

Provisions for Safeguarding Sustenance of Nation for Duration of War with Germany.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 19.—President Wilson's food proclamation provides:

Appointment of Herbert C. Hoover as food administrator without pay.

All Mr. Hoover's assistants, except clerks, to be volunteers.

Voluntary mobilization of food producers and distributors for "intelligent control of food consumption."

Prevention of all food hoarding and "corners."

Requisitioning of food supplies and equipment for handling them when necessary.

Government establishment of prices to guarantee farmers their profits.

Prohibition of food waste.

Licensing of legitimate mixtures and milling percentages.

Government food control to end immediately after the war.

WANT TO KNOW WHAT THIS WAR IS ALL ABOUT

"Apostles of Democracy" Are Also Anxious Over Peace Terms.

The United States will be called on to define exactly what it is fighting for and on what terms it will make peace. The demand for this information is to be made at a massmeeting to be held in the Auditorium next Sunday.

The meeting was determined upon at a conference of peace advocates and apostles of "world democracy" at the Congress hotel yesterday. Dean Robert M. Lovett of the University of Chicago presided. Arthur Fisher acted as secretary. Letters were ordered sent to the the ministers of 600 churches in Chicago urging them to announce the meeting of their congregations.

Call Issued.

The following call for next Sunday's meeting was issued:

"Now that the foreign commissions are leaving this country, the time is ripe for a clear and definite statement of the agreements that have been reached between our government and our allies. On April 2 President Wilson said:

"Cunningly contrived plans of deception and aggression . . . are happily impossible where public opinion commands and insists upon full information concerning all the nation's affairs."

"A massmeeting will be held in the Auditorium on Sunday afternoon, May 27, at 2:30 o'clock for the purpose of calling attention to the need of popular enlightenment on the exact terms of peace proposed by the United States and its European allies."

Not a Protest Against War.

"The meeting will be in no sense a protest against the present war," said Dean Lovett. "This country is not to be placed in the rôle of an enfant terrible demanding peace terms now. The meeting will prove futile if it should demand peace or criticise the United States for going to war. What we want to know is concrete peace terms and not glittering generalities. The purpose of the war must be made clear to the people.

"The meeting will not be under the auspices of the Woman's Peace party, the Socialist party, or any other party or organization. It will be a massmeeting of citizens. I hope out of the meeting will grow a movement which will have as its object the peaceable adjustment of all international controversies and the eventual democratization of the world in universal brotherhood."

Permanent Conference Committee.

Those who signed the call for the meeting styled themselves the "Chicago permanent conference committee on terms of peace" and were:

HOOVER GIVEN WIDE POWERS AS CONTROLLER

Urges Board of Volunteer Business Men to Avoid Bureaucracy.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

Washington, D. C., May 19.—[Special.]—President Wilson has asked Herbert C. Hoover, the American director of Belgian relief, to undertake the emergency food administration of the country during the war. Mr. Hoover has accepted on condition that he may serve the nation without compensation.

Authority for the appointment of Mr. Hoover as food controller is provided in the bill now pending in congress. Until it is passed nothing definite can be done. The president, however, clearly outlined his desires in a statement issued today on the subject.

BUSINESS MEN ON BOARD.

Control of food products by a board independent of the department of agriculture is proposed in order that there may be no fear of the "possibility of a permanent bureaucracy arising out of it," the president said.

In this connection it became known tonight that Mr. Hoover, before the house committee on agriculture last week, urged that an independent board of business men be organized to undertake the task of food administration, his suggestion being that if extreme dictatorial power be lodged in a government department there might be danger of establishment of bureaucratic power.

STATEMENT BY WILSON.

The president's statement is as follows:

"It is desirable, in order to prevent misunderstandings or alarms, and to assure coöperation in a vital matter, that the country should understand exactly the scope and purpose of the great powers which I have thought it necessary to ask congress to put in my hands with regard to our food supplies.

"Those powers are great indeed, but they are no greater than it has proved necessary to lodge in the other governments which are conducting this momentous war, and their object is stimulation and conservation, not arbitrary restraint or injurious interference with the normal processes of poduction.

"They are intended to benefit and assist the farmer and all those who play a legitimate part in the preparation, distribution, and marketing of foodstuffs.

DUTIES TO BE PERFORMED.

"It is proposed to draw a sharp line of distinction between the normal activities of the government represented in the department of agriculture in reference to food production, conservation, and marketing on the one hand and the emergency activity necessitated by the war in reference to the regulation of food distribution and consumption on the other.

"All measures intended directly to extend the normal activities of the department of agriculture in reference to the production, conservation, and the marketing of farm crops will be administered, as in normal times, through that department, and the powers asked for over distribution and consumption, over exports, imports, prices, purchase, and requisition of commodities, storing, and the like which may require regulation during the war will be placed in the hands of a commissioner of food administration appointed by the president and directly responsible to him.

OBJECTS TO BE SERVED.

"The objects sought to be served by the legislation asked for are:

"Full inquiry into the existing available stocks of foodstuffs and into the costs and practices of the various food producing and distributing trades; the prevention of all unwarranted hoarding of every kind, and of the control of foodstuffs by persons who are not in any legitimate sense producers, dealers, or traders; the requisitioning when necessary for the public use of food supplies and of the equipment necessary for handling them properly; the licensing of wholesome and legitimate mixtures and milling percentages; and the prohibition of the unnecessary or wasteful use of foods.

"Authority is asked also to establish prices—but not in order to limit the profits of the farmers but only to guarantee to them when necessary a minimum price which will insure them a profit where they are asked to attempt new crops, and to secure the consumer against extortion by breaking up corners and attempts at speculation when they occur by fixing temporarily a reasonable price at which middlemen must sell.

"I have asked Mr. Herbert C. Hoover to undertake this all important task of food administration. He has expressed his willingness to do so on condition that he is to receive no payment for his services and that the whole of the force under him, exclusive of clerical assistance, shall be employed so far as possible upon the same volunteer basis.

"He has expressed his confidence that the difficult matter of food administration can be successfully accomplished through the voluntary coöperation and direction of legitimate distributors of foodstuffs and with the help of the women of the country.

Hopes for Co-operation.

"Although it is absolutely necessary that unquestionable powers shall be placed in my hands in order to insure the success of this administration of the food supplies of the country, I am confident that the exercise of those powers will be necessary only in the few cases where some small and selfish minority proves unwilling to put the nation's interests above personal advantage and that the whole country will heartily support Mr. Hoover's efforts by supplying the necessary volunteer agencies throughout the country for the intelligent control of food consumption and securing the coöperation of the most capable leaders of the very interests most directly affected, that the exercise of the powers deputed to him will rest very successfully upon the good will and coöperation of the people themselves and that the ordinary economic machinery of the country will be left substantially undisturbed.

Only for War Emergency.

"The proposed food administration is intended, of course, only to meet a manifest emergency and to continue only while the war lasts. Since it will be composed for the most part of volunteers there need be no fear of the possibility of a permanent bureaucracy arising out of it. All control will disappear when the emergency has passed. It is with that object in view that the administration considers it to be of preeminent importance that the existing associations of producers and distributors of foodstuffs should be mobilized and made use of on a volunteer basis.

"The successful conduct of the projected food administration by such means will be the finest possible demonstration of the willingness, the ability, and the efficiency of democracy and of its justified reliance upon the freedom of individual initiative. The last thing that any American could contemplate with equanimity would be the introduction of anything resembling Prussian autocracy into the food control of this country.

Wants Success Assured.

"It is of vital interest and importance to every man who produces food and to every man who takes part in its distribution that the policies thus liberally administered should succeed and succeed altogether. It is only in that way that we cannot prove it to be absolutely unnecessary to resort to the rigorous and drastic measures which have proved to be necessary in some of the European countries.

"The secretary of agriculture has been of the opinion from the outset that special emergency powers for the regulation of distribution and consumption during the war should be vested in the president and that these powers should not be exercised by the department of agriculture, but by an emergency agency. He has also entertained the hope that Herbert C. Hoover, especially because of his familiarity with internal food conditions, might be designated by the president to discharge the powers during the war. He is greatly pleased that the president has concluded the matter and very much hopes that the necessary powers will be quickly conferred by the congress."

AMERICANS AND BRITISH AGREED ON ALL ISSUES

Washington, D. C., May 19.—[Special.]—It was disclosed by a high authority today that conferences between the British mission and this government have reached their final stages without a disagreement of the slightest character, and without any obstacle being met with which was not overcome in a manner agreeable to all concerned.

The initiative was taken in every subject advanced by the representatives of the United States, the British representatives, never volunteering anything except when asked.

It was also learned that for the present at least the war legislative program has been completed, except where measures before congress have not been passed. The administration, it was stated, has no additional bills to be introduced, and it will ask no further general legislation unless necessity arises through the meeting of new problems.

Army Birdlets Soon Will Try Wings Here

Operations at the government's military aviation school, moved from Memphis, Tenn., to the field of the Aero Club of Illinois at Ashburn, are expected to start within a week. Capt. Arthur R. Christie, four other officers, and sixty student army aviators, will arrive today from Memphis. Equipment, including twenty-eight warplanes, already have arrived.

The eleven young men who recently passed the tests entitling them to instruction as applicants for officers' commissions in the aviation section of the signal corps will be sent to the University of Illinois for six weeks' technical study of aeronautics. After this they will begin their actual instructions in flying at Ashburn.

Pays $15 on Suit; Enlists, Can't Get $15 Back; Sues

Boleslaw Niazga of Kensington on last Saturday arranged for a suit of clothes from A. Neumann, a tailor, 341 South Dearborn street. He paid a deposit on $15 and the next day enlisted in the army. Then he appeared in Neumann's shop and demanded back his $15.

The tailor refused, saying he had already cut the cloth and would be loser even though the remainder of the work were not done.

Finally, according to the tailor, he made an offer to give Niazga $5 and take a chance on selling the suit to some one else. Niazga sought out an attorney and legal action was brought against Neumann to be tried tomorrow.

Chicago Boy, Practicing to Be Soldier, Wings Chum

Valparaiso, Ind., May 19.—[Special.]—James Janson, aged 20, of West Chicago avenue, was accidentally shot through the leg today by Isadore Beifeld, 20, 112 West Randolph street. It was feared Janson might bleed to death. An artery was cut and the bone grazed. With several other Chicago boys the pair came here to practice at Burlington beach with their rifles. They wanted to fit themselves for the war, they said.

AUTOS TO BRING FRESH FOOD TO CHICAGO'S DOOR

County School Pupils Begin Campaign of Sales to Motorists.

BY HENRY M. HYDE.

Every Saturday and Sunday during the summer there will be at least 25,000 automobiles running out into the country from Chicago on one day excursions.

This year the pupils of the rural schools of Cook county have planted at least 5,000 gardens. These gardens are part of their regular school work and are planted and cultivated under the direction of County Superintendent of Schools Tobin and his five country life directors. That means the gardens are cultivated under expert advice.

Each pupil is required to sell the vegetables grown in his garden and to keep an exact account of the proceeds.

In addition there are several hundred pupils who are operating poultry yards and selling eggs and broilers on a business basis.

In many parts of the county it is hard for the young gardeners and poultrymen to get a ready market for their produce. The question of transportation is one of the big difficulties.

Autos Furnish Solution.

The automobiles which are now running by the farms where the vegetables are growing and the eggs are being laid seem to furnish a ready solution of that problem.

The trouble is that there has heretofore been no link bringing the city automobilist, who would like fresh vegetables and fresh eggs, into easy touch with the rural school pupil who has either or both for sale.

Yesterday Supt. Tobin and the country life directors, at their regular annual meeting, devised a plan which, it is hoped, will supply the missing link.

They will suggest that a wooden blackboard, measuring 18x24 inches, be set up on the front fence of every farm on which one of the school gardens is growing. On this blackboard is to be written a list of the vegetables which are in season and which are for sale from week to week. In the same way fresh eggs and poultry can be advertised to all who pass by.

Make Boards in School.

The blackboards will be made and painted as part of the regular work in the rural schools, the materials costing not more than 20 cents for each.

It will take two or three weeks to get any considerable number of the boards ready and in place, but there will be no vegetables, save radishes and perhaps lettuce and onions, ready for sale within that time.

Perhaps nine-tenths of the school gardens are not located on the mainly traveled automobile roads. In such cases efforts will be made to get permission to put signs on farm fences along such roads announcing that vegetables are for sale at such and such a distance down the adjoining cross road.

Automobilists doubtless will find not only plenty of fresh vegetables but also much pretty scenery by exploring on their own account some of the side roads in the county.

Parents Also May Benefit.

Supt. Tobin predicts that many farmers—parents of the rural school children—will find the proposed farm bulletin board a valuable innovation. Not only will they be able to write in chalk on the board announcements of their own vegetables, eggs, poultry, and other products for sale, but will also be able to use it to communicate their wants in the direction of farm labor and other needs to all who pass.

Out in the Snake river valley of Idaho practically every ranch has a big blackboard at its front gate, on which are written from day to day the list of needs and of articles or products which are offered for sale. What has proved successful in such a sparsely settled country should be much more useful in a crowded community like Cook county.

City People Appreciative.

"I think the idea has tremendous possibilities," said Mr. Tobin. "The question of the transportation of food products is one of the hardest to solve. And there is not one of the thousands of motors which run out of Chicago at every week end which could not transport back to the city a big basket of fresh vegetables or a few dozen eggs, and that without overcrowding anybody. When city people learn how much better vegetables right out of the ground taste I think they will be quick to take advantage of the idea.

"It will be a good thing, too, for our farm boys and their fathers as well. When from twenty to a hundred automobiles stop in a day to buy their vegetables, eggs, or even flowers they will appreciate the value of the farm bulletin idea."

Chicago Man Is Assured of Getting Yale Honors

New Haven, Conn., May 19.—[Special.]—The reëlection of John Villiers Farwell of Chicago to the Yale corporation at the commencement exercises in June is assured. Announcement was made today from the office of Secretary Stokes of the university that three candidates had been formally nominated by the alumni by securing the required block of twenty-five votes, but that only Mr. Farwell remained in the campaign. The other two nominations were ex-President William Howard Taft, now a Yale professor, and Dr. Frederick Towsley Murphy, formerly of Boston, now of St. Louis. Dr. Murphy and Prof. Taft declined to remain candidates against Mr. Farwell.

Son of Yankee Killed in War to Enter West Point.

Harrison Howell Heiberg, eldest son of Maj. Elvin R. Heiberg, military attaché of the American embassy in Rome, who was killed on the Italian front last March, yesterday was notified that he will enter West Point. It was the wish of his father that he would live to see his son appointed to the school of which he was a graduate, but in this ambition he was disappointed.

Hoover Outlines Cardinal Principles of Food Control

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 19.—[Special.]—Herbert C. Hoover, in a statement issued following the president's food control announcement, said that in accepting the president's appointment as chief of the board it was entirely on the assumption that congress would grant broad powers on which a competent food administration could be established.

He outlined five cardinal principles of food administration which he previously had represented to the president, as follows:

First—That the food problem is one of wise administration and not expressed by the words "dictator" or "controller," but "food administrator."

Second—That this administration can be largely carried out through the coördination and regulation of the existing legitimate distributive agencies supplemented by certain emergency bodies composed of representatives of the producers, distributors, and consumers.

Third—That communities should organize for voluntary conservation of foodstuffs.

Fourth—That all important positions, so far as may be, shall be filled with volunteers.

Fifth—That the independent responsibility of the food administration is directly under the president with the coöperation of the great and admirable organization of the department of agriculture, the department of commerce, the federal trade commission, and the railway executive.

Must Protect All Angles.

"In a general way," Mr. Hoover said, "it may be stated that this country normally produces a surplus of most commodities and that our problem is to secure the effective and economical distribution of these supplies; to induce as large an export surplus for the benefit of our allies as we can; to protect our own requirements; to ask the whole community to assist us in building up this surplus by every effort of economy that we can devise, and to set up such machinery as will furnish this balance wheel on prices.

"At best the loaf of our allies will be a privation loaf, and every ounce we can add to it is a contribution to her strength and constancy in the war.

Business Out of Balance.

"I think it is recognized by all thinking men that the world war and the economy forces which have been set up have disorganized the ordinary balances and checks on prices.

"For instance, the price of wheat in normal times is a factor not only of supply in the United States but all the supplies in every country in the world.

"Today the supplies of Russia, Germany, Austria, Hungary, and Roumania no longer enter upon the establishment of this balance; the crop failure in South America has eliminated those states; the long haul from Australia has diminished the free flow from that quarter, and the supplies in England, France, and Italy are in the physical possession of the government and therefore do not enter into the common pool of price balance."

Work Divided Four Ways.

In order to establish temporary balance wheels to affect stability of price, Mr. Hoover said his present view is to divide the food administration into four branches.

First, he would set up a number of separate executive bodies for regulation and administration of certain critical commodities, these to be organized like a commercial institution, with a president, board of directors, etc., to work out the problems to stabilize prices and distribution. These bodies should be made up of leading men of the country, producers, distributors, bankers, and consumers, alike.

States Must Give Aid.

The second branch, he says, lies in the governors and state administrations to act on local problems in coöperation with the national administration; using powers against illegitimate hoarding which congress has been asked to supply and to stop waste in public places.

Domestic economy is the third branch and for the solution of this he said he would shortly appeal to the women of the country, inasmuch as 90 per cent of the food consumption is in their hands.

"We do not ask that the American people should starve themselves, but that they should eat plenty, wisely, and without waste," Mr. Hoover said.

Co-operate with the Allies.

Coöperation with allies of the United States in control of exports and imports must be the fourth branch, he said. Along these lines, he thinks, with voluntary service from all concerned, food problems could adequately be solved.

"I recognize the difficulties and possibilities of failure in this work," Mr. Hoover declared, "and I appeal to the patriotism of my countrymen for their support. I have no instinct to be a food dictator. My ambition is to see my own people solve their own problems.

"These men and women who cannot serve in the trenches or the shops can show their patriotism in no way so fully as in this service, and I feel that we have as much right to call on them to serve in this administration as we have a right to call on our men to serve in the trenches."

NAVY

Recruiting Figures for Week Show Chicago Third City in Central States.

Figures on navy recruiting for the week ended May 17 show Chicago to be third on the list of cities in the central states.

The list does not show the number of recruits enlisted by the Chicago office, as many of the men were not sworn in until they arrived at the Great Lakes station and were accredited to that district.

The list follows:

	Week ending May 17.	Since March 31.
Minneapolis	200	2,046
St. Louis	195	806
Chicago	156	1,469
Kansas City	147	1,662
Detroit	119	836
Des Moines	109	936
Indianapolis	91	1,114
Omaha	83	890
Cincinnati	77	833
Peoria	77	541
Milwaukee	59	567
Lexington	24	120
Totals	1,337	11,820

More than 100 men have been enlisted in the Third regiment of reserve engineers and 100 others have been ordered to report for examination. According to Maj. C. L. Bent, the regiment will be ready to move by June 15.

U. S. AGENTS RAID HEADQUARTERS OF SOCIALISTS

Special agents from Mr. Clabaugh's office are said to have invaded the national headquarters of the Socialist party in the Mid-City bank building at Halsted and Madison streets. There a quantity of socialist literature was taken by the federal agents and this is under scrutiny of the bureau of investigation.

Hinton G. Clabaugh, divisional chief of the bureau of investigation of the department of justice, and special agents from his office, working with the coöperation of the police, yesterday continued an inquiry into the activities of an alleged I. W. W. and pro-German propaganda organization, six members of which—five men and a woman—now are said to be held in the Maxwell street police station. Three of the men are held at the detective bureau. They gave the names of Hugo Selfano, Louis Davidoff and Harry Howard.

PREMIER ENDS BRITISH STRIKE

LONDON, May 19.—The engineers' strike, which threatened to interfere with the output of munitions and other war materials, has been settled through the intervention of Premier Lloyd George.

An official announcement said it was agreed that the labor members of the unofficial strike conference should return to their districts and advise the men to return to work immediately.

Showers Fail to Quench Minnesota Forest Fires

St. Paul, Minn., May 19.—Showers in northern Minnesota were not heavy enough to extinguish forest fires yesterday, reports to the state forester's office today indicate. Moose Lake, Duluth, Virginia, Hibbing, and other cities report blazes still raging. State Forester Cox returned today from the fire zone, where he had a narrow escape when he rode through a fire on a railroad speeder. The fire threatened to hem the for-

MUST U. S. NOW TELL ARGENTINA TO BE REAL GOOD?

Washington, D. C., May 19.—Argentina's plea that a wheat shortage at home prevents her from exporting any of her crop to the allies is under investigation by the state department, and if reports of an actual surplus in the South American republic are borne out a way may be found to prevent further American coal shipments to Argentine ports.

It was said at the department today that if it develops that Argentina really is so short of wheat that exportation would cause suffering there is no probability of interference by the United States.

Great Britain already has halted coal shipments to Argentina, and the nation's industries are dependent on American coal.

German Wheat Trick?

BUENOS AIRES, May 19.—It is reported that the German minister has asked the minister of agriculture to place at his disposal 100,000 tons of wheat, to be exported at an opportune moment. It is believed here that this is merely an attempt to prevent the entente allies from utilizing the total stock ready for exportation.

SLEW PREMIER; DEFENDS ACTION

AMSTERDAM, May 19.—Dispatches from Vienna report the trial of Dr. Friedrich Adler, the editor and Socialist who last October shot and killed the Austrian premier, Count Karl Stuergkh.

Dr. Adler pleaded in defense that he was guilty in the same way that any officer was guilty who, in war time, killed or ordered the death of another man. Dr. Adler protested against the statement that he lacked moral responsibility and declared that the fact that his trial was conducted by a special court was his moral justification.

On the day before he was shot the prime minister had refused to discuss the calling of the reichsrath, declared Dr. Adler.

"Therefore," he continued, "I decided to fight him with the weapons he himself had chosen. There was no other way, for if the law is violated it is not only the right but the duty of every citizen to procure justice for himself." He was a man who championed the use of force and could be removed only by force."

Dr. Adler's father testified that his son was suffering from a mental disorder.

Rain Dampens Ardor of Austin Patriotic Rally

Rain dampened the ardor of a patriotic rally billed in Austin last night.

The rally began with a parade about fifty feet long and ended with a dash for shelter at the close of a speech by Maj. James Stansfield of Oak Park. The major talked in the park surrounding the police station. His remarks were principally upon food economy.

Sergt. Anderson, regular army recruiting officer, was nearly disconsolate. He had hoped to line up a number of prospective soldiers.

Allied Bazaar Blind Fund Is Now $466,000

It is announced by the heads of the Allied bazaar permanent blind relief that $466,000 has now been subscribed for the fund. Of this, $300,000 has been invested in war loan bonds. It is hoped to raise $2,000,000 as a basis for the permanent fund.

Nicaragua Joins Sister Nations in German Break

Washington, D.C., May 19.—Nicaragua, following the lead of Guatemala and Honduras, has severed diplomatic relations with Germany.

'TRUST BUSTER' HERE HINTS WAR ON PRICE FIXERS

It's Easy to Convict Food Speculators, Asserts U. S. Official.

"Any man who fixes prices or combines with others to force the payment of prices he could not make alone is guilty under the Sherman anti-trust law.

"If, for instance, a man who owns a string of mills buys up wheat, so that a competitor can't get it, and thereby forces him to close his mill, he is guilty under the Sherman anti-trust law.

"These bold food speculators do not rest in the security they believe they have. It is much easier to indict them and to convict them than they think."

Oliver E. Pagan of the United States attorney general's office and probably America's greatest indictment maker, spoke the above words yesterday to a reporter for THE TRIBUNE. He came to Chicago from Washington, with Robert W. Childs, special assistant attorney general, who has been in charge of the butter and eggs and the wheat investigations here.

Mr. Pagan was asked if his visit had to do with these federal investigations. He replied:

"Yes, and there are some other investigations to be taken up in Chicago. What they are I do not think it wise to say."

Some of His Work.

Mr. Pagan comes to Chicago fresh from achievements. He it was who prepared the indictments which recently "snagged" 108 corporations and 55 individuals in New York for smokeless soft coal price boosting. In a trip to the Pacific not long ago he got indictments against the "cement trust." He dropped in at Kansas City briefly and "busted" the plumbers' trust. And in the past he drew the indictments in the government's Standard Oil and beef trust prosecutions.

Almost as soon as he reached Chicago Mr. Pagan went into consultation with Charles F. Clyne, United States district attorney, Mr. Childs, and his assistants, Harris and Condren. The federal grand jury will resume its work tomorrow.

"I expect to be here about two weeks," said Mr. Pagan. "Then I shall be gone for a week or two but will return for another two or three weeks. We've got quite a little work to do here."

Costly to Live or Die.

He reflected a moment and then he went on:

"Do you realize that about everything we eat, or wear, or walk on, from the cradle to the grave, your hats, your shoes, the cement sidewalks, baby clothes and the paper on the wall—even the coffin you're laid away in, is controlled by some combine? The coffin trust's the worst of all. You can't die decently for less than $500.

"And as for living, if a loaf of bread costs one cent more to make the style seems to be to raise it a nickle, make excuses and soak the public."

"Will bread costs be investigated here?" he was asked.

"I did not say. I merely used that as a sample of what is being done in many things," he said.

GOMPERS WARNS SKILLED LABOR MAY BE WASTED

Washington, D. C., May 19.—Exemption from army conscription for workers necessary for munitions manufacture and for production of articles needed to maintain the civilian population were urged today by Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor in a statement pointing to Great Britain's mistake in taking into the fighting forces thousands of men who afterward had to be returned to the manufacturing industries.

"The fundamental demand which labor makes in connection with the conscription act," said Mr. Gompers, "is that representatives of wage earners must be on every board, national, state, and local, which has to do with the administration of the law.

"This demand is in accord with the methods found necessary in Great Britain and is founded upon justice and democracy. The wage earners will be vitally affected by selective conscription, and they ought to have representatives in such strategic positions.

"The spirit of labor in the nation's emergency has been generous and patriotic. They are willing to do their part and to give that which is a part of their lives. They must be met in the same spirit of fairness and coöperation by both the government and the employers that the ideals of our republic may be maintained in the contest in which we are engaged."

Chauffeurs Lose Glory; Khaki Suits to Be Dyed.

In order that confusion may be avoided the uniforms of chauffeurs and conductors of the motor busses are being dyed green. Yesterday all guards and chauffeurs worked in "plain clothes."

Heretofore they have been wearing the standard khaki uniforms of the United States army with some alterations, but so many persons have been saluting the guards and otherwise mistaking them for army officers that it was considered best to dye the khaki green.

Final Action Is Taken on Increases for Navy

Washington, D. C., May 19.—Final action was taken in congress today on the bill increasing the navy's enlisted strength to 150,000, the marine corps to 30,000, and increasing the pay of navy enlisted men. The senate adopted the conference report, previously accepted by the house, and the bill went to the president.

Road to Lift Embargo on Coal Going to Chicago

Springfield, Ill., May 19.—[Special.]—The Southern Railway company today notified the Illinois public utilities commission that it will raise the embargo against delivery of coal at East St. Louis for shipment to Chicago.

BUY VEGETABLES, EXPERT'S ADVICE; PRICE DROP DUE

Green Stuffs Supply Will Cut Cost Even Lower Soon.

Here are some of the things for sale in Chicago today at prices not one whit higher than in any average year. The authority for this is W. J. Ellis, for thirty-eight years on South Water street and one of the biggest dealers there. He advises you to buy:

Asparagus, because it is abundant, cheap, and healthful.

Peas, because they are of good quality and normal in price.

String beans, lettuce, spinach, and radishes, plentiful and cheap.

Pieplant, because it is plentiful and an ideal spring food.

Don't use canned goods, he says, for the fresh vegetables are cheaper, better, and healthier.

Vegetables to Be Cheaper.

"Prospects are that spring vegetables, normal in price now, will be considerably cheaper than usual," said Mr. Ellis yesterday. "There is a reason for this. The cry of lack of foods has brought on a big acreage, and to this is added the gardens that have been planted everywhere.

"Everything is a little backward to now, owing to the continued cold weather, which has been general. But with this sort of weather and spring rains the stuff will fairly pop from the ground.

"Asparagus must be cut every day now, it grows so fast. Potatoes are a little late but are going to be much more plentiful soon. It looks to me like potatoes might go off $3.50 to $4 a barrel in three or four weeks."

Poultry Gamblers Lose.

Food speculators who invested largely in poultry last fall have received a body blow, it is revealed in South Water street. Tons upon tons of it were piled away in the cold storage houses. This cost, along in the fall, 28 to 30 cents or thereabouts and, with storage charges and other charges added, makes it cost now around 33 cents a pound.

And right now the men who had so much money in sight are being offered as low as 20½ cents for choice fowls. They are said to be losing as much as 20 to 25 per cent on some classes, which include turkeys, ducks, and geese. About the only thing they are breaking even on is old roosters.

Egg receipts for the week in Chicago totaled 196,196 cases, against 152,666 for the week last year. Butter for the week was 59,563 tubs, against 62,234 last year.

LABOR WILL MEET BRITISH ENVOYS TO AID WAR PLANS

Labor leaders and the heads of the largest business interests in the middle west will meet at luncheon on Tuesday to discuss how labor and capital can best coöperate in the service of the nation during the war.

The occasion will be the visit in Chicago of the four labor envoys of the British commission, who will be the guests of honor at the luncheon.

Some of the advice that the Britons will give—the result of lessons learned through mistakes in England—is as follows:

"Avoid the use of child labor.

"Protect the hours and working conditions of labor. After daily working hours of labor were reduced in England and one day's rest in seven was obtained the percentage of output was increased.

"Take precautions for avoiding accidents and sickness. This was reduced to 50 per cent in Great Britain after the proper measures were put into effect.

"Give women the pay of men when they do men's work."

The labor envoys will be met by the reception committee on their arrival. The luncheon will then be held. The afternoon will be devoted to "showing them the town." At night they will address two gatherings of labor union representatives.

MOVIES SHOW OUR SAILORS ON BRITISH SOIL

LONDON, May 19.—An official British admiralty film showing the arrival of the American flotilla and the landing of an American naval commander on British soil in war time, a century and a quarter after John Paul Jones did the same thing at Whitehaven, is of historic interest. It was exhibited at the Scala theater this afternoon.

The appearance on the horizon of the American destroyers is dramatic, and the welcome of the ships and men by the Queenstown people and British naval officers is enthusiastic.

In the picture of the American destroyers look to be of the latest and fastest type and their crews the best of sailors.

Judge Brentano Kin of Luxemberg President

A cable from Paris that a thousand natives of Luxemberg had proclaimed their independence, under the presidency of Funck Brentano, started speculation as to whether there exists a relationship between Funck Brentano and Judge Theodore Brentano of Chicago.

The judge, while declaring it to be a possibility, is not positive that it is more than a mere similarity of names. It is a fact, however, that Lorenz Brentano, father of Judge Brentano, was head of the great German uprising in 1848, which failed. Lorenz Brentano, having been one of a family of sixteen children, it is not improbable that the relationship of the jurist to Funck Brentano is that of cousin.

O, Boy! Page Mr. Hoover; This Man Throws Potatoes

"You know, judge, it was pow'ful warm last night so I stopped and got a couple of beers, and I reckon that I might have been a wee bit rough with the woman and did hit her with some stewed potatoes." This was the plea of John Nelson, a Negro, whose wife, Marie, had him up before Judge Joseph LaBuy yesterday. "To throw potatoes during a crisis is nearly a government offense, and I will put you on probation and you are not allowed to eat potatoes for thirty days," was the sentence.

300 LEAVE JAIL TO DO THEIR BIT FOR U. S. IN WAR

Three hundred former "down and outs" were released from the bridewell today on their promise to Supt. John L. Whitman to try to "do their bit" by getting work in factories or on farms. Two hundred more are to be liberated next week, Mr. Whitman said.

The men were arrested for disorderly conduct and were sent to the institution to serve out small fines, with recommendation in most cases for medical treatment for the liquor habit.

Early in the week Chief Justice Olson of the Municipal court and Chief of Police Schuettler talked to the men and recommended their release.

GEN. PERSHING HERO OF MEN; ALL LOVE HIM

Leader of First Force in France Typical U. S. Warrior.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., May 19.—[Special.]—Maj. Gen. John J. Pershing, chosen by President Wilson to command the first division of American regulars to be sent to France, is one of the officers picked by Col. Roosevelt when he was president for rapid promotion to the highest army command.

Capt. Pershing was just a much loved captain of cavalry when, in 1906, Col. Roosevelt startled the country by sending his name to the senate for confirmation as a brigadier general. The other officers advanced by Col. Roosevelt were Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood and Maj. Gen. J. Franklin Bell, the latter of whom recently succeeded Gen. Wood as commanding officer of the eastern department on Governor's Island.

"Black Jack" Pershing, as the men of the rank and file know the commander of the department of the south and the successor to the late Frederick Funston, is the type of soldier which Frederic Remington immortalized in his pictures of the Indian campaigns.

Lean but rugged, his six feet and better every inch bone and muscle, he typifies the ideal cavalry officer.

Native of Missouri.

Gen. Pershing is 53 years old and his honors came with a rush during the last sixteen years. Born in Laclede, Linn county, Mo., he was appointed to West Point in 1882 and four years later was graduated as senior cadet captain, the highest honors which come to any undergraduate of the military academy.

Pershing had no time upon graduation for any army post social activities and playtime. The wily old Geronimo, chief of the Apaches, was giving plenty of trouble and among the regiments sent in pursuit was the Sixth United States cavalry, of which Second Lieut. Pershing was a "cub."

He rode and soldiered much in the next few years chasing the Indians over the southwest, and on one occasion showed the stuff that was going to win for him in the later years. He marched his troop with a pack train 140 miles in forty-six hours. Gen. Miles paid him a fine tribute for this feat, and pointed to the fact that Lieut. Pershing "had brought in every man and animal in good condition."

Long Waited Promotion.

For seven years Lieut. Pershing never had a promotion, but in 1892 he was raised to the rank of first lieutenant. He was assigned to the Tenth cavalry, the crack Negro command that afterward won fame at the San Juan blockhouse.

The young officer applied himself to study of tactics, an application which has since resulted in the acknowledgement of Pershing as the best strategist in the regular army. Such became his reputation even then that he was assigned to West Point as an instructor in this subject.

He did not vegetate above the Hudson long, for the war with Spain started and Pershing applied instantly for a place with the Negro Tenth. His command was shipped to Cuba among the first troops of that expeditionary force, and he distinguished himself in the field. His colonel termed him "the bravest and coolest man he ever saw under fire" while at the battle of El Caney Pershing was promoted to captain for signal gallantry in action.

Tires of Easy Berth.

When the war ended President McKinley exercised his executive right and gave Capt. Pershing a berth as the head of the customs and insular in the war department.

Pershing asked to be sent to the Philippines where the little brown men were cutting up rough with the nephews of their adopted Uncle Samuel. So to Mindanao Pershing went as adjutant general of that department. He familiarized himself with the Moro problem.

Active command of the expedition to subjugate these tribesmen was finally given to Capt. Pershing, and after months of applied diplomacy and bullets he brought them to subjection. He was made military governor of Mindanao, and showed such executive foresight and prescience in his dealings with the natives that the Moros chose Pershing to be a datto, or a ruler. This subjugation of a fighting race was accomplished with the loss of only [illegible] American lives.

Watches Far East Fighting.

Pershing's work in the Philippines had naturally made him a spectacular figure after the achievements of Funston had aroused such natural American approbation and delight. So the captain was sent to Manchooria to take a look at the squabble between the bear that walks like a man and the little yellow chap.

He was attached to Gen. Koroki's staff and what he saw and what he learned he gave to the war department in the form of one of its best, most complete and meaty reports ever filed by a military observer attached to armies in the field.

About a year before Col. Roosevelt, then president, addressed congress on the question of promotions in the army and navy. The promotions usually went by seniority and the caste in the army was jealous of this tradition.

Roosevelt, in a memorable message to congress on Dec. 7, 1903, wanted the seniority rule abridged and specifically mentioned Capt. Pershing as a gallant and distinguished officer who was held back by a tradition that worked havoc and harm to the men who might have been.

Future Wife Hears Praise.

In the gallery during the reading of this message was Miss Frances Warren, the daughter of United States Senator Francis E. Warren of Wyoming. She followed the message closely and when leaving the capitol declared that she would like to meet the officer who had won such commendation by the president. Less than two years afterward the warrior and the senator's daughter were married.

Then President Roosevelt cut the Gordian knot in his characteristic manner. He jumped Capt. Pershing over the heads of 862 officers, his seniors in rank and service, creating Pershing a brigadier general. Instantly there was hubbub and furore, but the president and the advocates of Pershing's cause remained firm and the tumult and the shouting died a natural death.

After the storm subsided the truth was revealed. It developed that Roosevelt did not want to make Pershing a brigadier, but under the law there was no authority to jump him over the heads of the captains to a colonelcy. It was then a question of making him a general officer or keeping him in his present rank. Pershing became a brigadier.

Loses Family In Tragedy.

Pershing was sent to Japan as military attaché, remaining there a number of years, and returned to the United States in time to be sent to the Philippines to quell another Filipino insurrection. The pacified Moros had rebelled, but Pershing subjugated them, capturing a force of 7,000 and ending the rebellion.

Upon his return to the United States Gen. Pershing was assigned to command the Eighth brigade, with headquarters at the Presidio, near San Francisco. Two years ago a terrible tragedy wrecked his happiness. His wife and three children, Helen, Anne, and Margaret, 8, 7, and 6 years old, were burned to death in a fire in the commander's home. Warren Pershing, 5 years old, was rescued by servants.

Gen. Pershing was chosen by President Wilson to lead the chase for Villa two years ago. Although he failed to capture the bandit, he gave the Mexicans an object lesson regarding American soldiery that they have not forgotten. He returned to this country last February, and was promoted last September to be a major general.

NATIONAL ARMY OF 500,000 IN 16 DIVISIONS

Washington, D. C., May 19.—[Special.]—Plans for the formation of the new army have been completed. It will be divided into sixteen divisions, each to consist of 28,000 men. They will be mobilized in sixteen concentration camps, the names of which soon will be announced.

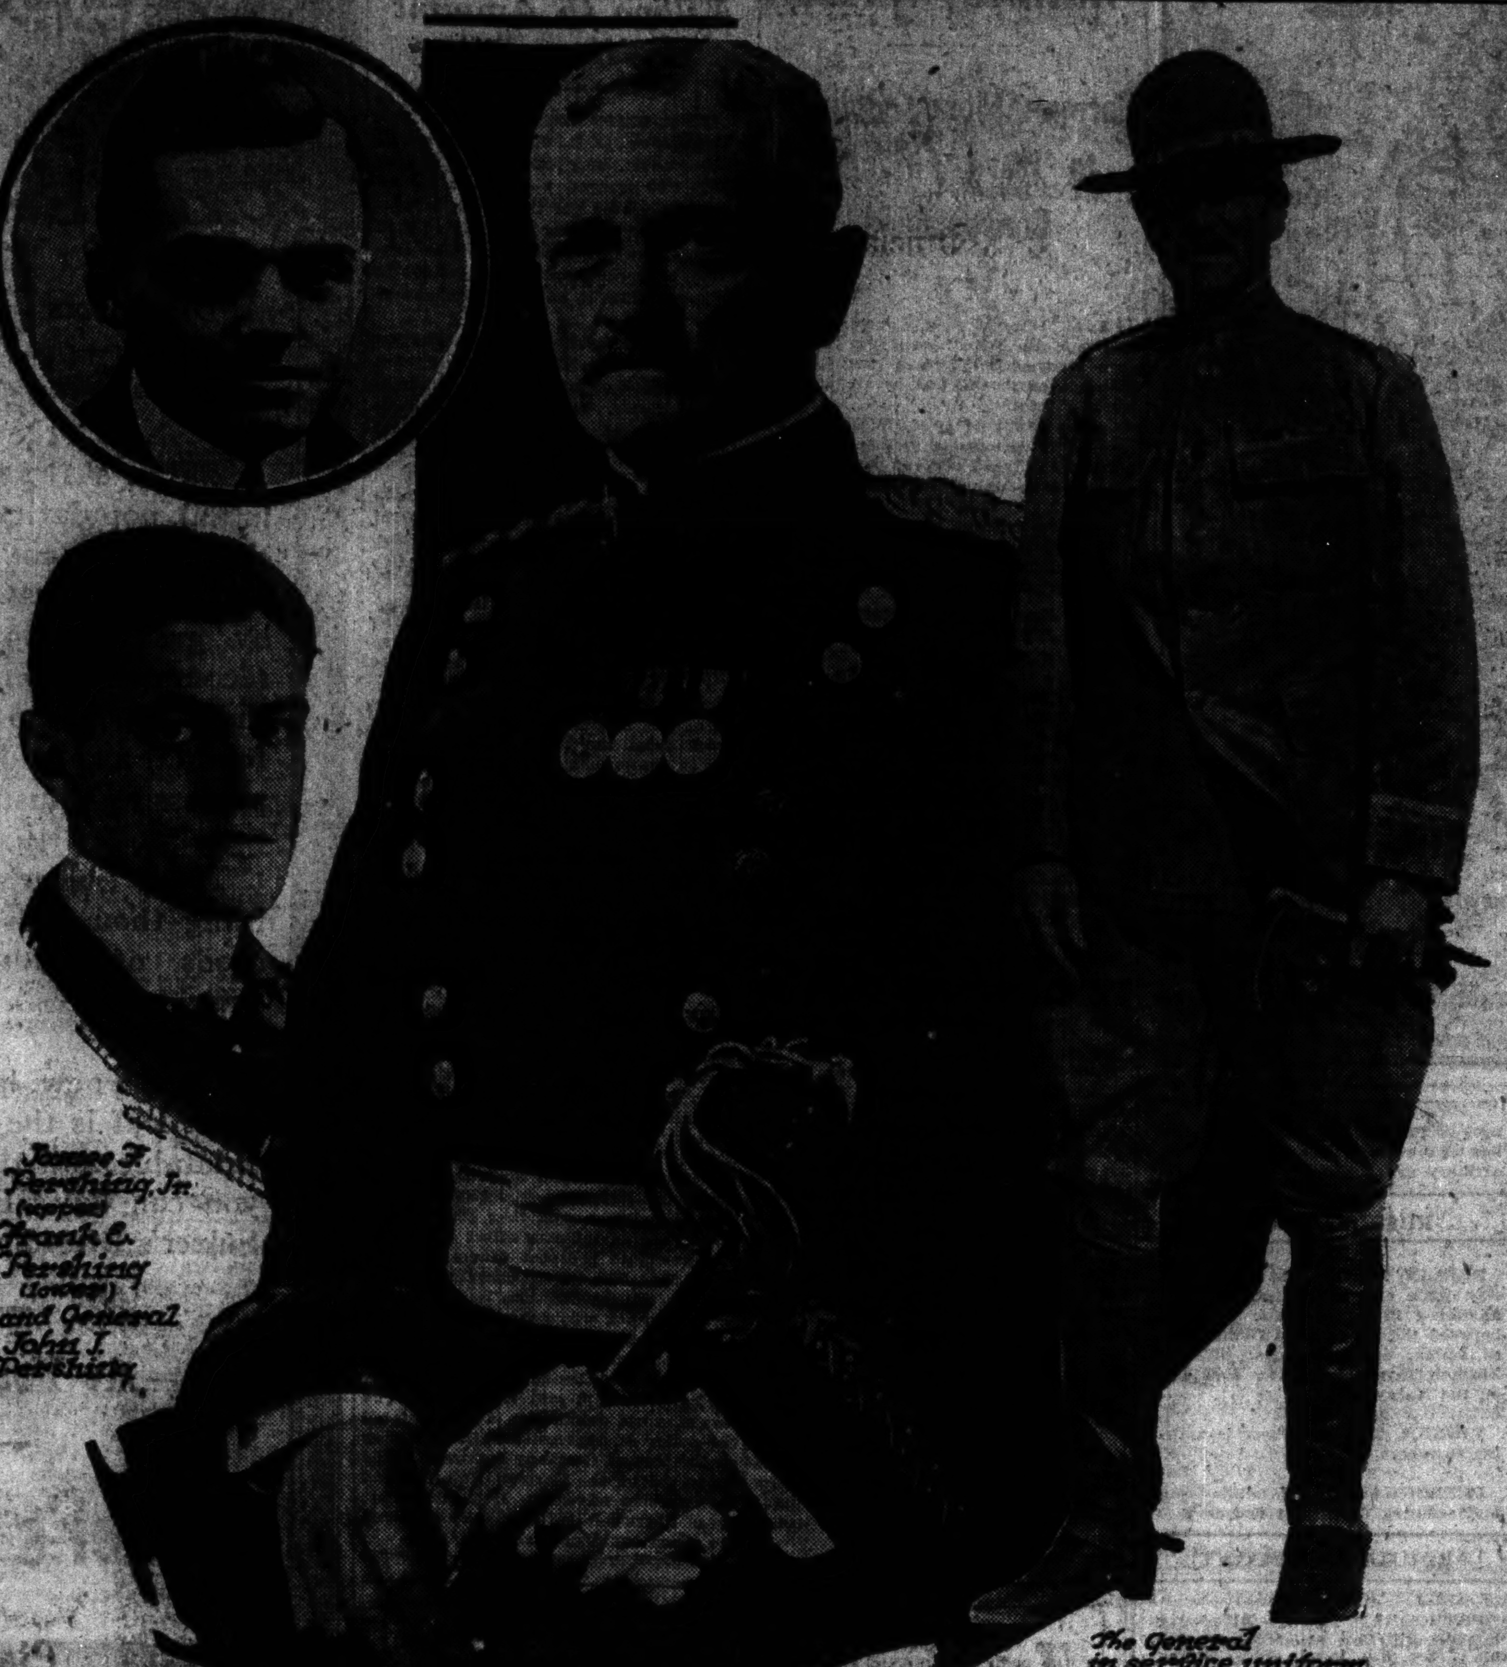
The draft army will be officially known as the national army, in contradistinction to the regular army and the national guard army.

These national army divisions will be numbered consecutively from one to sixteen. Divisions of the central west will be as follows:

Eighth—Ohio and West Virginia.
Ninth—Indiana and Kentucky.
Tenth—Wisconsin and Michigan.
Eleventh—Illinois.
Twelfth—Arkansas, Mississippi, and Louisiana.
Thirteenth—North Dakota, South Dakota, Nebraska, Minnesota, and Iowa.
Fourteenth—Colorado, Kansas, and Missouri.

PERSHINGS THREE—FIGHTER AND FIGHTERS TO BE

Gen. John J. Pershing, Veteran of Many Campaigns and Detailed as Commander of the First Expedition to France, Has Two Hero Worshipers in the Persons of His Two Chicago Nephews, Frank and James F. They, Too, Are Training to Become Soldiers.



James F. Pershing, Jr. (upper) Frank E. Pershing (lower) and General John J. Pershing.

The General in service uniform

GEN. JOHN J. PERSHING, whose sword is soon to be unsheathed as commander of the first American army to enter France, has many hero worshipers, but the most devoted are his two young nephews, James and Frank Pershing, sons of James F. Pershing of 5527 Cornell avenue.

Frank, captain of the 1917 football team of the University of Chicago, is still at the "U," but is learning military signals instead of giving football ones, and is busy from morning till night studying ordnance, preparatory to enlisting in the artillery.

"Jim," who is a famous golf player, is devoting his time to eating. He tried for the reserve officers' training camp, but was refused because he was under weight.

"The trouble with the enlisting, so far," said "Jim" Pershing last night, "is that everybody wants to go as a major general. If Uncle Sam should issue a call for 2,000,000 majors general tonight he'd have the list filled before morning. My uncle is a great man, and there's only one of him. We all have to begin at the beginning."

A visitor is soon to be entertained at the home of the general's brother. It is no less a person than "The Little General," Warren Pershing, aged 7, the general's only child. He was rescued from the fire at the Presidio in California two years ago when the rest of the general's family met with death. Master Warren is now in Washington visiting his aunt, Miss May Pershing. His Uncle Jim has made a wonderful scrap book for him containing clippings of the general's previous campaigns. A new scrap book is to be started when the little boy's father leaves for France.

3,000 of Pershing's Men Hail from Illinois

At least 3,000 of the troops who will go to France under the command of Gen. Pershing hail from Illinois, according to a regular army officer attached to the recruiting department here. Figures by this officer, who takes his estimates from the number of recruits supplied to Gen. Pershing's division from Chicago recruiting stations, show that at least one out of every six or seven in the division enlisted from some point in Illinois.

"The army which invaded Mexico under Gen. Pershing contained one Illinois enlistment for every seven men, and inasmuch as the amount of recruiting done here during the last months has been so great, it is quite reasonable to believe that the quota from this state will be greater now than at that time."

Garrison, on Way East from Butte, O. K.'s West

"The west is all right and all set for what is demanded of it," said former Secretary of War Lindley M. Garrison last night.

He arrived in Chicago on a late train from Butte, Mont., where he had been conducting a law case. He will leave for New York this morning.

Votes $100 Monthly Pay for Officers in Training

Washington, D. C., May 19.—The men serving in the officers' reserve corps will receive $100 a month during their training, according to the provisions of the army appropriation bill passed by the senate today. The house will take up the matter next week.

NONE EXEMPTED FROM REGISTRY FOR WAR DRAFT

Every Man Within the Age Limit Must Appear on June 5.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., May 19.—[Special.]—With virtually all preliminary work out of the way, Judge Advocate General Crowder, the grand provost marshal in charge of registration under the selective draft bill, today buckled down to the routine of seeing that every detail of the machinery for the enforcement of the law is perfected well in advance of June 5, the date on which all males between the ages of 21 and 30 inclusive must register.

"All males" means exactly what it says. There will be no exception on registration day. Even aliens must register and state their nationalities.

Reports have reached Washington that barroom and street loafers are hiking for the farms. This will not help them. They will be caught in the registration net whether they be in the town or city or in the country. If they are between 21 and 30 years of age Uncle Sam wants their names on June 5.

All Farmers Must Register.

Farmers may be exempted under the law from draft, but none are exempt from registration. This requirement has no exception whatever.

The registration of all aliens, it is believed, will serve a very useful purpose in the future, since it will give the federal and state authorities a line on all young men of alien birth in the country, together with their nationalities. They cannot be required to serve in the army, since the law specifically forbids the enlistment of aliens in the army even in peace times.

Aliens who have declared their intention to become citizens of the United States, except "alien enemies," which probably includes Austrians as well as Germans, since the former would have a rather unhappy time in an American training camp, may be used.

Married Men Not Exempt.

Even married men are not exempt from the operation of the selective draft law merely because they are married. Many married men will be drafted into the military service, but only when their wives and children are not financially dependent upon them.

Wives rich in their own right whose husbands fall within the prescribed age scale will have to give them up for the period of the war.

This rule is not general, since some wealthy married men will be numbered among those who are of greater potential value to the nation in their usual vocations than they would be at the front.

Many unmarried men with relatives wholly dependent upon their earnings will be exempt for this reason, if for no other.

Red Cross Units Depart; One Comes from Chicago

New York, May 19.—[Special.]—Six hundred and fifty-eight members of three units of the American Red Cross left today for England and France. The units were from Chicago, St. Louis, and Philadelphia.

WAR'S MOVES ON VARIOUS FRONTS OFFICIALLY TOLD

Italians Continue Thrust and Gain Important Enemy Points.

ITALIAN FRONT.

ITALIAN.

ROME, May 19.—Surprise attacks during the night on our positions on the heights of hill 592, on Monte Vodice, were repulsed.

Yesterday morning our troops opened a vigorous attack with the object of capturing the heights of hill 652 on Monte Vodice, the key to the enemy's defenses north of Monte Santo.

The stubborn resistance of the enemy, supported by numerous batteries of all calibers which kept up continuous fire from the rear, made the action long and severe. Advancing from rock to rock, expelling the enemy from trench and cavern, destroying his machine guns, our infantry by evening succeeded in reaching the crest of the long contested heights and maintaining the position against the concentrated fire of enemy batteries. We captured 870 men, including sixteen officers.

With the capture of the Massif between Monte Cucco and Monte Vodice the task of diverting the enemy's attention, which was assigned to the troops in the sector between Bodrez and Loga was completed and they withdrew to the right bank of the Isonzo without molestation from the enemy.

In the region east of Goritz we maintained all our positions against persistent enemy attacks which were particularly violent south of Grazigna and on the heights of Hill 174 south of Tivoli.

On the remainder of the front incessant artillery duels occurred. The enemy's fire was especially violent again Goritz and the surrounding villages.

AVIATION.

Intense aerial activity continues. Our squadrons dropped bombs on encampments east of Canale and in the Garcaro valley, returning in safety. Two enemy machines were brought down.

AUSTRIAN.

VIENNA, May 19.—Yesterday, the seventh day of the tenth Isonzo battle, again was full of fierce fighting. Southwest of Auzza the Italians, who had gained a footing here on the left bank of the Isonzo, fruitlessly attempted to extend their position. Our lines east of the narrow Plava-Salcano zone were uninterruptedly under the enemy's fire from guns of all calibers.

The Italian infantry, whose heavy losses are continuously made good by supplies of fresh troops, directed their efforts here principally against the heights of Vodice, against which they made repeated dashes in dense columns.

Each of these dashes collapsed sanguinarily, thanks to the heroic bravery of the defenders, brilliantly supported by the artillery and the airmen who participated in the battle.

Special praise is due to detachments of the Kassa infantry regiment, Kaiser Wilhelm II. infantry regiment No. 34, West Galician landsturm infantry regiment No. 32, under command of the gallant Col. Perner, and Austro-Hungarian landsturm battalion No. 60.

As a result of the fighting, which has lasted one week, the Italians have succeeded only in extending their bridgehead positions near Plava by barely two kilometers.

In the Flitsch-Ploecken district and several sectors of the Tyrolean district artillery firing increased considerably in violence. In the southern Tyrol, near Laghi and the Borcola pass our reconnoitering detachments penetrated the enemy positions and captured their garrisons.

East of Goritz (Isonzo front) the Italians again attempted to penetrate our positions without artillery preparation. The result of the attempt was the same as on the previous day. Our positions were maintained completely.

Lively skirmishing in this sector during the night resulted in the capture by us of 160 prisoners, including two officers.

AVIATION.

Our airmen shot down in air fights two enemy airplanes and a third was brought down by a small arm fire near Vertoiba. As a result of the fighting, which has lasted one week, the Italians up to the present have succeeded only in extending their bridgehead positions near Plava by merely two kilometers.

DAY STATEMENT.

The Isonzo battle continues. Monte The Isonzo battle continues. Monte Kuk, southeast of Plava, was abandoned yesterday morning after two days of varied fighting of the greatest fierceness. Our troops took up positions several hundred metres east of the hill.

In the Goritz region a remarkable calm prevailed during the day. After nightfall, refraining from any artillery preparation, the enemy suddenly dashed forward in dense masses, but all his efforts to gain a foothold in our lines failed before the cool defense of our brave troops.

Early today the enemy strongly attacked Monte Santo, but was repelled after hand to hand fighting. Since the beginning of the infantry battle we have brought in more than 3,000 prisoners. In the Flitsch and Ploecken sectors and in the southern Tyrol Italian artillery fire has increased.

FRENCH FRONT

BRITISH.

LONDON, May 19.—Hostile artillery was active during the day northeast of Epehy and both banks of the Scarpe. Nothing else of special interest occurred during the day.

AVIATION.

One German airplane was brought down in the air fighting yesterday and another was shot down by gunfire from the ground, and two hostile observation balloons were destroyed. Five of our airplanes are missing.

DAY STATEMENT.

We made a successful raid last night northeast of Gouzeaucourt and brought back prisoners and a machine gun.

Hostile raids were repulsed east of Loos, northeast of Armentieres, and east of Ypres.

FRENCH.

PARIS, May 19.—There was no infantry action during the day. The artillery fighting at times was violent along the Chemin-des-Dames, in the sector of Bovelle-Hurtebise, and on the Californie plateau. There was an intermittent cannonade on the rest of the front.

AVIATION.

Lieut. Delatour has brought down up to today nine German airplanes; Adj. Douchy seven.

DAY STATEMENT.

After a violent bombardment yesterday evening the Germans attacked our lines in the region northwest of Braye-En-Laonnois, from Epine de Chevregny as far as the Oise canal.

Our artillery and machine gun fire broke up the futile attack, and the Germans were not able to approach our positions except on the western end of the attacking front, where some fractions of the enemy forces gained a footing in advanced trenches. Many prisoners remained in our hands.

On the Californie plateau skirmishes and grenade fighting occurred. Northwest of Reims the Germans attacked our small posts south of Courcy, employing liquid fire. They were repulsed by our fire.

BELGIAN.

PARIS, May 19.—There was artillery action on both sides in the region of Ramscapelle, Dixmude, and the Ferryman's house.

GERMAN.

BERLIN, May 19.—During the afternoon there was increased artillery activity in the Champagne. Otherwise no events of importance occurred.

DAY STATEMENT.

Army group of Crown Prince Rupprecht—Between the coast and St. Quentin the activity of the artillery increased in several sectors. It attained great intensity during the night between Acheville and Gavrelle. An attack by the British on both sides of the Arras-Douai road under protection of this fire broke down under our defensive fire. Enemy attacks east of Monchy also were unsuccessful.

Army group of the German crown prince—Lively artillery firing continues on the Aisne and in the Champagne. Near Braye-en-Laonnois we improved our position further by capturing a French trench. An attack by the enemy on Winterburg during the night was repulsed in a stubborn engagement with grenades.

AVIATION.

Aerial activities have diminished in the last few days on account of unfavorable weather conditions. We shot down ten enemy airplanes yesterday.

MACEDONIAN FRONT.

BRITISH.

LONDON, May 19.—The enemy has again heavily counter attacked our new positions on the Struma front, but were driven back with loss.

AVIATION.

The royal naval air service successfully bombed the airdrome and camp at Drama.

FRENCH.

PARIS, May 19.—On the Struma front the Bulgarians, after heavy artillery preparation, attacked the positions recently captured by the British troops. They were repulsed. A surprise attack attempted by the enemy under cover of the fog near Lake Presba failed. In the region of Lymnitsa we have captured a new

GERMAN.

BERLIN, May 19.—After his failures of the last few days the enemy has not repeated his attacks. The artillery fire has diminished.

RUSSIAN FRONT

GERMAN.

BERLIN, May 19.—The fire of Russian guns and mine throwers was answered in an energetic manner between the Aa and the Dvina, west of Lutsk, on both sides of the Zlochow-Tarnopol railway line and on the Narayuvka.

AUSTRIAN.

VIENNA, May 19.—There is nothing to report.

RUSSIAN.

PETROGRAD, May 19.—Rifle firing and scouting operations occurred.

ROUMANIAN FRONT

RUSSIAN.

PETROGRAD, May 19.—Rifle firing and scouting operations occurred.

AUSTRIAN.

VIENNA, May 19.—There is nothing to report.

FIRST AMERICAN SHOTS FIRED IN BALKANS

PARIS, May 19.—The first shot fired for America in the Balkans was fired by a former American artillery officer, now a worker with the American relief fund, according to word received today from Saloniki. A five inch gun of a Serbian battery on the Macedonian front was used.

The American, whose name was not given, asked permission to start the offensive by this shot. It was granted. He donned his American uniform and fired six shells into the Teutons' trenches while Serbian soldiers cheered.

Quits as Guard Colonel.

Detroit, Mich., May 19.—Col. Walter Barlow, commander of the Thirty-first regiment, Michigan national guard, has resigned. Col. Barlow will have reached the retiring age before the regiment is ready for service in Europe. Lieut. Col. A. C. Pack, Ann Arbor, will succeed Barlow.

THE ITALIAN OFFENSIVE

The Italian offensive along the Isonzo front was the most important development of last week on the European battle fronts. It came as the British and French joint offensive along the Arras and Aisne fronts was subsiding.

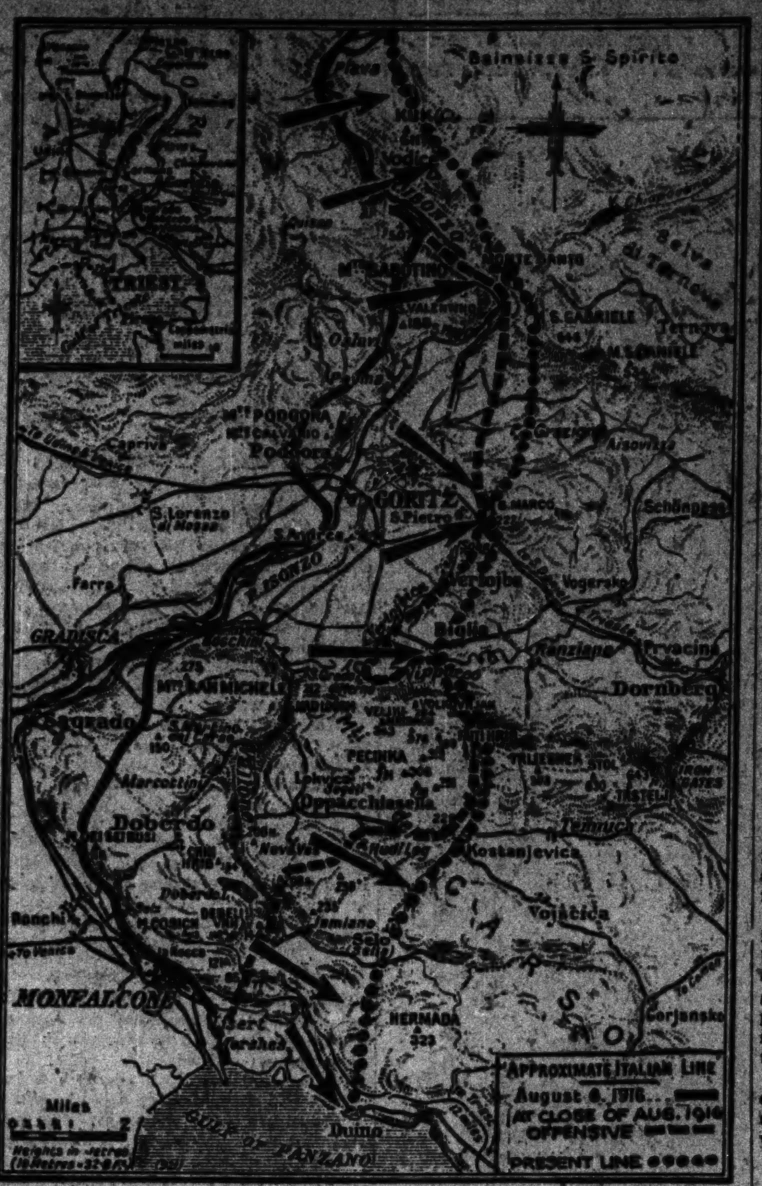
Heavy artillery activity developed on the Julian front last Sunday and Monday from Tolmein to the sea. On Tuesday Gen. Cadorna threw his infantry across the Isonzo from Plava to the south. On the Carso and before Goritz the Italians also attacked. With great dash they carried Monte Cucco (Kuk) and Monte Vodice. The capture of Monte Cucco was one of the most desperate feats at arms that the Italians have attempted in the present war.

The Italian success in the area north of Monte Santo was won in a sector where some of the heaviest fighting has been in progress and over a most difficult country strongly fortified by the Austrians. The scene of this fighting is the region north of Goritz, where the Italians forced a crossing of the Isonzo in the first hours of their attack.

As a result of the week's advance approximately 6,500 prisoners, including 143 officers, were brought in. Some of the most stubbornly defended Austrian positions have been taken and much booty, including a number of cannon and machine guns, captured.

The Austrians have pounded the new Italian positions in vain, according to Rome, and the attempted counter offensive has failed.

The week closed with the Italians pressing home their attacks in spite of the stubborn resistance of the Austrians.



TWENTY TAKEN IN TWO TEXAS PLOTS AGAINST NATION

German Money Believed to Have Financed Conspiracies.

Dallas, Tex., May 19.—[Special.]—Two uprisings in Texas, believed to have been financed by German money, have been nipped in the bud by the department of justice.

As the result of two raids today by secret service men, eight men were arrested at Snyder, Scurry county, and twelve were taken at Rotan, Fisher county.

The men arrested at Snyder already have been indicted at San Angelo on a charge of seditious conspiracy against the government.

U. S. Agents Join Organization.

The organization they belonged to was known as the Farmers and Laborers' Protective association. It is claimed the organization's oath prescribed death to all conscription officers and compelled members to purchase high power rifles and 100 rounds of ammunition for each man.

Secret service agents have been watching the movement for weeks. One agent became secretary of the meeting and other agents became members of the organization. They secured detailed reports of all the meetings. The organization was about to begin active work today when the raid was staged.

Citizens of Snyder were so incensed over the affair that an armed guard was necessary to protect the prisoners, who were brought here for safe keeping.

Nip Anarchist Plot.

Two of the alleged conspirators taken at Rotan are said to have confessed, according to information received here.

T. A. Hickey, editor of the Rebel, a socialist newspaper, published at Hallettsville, was released on $1,000 bond under a charge of conspiracy to answer to the federal grand jury Oct. 1.

The government's action, it is said, is one of a series planned in west Texas toward the breaking up of an alleged wholesale anarchistic movement throughout that section. Additional arrests in this vicinity are expected momentarily.

Roman Catholic Clergy of Germany Strong for Peace

AMSTERDAM, May 19.—The Deutsche Kirchen Zeitung states that the Roman Catholic clergy of Germany has inaugurated a powerfully organized peace movement.

SENATE PASSES THREE BILLIONS BUDGET ON WAR

Adds Five Hundred Million to Amount in House Bill.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., May 19.—[Special.]—The senate today passed the $3,342,000,000 war budget, the biggest appropriation bill ever put through a legislative body and carrying more money than the total cost of the civil war. The senate added approximately $515,000,000 to the house bill. It now goes to conference.

The bill carries a total authorization of $750,000,000 for ship building purposes, of which $400,000,000 is to be immediately available. It also gives the president power to commandeer all ship building facilities that may be necessary and all shipping.

The senate inserted a provision making it clear that the draft provisions of the war army bill, just become a law, shall cease within four months after peace has been proclaimed. Senators feared that the term "existing emergency," the language employed in the war army bill, might be stretched so as to keep the men drafted in the service for a long time after peace had come.

Just before the bill was passed the senate, on motion of Senator Weeks, struck from the bill $48,000,000 to be used in the purchase of horses, leaving the appropriation for this purpose $25,000,000. Senator Weeks explained that cavalry was not needed or required in Europe.

SEVEN MILLION MEN ARE DEAD; WAR CONTINUES

LONDON, May 19.—The number of men killed in the war thus far was estimated at seven million by Arthur Henderson, member of the war council, in an address today at Richmond. He estimated the total casualties of the war to be in excess of the population of the United Kingdom. (The population of the United Kingdom, according to the census of 1911, was 45,370,530.)

Mr. Henderson said that after nearly three years of military effort there was no immediate prospect of cessation of hostilities. The severe character of the war and its prolongation tempted some persons to ask why peace should not be attempted by other means.

He would tell them, he said. It was because the challenge thrown down by Germany in 1914 still held good. The lust of world domination which dictated the policy of aggressive military action on the part of Germany continued to be supported by the German Emperor and his Prussian advisers. Until the great act of liberation had been fully achieved the allies could not falter.

ROOKIE ARMY INVADES CHICAGO IN JOYOUS MASS

Reserve Officers Are Given Leave After First Inspection.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.] Reserve Officers' Training Camp, Fort Sheridan, Ill., May 19.—[Special.]—Almost the entire Illinois contingent at the Fort Sheridan training camp advanced on Chicago this afternoon.

Tonight their section of the camp is empty save for the twenty men that army regulations prescribe as a guard for the company barracks. Special trains to carry the men to Chicago were arranged for and were loaded to the top with a singing cargo, some in uniform, some without. Furloughs were granted to the first men who applied.

The first week of training ended at noon with inspection—the first since the organization of the camp. The men were lined up with their field equipment, weighing forty pounds, strapped to their backs. Their personal equipment was spread on the ground for inspection by the commanding officer. A few of those recently inoculated against typhoid dropped to the ground under the burden of the hot sun. They were quickly revived by their comrades.

Medical Treatment Thorough.

When a man reports to the hospital at Fort Sheridan with a minor ailment of any sort he is given constant treatment until he has recovered. There are now sixteen patients in the camp hospital. Most of them are suffering from tonsilitis and like complaints. Maj. [illegible], in charge of the hospital, is putting these patients to bed until the last trace of their indisposition disappears. In this way the hospital corps is saved the bother of treating these men daily and a more rapid recovery is assured.

Nowhere was the shortage of clothing so apparent as on the trains returning to Chicago in the afternoon. There were some in rags and some in tags. Dark blue suits had turned almost drab from hikes in the dusty roads. All the civilian clothing worn by the men was dusty and out of press.

Apart from the issuance of clothing, the camp is being managed with almost scientific accuracy as to its activities and general operation. The men are getting seven hours sleep—if they want it.

Study Prevents Exhaustion.

Physical work is so interspersed with study that during the sixteen hour day there is not a moment of exhaustion. The men are tired when they go to bed, but not completely tuckered out. Subtracted from those sixteen hours are four hours of light study during the day, with one hour of recreation before taps, making eleven hours of military duty during the day.

There is an established routine that [illegible] to the mess. The men are lined up in double file before meals. The boyishness at the table is gone. At the order of their troop commanders conversation during mess is carried on in low tones, a distinct difference from the first two or three days of training. [illegible] beds have been allotted the majority of the men. Cots have been issued to the rest. Although the latter are new and of a late issue, they have proved unsatisfactory. Many of them are already broken, and in order to be serviceable have to be bolstered up with such lumber as the men are able to dig up about the camp.

Men Not Discouraged.

Col. Nicholson displayed keen resentment at the implication published this morning in THE TRIBUNE that the men were discouraged. Their discouragement is only the reaction from their first few days of training. It has shown them how little they know about military schooling. There has been no low ebb in their spirits, however. Every man in the camp of 5,000 is eager to learn and is learning—slowly. It will take time to attain perfection, but their hearts are in their work.

For the men remaining in camp tomorrow there will be religious services held in the camp gymnasium. Father Vattmann, who was with Roosevelt in Santiago, will celebrate early mass at 6 o'clock. The Rev. Thomas Sherman, the son of General Sherman, will preach in the afternoon. Printed invitations to the men also have been sent by neighboring churches.

Camps Association Aids Registration Day Action

The Military Training Camps' association of the United States, central department, issued a bulletin yesterday to all division and branch chairmen, urging them to make registration day for universal service on June 5 a memorable occasion.

The bulletin advises the chairmen to see to it that the importance of registration be announced from all pulpits, that flags fly from buildings and bands parade the streets on registration day, and that plans be perfected so every man may register without interfering with the economic activities of his community.

University of Illinois Will Help Make Airmen

Washington, D. C., May 19.—[Special.]—The war department announced today that, beginning next Monday, courses in aviation will begin at the University of Illinois and five other educational institutions of the country. Beginning with twenty-five students each, these schools will add twenty-five young men each week until 200 are taking the course at each of the institutions.

After graduation at these flying schools, where they will be thoroughly drilled in all of the mechanical and theoretical phases of aeronautics, the students will be sent to the various army aviation schools, among them one station "near Chicago."

Capt. Charles C. Benedict of the signal corps has been ordered to the University of Illinois to take charge of the aviation training there.

Youth Offers to Stake Life Against Chance to Be Flyer

A PATRIOTIC YOUNG MAN WILL STAKE his time and life against the capital required to pay tuition/and expenses at Curtiss Flying school; object offering trained service to government.

The above advertisement appears today in the classified columns of THE TRIBUNE. The young man who caused it to be inserted is J. W. Monahan, an employé of the Schillo Motor Sales company.

Monahan, who has been a driver of racing automobiles, believes he could most efficiently serve the government as an aviator. For that reason he has deferred enlisting in other branches of the service until he has endeavored to fit himself for the air corps. Monahan is 25 years of age. He lives with his parents at 12036 Lowe avenue.

Man of War Special to Make 'L' Trip on Monday

The man of war special that was to have made a trip on the elevated road around the Loop yesterday will not make the trip until Monday afternoon at 5 o'clock. Some difficulty has been experienced in mounting the cutters on the flat cars.

The cars will be manned by a detachment of sailors from the Great Lakes Training station. As the trip is being made one pound guns mounted on the train will fire salutes.

TEN CITIES OFFER CAMP SITES FOR ILLINOIS DRAFT

Ten Illinois cities have already made offers of sites in response to the government's requests Friday for a suitable tract of land to accommodate the state's concentration camp of 28,000 men and 12,000 horses and mules. The cities offering sites to Col. E. A. Root, chairman of the board appointed by Maj. Gen. Thomas H. Barry for the inspection of proposed sites, were Peoria, Danville, Quincy, Dixon, Ottawa, Effingham, Clinton, Moline and Rock Island. A joint offer also came from Champaign and Urbana.

"Full details of these sites have not reached us yet," said Col. Root, "but we fully expect to have them by Monday and we hope to start on our tour of inspection not later than Tuesday. We believe several cities are willing to supply sites to the government without charge. Twenty-eight thousand United States soldiers added to a city's population should prove an incentive."

Maj. Charles M. Curran of the quartermaster officers' reserve corps yesterday was appointed by Maj. Gen. Thomas H. Barry as an additional member of the concentration camp board. Six United States army officers, Capt. R. H. Hess, Madison, Wis., Capt. R. E. Barbour, Evanston, Ill., Capt. Edward B. Metgen, Detroit, Mich., Capt. Roy W. Johnson, Des Moines, Ia., Capt. Alfred H. McComb, Detroit, Mich., and Capt. J. E. Coleman, Chicago, of the quartermaster officers' reserve corps were ordered yesterday to report by telegraph to the central department.

MAYOR'S BOARD MAY EXEMPT WAR CONSCRIPTS

Plans to Name the Fifth and Controlling Member.

Full authority not only to supervise the draft registration June 5, but also to determine who shall be exempt, will probably be vested in the board of registration appointed by Mayor Thompson.

This conclusion was reached in the city hall yesterday after studying the preliminary instructions forwarded by the war department. The final instructions containing the official regulations are now in the mail and will probably be delivered today or tomorrow.

As the result of a telegram from Adjt. Gen. Dickson at Springfield, Mayor Thompson is expected to add two new members to the registration board, which now consists of County Judge Scully, Corporation Counsel Ettelson, and Health Commissioner Robertson.

Two Names Suggested.

Gen. Dickson suggested it would be advisable to name City Clerk James T. Igoe as a member of the board, because the city clerk is charged with the custody of the registration cards. In order to have a board of five in case a division of opinion should arise, the mayor is considering appointing Chief Schuettler as the fifth member.

Dr. Robertson's function on the registration board, according to present plans, will be to supervise the medical examination of men subject to draft.

Corporation Counsel Ettelson said he was not informed that the law required the apointment of the city clerk as a member of the registration board, but that if such were the case, Mayor Thompson would attend to it.

Plans Are Rushed.

County Judge Scully ordered full speed ahead on the arrangements for using the election machinery to handle the registration. During the afternoon letters were sent out to the 11,015 judges and clerks of election asking them to devote their services free on June 5. It is estimated that a board of three will be needed at each polling place. If they are not obtained volunteers will be asked for.

The arrangements are being made on the basis of a probable registration of 875,000 to 300,000 men.

It was pointed out by a federal officer that there is a penalty clause attached to the draft law which makes it a prison offense to try to evade registration.

Mayor Thompson said every effort will be made to exclude politics in conducting the draft.

DRAFT MACHINE STARTS.

Springfield, Ill., May 19.—[Special.]—Illinois took the lead of all the states, it is believed, in officially informing the war department that the state is prepared to proceed with the registration of its citizens liable for war service under the new army law.

At 9:05 o'clock this morning Gov. Lowden received the official order from Washington directing him to proceed to organize the forces that will handle the registration in Illinois. At 9:10 Gov. Lowden had passed the order on to Adjt. Gen. Dickson, who became automatically state provost marshal. At 9:12 Gen. Dickson filed 102 telegrams to as many county sheriffs, 102 to as many county clerks, and another sheaf to mayors and city clerks of all cities of more than 30,000 inhabitants. At 9:15 Gov. Lowden wired to the president that the Illinois machinery had been fully organized and was in motion.

Headquarters were established immediately by Gen. Dickson in the state arsenal, under temporary command of Col. James Ronayne, Illinois national guard, and within the hour a large force of clerks had gone on the job preparing for actual work of registration on June 5. Gen. Dickson's orders sent to the county and municipal officials direct them to report to him not later than May 22 on the actual condition of work within their respective territories.

PLIGHTED TO CAPTAIN

Signal Corps Officer Wins Society Girl—Another to Wed Dan R. Hanna Jr.

Miss Mary Louise Russell

Two engagements of interest to Chicago society were announced yesterday. One was that of Miss Mary Louise Russell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Perry Russell of 19 East Goethe street, to Capt. Arthur Reed Christie, U. S. A., officer in charge of the signal corps of the aviation school at Chicago. He is the son of Mrs. Elizabeth Christie of Newark, N. J. Mrs. Russell and her daughters are now in Birmingham, Ala., and expect to return to the city about a week from now. No date has been set for the wedding.

The other engagement is that of Miss Ruth G. Randall, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. J. R. Ballinger of 4608 Sheridan road, to Dan R. Hanna Jr. of Cleveland, O. Mr. Hanna is the grandson of the late Senator Mark Hanna and a nephew of Mrs. Medill McCormick.

DEFENSE BOARD ORDERS BIG NEW ILLINOIS ARMY

War Science to Be Spread Through Companies in Cities and Towns.

Organization of a state military system, a plan for the enlargement of the Great Lakes naval training station, and further plans for the absorption of the "Liberty loan" through farmers' institutes and in rural communities, were inaugurated yesterday by the state council of defense.

First in importance was the plan for training the citizens of Illinois between the ages of 18 and 45. The plan has the approval of the United States war department and has been worked out almost in detail. It will be the duty of each city and community to raise at least one unit of soldiery, to consist of three commissioned and fourteen noncommissioned officers and at least fifty-four privates.

The units so organized will be maintained under military discipline and be responsible to the state council of defense. Dishonorable discharges will be meted out for infractions of military law and the fact of discharge will be published.

Must Get Own Uniforms.

Each member of this citizen soldiery will be expected to provide himself with a uniform to consist of breeches, shirt, hat, puttees, and shoes. The council of defense will act upon the recommendation of the adjutant general in the appointment of officers and resignations will be accepted by the council.

The council of defense will issue a decoration to designate all members of the state council of defense training corps. All men of military age and in good health may join. Units will be obliged to drill two hours each week and attendance must be 60 per cent of the enrollment to prevent disbandment.

In behalf of the project to enlarge the Great Lakes station to a capacity of 25,000 men, a committee composed of Fred W. Upham, Victor Olander, J. Ogden Armour, Dr. Frank Billings, and John P. Hopkins will go to Washington and meet the secretary of the navy.

Space Is Overtaxed.

The Great Lakes station was constructed for the occupation of 1,500 sailors in training. Already the enlistment has grown to 7,200 and space is overtaxed.

In the third great project proposed at the meeting yesterday it was planned to extend the Liberty loan in the farming districts through the use of various personal campaigns. One of these will be the extension of Liberty loan requests through the farmers' institutes.

Enlists and Wins Bride.

New York, May 19.—Having heard the pleas of her two prize suitors, pretty Annie Carmichael of Albany rejected both until they enlisted. So Ed Roy and Malcolm Smith rushed off to enlist. Ed was rejected because of his eyes, so Malcolm got his uniform and pretty Annie.

ROOSEVELT WILL GO TO FRANCE, SAY FOLLOWERS

A way will open for Col. Roosevelt to go to France and become the Lafayette of the period. This was the prophecy of the Sons and Daughters of Veterans at their banquet in the Great Northern hotel last night.

"I'm going to be a prophet," said Bishop Samuel Fallows. "My friend Teddy will be at the front somehow, as he is willing to go in any capacity."

E. E. Wood of Joliet announced that after reading of Teddy's rejection by President Wilson in THE TRIBUNE, he had sent a letter to the sage of Oyster Bay, telling him "how he could get across the seas as a commander." This was to offer his division direct to the French government.

Sponsors of Plan Yield.

Washington, D. C., May 19.—Though deeply disappointed—even resentful—that President Wilson should turn down the colonel's proffer of raising a volunteer force for fighting in France, those who fathered the movement in the upper branch of congress apparently yielded to the decision of the president today "like good soldiers."

T. R. IS SILENT UPON REFUSAL OF HIS FORCES

New York, May 19.—[Special.]—Col. Theodore Roosevelt declined to discuss in detail today the president's statement rejecting his offer of volunteers. He will have some comment to make later.

"I have nothing to say," he said, "except that if the administration had deemed it wise to grant the request the division would have been ready to sail this coming Monday.

"After sixty days intensive training in France it would not have been distinguishable from the regulars, and it would have taken away from training of troops at home only one-twelfth of the number of regular officers that will be taken in the division of regulars abroad.

"Let me say, however, how pleased I am that Gen. Pershing with a division is going over. I will do everything I can to help the recruiting, and I appeal to every one to help the Liberty loan."

Pope Rescues Ten Belgians.

ROME, May 19.—Ten Belgians, recently sentenced to death at Charleroi by a German court martial, have been reprieved by the kaiser in consequence of Pope Benedict's intercession, according to vatican information today.

LONDON MAKING U. S. FIGHTERS FEEL AT HOME

LONDON, May 19.—Americans here are losing no time to do everything to make the sailors of the United States naval craft in British waters comfortable when they have shore leave. Many well known men and women are subscribing to a fund to erect a commodious hotel at the American fleet base. This is in line with what the British people have done for their own sailors and soldiers.

At a meeting today of the American Women's club the problem was discussed of forming committees in the big cities of England to visit and provide recreation for American soldiers in hospitals. Mrs. Robert P. Skinner, wife of the consul general, heads the committee.

There are 170 American wounded in hospitals in London at present, many of whom were in the Vimy ridge fight.

Mrs. Whitelaw Reid is interested in the formation of a club here for American seamen.

HE'S SO POLITE THEY JUST HAD TO TAKE HIM AS 'SPY'

Teutonic Individual Outwitted by the Clerk in Boul Mich Hotel.

It was an extremely polite individual with a noticeable German accent who approached the desk of a Michigan avenue hotel yesterday, raised his hat, smiled, bowed low, hung his cane on the marble top, and asked the clerk for mail.

The clerk whispered an order to the chief bellhop and slowly sorted out the envelopes, putting two or three aside.

"Just wait a bit," said the clerk to the Teuton.

"Why should I wait?" snapped the German. "By what authority do you tell me to wait? You have my mail. I want it, and then I will go."

He Puffs and Waits.

"Just wait a bit," repeated the clerk with a smile.

"Ach, I will not wait. You have no authority. If I should go may I ask what you would do?"

"Certainly," replied the clerk, with another smile. "I would shoot you. That would muss up the place and cause a scene, no doubt."

The German peeled off his yellow gloves and inserted a cigaret in an amber holder. He puffed a few nervous puffs. Two men were entering from Michigan avenue.

Easy to Be Polite.

"Thank you so much for waiting," said the clerk. "And when you are tucked safely away behind the bars I shall be delighted to render any service possible."

As the secret service men led the German away he turned to the hotel clerk and said with a bow:

"Auf wiedersehen."

"Au revoir, monsieur," replied the clerk, as he, too, bowed low.

Love for her brother ceased when he was arrested charged with her husband's murder, and before taking the stand in Judge Barrett's court yesterday Mrs. Mary Olmo, 5251 South Kostner avenue, berated Luigi Commisso as she passed by the defendant's chair. The case will be resumed Monday.

JUST HORSE SENSE

Though Eligible for a Pension, Policeman Woods Refuses to Retire Without Jack.

Policeman Victor J. Woods and Jack

Policeman Victor J. Woods of the traffic squad regards his horse, Jack, as one of his best friends. He has served twenty-one years and five months on the force and is eligible to retire on a pension. But he refuses to retire until his horse can retire, too.

Woods would have retired over a year ago, but the city would not let him buy the horse. He has been waiting since for the city to condemn the horse as no longer serviceable for police duty. Jack has now reached the ripe age of ten years and the city is ready to retire him.

So Woods announced yesterday that he is going to purchase his old equine pal and they will quit the service together next September.

Woods has ridden Jack ever since the traffic squad was organized. Jack says "Good morning" to him with a nod of his head when the policeman comes to saddle him for work every day, and "Good night" when the copper fetches his oats in the evening. Jack is master of a number of tricks, including standing on his hind legs at command, and Woods says can understand English as well as a lot of humans. Jack's portrait, with Woods standing beside him, was painted last year as a model of the traffic policeman and his mount. The painting now hangs in the Art institute.

HOPE FOR CALL TO FRANCE WINS RUSH OF ROOKIES

Engineer Quarters Ready Soon — Motor Truck Companies Form.

The ordering of 25,000 United States soldiers to the French front and 2,600 marines for service at the battle front has speeded local recruiting stations. Capt. William C. Brackett, in charge of the recruiting office at 626 South State street, said yesterday that the places of the 2,600 men who are to be sent away must be filled and that applicants are eager to get to the front.

A company of United States marines, under command of Sergt. L. W. Putnam, will give an exhibition drill on the Auditorium stage this afternoon at the actors' benefit. After the drill Judge Marcus Kavanagh is to talk about the marine corps and will urge enlistment.

Prepare Quarters.

Carpenters are to begin work tomorrow at the municipal pier preparing quarters for the engineers' regiment.

During the last week 156 men enlisted in the navy at local stations, bringing the total to date to 1,469. Ensign H. D. Childs is to succeed Lieut. L. M. Stevens in command of the local recruiting stations.

A recruiting office has been opened in the Congress hotel by Mrs. George Sevey, 5537 Hyde Park boulevard. Mrs. Sevey said she is following the example set by eastern women.

Motor Trucks Organize.

Fifteen of the central department's quota of motor truck companies, for service in the quartermaster's reserve corps, had been organized yesterday. Their formation will continue, according to Capt. John McA. Webster, in charge of this work, until forty companies have been organized.

"These men are practically certain to go to France with the first expedition," said Capt. Webster.

Five of the truck companies have been organized in Chicago. Four have been formed in Detroit, four in Cleveland, and two at other points.

Patriots in need of a perfectly good chauffeur for a week or two are requested to apply to the central department, army headquarters, as owing to an unforeseen delay in the organizing of the automobile truck corps here, there are about fifty skilled chauffeurs and mechanicians idle. These men who come from all parts of the state were ordered to report for duty, but it will be fully a week or two before they will be needed, and the result is that they are jobless in a strange city.

FIND GIRL'S BODY IN RIVER AFTER LOVERS' QUARREL

The body of Bertha Hasselman was found in Rock river, near Dixon, Ill., yesterday. It is believed that the girl committed suicide because of a quarrel with her sweetheart, Clifford Seybert.

Miss Hasselman disappeared on the night of May 11. She and Seybert had attended the graduation exercises of the Emanuel school. They drove to the farm of Mrs. Maud Cheney, where the girl said she would spend the night. Seybert admitted to the Dixon police that he and Miss Hasselman had had a bitter quarrel. He drove away, he said, and left her standing in the front yard of the Cheney home.

Miss Hasselman did not go into the house. She went instead, it is believed, to the banks of Rock river. Her hat and a comb she had worn in her hair were found in the road next day. John Gaybill, a farmer, reported seeing a woman walking across the bridge over Rock river late on the night of her disappearance.

The authorities worked on the theory she had been murdered. The body was found not far from the bridge which Seybert and Miss Hasselman crossed on their drive to the Cheney home.

Miss Hasselman was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Hasselman, who own a farm south of Dixon. It is reported that Mrs. Hasselman has been seriously affected by her daughter's disappearance. A reward of $700 was offered for finding the girl.

HIGH PITCH

Piano Man Tells Why Prices on Instrument Are Going Up.

E. B. Bartlett, president of the National Association of Piano Manufacturers, yesterday gave these as the reasons for the proposed increase in the price of pianos:

Manufacturers of metal parts for pianos are now filling contracts for munitions.

Slump in sale of pianos.

Shortage in mahogany. It now is imported from Mexico and San Domingo at an increased cost of from 25 to 30 per cent.

Wool piano hammers now have to be obtained from Australia at an additional cost of about 30 per cent.

"Our inability to get ebony for keys has caused us to replace the ebony key by one of dyed wood," said Mr. Bartlett. "Strings we used to get from Germany are now made in Massachusetts."

Marital Liberty, $6 Per, After His 22d Arrest

After being arrested twenty-two times on complaint of his wife, whom he accuses of nagging him to the point where he leaves her and thus is arrested for desertion, Michael Ryan, a teamster, was given permission to live apart from Mrs. Ryan and to pay her $6 a week.

WILSON GIVES APPROVAL TO Y. M. C. A. WORK

Washington, D. C., May 19.—Official recognition has been extended by President Wilson to the Young Men's Christian association as a "valuable adjunct and asset" to the army, although it will continue as a civilian organization. The president's ruling was published today in the general orders of the war department. Officers are instructed to give assistance and cooperation in the maintenance and extension of the association both in camp and field.

Belgian's Wife Falls in Love with German Invader

Until the German army invaded Belgium in 1914 Prudent ... an Renter Ghem lived happily in Brussels with Lobbe Anaise Ghem, he told Judge Denis E. Sullivan yesterday in his suit for divorce. Then, he continued, the invaders came and his wife fell in love with a German officer and left her home and husband, refusing to return to either. Judge Sullivan granted him a decree on charges of desertion.

"I tried to get her to return to me, but she would not," testified Ghem. "I came to America in the winter of 1914, but she wouldn't leave the German officer. And now she has a little baby over there and the German is its father."

If You Can't Serve at the Front Do Your Fighting on the Farm

There is work for everyone! Each must find his place!

Nail the Flag to the Plow!
Make the Farm Your Battlefield!

There isn't a man in America who would not gladly serve on the fighting line, if that is where duty calls. However, all cannot go to the front.

Some must of necessity remain behind, but there is satisfaction in the fact that there are wonderful opportunities for service here at home.

President Wilson said, in his address to the American people, April 15, 1917:

"Upon the farmers of this country, in large measure, rests the fate of the war and the fate of the Nations.

"I call upon young men, and old alike, and upon the able-bodied boys of the land to accept and act upon this duty—to turn in hosts to the farms and make certain that no pains and no labor is lacking in this great matter."

"Thousands, nay, hundreds of thousands of men, otherwise liable, to military service, will of right and necessity, be excused from that service, and assigned to the fundamental sustaining work of the fields and factories and mines, and they will be as much part of the great patriotic forces of the Nation as the men under fire."

We can go to the farm with just as much fighting spirit as the man who goes to the front.

Mr. Banker—Manufacturer — Merchant—Professional Man—Investor—here is a place where you and your money can enlist for splendid service.

Buy a farm—an improved farm that will produce big crops at once, for right now is when big crops are needed.

We offer well-improved, rich corn farms in Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Minnesota and North Dakota—some also in Southern Ontario, just across the river from Detroit—Not the common kind of farms that are always on the market, but choice properties, where the soil and the sun and the rainfall are most favorable—where splendid crops are already growing.

You can go on these farms at once and can arrange with the present tenants to co-operate with you in any way desired. We will place at your disposal for advice and consultation a farm expert, a graduate of one of the leading agricultural schools, who will assist you in every possible way.

Our enormous cash resources enable us also to help you finance your farm, if you do not have sufficient available funds to cover the purchase price.

Write us or call upon us for full information as to the opportunities for honorable and patriotic service for your country on Straus Quality Farms.

In buying a Straus Quality Farm, you deal with the oldest and largest merchants in improved farm lands in the United States, with an honorable business record of 57 years, with capital and surplus of over $3,000,000—and, what is of vital interest to you—a firm that is willing to embody in the written contract every representation that influences you in making a purchase.

RUSSIA IS FIRM AGAINST MAKING SEPARATE PEACE

New Government Asserts Nation Will Stand with Allies.

PETROGRAD, via London, May 19.—The provisional government declared today that it was united in the rejection of a separate peace and that it adopts as its aim the reëstablishment of a general peace which will not tend either to domination over other nations or to the seizure of their territorial possessions—a peace without annexations or indemnities.

"The provisional government," the statement says, "rejecting in concert with the entire people all thought of a separate peace, adopts as its aim the reëstablishment of a general peace which shall not tend towards either dominion over other nations, the seizure of their national possessions or violent usurpation of their territories—a peace without annexation or indemnities and based on the right of nations to decide their own affairs.

Will Fight for Allies.

"Convinced that the defeat of Russia and her allies would not only be a source of the greatest calamity to the people but would postpone or make impossible the conclusion of a worldwide peace on the basis indicated above, the provisional government believes that the Russian revolutionary army will not suffer the German troops to destroy our western allies and then throw themselves upon us with the full force of their arms.

"The development of the principles of democratization in the army and the development of its military power, both offensive and defensive, will constitute the most important task of the provisional government.

"The provisional government will fight resolutely and inflexibly against the economic disorganization of the country by the systematic establishment of government control, production, transport, exchange, and distribution of products and in necessary cases will have recourse also to the organization of production."

Demands Army Discipline.

Minister of War Kerensky, addressing the congress of peasants, announced his determination to introduce an iron discipline into the army. He made an impassioned appeal for support in restoring the morale of Russia's military forces.

"We must, before everything, consolidate the civic liberty the revolution gave us," he said, "and we shall not do this if each does not do his duty to his country with complete self-sacrifice. Let us show the world we know not only how to destroy but also how to create.

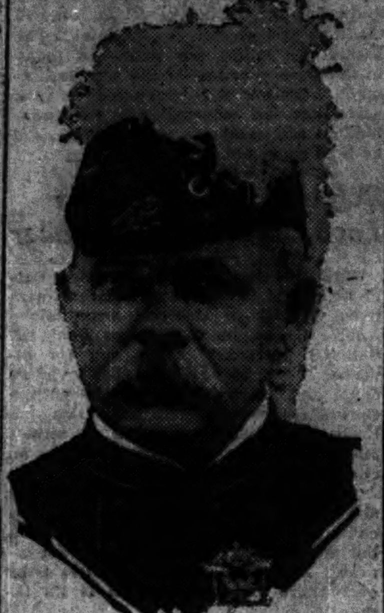
"Soldiers, sailors, and officers, I call on you to make a last heroic effort. I am your servant. Help me to show the world that the Russian army is not a demolished temple, but is strong and formidable, capable of making itself respected and of defending the free republic of democratic Russia."

Delegates Give Meeting Kindergarten Reports

The thirty-fourth annual meeting of the Chicago Kindergarten club was held yesterday at the Francis W. Parker school. Six delegates to the International Kindergarten union in Boston recently gave interesting reports of what transpired there. The delegates were Miss Edna Baker, Mrs. Mary Paige, Miss Ann Williams, Miss Lucia Morse, and Mrs. Anna Topping. Miss Williams reported the text of Dr. Caroline Hedger's address at the Boston meeting. According to Dr. Hedger, the kindergarten is the most important factor in the American "melting pot" process. The ideals which are projected upon the fresh young minds of children of foreign parentage in the kindergarten, are those which they will carry throughout their careers.

MARSHAL

Gen. Moulton Will Lead the United Spanish War Veterans on Memorial Day.



George M. Moulton

Gen. George M. Moulton will be the marshal of the United Spanish War Veterans in the Memorial day parade on May 30. The chief of staff will be Senator James Hamilton Lewis, and Dr. Charles L. Daniels will be adjutant general. The United Spanish War Veterans, thoroughly aroused by the present war and its responsibilities, expect to have 10,000 in line. Many of them will be in uniform, having been commissioned to serve the nation.

BATTLE IMPENDS AT ELECTION OF HAMILTON CLUB

The Hamilton club's annual election, to be held tomorrow, promises to be a lively little combat, judging from a couple of "eleventh hour" letters which came into possession of THE TRIBUNE last night.

There are two tickets, one headed by Frederick A. Rowe, editor of a legal publication, and the other by Robert W. Dunn, an attorney. In behalf of the latter, Guy Guernsey, a former president of the club, sent the following letter to 400 of his friends in the club membership:

"As you know, I have served on the board of directors of the Hamilton club with both Mr. Dunn and his opponent. Therefore I ought to be in a position to compare the men as to their fitness for the duties which one of them must soon assume. Dunn has every qualification that a president needs. I cannot conscientiously say as much for his opponent."

In reply to this, the candidates on the Rowe ticket issued the following circular letter:

"A letter signed by a former president of the club, whose animosity is clearly shown, was unfortunately mailed to the new members of the club, questioning the qualifications of Mr. Rowe for president. . . . This letter to you was made necessary by a communication addressed so unfairly by one whose biased opinions are so clearly offset by the indorsements given Mr. Rowe, and also that the new members shall not be misled by such misstatements. . . . Let us be clean and aboveboard and let records of men be judged by their fellow members."

The reply bears the signatures of Robert S. Iles, George S. Ballard, William B. Austin, Fred L. Rossbach, John H. Batten, Emil C. Wetten, George W. Dixon, Edwin A. Munger and Judge Jesse Holden, all of them former presidents of the club.

"Mr. Dixon called me up tonight, after getting one of these letters, and said that he had not authorized the use of his name in connection with it," said Mr. Guernsey.

SOCIALISTS SEEK TO USE POWER OF WORKINGMEN

Foundation for Peace Is Given as the Reason for Stockholm Session.

STOCKHOLM, via London, May 19.—A committee representing the Dutch and Scandinavian Socialists has issued a long manifesto explaining the reason for calling the conference of Socialists and appealing to the Socialists of the world to participate. It says the initiative of the committee was prompted by appeals from parties affiliated with the Internationale in the United States, Italy, Switzerland, Bulgaria, and Portugal, and later by groups in Russia, Great Britain, British colonies, Netherlands, Sweden, Norway, Argentina, Uruguay, Spain, and Denmark.

The object of the conference, the manifesto explains, is to reëstablish the Socialist Internationale as a means of utilizing workingmen's power, thereby creating the foundation for a general peace.

A preliminary conference will be held to define the attitude of the different parties toward the world crisis and to examine the possibilities of a general conference. Each party may reserve the right to postpone its final decision regarding a plenary conference until the end of the preliminary sessions.

The committee hopes to come to an agreement with representatives of the Russian council of workmen's and soldiers' delegates, who are expected in Stockholm shortly, with a view to obtaining unity of action. The Internationale, the statement says, represents the interests of none of the belligerents, and must follow its own course.

Hjalmar Branting, editor of the Social Demokraten, said today that Swedish Socialists could not approve former Premier Asquith's third category of annexations that are not annexations—those covering "strategic positions needed for self-defense and protection against future attack."

Bomb Menaced Theater Opens, Gets Away with It

Despite a renewed threat that there would be trouble if the Chateau theater, Broadway and Grace streets, opened for business, a considerable audience gathered last night. It opened. Nothing happened.

The theater is owned by Albert Fuchs, said to have told State's Attorney Hoyne he has paid $30,000 to various bomb throwing gangs to prevent destruction of the building.

The theater has been leased to the Ascher Bros., and is being operated by them.

WARNING! DON'T SPRINKLE LAWN OUT OF HOURS

City Prosecutor Miller issued a warning yesterday to persons violating the sprinkling ordinance. He declared many complaints are being received at his office daily from persons who charge they are unable to get water in their home during the period when it is most needed.

He said he would request Chief Schuettler strictly to enforce the ordinance which permits the sprinkling of lawns and the washing of windows with hoses between 5 to 7 a. m. and 7:30 to 10 p. m. only.

The minimum fine for the first offense is $10.

Iowa Blue Law Backer Threatened.

Des Moines, Ia., May 19.—Attorney General Havner received an anonymous letter from Cedar Rapids threatening to take Havner's life because of his enforcement of the blue laws. The letter has been turned over to the federal postal authorities, and prosecution may follow.

MRS. MATTERS SUES HEIRS TO REGAIN ESTATE

Mrs. Anna Dellis Ledgewood Matters opened up the entire litigation over the disposal of her aged husband's estate and the custody of her alleged child yesterday when she filed a petition in the Superior court asking that her agreement with the Matters' heirs be set aside and that she be appointed guardian of the child.

She asserts that the agreement was obtained by conspiracy of the heirs and that they have not kept that part of the agreement which relates to dismissing the suits against her.

Indictments against Mrs. Matters are now pending as is also a motion to dismiss her appeal from the decision of the Probate court dismissing her claims to the estate. She wants these suits and indictments dismissed and that she be appointed guardian of the child.

Motor Thief, Fleeing Police Bullets, Injures Citizen

Policeman Edward Brandt of the West Chicago avenue station, after firing three shots at an automobile thief in an escaping car which he recognized from a description read at roll call, saw the same youth approaching at Erie and Lincoln streets ten minutes later. The thief speeded up, with the result that he collided with the automobile of A. Edwards, living near by, injuring Edwards. The thief jumped and escaped. The stolen machine is owned by A. L. Haigh of 2211 North Clark street.

Ask Affairs of Midland Casualty Co. Be Closed

The Equitable Securities company, through Attorneys A. M. Harel and J. L. Hamilton, filed a petition in the Circuit court yesterday seeking to have the court appoint a receiver to close up the business affairs of the Midland Casualty company, of which it owns 65 per cent of the stock.

OFFERS TO SETTLE FOR WIFE'S TEETH HE KNOCKED OUT

After Theodore Williams knocked out two of his wife's teeth he left town and then wrote her a letter telling her he was sorry and would pay for some new ones. Mrs. Edith L. Williams, 902 Oakwood boulevard, offered the letter in evidence before Judge Denis E. Sullivan in her suit for divorce on charges of cruelty. The divorce was granted.

The letter read as follows:

"Dear Wife, with Affection: Thought I would drop you a line to let you hear from me. I am well and hope you are the same. Now, dear, I hear that I knocked two of your teeth out, and I am very sorry that it happened. But I am willing to send you money with which to have them fixed. I am not angry with you, for you have told me and also showed me plainly you did not care for me. If you want a divorce let me know and I will consent so you can have it without any trouble."

Timely Warning to Motor Car Buyers

The cost of gasoline has been climbing for the past two years, is still going up, and every indication points to its continued rise. Recently many articles have appeared warning the motoring public of its approaching shortage.

The supply of gasoline is limited by nature, and as the limit of available supply is reached, the price goes up. The production of petroleum has increased scarcely 30% in seven years, while the consumption of gasoline has increased four times and the number of automobiles eight times. Oil authorities state that the available supply will be inadequate to meet the normal increase in consumption if the present rate is maintained.

Today we are confronted with the tremendous demand that will be added to normal consumption by the Army and Navy and the aerial arm of our service; therefore it appears imperative that some other power be utilized in order to safeguard supplies that must be available for military purposes.

England and France are experiencing a very serious shortage in gasoline, in spite of the fact that five times as much of this fuel was supplied them in 1916 as in 1914. Their deficiencies must now be filled from our supply. England has prohibited the use of gas-driven cars for other than government service. Practically the same conditions exist in France.

In the face of these conditions, it is not unreasonable to assume that motorists will soon have a similar situation to meet in this country.

ELECTRICITY THE SOLUTION

The cheapest—most efficient—inexhaustible power. Applied Thru the Medium of

THE MODERN DETROIT ELECTRIC

This leader of all enclosed automobiles offers the most effective, reasonable and desirable answer to the call for the most satisfactory motor car service, from the economical, rational and practical standpoints.

Electric automobiles, since the beginning of the war, have shown an increase of over 500% in England.

Rates on electricity in the City of Chicago have been lowered four times in the past two years by the Commonwealth Edison Company.

The thousands of motorists who will adopt Detroit Electric car service will avail themselves of a superior service, cut off in one stroke the heavy chauffeur expense by providing their family with a car that all can drive on every occasion, safeguard themselves against abnormal expenditures in the future and perform a public duty in conserving the supply of fuel that will be imperative to military requirements.

Detroit Electric sales already show an increase of 141% over last year.

INSULL, FROST, AND ECKHART HIT BY LANDIS

Three Chicago men, two of whom are identified with national and civic affairs, were the subjects of a hot attack by Judge Landis yesterday in the United States court. The three objects of the judicial wrath were Samuel Insull, B. A. Eckhart, and Albert C. Frost.

Judge Landis' commentaries on Mr. Insull and Mr. Frost came out in connection with the final disposition of the application of Attorney Frank H. McCulloch to be allowed attorney's fees in connection with his nine years' work in the reorganization litigation of the Chicago, North Shore and Electric railroad. Mr. McCulloch was allowed the full fee asked for—$60,000.

The comments regarding Mr. Eckhart were made in connection with the application of the Pennsylvania railroad to reduce a fine of $50,000 imposed upon it under a plea of guilty in violating the Elkins anti-rebate act by granting rebates to the B. A. Eckhart Milling company. Judge Landis refused to reduce the $50,000 fine.

"It appeared in this case," the judge said, "that the railroad people and their company wanted to reform themselves and stop giving rebates. But it was also necessary to reform Mr. Eckhart. It was easy to reform themselves, but not so easy to reform Mr. Eckhart, for that cuts his concern money."

Nursing Bottle Receivership.

Details of the court's comments on the Milwaukee Electric case were as follows:

"The situation in this matter is this: About nine years ago a creditors' bill was filed in one of these good old federal court nursing bottle receiverships, the type of receivership where the federal court was used as a lying-in hospital for a lot of crooked financiers.

"I am using mild language here in dealing with this case, as mild as it is possible for me to use, having regard for the facts I am dealing with.

"To that proceeding the Merchants' Loan and Trust company's counsel was called upon to give his attention from the date that first crooked step was taken. I say 'crooked step.' The step was taken as a part of a preconceived plan to beat everybody who had a meritorious claim against the property. Of course, counsel who filed the original creditors' bill were all deceived.

"I acquit all the members of the Chicago bar in what I say here.

"That bill was filed and for nine years the Chicago-Milwaukee Electric receivership has crawled its slimy way, generally through alleys and subbasements, once in a while dragged out into the middle of the road in the light of the open day.

Committees to Burn.

"There were committees of the Illinois bondholders and the Wisconsin bondholders and then these committees were divided into subcommittees and these subcommittees were factionalized into other committees, and then there were alliances between the various committees and subcommittees and then these alliances would be broken and new committees and new alliances would be formed and day after day these various organizations of committees were appearing here and elsewhere and the other place, wherever something was being done in connection with this receivership, either in Milwaukee or here.

"A large part of the time the paper appearance of the activities of these committees and their composition were deceptive, suggestive of the situation over in Europe between the kaiser man and other people in the matter of making treaties, made for the purpose of fooling the other man into the belief that the kaiser would keep a treaty.

"Now that is the kind of an atmosphere this Milwaukee receivership has been in for nine years. Now so much for these committees.

Mr. Frost, Incorporated.

"Then there was Mr. Frost, who had himself incorporated as the Milwaukee Electric Railroad company in Illinois, and then he incorporated himself up in Wisconsin, and then he incorporated himself in Illinois as a construction company, and then he incorporated himself in Wisconsin as a construction company. Then he started out to keep on beating everybody. I am now talking about Albert C. Frost. And Frost has never yet been in jail, and I do not expect he will get in jail.

"He incorporated himself in these and, I think, three or four other capacities, and he would buy material for the Chicago and Milwaukee Electric, the order having nothing to indicate which railroad company it was, but really given by the Illinois company; and the stuff would be manufactured and sent to Illinois, and then Frost would divert it to the Wisconsin company.

"Then the Wisconsin company would turn it over to Frost, as the Wisconsin Construction company, and then, in his capacity as the Wisconsin Construction company, Frost would turn it over to himself, as the incorporated Illinois Construction company, and then put it into the track somewhere, without paying anybody anything, except lawyers to cover his trail.

Gentlemen Burglars.

"Now, I have stated in a few words just a few of the things that this trustee for the Illinois bondholders [Mr. McCulloch] had to contend with. He could not take anybody's word for anything at any time. He did not dare take any lawyer's word for anything, because no lawyer in this litigation could deliver his client. Now, that is literally true. The result was that the attorney for the trustee had to see that the property which secured the bonds his trustee had to protect was not stolen by any one of these eighteen or twenty circuitous routes that these burglarious gentlemen had invented.

"We come now to the question of the present situation. McCulloch put in his bill, and the institution that now has the Milwaukee railroad objects to the bill. They object to it frightfully and hard.

The Versatile Mr. Insull.

"Now the present control is in a committee of which Mr. Insull is the head or is an important man in. And in order to have a full understanding I have got to recall a thing or two about Mr. Insull. In connection with hearing the evidence in support of the objections to confirming the sale of the Illinois and Wisconsin property for $3,150,000, it came out that the reorganization committee had made a bargain with Samuel Insull that the reorganization committee would incorporate a new railroad company, and they had a contract with Mr. Insull providing that whenever he made a contract with the elevated road to get it an entrance into Chicago over the elevated, this electric railroad that I am dealing with here would turn over to Mr. Insull three-quarters of a million dollars in securities as compensation to him for his services in negotiating such contract.

"Now the electric elevated railroad that he was going to negotiate with was Samuel Insull. In other words, he made a contract with the North Shore Electric to negotiate with himself as the elevated, to induce himself as the elevated, to give himself as the electric an entrance into Chicago, and when he succeeded in inducing himself as the elevated to give himself as the electric an entrance into Chicago as the electric, he would give himself $750,000 of Milwaukee Electric securities as pay for inducing himself as the elevated to let himself enter Chicago as the Milwaukee Electric. How much he was going to get himself as the elevated to pay himself for inducing himself as the elevated to allow himself as the Milwaukee Electric to come in does not appear.

"Now that is the element which is saying that McCulloch has not earned his money during the nine years.

"The order is to give McCulloch his money. He has earned it."

"I haven't a single, solitary thing to say," was the only comment Mr. Insull would make last night.

QUEEN

Crowned at May Pageant on Northwestern Campus.

Miss Wilda Phillips

Maytime found indoor expression yesterday when the gala annual affair of the women of Northwestern University was held in Patten gymnasium, instead of in the open on the campus, as is the custom. The May pageant was begun at 3 o'clock. Because of the lateness of the season the pageant was held in the gymnasium, where a large throng gathered. The manuscript for the pageant was written by Miss Marion Abele, who also won the prize of $25 offered in a competition of writers. It was declared one of the best produced in many seasons. Miss Abele trained the cast herself and the costumes were designed by Miss Ruth Whitney, who also supervised their making. Miss Wilda Phillips was crowned May queen by Miss Hope Miller, who was last year's queen. It is regarded as possible that the pageant will be repeated on the campus at commencement time.

CHEERY FORGER FINALLY WRITES SELF INTO JAIL

"Slicker" Who Slapped Upham on Shoulder Is Nabbed at Gary.

That affable young slicker who slapped Fred Upham joyously upon the shoulder in the Blackstone grill back in February and then slipped a check to Marc Mattie, head waiter, who stood admiringly by, has been pinched. The check, for $65, was bad. The smooth young man got $59.65 besides a $5.35 repast, which was good.

Robert Lesser, who admits the merry jest was his, was brought from Gary, Ind., yesterday, where he had been employed as advertising solicitor on a newspaper.

This is the way Mr. Upham explains what happened. He was dining in the grill and at the next table were seated a high church dignitary and the stranger. As Mr. Upham passed out he stopped to speak to the churchman.

"Why, hello, Fred," bubbled the young man. "Glad to see you again. Years since we met."

Mr. Upham could not recall, but, always polite, he said he did.

Little Stream of Checks.

Down aisle stood Marc Mattie. Head waiters are men of discernment. So when the "friend" of Mr. Upham presented a check with the name of Julius Rosenwald upon it, what head waiter would doubt?

The check took a journey to the bank and came back. A little stream of similar ones began to dribble into the Illinois Trust and Savings bank, supposedly signed by Julius Rosenwald or G. M. Loeb, as fancy took the maker.

Pick Up Trail In K. C.

Private detectives were set to work upon the case. They picked up the trail in Kansas City, where an affable stranger had begun to prosper on worthless checks signed "Lieut. W. H. Monroe, U. S. V., aeronautic division."

Circulars bearing a photograph of the stranger were sent out and one fell into the hands of H. W. Summers, owner of the Gary hotel, who took the police into his confidence.

"Drink did it," said Lesser last night.

O'DONNELL ACTS TO HALT HOYNE'S WITNESS "MILL"

Attorney Patrick H. O'Donnell filed a petition for a writ of injunction in the Superior court yesterday against County Treasurer Henry Stuckart, County Clerk Robert M. Sweitzer, the board of county commissioners, and State's Attorney Maclay Hoyne. He seeks to restrain them from paying county funds for the board, lodging, and other expenses of witnesses in Criminal court trials.

Several specific instances are cited in the petition. They are:

Abe Frank and his son, Benny, and the policeman guarding them for one year, $7,947.75.

Alex Goldman for support and wages paid to his wife for one year, $7,070.

Policewoman Reilly, as guardian of Mrs. Sarah Wexler at the rate of $40 a week for many months.

Benjamin Fink, for guards, custodian, and hotel services and clothing at the rate of $6,000 a year for twenty-six months.

"The state's attorney spent over $150,000 trying to get evidence on me," said Mr. O'Donnell in commenting upon his petition, "and was then afraid to put witnesses upon the stand. Almost a million dollars has been paid out to private detective agencies and for the housing and guarding of witnesses to be used in the Criminal court."

Attorney O'Donnell, with Attorney Charles Erbstein and six others, was indicted by the grand jury in February, 1915, on charges of conspiracy. Attorneys O'Donnell and Erbstein were acquitted of the conspiracy charges.

First National Music Show Opens with Big Displays

The first national music show was opened last night in the Coliseum. Booths were given over to displays of musical instruments, phonographs, and music, and programs of music were offered from small stages erected by exhibiters. Ninety manufacturers were represented. Many persons connected with the music trade are in Chicago attending the convention of manufacturers and merchants of musical instruments.

This is the opportunity of your lifetime to own all the knowledge of the world

—this is what it means to you to own the Britannica printed on genuine India paper. When the last door (in above picture) closes, it will be too late for you to reconsider. Six days from today at the most—and to be on the safe side, if you really want this wonderful work, you should order NOW.

Read the panel at the left, "Why You Should Buy the Britannica." 185,000 sets are now in use right here in America, and the owners are profiting by their use of this work. Nevertheless, we want you to assure yourself that this great storehouse of knowledge will pay you dividends on your investment. For the Britannica is in fact an investment—it pays dividends through a greater earning capacity, the result of increased knowledge

• A Wonderful New Volume

THE publishers of the Encyclopaedia Britannica announce that they have made arrangements for the issue, as soon after the end of the war as possible, of a new volume, containing a full and authoritative history of the war.

The new volume will be written by scholars and experts of the same high character as those who wrote for the Britannica itself, and by many of its own contributors. It will be absolutely impartial, excluding all partisan feeling and prejudice. It will contain:

1. A judicial account of the real causes of the war, the progress of the struggle, and the results all over the world; with maps, as necessary, to show changes in boundaries.

2. The lives of the new leaders, whether civil, military or naval, in the belligerent countries.

3. The results of the war outside the sphere of fighting, the progress of surgery, the prevention of contagious disease, the new scientific discoveries, etc.

The new volume will bridge the gap between the days of peace before and after the war. It will be printed and bound to match the Britannica and the publishers guarantee that no matter how difficult and costly the supplementary volume may be from the editorial point of view, the price of it to all who purchase the Britannica during the present sale will not be more than that of a corresponding volume of the Britannica.

will secure you a set. You pay the balance in a limited number of monthly amounts (as low as $3 for the cloth binding) and profit by the use of the books while paying for them.

Why You Should Buy the Britannica

Hundreds of letters have come to us testifying to the every-day value and practical usefulness of the Britannica.

James S. Pinckard, a lawyer at Montgomery, Alabama, writes: "I have had my set of The Encyclopaedia Britannica for more than five years and think more of it now than I did the day it was delivered. It is my most entertaining, instructive and valued friend. In fact, I hold it next in my affections to the members of my family. I really think it is the greatest book of the ages."

From Earl Bratton, Edgerton, Ohio: "I am highly pleased with the books in every way; also with the installment plan which enables me to purchase the books."

George A. Holderness, President of the Farmers Banking Trust Co., Taboro, S. C., says: "As a reference book I find your new 'Encyclopaedia Britannica' of immense value, but to my boy in high school it is simply essential."

We could quote pages of such letters from people in all walks of life, active, busy, successful men and women who own and use and profit from the Britannica.

The Britannica is a practical library of knowledge that every one can use to good advantage—a library of facts and information for the husband in his business, the wife in her home, the children in their school work.

Wouldn't you profit from having such a wealth of knowledge and facts constantly at your beck and call? Wouldn't you increase your earning capacity, enjoy more of the comforts of life, if you knew more and could therefore do more?

Think it over NOW. And decide NOW.

You have read some of the Britannica advertisements from time to time, and you know the situation. It is not necessary for us to say anything more—the India paper sets on hand are getting fewer every day.

Therefore these advertisements are getting shorter every day—the matter is entirely up to you. All we can say is: Decide NOW. And if your decision is that you want one of these last India paper sets of the Britannica, then ACT. It is the only way to be absolutely certain of obtaining one of these last sets.

Either go and see the books at once or fill the "Reserve Order" form in the lower right hand corner and mail it in today. If more orders are received than we can fill (because the remaining sets are so limited), preference will be given to those which reach us earliest.

You can examine the Britannica, make your choice of binding and leave your order at:

THE FAIR
State, Adams and Dearborn Streets

Those who cannot go to the store may use this "Reserve Order" Form to reserve one set for you just the same as if you ordered it in person.

SEEK TO HASTEN DECISION UPON NEW WAR TAXES

Mail Rates and Levy on Advertising Are the Cause of Delay.

Washington, D. C., May 19.—In an effort to whip the war tax bill into shape for final passage by Tuesday night Democratic Leader Kitchin tonight called a special meeting of the ways and means committee for tomorrow to consider amendments. Final disposition will be made then, if possible, of the trouble over some second class mail rate increases and the advertising, automobile, and musical instrument taxes.

Defeat of a proposal by Representative Lenroot of Wisconsin to strike out the 5 per cent light and heat tax and adoption of an amendment lowering the express transportation tax from 10 to 6 per cent were the results of today's debate in the house. The Lenroot proposal was voted down, 58 to 118, despite the fact that the Wisconsin representative had effected a $66,000,000 increase in the income tax surtax schedules largely by the argument that he intended that increase should be substituted the light and heat levies.

Trouble Over Mail Rates.

The proposed second class mail rate increases and the advertising tax are causing the committee much concern. With the committee virtually agreed to accept the Moon amendment on the second class mail rates and stand by the 5 per cent tax on all advertising except newspapers and periodicals now in the bill, Representative Johnson of Washington, a newspaper publisher, and Representative Fitzgerald of New York, injected new proposals into the situation today which resulted in the committee deferring final action until tomorrow.

Representative Johnson declared that the Moon plan, to increase the mail rate on periodicals carried in the mails to any zones beyond the second was unjust, and suggested a substitute plan basing the mail rate on the number of subscribers served by mail and the subscription price of the newspaper or periodical affected without regard to distance carried.

New Rates Proposed.

Under this plan a publication selling at 50 cents a year would pay in addition to the regular present 1 per cent flat rate a new rate of ¼ of a cent per pound up to 20,000 subscribers. At 20,000 subscribers the additional rate would be raised to ½ cent per thousand.

Representative Fitzgerald proposed to reduce the 5 per cent tax on all advertising, except newspapers and periodicals, to 1 per cent and exclude only country weeklies within their home counties. This was passed over at the suggestion of Mr. Kitchin pending discussion of the mail rates. If newspapers are to be included, he said, the change might be made, but otherwise it would not.

An amendment by Republican Leader Mann of Illinois to cut the tax of 10 per cent for transportation of property by express companies to 6 per cent was adopted.

Labor Men to Face Grand Jury Monday in Bomb Case

Labor officials and others will be called before the grand jury tomorrow when presentation of evidence in the movie bomb war is begun by State's Attorney Hoyne and an assistant, Nicholas Michels. Mr. Hoyne said yesterday that he would proceed against any men who fail to tell the truth.

Efficient General Staff First Need of Good Army

BY CAPT. HENRY J. REILLY.
SECOND ARTICLE.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 19.—[Special.]—In yesterday's article it was shown that we are beginning this war as we have all our wars, unprepared. While it is too late to change this fact, it is not too late to insure the efficient carrying out of the preparation we are about to make.

In all of our past wars our military system has broken down, with the result that we have wasted human life, caused unnecessary suffering, wasted money, unnecessarily prolonged the war, and run a tremendous chance of being defeated.

When the system breaks down the tendency of the public and the press is to blame some individual. While individuals are partially responsible, the lack of proper military system is primarily responsible. Napoleon, Cæsar, Joffre, and Von Hindenburg rolled into one could not wage war successfully unless able to operate under a competent system.

Face Well Prepared Foe.

Not only is the present war the largest we have ever been engaged in, but also it is the first in which we, from the time of our entering, have had to face a well organized, well trained, well fed, fighting enemy.

While in the last two years of the civil war there were many instances of as vicious fighting, though on a smaller scale, as is taking place now, it must not be forgotten that neither the union nor confederate army was prepared in the beginning. Had either one been on a par with the present German army the other would have been overwhelmingly defeated in less than three months.

Five Principal Policies.

The successful performance of any business depends on, first, the determination of a policy to be carried out; second, a study of the means by which this policy can best be put in force; third, the provision of the means; fourth, the proper administration, and, fifth, the proper coördination of all efforts to avoid overlapping, waste, and consequent inefficiency and perhaps failure.

There is no business so difficult as the business of war, because it deals with the very fundamentals of mankind at a time when passion and prejudice have reached their highest point and, consequently, cold blooded reason, the best guarantee of success in anything, is most obscured.

When Elihu Root was secretary of war he saw, not only from a study of our military history but also from the ordinary routine administration of our war department, that we had no proper military organization for the purpose of directing and coördinating our military efforts, not only in time of war but even for the relatively insignificant force of troops we habitually maintain in time of peace.

General Staff First Need.

A study of the situation and a study of European armies show that the only proper and efficient means of dealing with an army is to have at its head a large general staff. After some effort Mr. Root succeeded in creating the beginning of a general staff. However, he was unable to give it sufficient power to enforce its will.

Up to the creation of the general staff the line of the army—that is, the infantry, cavalry, and artillery, the people who do the fighting and who risk their lives on the battlefield—had nothing to say about the organization, training, or equipment of the army.

Everything, including administration, was in the hands of a number of virtually independent staff bureaus in Washington, such as the adjutant general, quarter master general, and the ordnance department. Such coördination of effort as came depended primarily upon the secretary of war, a civilian, unacquainted with military methods.

Two Evil Results.

Two things resulted from this system. The first was that the fighting men having no representatives and no means of presenting their views were unable to prevent the administration of the army reaching a point where the battle efficiency of the combat troops became secondary to the staff corps in Washington.

The second was that each staff corps or bureau became so powerful that it bitterly resented and fought any attempt to subordinate its interests to the interests of the army as a whole.

In this struggle between the staff corps and the general staff, the staff corps found a number of allies. All the politicians who profited by the system of trading, or as it is commonly called, the pork barrel, preferred to deal with staff bureaus which, though perfectly honest, were not always adverse to trading; to dealing with a body thinking only of war efficiency.

Some Liked Easy Life.

In the second place, in the army itself was to be found a number of officers who much preferred the rather easy existence which the staff corps administration permitted them to the very strenuous mental and physical preparation for war which the general staff wished to enforce.

This fight has extended over all the years since the creation of the general staff. It culminated last year when the national defense act reduced the general staff to forty members besides the chief of staff, and permitted but twenty of them to be in Washington at one time. The old, inefficient system of divided bureau control triumphed.

The AMPICO Reproducing Piano

Claiming a Miracle and Proving it Hear the Ampico

Hear an Ampico "comparison concert"—one of those extraordinary demonstrations which are the sensation of the National Music Show—at which the Ampico is proving beyond question its ability to reproduce touch for touch, tone for tone and phrase for phrase the playing of such splendid artists as Marguerite Volavy and James Whittaker.

Where truth itself borders on the miraculous, even the most moderate claims are sure to arouse skepticism. Hence the makers of the Ampico have devised the "comparison concert" as the most direct way of convincing the skeptics, a proof of far greater value than any written endorsement.

If you have been present at any of these demonstrations you have been thrilled by the revelation of an invention destined to revolutionize the future of music and music appreciation.

If not—you may yet hear the Ampico—and we urge you to delay no longer. Hear the Ampico tonight at 8:30 at Ampico Hall in the Coliseum.

USE FIST TO SELL LIBERTY BONDS, DAWES' ADVICE

Banker Says "Knock 'Em Down if They Refuse to Buy."

"If a man refuses to buy a Liberty bond from you, I say knock him down." This advice was given to the bond salesmen of Chicago by Charles G. Dawes, president of the Central Trust Company of Illinois, at a meeting in the Illinois Trust and Savings bank yesterday. The meeting was called to perfect plans for the distribution of Liberty loans bonds throughout the seventh federal reserve district, composed of parts of Illinois and all of Iowa, Indiana, Michigan, and Wisconsin.

The bond salesmen, of whom there are about 1,000 in the seventh district, have agreed to donate their services to push the sale in this district. They will receive no remuneration. Mr. Dawes said:

"Do you bond men realize what ten billions of dollars means—the sum that must be raised by the government for the prosecution of the first year of the war?

Must Place All Assets.

"It means, practically, that the banks have got to place their whole assets at the government's disposal. It means that if we don't, the government will take them.

"Do you know what it costs to fire one of the big guns once on the battle line? I'll tell you. It is the equivalent of fifty $100 liberty bonds, and it means you have got to sell fifty of those bonds for every time the gun is fired.

"If the war last two years, that means the government must raise not less than $20,000,000,000 to finance it. And it means that some of you to whom I am now speaking will be then on the firing line—in the trenches."

W. A. Heath, chairman of the board of directors of the Federal Reserve bank of Chicago, addressed the bond men after Mr. Dawes.

Offer to Express Employes.

It was announced by an official of the Illinois Trust and Savings bank yesterday that the banks have under consideration an agreement to loan on the Liberty bonds at 3½ per cent interest, which is the same interest the bonds carry. As it has been agreed that the banks will accept the bonds as gilt edge collateral.

A large block of the bonds have been purchased by the American Express company, which will be offered to its employés.

Anderson & Gustafson, petroleum and its products, have bought $100 Liberty bonds for each of their forty-two employés who are to pay for them at the rate of $1 a week for a year.

Public meetings, speeches to women's clubs and other women's organizations, posters, dodgers, and house to house canvasses are the means by which the Chicago members of the Woman's Liberty Loan committee hope to get customers for Uncle Sam's bonds.

PATRIOTIC SUNDAY

150,000 Members of the International Sunday School Association Will Observe July 1 as a Sabbath of Patriotism.

APPROVED by the president, "Patriotic Sunday" will be celebrated on July 1 by some 150,000 members of the International Sunday School association. The event will be observed throughout the United States. The president's message of approval was received yesterday in the offices of the association and is as follows:

> The present insistent call of our beloved country must be heard and answered by every citizen of the United States in proportion to his or her ability to maintain the national power and honor.
> Many citizens will render their aid by force of arms on the battlefield, while others will make the nation strong by their patriotic gifts and support to the common cause. It is therefore highly fitting that the Sunday schools of the nation should observe a special patriotic day and on this occasion should make a special contribution to the American Red Cross for the alleviation of the suffering entailed by the prosecution of the present war. It is my earnest hope that your generosity may be unstinted in this hour of the nation's need and that this special day may mean much to you in the understanding of the cause for which our beloved land now contends.

LIBERTY LOAN TO BE A SECRET UNTIL FINISHED

Washington, D. C., May 19.—There will be no official announcement of subscriptions to the Liberty loan until the subscription books close on June 15. No official statement of the amount subscribed at any period prior to that date will be made public by the treasury department, and officials will exert themselves to see that no accurate unofficial estimates are obtainable.

In announcing this decision today, officials stated that it would be "physically impossible to give out any totals until June 15." The number of subscribers, however, will be officially announced from time to time and treasury officials will have accurate information, virtually from day to day, from the federal reserve banks and other agencies, after the campaign is in full swing, as to the total subscriptions in hand.

The Goddess of Liberty with her beacon of enlightenment to the world joined forces with the Liberty loan of 1917 today in the selection of the design for the buttons that are to be presented to purchasers of Liberty bonds.

Bank Subscribes Much.

New York, May 19.—The First National bank of New York has subscribed for $25,000,000 of Liberty loan bonds, it was announced today. This and the United States Steel corporation subscription for the same amount are the largest yet recorded.

The First National bank also subscribed $5,000,000 for the Bell Telephone system and $5,000,000 for the Northern Pacific railway.

McAdoo Finds Northwest Ready.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 19.—Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo in a whirlwind day, ending up with a mammoth massmeeting here tonight, found the northwest as good at raising money as raising wheat.

While New York and other eastern cities were reported starting their Liberty loan campaign today, Minneapolis tonight reported $6,285,850 raised in the last five days. Its allotment is $8,000,000. St. Paul and other northwest cities are doing equally well.

For the Grim Business of War

For the grim business of war Uncle Sam needs a motor car that will stand up under the severest strains to which a car can be put. It must be absolutely dependable, and with each part QUICKLY ACCESSIBLE for replacement or repairs when the bursting shells get in their work. So Uncle Sam told his engineers to search for such a car. They made gruelling tests—tests more severe than motor car tests had ever been. They drove thousands of miles with armor like the picture above. They went through everything and over everything. They tested for speed, for quick get-away, for economy under terrific strains. They made a THOUSAND TESTS that only the extreme vigor of war requires, AND THEN THESE ENGINEERS REPORTED TO UNCLE SAM THAT had made good. It had "come through" without a fall-down—with every claim upheld. These were regular King 8 stock chasses. Uncle Sam has now bought many of them. They are his motor pals for this great world war.

You will never put YOUR CAR to such tests. You COULDN'T. But you do want to KNOW that your King Eight will stand more than any test you will ever be able to attempt. You WANT a big margin of performance. You get it in the King 8.

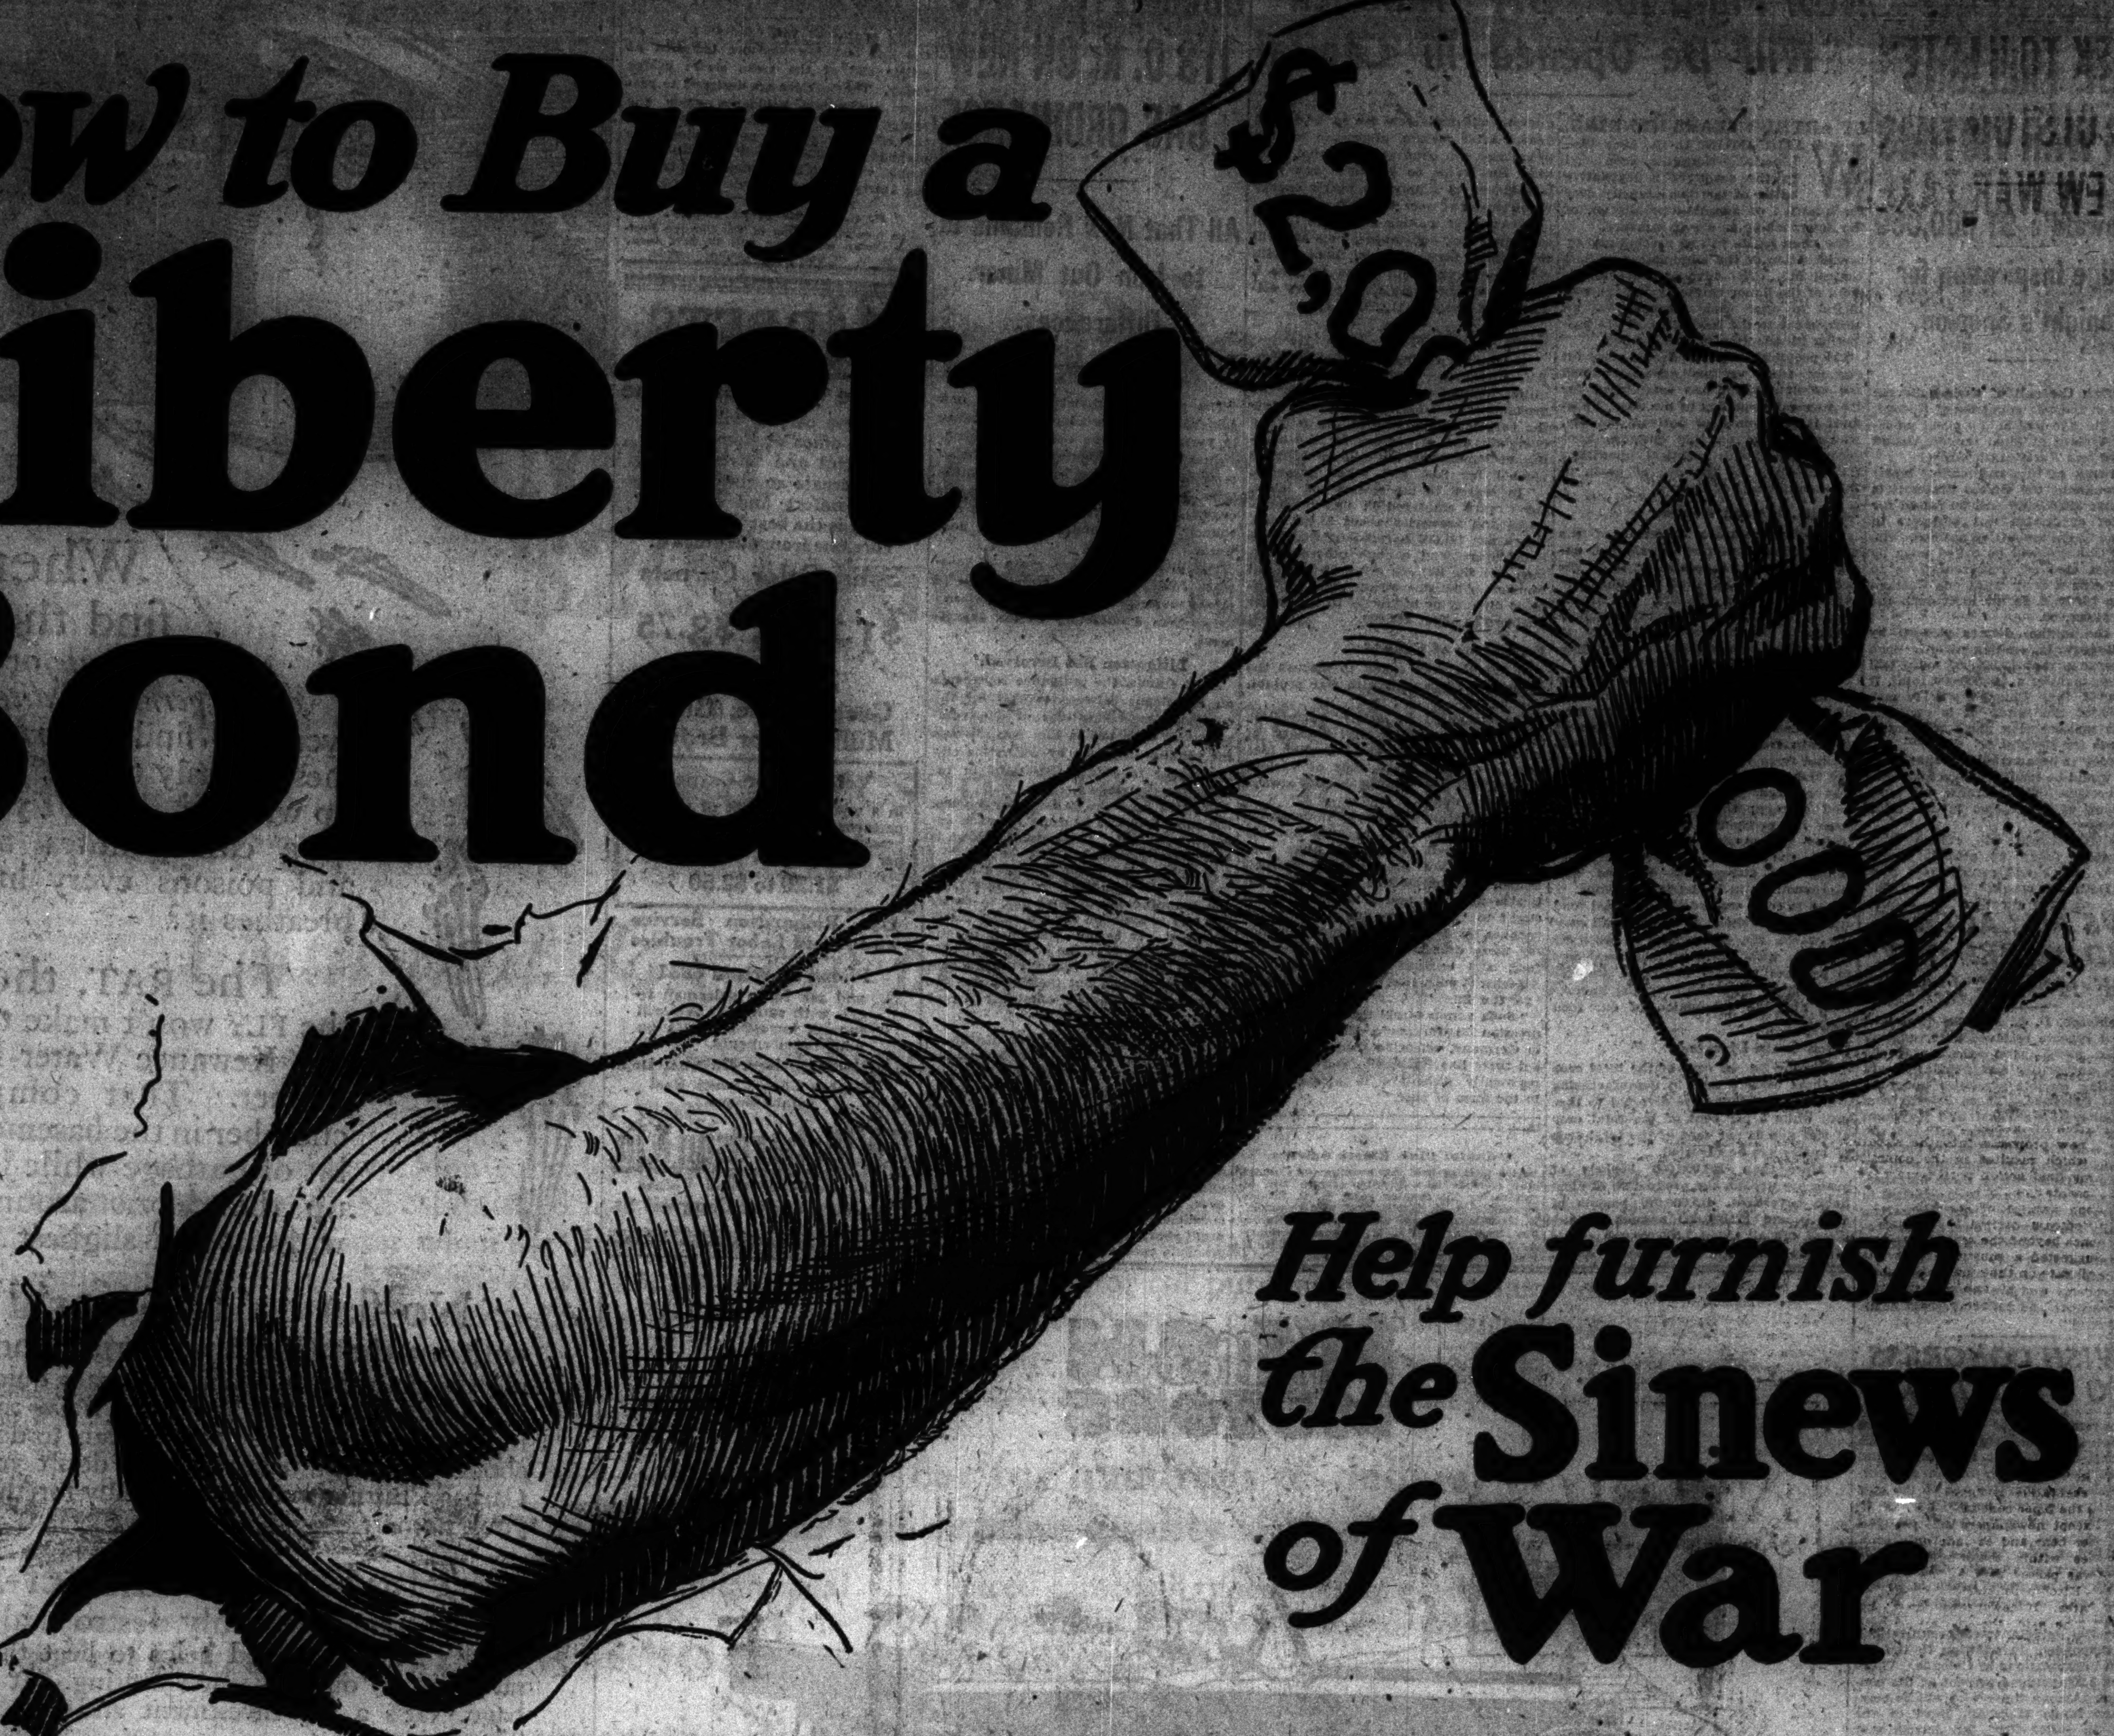
How to Buy a Liberty Bond



Help furnish the Sinews of War

WHEN the battle flags are furled and America sits at the Peace Conference you will be glad to know that you helped to place her there. You will be proud that your money was a factor to hasten the day

Here is the opportunity for every citizen to serve our country. Here is the opportunity for the man whom age or other limitations keeps from active service. Here is the chance for the woman whose heart thrills with those ideals which, in all ages, have ennobled the mothers of men. Here is the valued "bit" that the child may do with his little savings, the child whose future is wrapped up in the success of the cause.

Your every dollar, like the eagle it bears, "will come home to its nest." Your every dollar will come back to you not only with its interest of 3½% but with the higher reward of duty done. Buy now and insure the success of that cause to which we have pledged, as part of America's heritage to the world, "our lives, our fortunes and our sacred honor." Buy now and urge others to buy that they may say with the patriot-preacher, "Our fathers stood up in the day of peril and laid again the foundations of liberty; in their hands the banner of our country streamed forth like the morning star upon the night."

This is a Message—Not to Bond Buyers, but to the Great Mass of People, Many of Whom Have Never Purchased a Bond

The Liberty Bonds are issued in denominations of from $50 and $100 up to $100,000. If you have not $50 or $100 in cash right now, do not stop reading this. We will come to your case further on. You shall have your chance to strike and strike hard for your country.

Many people are unfamiliar with bonds and banks and financial matters generally. You doubtless would have purchased your Liberty Bond before now had you known exactly how to go about it.

Go to a Bank as You Go to a Store to Make a Simple Purchase

Buying a Liberty Bond is just as simple as buying an article of wearing apparel, furniture or food. Go to any good Bank, Trust Company or Bond Company. Simply regard that institution as a store, ready to serve you with your needs.

Tell them you want to buy a Liberty Bond.

You need have no hesitation whatever—you will be treated with the utmost courtesy. And anything that you do not understand will painstakingly be made clear to you.

All Banks, Trust Companies and Bond Companies are handling the Liberty Loan and stand ready to serve you—incidentally, entirely without profit to themselves.

What the Liberty Bond Is—First of All, It Is Ready Money

Some people have the idea that to invest in a bond is to tie their money up. That is not so.

It is a Government Bond, the surest, safest investment in the world—secured by the entire resources of the richest country on earth.

Therefore, it is readily saleable anywhere, any time. If you need money at any time, take your Liberty Bond to any bond broker or stock broker and they will be glad to buy it—or to almost any bank and borrow on it.

Your Liberty Bond is real money—just as real as the greenbacks which you carry in your pocket. The $5.00 bill in your pocket now is nothing on earth but a bond—the United States Government's promise to pay five silver dollars for it. The only difference is that your Liberty Bond, every dollar of it, is live, working money—earning 3½%, which your greenback does not do.

Bear in mind that the Liberty Bonds are exempt and free from all taxation, both as to principal and interest—except estate or inheritance taxes.

Bear in mind also that the Liberty Bond is exchangeable, dollar for dollar, for any later bond which the Government may issue during the war which pays a higher rate of interest than this 3½%.

The Government Makes Two Propositions—Both Good—Take Your Choice

Either you may purchase the Liberty Bond outright for cash; or subscribe, paying 2% down and the remainder as follows:

June 28th, 18% August 15th, 30%
July 30th, 20% August 30th, 30%

A third proposition has been worked out by a number of the larger Banks, Trust Companies and Bond Companies. Now, you who have not the ready cash on hand, here is your opportunity:

If You Have Not the Cash, Buy Your Liberty Bond on the Installment Plan

It is just as simple as buying furniture or pianos or anything else on installments—so much down and so much a week. The chief difference is that you are saving your money instead of spending your money—and instead of being charged interest on the amount you have not paid in as in purchasing merchandise, you are paid interest on the amount you have paid in, in buying a Liberty Bond.

Here is the schedule one of the big banks has worked out for purchases made during this week:

First payment	$ 2.99
Thirty-two payments of $3.00 each	96.10
Interest at 3% per annum	.91
Total the amount of the bond	$100.00

This gives every citizen—man, woman and child—an opportunity to do his share in making the Liberty Loan an overwhelming success.

If your bank has not worked out an installment proposition, they or we will gladly direct you to some bank which has.

Whether Little or Much, Your Country Needs Your Money—Put It Into a Liberty Bond

It is the strongest investment you ever made in your life—absolutely secure. And it is ready money besides. It gives you the opportunity to save your money and serve your flag—at the same time. Your plain duty lies straight ahead—buy a Liberty Bond. And do it now!

We have prepared a little booklet, "The Liberty Bond—How and Where to Get It," which we will be glad to send you.

JEWS MEET TO RAISE MILLIONS FOR WAR VICTIMS

Rosenwald's $1,000,000 Pledge Inspiration for Tonight's Session.

Answering the call of their suffering brethren in the war countries of Europe, Jews of Chicago will hold a great massmeeting tonight at Sinai temple, Grand boulevard and Forty-sixth street.

As a result of this and similar meetings throughout the United States it is hoped that $10,000,000 will be raised for the relief of Jewish war sufferers in every one of the embattled nations. The Jews of Chicago will be called upon by their most eloquent representatives to contribute as a body what one Chicago Jew has pledged as an individual—the sum of $1,000,000.

With the million dollars pledged by Julius Rosenwald, contingent only upon the assurance that $9,000,000 more will be raised, making a $10,000,000 total, it is intended that Chicago will furnish $2,000,000 of the fund. It is expected that the massmeeting alone will result in pledges for $300,000.

Yesterday it became evident that Sinai temple would be inadequate to take care of the crowds. The overflow will meet in various of the rooms in the Sinai social center.

Julius Rosenwald will return from Washington today to attend. Judge Julian W. Mack will return from New York. Both will speak.

JEWS PILLAGED AND DRIVEN OUT OF HOLY LAND

Washington, D. C., May 19.—[Special.]—Official reports received here, quoting Egyptian newspapers, assert that the Turkish authorities and population are committing terrible atrocities upon the Jews of Palestine. Those driven from the Mediterranean coast and Egyptian frontier who resist being pillaged are hanged, and the authorities are declared to be encouraging and conniving with the civilians in perpetrating these outrages.

Jews are said to have been expelled in considerable numbers from Jerusalem, especially the younger Jews, and are being driven to unknown destinations northward of that city.

The enforced refugees are deprived of their property and are declared already to be destitute and suffering great hardships.

JEWISH CONGRESS TO MEET TODAY

A convention of the Jewish Congress Association of the Middle West is to be held this morning at the Auditorium hotel to elect members to the reorganized congress committee and to the city nominating convention, preliminary to the election of delegates to the American Jewish congress.

June 10 has been fixed as the date of actually electing Chicago delegates to the national congress, which is scheduled to convene at Washington, D. C., on Sept. 2.

Over 300 middle west organizations have responded, in addition to the 600 Jewish organizations in Chicago. There will be 1,200 persons present at the convention. Among those who will be present are Louis Marshall, head of the American relief fund for Jewish war sufferers, New York; Miss Susan Brandeis, daughter of Justice Brandeis of the United States Supreme court; Dr. Emil G. Hirsch, Adolf Kraus, Judge Julian Mack, Judge Samuel Alschuler, Julius Savitky, Mrs. Hannah Solomon, and Mrs. Benjamin Davis.

New Fight for "Dry" America Will Be Opened in Capital

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 19.—[Special.]—Congress soon will be the scene of a legislative battle of terrible intensity over the question of adopting prohibition of the liquor traffic as a war measure.

The great battle will be precipitated by consideration of the administration food control bill. The advocates of curtailment of the liquor traffic during the war intend to offer their measure as an amendment to the food bill and are predicting its adoption in both houses.

The prohibitionists will recive powerful support from various agencies which the administration has established for the successful conduct of the war. Foremost is the council of national defense, whose advisers on this question have recommended with practical unanimity the prohibtion of the use of grain in the manufacture of liquor.

Experts Demand Action.

Prof. Irving Fisher, chairman of the council's subcommittee on alcohol, asserted today that sooner or later the nation will be compelled to adopt prohibition as a war measure. Dr. Alonso Taylor, commissioned by the administration to report recommendations on the question, has reached the same conclusion.

"Besides the general reasons for war prohibition, there are a number of specific reasons," said Dr. Fisher. "These are: Food conservation, the diversion of grain from alcohol to food and of alcohol from beverage uses to military and industrial uses; the freeing of the cold storage plants of breweries for food storage; the diversion of labor from the production of alcoholic beverages to military or industrial purposes; the prevention of certain disabling and disreputable diseases and improvements in industrial efficiency.

"As to food, we are facing a real food crisis, due to shortage of crops all over the world, the destruction of crops by war, the withdrawal of food producers to perform military functions, the destruction of food ships by the submarine, and the exhaustion of our food stocks.

Much Grain Diverted.

"Nearly 2½ per cent of the total crop of those cereals used in manufacturing alcoholic beverages are diverted to that use, while 5 per cent of the total crop of rice and 34 per cent of the total crop of barley are so diverted.

"More than 110,000,000 bushels of grain are used in the production of alcoholic beverages, 415,000,000 pounds of grapes and 152,000,000 pounds of molasses. In all about 7,500,000,000 pounds of food (grain, grapes, grape sugar, glucose, and molasses) are so used each year. After making allowance for the production of denatured alcohol, the total fuel value so diverted each year is sufficient to supply the yearly energy requirement of over 7,000,000 men.

"Even after making allowance for all recovered food substances, such as swill for feeding farm animals, there is still wasted enough grain alone to give a one pound loaf every day to every soldier in an army of 11,000,000 men.

Gains in Industry.

"As to the commercial uses of alcohol, prohibition would enable us to utilize distilleries and breweries in the production of ether, so necessary now for surgical operations in the military hospitals, and of acetone for the making of explosives, as well as of pure alcohol for fuel and other purposes.

"In regard to the release of labor, there were employed in 1910 in distilleries and breweries about 81,000 men. There are 101,000 bartenders, 68,000 saloonkeepers, and enough others—salesmen and the like—to bring up the total number of persons owing their employment directly or indirectly to the liquor business to about 289,000.

Experiance of Canada.

Dr. Fisher was asked to discuss the experience of Canada with war prohibition.

"In Canada," he said, "prohibition was adopted before any scarcity of grain had been felt. The Canadian idea was to prevent these evils of various kinds which the drinking custom always brings to soldiers.

"The question now for us to decide is how far do we dare to go? For my part, European experience has convinced me, not previously a prohibitionist, that prohibition is now a practicable measure, and I believe that we ought to 'go Europe one better,' both because the food situation now demands far more drastic action than ever before; and because public opinion in America is such that we can and should 'go the limit.'

"Such action would make a great impression on Germany. Military experts in Germany, scientific students of alcohol there like Kraepelin, and the kaiser personally disbelieve in alcohol, even in the form of beer."

Colonial Club Elects Officers.

At a meeting held last evening the Colonial club elected the following officers and directors for the ensuing year: H. C. Brooks, president; F. M. Hatch, first vice president; E. J. Wilson, second vice president; Harvey Fox, treasurer, and E. M. Hughes, secretary. A. T. Scannell, G. W. [illegible], and H. H. Hutchinson were selected as directors.

COMMITTEE PUTS ITS O. K. ON NEW GAS ORDINANCE

All That Now Remains Is to Iron Out Minor Differences.

The principal provisions of the new gas ordinance were adopted unanimously yesterday by the council committee on gas, oil, and electric light. All that remains is to iron out some minor questions of verbiage. It is expected the ordinance will be reported into the city council at the committee meeting next week.

The proceedings were given a boost when John P. Garner, commissioner of public service, announced that the ordinance was satisfactory to his department.

Litigation Not Involved.

As it stands, the ordinance represents an agreement between experts for the city and representatives of the company. It does not in any way involve the pending litigation by which the city is seeking to obtain $10,000,000 in rebates for the consumers.

The new rates are 30 cents for the first 350 cubic feet and 70 cents for each ensuing 1,000 feet. The present charge is 80 cents a thousand.

In return for reducing the rate the company is permitted to change from the manufacture of coal gas to water gas and to abandon the old candlepower standard. It is not contended by the city's experts that the consumers' bills will be materially reduced during the transition period, but they hold out the prospect of ultimately obtaining 55 cent gas.

Warns Against Higher Rates.

On the other hand, E. W. Bemis, the city's engineer, expressed the fear that the rapidly increasing cost of producing water gas would necessitate higher rates than are now charged, unless the present ordinance is passed.

The new ordinance runs for a period of one year, after which the council is authorized to change the rates. If, however, the council should fail to act the consumers would be protected by the profit sharing arrangement which would preclude excess profits.

Automobile to Test Out New Bridge Safety Gate

City engineers will conduct a test of the new cushion barriers installed at either end of the Lake street bridge today. The barriers are designed to prevent automobile accidents when the bridge is open. In order to demonstrate the efficiency of the new device it is planned to smash into it with an automobile weighing 2,000 pounds and traveling thirty miles an hour.

Wherever you find the trail of the rat, the mouse or the fly, you find the germs of disease. And wherever you find a garbage can, you find these measly tracks. Why do you put up with it? Don't you know the garbage can pollutes the atmosphere and poisons every human being that breathes it?

The RAT, the MOUSE and the FLY won't make tracks where there is a Kewanee Water-Heating Garbage Burner. That compact little steel chamber in the basement destroys every bit of garbage while it is fresh and eats up the debris around your premises without the slighest odor.

No flat in the world is complete without that Garbage Burner and every flat building that has one, will rent ten times quicker than one without it. It is a health and renting and living asset. Fly-time is coming, rats and mice are getting ready to do their duty around the abode of human beings. Why don't you put in a Kewanee Garbage Burner and make it silly for these pests to be around your home?

The Kewanee Water-Heating Garbage Burner not only destroys all filth but it turns the filth into fuel and helps to heat the hot-water tank. It saves money on your water-heating. It makes coal from garbage. It's a big investment and cost mighty little money. Think it over.

NASH Jeffery MOTORS

Free From Vibration

One of the finest results of Nash construction policy is the fifty-three horsepower motor of the Jeffery Car. Powerful, supple, without vibration at any speed. It is the refined and perfected descendant with which Jeffery engineers three years ago introduced the high speed, high power aeroplane type of motor to America.

It gives you power a-plenty at the speeds you use—speed which always has power behind it—from sixty miles an hour down to a crawl on high—and all without vibration.

This freedom from vibration adds to the life of the motor and the car itself. Vibration soon has a bad effect on any car and greatly shortens its life. So in the Jeffery Six you get a greater value in longer life for your car. And the smoothness of this motor adds to its riding comfort.

The Reason—The Giant Jeffery Crankshaft

This oversized, inherently balanced crankshaft is one of the most remarkable features of the Jeffery car. Its design is such that the long arms between the crankpins are as strong as the crankpins themselves. This was accomplished by taking advantage of the latest development in the art of drop forging, enabling the concentration of the weight of the long arms at a point near the center of the crankshaft. Thus considerably more metal is used than was the case under the old method—giving a rigidity and running balance that have eliminated tortional vibration. These two features—the inherently balanced design and extra diameter—combined with large bearings, make this, we believe, the smoothest running and longest lived six cylinder motor ever built.

Jeffery cars give longer service, and for this reason they command high prices on the used car market. You can always get more for a Jeffery used car than for any other car around its price class.

Chandler Price Must Advance $200 June 30th

The price of the Chandler Six becomes $1595 on the first day of July. The present model, identically the same car, will be continued after that date.

Until that date the price remains $1395

It has always been a basic part of Chandler policy to keep the Chandler price low

We have kept it low. Men considered the original Chandler price of $1785 established four years ago an impossible price. Later when the Chandler Company reduced that price to $1595 the trade thought we were courting disaster. Further reductions came as a positive shock to the industry.

Meanwhile the Chandler Company prospered and Chandler business grew to front rank proportions. The Chandler car was never cheapened, but, rather, improved and refined from season to season until the whole motor car purchasing public has come to recognize the Chandler car as a car of surpassing values.

Our whole purpose has been to build the best light-weight Six and sell it at the lowest possible price.

We have sold the Chandler car for hundreds of dollars less than cars of similar quality

We have built into the Chandler car, as fundamental features of construction and equipment, the most important features which are characteristic of the highest priced cars of all types—features which are not found in other medium-priced Sixes, or found, at best, to very slight degree.

Now, however, the Chandler price must be advanced

It must be materially advanced to cover greatly increased costs which have arisen this Spring by reason of unprecedented conditions in the material supply and labor markets and in problems of transportation.

Production costs throughout the past three months have advanced steadily and in long strides. This is a condition which we cannot control. It is a condition which we must meet.

So the Chandler price must be advanced. In making this advance we do not depart from our firmly established policy of keeping the price just as low as it can be kept and still provide reasonable manufacturing profit.

At $1595 the Chandler car will still be under-priced

It will be distinctly under-priced, as compared to other cars which some may consider of similar quality. By test of any conceivable comparison this statement is a provable fact.

Now you can buy this great Six at $1395, f. o. b. Cleveland.

While the $1395 price holds, the demand will continue to greatly exceed our production, and we cannot guarantee deliveries

Kaiser's Sister Withholds Red Cross Help, Is Cable Plea.

Gustave Triandafil, leader of the Greek Liberal league in Chicago, yesterday received a telegram from Panos Aravantinos, special agent to the United States for the Greek provisional government of Saloniki, saying that the Red Cross in Athens had refused to help the Greeks that are fighting the Bulgarians. Sophia, queen of Greece and president of the Red Cross in Athens, is a sister of the kaiser. The telegram follows:

New York, May 15, 1917.

With heartfelt anguish and sorrow I communicate to you that the Athens branch of the Red Cross, under the presidency of Sophia Hohenzollern, refused absolutely any kind of help for our brothers at Saloniki because they are fighting against Bulgarians, allies of Germany.

Venizelos Makes Plea.

Venizelos, denouncing the above, cables me as follows:

"Deprived of funds, I make urgent appeal to all Greek colonies to constitute committees for collecting money, hospital supplies, linen, surgical instruments, etc. It is absolutely necessary to prepare 6,000 beds. We have only 2,000 now. I urge you, in the name of Greece, in the name of humanity, to constitute committees and proceed with utmost activity to the noble work so fervently recommended by our leaders. If Sophia Hohenzollern is so unspeakably inhuman the Greek Liberals are bound to show that they will never refuse the needful to those who heroically are offering their all for Greece's future and glory."

ARAVANTINOS.

Against Red Cross Ethics.

John J. O'Connor, director of the Chicago branch of the American Red Cross, said when shown the telegram:

"I cannot understand it at all and if this was done by the Red Cross in Athens it is strictly against the ethics of the Red Cross."

Ernest P. Bicknell, director of the American Red Cross, stated in Washington last night that direct appeals such as made by Aravantinos in this country is against the ethics of the Red Cross. The unwritten law is that the Red Cross of one country shall not go into another to make a direct appeal, but to let the Red Cross of a given country make the appeal. Mr. Bicknell said he doubts that Aravantinos has any Red Cross authority at all, because there can be only one Red Cross in any country, and that recognized by the real government. Venizelos' government is not recognized.

A meeting is to be held by the Chicago Greeks, who will undertake to raise the necessary funds for the Liberals. Nick Demopulos, 651 Blue Island avenue, is secretary of the Liberal league in Chicago.

"WOMEN MANIA AND MATRIMONY" EXCUSES HIS ACT

The marriage of Lewis Nehring, wealthy Prairie du Chien, Wis., farmer, to Mrs. Minnie H. Peo Nehring of 2430 Surrey court, was annulled yesterday by Judge Denis M. Sullivan in the Superior court. The verdict rendered by Judge Sullivan also called Nehring insane and said his "mania for women and matrimony" made him incapable of entering into a legal marriage. Nehring is 73 years old and a guardian has been appointed for his affairs. The verdict also provided for the return of $5,000 to Nehring by his wife.

Nehring and Mrs. Peo were married in November, 1915, and shortly he moved to Chicago from Prairie du Chien. He purchased property at the Surrey court address and soon afterwards signed it over to his wife, as he did several sums of money.

In the bill filed by Henry Olsen, guardian for Nehring, Mrs. Nehring and her daughter, Mrs. Lillian Holmes, were charged with defrauding Nehring of $5,000. During the trial Mrs. Holmes was called "the girl with the flirty eyes" and accused of working on Nehring's matrimonial weaknesses in attempting to acquire his money.

Must Fill Iowa Guard.

Des Moines, Ia., May 19.—The Iowa national guard has been ordered recruited up to war strength at once by the war department. Adjt. Gen. Logan received this word today.

SHRAPNEL

The Western Union Telegraph company issued a circular yesterday which gives permission to all its employés who enlist to return to its service when the term of enlistment is ended. Many of the company's employés have been appointed noncommissioned officers in the army because of the technical facility acquired in their work.

The first thing that Perry Ball of 5930 Indiana avenue is going to do when he gets the pallor out of his cheeks is to enlist in the First Illinois artillery. Young Ball, who graduated from the Englewood high school last February, attempted to enlist several weeks ago, but was rejected. He was promptly operated upon, and left the Passavant hospital yesterday.

The woman's department of the Navy league is now sending "kits" to the sailors that contain twenty-six articles. One of the sailors was shown one yesterday by Mrs. Frederic Countiss, and after examining it he said, "Gee, these contain everything but running water."

One thousand volumes have been contributed by citizens to furnish reading for soldiers in answer to the call made by the Chicago public library and the Y. M. C. A. It is expected the soldiers' library will reach 100,000 books. They will be shifted from camp to camp.

Capt. George S. Ballard, former president of the Hamilton club and real estate operator, has received instructions from the war department to report at once for duty at Fort Sheridan as assistant to the camp quartermaster. Capt. Ballard served in the Illinois national guard for over twenty years and was one of the first to be commissioned by President Wilson under the Hay-Chamberlain act.

Capt. George S. Ballard of Evanston, former president of the Hamilton club, has been called into service as assistant camp quartermaster in Fort Sheridan.

Officers of the Union Pacific railway in Chicago yesterday announced that employés attending military training camps will be allowed full salary for the three months of such camps, salary to cease if commissions are given.

MRS. LOCKWOOD, NOTED SUFFRAGE LEADER, EXPIRES

Washington, D. C., May 19.—Belva Lockwood, noted woman publicist and one of the first women to urge woman suffrage, died here today after a long illness.

Mrs. Lockwood was the first woman admitted to practice before the United States Supreme court and the only woman candidate for president.

She was 86 years old.

Mrs. Lockwood often told the anecdote of how she became a fighter for suffrage. A widow, Mrs. U. H. McNall, at 24 years of age, with a child, she was teaching school in Royalton, N. Y., at a salary of only $3 a week. Men teachers were getting twice as much or more. This apparent inequality stirred her to action.

Continuously from that time she fought against the exclusion of women from rights which men enjoyed. She fortified herself with a collegiate education at Genesee college and for successive periods was preceptress of seminaries at Lockport, Gainsville, and Oswego, N. Y.

In each place she was a leader among women's societies. She was married again, to the Rev. Ezekiel Lockwood, a Baptist clergyman in Washington, who died nine years later, in 1877.

Soon afterward she began study at the National University of Law, and upon graduation, after spirited controversy, was admitted to practice before the Supreme court of the District of Columbia.

The most striking incident of her career came in 1884 with nomination by the Equal Rights party of the Pacific slope as a candidate for the presidency of the United States. Vain as the action was, it was a unique distinction. The nomination was renewed by the same party, meeting in Iowa, four years later.

In 1889 she was a delegate of the Universal Peace union to the International Peace congress in Paris, and again in 1890 to the congress at London. Until her last days she maintained her law office in Washington.

Actors' Hospital Benefit to Be Held This Afternoon

Judge Marcus Kavanagh will make a patriotic address this afternoon at the benefit to be given in the Auditorium theater in aid of the American Theatrical hospital. The stage will be filled with soldiers, sailors, and marines and the theater will be resplendent in the national colors. Miss Cyrena Van Gordon of the Chicago Grand Opera company will sing patriotic songs. A new national song, "The Avengers," by Will Reed Dunroy, also will be introduced.

Wife Victim of Suicide.

Mrs. Jennie Jennings, whose husband, Olaf, shot her five times, after which he killed himself, died yesterday in St. Ann's hospital.

RED CROSS ARMY TO INVADE EVERY HOME IN CHICAGO

Partisan Leaders Join in Gigantic Effort for Members.

In making contributions to the Red Cross contributors are at liberty to specify how their contributions are to be applied. Among the contributions received by the Red Cross have been a number marked "for the soldiers and sailors of Illinois." The money may be used for military relief alone or for other specific purposes.

Every dwelling in Chicago will be canvassed for memberships in the Red Cross through the coöperation of the Republican and Democratic parties and the Red Cross leaders.

Five thousand precinct committeemen will start this week to educate the residents of their precincts regarding the functions of the Red Cross and to enroll those who are not already members. The arrangement was made by Charles H. Wacker, chairman of the citizens' committee of the Red Cross membership campaign, and the county central committee of the two political parties.

The Republicans appointed a committee of five to take charge of the work for them. Charles A. Williams is chairman. The other members are Roy O. West, Edwin A. Olson, Francis P. Brady, and David W. Clark. There are three members on the Democratic committee to supervise the work among the Democrats. They are Timothy Crowe committeeman of the Thirty-third ward; James T. Igoe, city clerk, and Ald. Iliff of the Third ward.

Many Judges to Speak.

Every ward organization will meet this week. Mr. Wacker told the central committees that a large group of judges has offered to speak at these meetings regarding the work of the Red Cross. Literature will be distributed through the ward, and then the precinct leaders will visit every house.

The Thirty-second ward Republican organization will start its canvass tomorrow. Ald. Fisher said yesterday he believes the work will secure 25,000 members in his ward.

Several thousand memberships were secured yesterday at the White Sox ball game when Mr. Wacker, a corps of boy scouts, and a number of megaphone speakers conducted a drive on the fans.

Drive In Churches Today.

Red Cross week will end today, when Red Cross Sunday is to be observed. Practically all of the churches in Chicago have consented to coöperate in the membership campaign, and the climax of the work in the churches will be today.

Many of the ministers will make the Red Cross the subject of their sermons. Others will devote more or less of their sermons to explaining the work of the society and urging the congregations to join at once if not already members. In a number of the churches there will be tables for taking subscriptions.

Yesterday's reports sent the total membership up to 214,686. This includes the 17,000 members at the opening of the new drive.

Oak Park Rivals Evanston.

Oak Park and Evanston are rivals in an effort to secure 10,000 memberships each. In River Forest the goal is 500 for a population of 2,000.

Lombard, with a strong German population, has set a mark of one-half the total population. Kenilworth is leading the north shore towns on the basis of population. It has reported 610 members.

Wilmette has reported 125 members and Glencoe 377. About 600 have signed in Lake Forest and 200 each in Highland Park, Lake Bluff, Park Ridge, Palatine, and Desplaines.

Big Slavonic Movement.

A big Slavonic demonstration will be held Tuesday evening, when after a parade and an open air demonstration those participating will be enrolled in the Red Cross. The leaders in the movement assert they will sign up 100,000 members. The parade will be through the streets of the southwest part of the city, and the demonstration will take place at Pilsen park.

Mme. Bernhardt Is Able to Take Drive in Park

New York, May 19.—[Special.]—For the first time since March 12, when she was brought to New York suffering from the serious illness that necessitated an operation a month ago, Mme. Sarah Bernhardt today enjoyed an outing in the open air. She rode in an automobile through Central park and down Fifth avenue.

Court Kills Control of Trade by Master Plumbers

Pittsburgh, Pa., May 19.—The National Association of Master Plumbers of the United States may exist hereafter only as a social organization. It must not attempt in the future to control the trade in any way or to regulate prices of service and materials. That was the sense of a decree handed down in United States District court.

G. A. R. FINDS BIT FOR MEN BARRED FROM WAR ITSELF

Plenty to Do for All, Old or Young, Who Wish to Serve.

As an answer to the question, "What can a man do for his country if he is unable to get into the regular United States forces?" Grand Army of the Republic members have started the national reserve corps.

"We will show any able bodied man who has patriotic motives where he can serve the United States," said Col. L. B. Coupland, commander of the corps. "It makes no difference whether a man is under or over military age. We will find out what he can do and then find a place for him.

No Charge for Service.

"We make no charge for this service and no salary is paid to any of the men who take part in the work. There is plenty of work for all the men who are willing to do something, and there is work for the women, too.

"If the civil war veteran who wrote to THE TRIBUNE over the signature 'C.' asking what he and his comrades could do for their country, will call and make himself known, we will be glad to give him something to do."

Wanted In Many Lines.

Headquarters of the corps tomorrow will be moved to a tent in Grant park.

Col. Erwin E. Wood, a former newspaper man, is secretary of the corps.

"Veterans of the Spanish war are unable to get back into the army under present regulations, but we can use them," he said.

"Among those wanted are bakers, aviators, electricians, chauffeurs, nurses, men for clerical work, interpreters, and men skilled in trades. We can take care of men who are rejected at the regular recruiting stations."

BANDS AND SONG AND ORATORY BY ELKS FLAG DAY

The South park commissioners have granted Chicago Elks the use of Grant park, the band stand, and 3,000 chairs for Flag day on June 14. Invitations to participate will be extended to troops, naval bodies, national guard, high school cadets and other military bodies.

There will be addresses by Gov. Morrow of Kentucky, Gov. Lowden, Senator Lewis, Mayor Thompson and others.

The Elks have erected a fifty foot flag pole at the foot of Congress street. The commissioners have accepted the flag pole, and intend to erect a staff that will be an ornament to the park. There will be several bands, a parade and choral singing.

How the Hudson Super-Six Proved Itself a Life Car

The gruelling tests, in which Hudson won many worth-while records, were not made to prove a race-car.

The Hudson is a home car—a family car—for modest speeds, for average men, on ordinary roads.

Yet it holds the stock chassis speed records. In its 1819-mile run in 24 hours, a stock Super-Six chassis broke every 24-hour record held by any traveling machine. The 7-passenger Super-Six twice won the transcontinental record—San Francisco to New York and return in a 7,000-mile trip. And less spectacular though just as convincing is the performance made in every locality under every imaginable condition.

Such supreme tests, because of their violence, often crowd fifty miles in one. That's why men compare cars in this way. That is why it is necessary for every manufacturer, if he is to know the limits of his car's endurance, to make similarly abnormal tests.

What we are proving is endurance. We can't well run a car for years. We cannot drive it, say 150,000 miles. It would take too long.

So we make these short tests under fearful strain, to know at once which car has most endurance.

The Super-Six, in those ways, proved itself supreme. And all because of a patented motor, which minimizes friction.

A Hudson Super-Six Special, built to meet the special conditions, demonstrated power and endurance, in making the best time to the "Top of the World" in the Pike's Peak Hill Climb. Twenty cars, all specials, contested.

Every taste of motor car design is met in the Hudson.

There are eight body designs—all beautiful and in good taste.

The bodies and their details are in keeping with the Super-Six chassis. And the car in any body type is made to meet every possible need of the most particular. No service is too great for it mechanically—no detail of finish is out of harmony with the most discriminating requirement.

DYING MAN HELD AS BANDIT IN $7,000 HOLDUP

Prisoner in Hospital Suspected as One of Band Which Shot Three.

"Willie" Martin, 1623 Washburne avenue, desperately wounded, was arrested last night at the Jefferson Park hospital and identified as one of five automobile bandits who shot three men and escaped with $7,000 after a battle at the Racine avenue station of the Metropolitan Elevated railway.

The wounded man's brother, Fred Martin, and the latter's wife were arrested later. They are said to have made a full confession to Lieut. Charles Larkin of Lake street station. They had no part in the robbery, but gave the names of the bandits, it is said, and where the money could be found. Lieut. Larkin said he expected to recover the money and have all the robbers under arrest by morning.

Shot Self, He Says.

"Willie" Martin drove to Jefferson Park hospital late in the afternoon. He was shot in the abdomen and the hip. He said he had shot himself accidentally. It is believed he will die. Dr. A. O. Hollis, 1810 West Madison street, who attended him, telephoned the police. Chief of Detectives James L. Mooney and First Deputy Westbrook hurried to the hospital and placed Martin under guard.

The three men shot in addition to Martin were:

John Byers, 30 years old, 4727 Gladys avenue; house detective for A. Stein & Co.; shot in the right ear and the small of the back; perhaps fatally injured.

John J. Mooney, 47 years old, 6550 Greenview avenue; special policeman for the Merchants' Loan and Trust company, from which the money was withdrawn; shot in the left leg and beaten into unconsciousness with a blackjack.

Frank Jones, 51 years old, 734 West Congress street, a laborer, who attempted to stop the flight of the robbers; shot in the left leg.

Attacked on Platform.

The $7,000 was being taken from the Merchants' Loan and Trust bank to the plant of A. Stein & Co., garter manufacturers at 1149 West Congress street. [illegible] Wisner, 14 years old, 3117 North Hoyne avenue, an office boy for the firm, and Byers drew the money from the bank at 9 o'clock in the morning. It was placed in a satchel. A steel chain fastened to the handle of the grip was clasped about the boy's right wrist by two handcuffs. Mooney accompanied Byers and Wisner on the return journey. They alighted from an elevated train at Racine avenue. As they reached the head of the stairway leading to the street four men attacked them. Mooney was hit over the head with a blackjack and knocked down. He tried to rise and was shot in the leg. Byers drew his gun and opened fire. The robbers shot him twice. He fell to the floor unconscious.

Pursuer Is Shot.

The four bandits rushed into the street to where their automobile stood with a confederate at the wheel. Miss Catherine Falvey, the station agent, rushed to the street window. One of the robbers fired at her, breaking the glass above her head.

Jones, who was on his way to work, ran toward the robbers and was halted with a bullet in the leg. The robbers leaped into the machine and disappeared south in Racine avenue.

Byers' injury, it was said, may prove fatal. It was not thought that one of the robbers was wounded until Martin asked at the Jefferson Park hospital.

Principals' Club Elects C. E. DeButts President

Clarence E. DeButts, principal of the Bowen High school, was elected president of the Principals' club yesterday at its annual meeting in the Mallers building. The vice presidents are, first, Martha V. Bishop, principal of the Gage Park school; second, William J. Bartholf, principal of the Crane Technical High school; third, Dora Wells, principal of the Flower Technical High school for girls. Carrie E. Patterson, principal of the Bancroft school, was elected secretary, and Chester C. Dodge, principal of the Hibbard school, treasurer.

Policeman Who Killed Boy Sued for $10,000

Patrolman Charles J. Miller was made defendant in a suit for $10,000 damages, filed yesterday in the Superior court by Otto Jedlicka, administrator of the estate of Frank Knaperek, 15 years old, who died June 8, 1916, as the result of being shot by the policeman.

Young Knaperek was wounded when Policeman Miller discovered him and four companions playing dice in a vacant building at 2313 Blue Island avenue. He died a month later.

Disobedient Fireman Dismissed.

Fireman Julius J. Strelow of hook and ladder No. 5 was dismissed from the service yesterday for disobedience and as a "trouble maker."

BENEFIT

Mrs. Goodnow Assists in Tomorrow's Vaudeville for Actors.

Mrs. Charles N. Goodnow

Tomorrow afternoon, beginning at 2:15, there will be given at the Auditorium theater a benefit vaudeville performance for the American Theatrical hospital, 850 Irving Park boulevard. This is the only institution of the kind in the world and was opened last week. Sick and indigent players of every walk in the amusement work are cared for free of charge in this institution. Judge Charles N. Goodnow is president of the American Theatrical Hospital association, under the auspices of which the benefit is given. Mrs. Goodnow is taking an active part in organizing the benefit.

AUTOS, TRAINS KILL THREE BOYS, INJURE A FOURTH

George Flynn, 12 years old, 4416 Prairie avenue, was fatally injured, and Mark Henehan, 11 years old, of the same address was seriously hurt yesterday when they were run down by an automobile in Washington park.

GEORGE B. FLYNN
MARK J. HENEHAN

The two boys, with some others, were playing when Frank E. Grace, 6140 Langley avenue, a roofing contractor, drove along. Before Grace had an opportunity to stop his car, he told the police, the two boys ran in front and were struck down. The accident took place just south of the refectory.

Both boys were taken in an ambulance to the Washington Park hospital, but young Flynn died on the way. The Henehan boy's injuries are said to have been serious enough to demand an immediate operation.

Frank Severson, 12 years old, 1042 South Clinton avenue, Oak Park, was killed when he tried to board a train near Harlem avenue, Forest Park. He fell under the moving train and both legs were cut off above the knees.

George Chupio, 8 years old, Sixty-fourth street and Seventy-fifth avenue, Argo, was killed by a Chicago and Elgin electric train, near Sixtieth place and Archer avenue, Argo.

The boy had "hitched" to a sprinkling wagon and leaped to the street. He fell in front of the electric train and was instantly killed.

Two $5 Donations Added to Donner's Widow Fund

Two more contributions, those of Herbert C. Lust and Dr. William Allen Pusey, each for $5, were received yesterday by THE TRIBUNE to be applied to the fund for the widow of Lincoln Park Policeman John Donner. This brings the total received to date by THE TRIBUNE to $372.

'BURY ME HOME,' IS PLEA OF GIRL CITY BETRAYED

Country Lass Seeks Solution to Old, Old Problem in Poison.

"Bury me in the Methodist cemetery back home," wrote Laura Johnson, 18 years old, and then she swallowed poison.

Last February loving parents let their girl, innocent and raised in a southern village, come to Chicago that she might develop her mind and have the greater advantages of a big city.

Gleefully and full of hope and life she came to live at the home of her aunt, Mrs. Dorothy Cook, 4153 Berkeley avenue. Her tragedy is the old, old one.

Identified In Hospital.

Last Monday she quarreled with her aunt because she refused to let her go to a dance and left the house pouting. She spent the day with a girl friend who lives at Forty-third street and Oakenwald avenue. She left the house at 5 o'clock in the afternoon and disappeared.

She was identified yesterday by her aunt as she lay, very close to death, in a bed in St. Luke's hospital. They are trying to save her from the Methodist cemetery back home in Greensborough, N. C., but they only have bare hopes.

Police Hunt for Man.

"I met the man in a theater," she told Mrs. Cook between sobs. "He had eyes that were fierce and his manner was imposing. I don't know why I went with him. I thought you were angry with me, aunty, and you were so good, and you'd warned me of these things."

The police, who had been looking for the girl since Monday, are now looking for the man.

The girl was taken to the hospital from the State hotel, 551 South State street. The man had gone.

Police Investigate Death of Two in Explosion

Investigation by the police was begun yesterday in an effort to fix responsibility for the explosoin in which two workmen lost their lives at the plant of the Standard Spiral Pipe company, Forty-eighth street and South Maplewood avenue, early yesterday. Fire which followed the explosion of a tank of acetylene gas destroyed the western half of the plant. The loss is estimated at $200,000.

The bodies of Michael Rodemes, 6913 South Carpenter street, and Anthony Kumnacky, 4922 South Robey street, were found in the ruins.

"I have not been able to ascertain exactly what caused the explosion," said A. J. Berger, vice president of the company, "but I am convinced the explosion was an accident. We have no war contracts."

Steal 1,400 Pounds of Cheese, Odor and All

Burglars with a penchant for cheese robbed the plant of the Italian Product Distributing company, 322 West Illinois street, early yesterday. They pried open the rear door and carted away in an automobile truck 1,400 pounds of cheese, fourteen cans of mushrooms, and many bottles of olive oil. They did not tamper with the safe or the cash drawer, in which there was a large sum of money.

DEATH NOTICES.

IN MEMORIAM.

BOYNE—Richard William. In sad but loving memory of our dear husband and father, who passed away one year ago today, May 20, 1916.

It is one sad year ago today,
Since our husband and father passed away;
We saw his sufferings and heard his sighs;
With aching hearts and weeping eyes.
We saw him sinking hour by hour,
Yet could not stay death's awful power;
But now he calmly sleeps at last,
All pain, all aches, all suffering past.
The moon and stars are shining on his solemn grave,
Beneath lies the one we love, but whom we could not save.
Called home to rest.

Old methods were wasteful—so they had to make way for new

Men can no longer afford to sow wheat by hand—nor burn good gasoline in wasteful motors.

Those inventions have served the world best which have enabled it to do more work with less expenditure of time, energy, money.

Because the Twin-six motor gets more miles out of every gallon of gasoline—performs an important service at less cost—it has taken its place in the ranks of those notable inventions which really set new standards in human advancement.

More power—smoother power—and the saving of gasoline!

The time had come for a more economical motor—and the Twin-six met the need.

And a three-fold production, to satisfy the greater demand, was the immediate result.

There are twenty and more body styles to select from—all with that matchless splendor of finish which helps to give the Packard its marked distinction.

Price and Prejudice

You folks of moderate means—you housewives who must manage a limited household allowance—keep cool in these days of rising prices.

If you must cut your table expenditures, do so, but do it wisely. Re-adjusting the food you feed your breadwinners and your growing children is serious business. It opens the door wide to penny-wisdom and pound-foolishness. And too easily can you satisfy hunger and still slowly starve or weaken the system. It is now a patriotic duty to save. We must spend less. But that does not mean that we must pay less. Now, if ever, must you insist on knowing what your every dollar buys.

A food which costs 50 cents a pound may be cheaper than one costing 25 cents a pound. It all depends on what you get.

Price alone means absolutely nothing until it is weighed against the value it purchases. Or, plainly put:

IT'S NOT WHAT YOU PAY, BUT WHAT YOU GET FOR WHAT YOU PAY

That Tells the Whole Story of Dearness or Cheapness

Unfortunately, American folks are born bargain-hunters. They judge by price, and price alone. Price and prejudice go hand in hand. But the article that costs less is rarely the cheapest; more often it is the dearest.

The poor are getting poorer because they buy on price alone.

A paper-shoe costs less than an all-leather shoe. And yet to keep shod the paper-way as against the all-leather way is rank extravagance.

The man who buys a $10.00 suit of clothes pays more to keep clothed in the long run than he who buys value, not price, in the first place.

* * * *

A hue and cry has been raised all over the land. One should think that this great, rich, proud country of ours had suddenly become a nation of paupers.

This is the hey-day for the man with the alleged "substitute." He points with pride to his price. He offers his price as the nostrum for the "high cost of living." And naturally he is very silent about the fact that every cut in price means a corresponding sacrifice of quality.

Take Butter!

BUTTER is Nature's best and finest fat. BUTTER is KING in food and energy-value, in healthfulness and digestibility. It has absolutely no peer. And there is no substitute for it because there is no substitute for Butterfat. And being among fats first, foremost and demanded by the whole world, it invites "imitation" and "substitution" by the price-route.

BUTTER costs more to produce than any other fat and for that reason, and that reason alone, costs you more. And every extra nickel you pay for BUTTER gives you a dime's worth of extra value in indispensable nourishment, in health, strength, growth, vitality and appetizing flavor.

BUTTER greatly improves and increases the food-value of any food with which it is eaten or cooked. Nothing can take its place, because nothing offered in its place contains the essential elements of BUTTER which help to maintain health and growth.

If you must re-adjust your bill-of-fare, eat less, but use more BUTTER. Cheaper cuts of meat prepared in plenty of BUTTER are better—more nourishing—more appetizing—more healthful—more strength-giving—and more money-saving than expensive cuts prepared without BUTTER.

The same applies in the preparation of fish, fowl, eggs, vegetables, pies and desserts.

YOUR KITCHEN IS THE POWER PLANT FOR YOUR FAMILY.

Watch it jealously. Allow nothing to enter it which makes you exchange the well-being of your husband, your brother, your children, for copper pennies.

Inform yourself thoroughly concerning BUTTER. Once you know the truth and its importance in the diet you will have a prick of conscience when you fool with fats that are fats and fry, but lack the indispensable growing-bodies which are Nature's secret and for which no inventor, no manufacturer has yet been able to provide a substitute.

Let economy rule. But let it be true economy. Guard your kitchen against penny-wisdom and pound-foolishness. Guard it against "substitutes" of every description. And whenever manufacturer, dealer, or advertiser lures you with price and forgets to tell you frankly what sacrifice the apparently low price means, just say this, and say it firmly:

THERE IS NOTHING LIKE BUTTER
BUTTER IS CHEAP
AND
THERE IS NO SUBSTITUTE FOR BUTTER

NATIONAL DAIRY COUNCIL, 130 North Fifth Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

This council is composed of 280,000 dairymen, dairy cattle breeders and representatives of all allied dairy interests. Its purposes are to build a greater and better American dairy agriculture—resulting in improved soil-fertility and better farm life—to encourage every American consumer to have a keener appreciation (like European nations) of the high food value of dairy products. The Council believes its mission is patriotic.

A wider use of dairy products on the tables and in the kitchens of our American homes will mean a healthier and cheaper fed nation. Our slogans are: "Drink and use more milk." "Eat and cook with more butter." "Ice cream is not alone an excellent dessert, but a real food." "Cheese is the staff of life of many nations; why not in U. S. A.?" "Dairy products—palatable, nourishing, economical—are Nature's best food."

SE OF DRIVER ESCRIBED BY GEORGE O'NEIL

Factors Affecting Play Discussed and Advice Given.

BY GEORGE A. O'NEIL.
[Chain-o'-Lakes Country Club.]
[Copyright: 1917: By George A. O'Neil.]

The Driver II.—Tee

Take a small pinch of sand and make low tee. This is desirable for two reasons: [1] It makes the conditions the driver resemble those for the to the great benefit of your play the latter club; [2] It is often absolutely necessary to play from a low tee the best results against a wind you should prepare yourself for contingency.

't be too finicky about the location your tee. Select a spot that will give normal conditions for the ball and your stance, but don't search the anxiously for a spot a little higher the rest of the surface for your or for a billiard smooth level for feet.

When the caddy teed up your ten or balls for practice shots he teed of them high and some low, some hollows and some on little hummocks, and you drove them all off equally, standing wherever the location ball made you stand. If you are and self-conscious about this or other matter a thought of it may in the bottom of your mind while and spoil your stroke.

The Stance

the club behind the ball and stand easy distance from it. If you reach for the ball in your swing not reach exactly right; if too close to it your body interfere with the freedom of your

There are three types of stance—the the square, and the closed. It to be arbitrary as to the choice them. Each of them is used excellent players.

It is well for the beginner to adopt square stance and later, if desirable, modify it slightly towards one of others, if he wishes to do so.

Here's the Square Stance.

For the square stance draw an imaginary line parallel to the line of direction of the ball and stand upon it, with ball about opposite the left heel and feet far enough apart to give you firm, easy balance and yet near enough together to prevent stiffness and restraint. The feet should make an easy angle with each other; some call it an angle of 90 degrees, but it is really less than that—perhaps 70 or 80.

The open stance is like the square, except that in the open the left foot is withdrawn slightly and the right advanced slightly.

The closed stance is the reverse of the open—that is, the left foot is advanced and the right withdrawn.

If the open stance is overdone it tends to check the back swing; if the closed is overdone it tends to slow up the stroke before the club head reaches the ball.

The Waggle

Being in proper stance, with the club correctly gripped, the player is ready to address the ball. An important feature of this is the waggle.

The waggle is performed for several reasons. It relaxes the tension of the wrists and forearms and secures proper adjustment of the hands. It reassures the player as to his stance; and, if properly performed, it is accompanied by a glance or two down the course in the line of flight.

It is properly a brief, easy, fluent motion. That painfully careful motion of drawing back the club in a quarter or half swing and scrupulously bringing it down to the ball, whether done once or repeated many times, is not a waggle. It is a kind of aiming the ball, and is either due to nervousness or is merely a bad mannerism which has no effect on the stroke.

How to Waggle.

To make the waggle correctly sole the club behind the ball, then lift it lightly, with the hands, wrists, and arms operating easily, move it quickly once or twice above the ball in an arc that extends a foot or so before and behind it in the line of direction.

Excessive waggling produces self-consciousness and hesitation. Expert players rarely waggle much; and it may be noticed that while they waggle their eyes are not glued to the ball. The eyes glance quickly at the ball, then down the course, then back at the ball.

These glances are primarily for the purpose of measuring distance and direction. At the same time the mind pictures the shot as it ought to be and—barring accidents—will be made, and the muscles that control the swing get the feel of the swing that is expected of them. The result of this is that the swing is swift and free and the mind goes forward with the club head as it

WAR WORK FUND TO GET RECEIPTS OF 'BIG 9' MEET

BY HARVEY WOODRUFF.

The Young Men's Christian association war work fund will be the beneficiary of the seventeenth annual track and field meet of the Big Nine colleges, which will be held as scheduled by the Intercollegiate Conference Athletic association at Stagg field June 2.

Instead of the usual gold, silver, and bronze medals, only bronze medals will be awarded in order to increase the net receipts for the war work fund. All other expenses incidental to holding the contests will be pared correspondingly.

In addition to turning over the receipts of the 1917 games, the managing committee, composed of an alumnus from each Big Nine college, voted to invest the surplus now in the treasury in Liberty loan bonds.

Why Fund Was Chosen.

In choosing the fund to which to donate the gate receipts, the committee was influenced by the efficient work accomplished by the Young Men's Christian association while American troops were on the Mexican border and in the training camps here and prison camps abroad.

The decision to hold the games was made after a mail poll of the Big Nine colleges and consideration of the war department statement in regard to competitive games, which do not interfere with war plans. Track teams have been riddled by enlistments in regular service and at officers' reserve corps, but track coaches will do the best they can with the men who have not already rallied to the colors.

Wants Soldiers to Compete.

Illinois has suggested that athletes now in training at Fort Sheridan be allowed to compete, as constructively they are still in college, being allowed scholastic credit for the remainder of the year. This may meet objection from colleges whose stars are enrolled in training camps at a greater distance from Chicago.

In addition to representation from the Big Nine teams, invitations to send men have been accepted by Notre Dame, Simpson, Parsons, Dubuque, Oberlin, University of Missouri, Grinnell, University of Kansas, Iowa State college, Superior Normal, and University of Nebraska. The individual entry list will approximate 300. W. H. (Sparrow) Robertson of New York wil act as starter and Charles A. Dean as referee.

Tennis Tourney This Week.

The annual Big Nine tennis tourney will take place on the University of Chicago courts May 24, 25, and 26. Teams are entered from Chicago, Illinois, Ohio State, Purdue, and Rose Polytechnic.

Weber Boys, Tennis Stars, Enlist for War Service

Jimmie and Jerry Weber, Chicago young men of tennis fame, have joined the long list of athletes enlisted for war service. The two brothers, former tennis stars at the Harvard prep school, are sons of Henry L. Weber. Jerry won a major letter in the net game at Yale last spring and Jerry won the eastern interscholastic championship, competing for Phillips Andover. He was a freshman at New Haven this year. Jerry has been accepted at Fort Sheridan and Jimmie has signed for Red Cross ambulance work in France.

CRAZY KENNEDY, DETECTIVE

Words AND Pictures

BY RING W. LARDNER

CHAPTER 1.

ONE morning in May Crazy Kennedy was operating (on) one of his pet bats for a bad attack of lurgs when there was a ring at the doorbell.

"Morrison," said Kennedy, without looking up from the operating table, "I deduce there is some one at the door. If I leave Geoffrey at this crucial moment I cannot vouch for the consequences."

"Kennedy," I replied, "I deduce that you want me to go to the door."

"Morrison," replied my friend, "your first name should be Deduction."

Without further argument I hurried to the door and admitted a man about 30 years old.

"Good morning, Mr. Johnson," said Crazy, without looking up from Geoffrey's outstretched figure.

Geoffrey's Outstretched Figure.

"How did you know my name was Johnson?" demanded our visitor.

Kennedy chuckled.

"I didn't," he said. "But knowing there are more Johnsons than anything else in this town, I certainly was playing safe."

"I am in trouble," began Mr. Johnson, but Kennedy stopped him with a gesture.

"One moment, please," he said, and with remarkable speed sewed up the bat's wound and laid him on a cot near the window. "Now, let's hear your story."

CHAPTER 2.

"I have been married for two years," said our visitor, calmly. "Recently my wife and I quarreled. Right after breakfast every morning she had asked me what I wanted for dinner. Now, as every one knows, a man just filled with prunes, oatmeal, ham and eggs, toast and coffee, cannot tell what he is going to want twelve hours later. I stood it as long as I could, refusing to answer, and then coming home at night to find liver and bacon and onions, when my mouth was agape for pigs' brains with coconut jelly. We finally came to blows over the matter and then compromised on this basis: I was to call her up every day just before lunch and tell her what I was hungry for, then go without lunch and be all the hungrier for dinner."

"An excellent idea!" I murmured.

"Shut up, Morrison!" murmured Kennedy.

"An excellent idea," said Johnson, "but it doesn't work. For I am absolutely unable to get Julia on the phone."

"Who is Julia?" put in Kennedy.

"That's my wife," explained the visitor. "I call up Central and say, 'Edgewater 7043'; then I hold the wire and finally Central's voice says, 'No such number.'"

"Perhaps Central is right, impossible as it may seem," said Kennedy. "Why don't you look in the book?"

"I wouldn't know where to look," Johnson replied. "There are so many Johnsons."

"Have you ever talked to your wife over the phone?" asked Crazy.

I have here a telephone book.

"Not since we were married, of course. Why should I?"

"I have here a telephone book," said Kennedy. "Now tell me your first name and where you live."

"My first name is Charles and I live at 414 East Wup street."

Kennedy hastily read the book from cover to cover.

"Here you are!" he exclaimed, triumphantly. "The correct number is Edgewater 8926," and before we could stop him he had secured the proper connection.

"Is it really Julia?" said our visitor, into the transmitter.

"Yes, baby doll," replied a female voice.

"Well," said Johnson, "make it broiled lizard and turnips."

And turning to Kennedy:

"Could you come to dinner?"

"No," my friend replied.

Navy League Day Saturday at Glen View Golf Club

That golfers of Chicago desire to do their share in the war is again evidenced by the Navy league day arranged for next Saturday at the Glen View club. Through the efforts of Mrs. Knowlton L. Ames, chairman of the Evanston branch of the Navy league, a special thirty-six hole four ball match has been arranged between Robert A. Gardner, Jack Hutchinson, Glen View professional; Chick Evans, national open and amateur champion, and James Donaldson, professional of the Chicago Golf club.

Capt. Moffett of the Great Lakes Naval school will send a band of sailors down from the station to furnish the music as well as take care of the gallery. A number of women will sell tags.

Oscar Mathisen to Stay for Match Skating Events

Oscar Mathisen of Christiania, Norway, famous ice skater, who arrived in America last November, has decided to remain for another year to convince the American public he is the fastest skater that ever put on the steel blades.

Mathisen was induced to visit America through Julian T. Fitzgerald, president of the board of control of the Western Skating association, who was to take care of his interests while in our country. Fitzgerald figured Mathisen would meet America's greatest skaters, but owing to a late start he was matched with only two or three prominent performers. Fitzgerald will attend to his future bookings.

BY MAROON.

Chicago defeated Purdue, 5 to 2, on Stagg field. The Maroons had lost five games this spring because of weak pitching, but yesterday Marum climbed into the van with a two hit game, winning as he pleased when his mates gave him a lead in the first round.

Marum poled a home run in the fifth, cinching his combat and driving Loy off the slab. Right Fielder Larkin of the Maroons was the hitting star with a safe bunt that squeezed a man home from third, a double that drove in another run, and a home run to the left field wall. Score:

UNUSUAL PLAY BEATS BRUINS AT PHILLY, 5 TO 4

Mann Gets Short Hit to Right with Bags Loaded, but No Runs Score.

BY JAMES CRUSINBERRY.

Philadelphia, Pa., May 19.—[Special.]—Those Cubs, who have been setting the east on fire for the last ten days, were licked today in a game of ball that ought to go down in the historical records. They lost to the Phillies, 5 to 4, in an eleven round fight almost every round of which was thrilling.

The climax came, however, in the tenth inning after they had allowed the Phils to tie the count. The Cubs had the bases filled with one out, and Leslie Mann delivered a legitimate single into right center, a hit that should have won the game, but Mann didn't even get a hit on it, because Larry Doyle, our captain, was forced at the plate.

Mann Swats Low Fly.

Mann's bingle was a low fly which Gavvy Cravath attempted to catch. He legged it across the green into right center, but couldn't quite reach the ball. It hit the ground and bounced up into his hands. As soon as it hit the ground Doyle started for the plate, not hurriedly, but in a jogging manner, never thinking that a play would be made on him. Cravath must have seen the situation or else some one yelled at him to peg home, for he threw that ball to Killifer on the fly and before Larry was aware of what was coming off it was too late. He made a scrambling finish with a slide, but the ball was in Killifer's glove ahead of him and he was forced out.

That was the run needed to win the game, and with the bases still filled Art Wilson sloughed a corking grounder down to Milton Stock behind third base. The latter scooped the ball and fired in the direction of first base and got Wilson by a part of a step because George Whitted, who is no first baseman, but was in there after Luderus had been taken out to let some one run for him, made a phenomenal one handed catch with one toe still stuck to the bag.

Vaughn Becomes Peeved.

After getting through that round without being licked, it was in the books that the Phillies should win and they did in the eleventh. Killifer, first up, got a single, perhaps because Jim Vaughn, our star hurler, was mad. Before Jim pitched to Killifer the umpire had made him fork over three balls which were claimed to be dirty. Each time a new ball was handed to Jim he did something to it that made it dirty before time to pitch, and Pat Moran was protesting all the time. Finally Jim pitched a nice, new white one, and Killifer knocked it nastily down to deep short. The ball hopped badly and hit Rollie Zeider in the jaw after it was doubtful if Rollie could have thrown the man out anyway.

Lavender tried to bunt and failed twice, then trusted to luck and stuck his bat out at the next one. The result was a bunt right to Vaughn, who pegged to second in time for a force play, but Zeider dropped the ball. Dode Paskert then tried to bunt and failed, and then, after fouling off at least eight balls, he lammed a clean single to left center, sending Killifer home and everybody else, for the game was over. Notes

Boston again today and tomorrow.

Estimates of the crowd which turned out to root the White Sox into the lead if possible varied from 18,000 to 20,000.

Gandil had only three putouts, which is not a record, but near it. J. Collins and Felsch caught six flies apiece, but only one fell to Jackson's lot.

Three umpires continued to handle the plays, McCormick calling balls and strikes, while Nallin made the base decisions and Connolly stood at third to arbitrate anything else.

The game was completed just ahead of a terrific shower which threatened to stop play in the seventh inning. The first installment of wetness missed the Sox park, but the second drenched it, catching the tail end of the throng.

The regimental flag presented to the Rowlands by the board of trade graced the home bench, where a permanent socket has been provided for it, to inspire the Sox to fight for the pennant as hard as they may fight for their country later.

A purse containing real coin and some papers was lost yesterday during the excitement. If the finder will return the property to the park offices Secretary Harry Grabiner promises a liberal reward.

Before the game the players of both teams assembled at the plate and were introduced to Charles H. Wacker, who welcomed them into the Chicago Red Cross association to which they had pledged themselves as members previously.

Notes

Philadelphia, Pa., May 19.—Tomorrow is an off day and the Cubs will have a chance to get their minds back into winning form.

All Cubs have been invited to inspect the battleship New York which is lying here, and a party has been formed to call on the ship tomorrow morning.

Young Vic Aldridge is slated to hurl his fancy curve ball at the Phillies Monday and Tom Seaton is carded to wind up the series the following day.

Mitchell took Cy Williams out of the game in that tenth and sent Ruether up to hit for him with Doyle on second, Merkle on first, and only one out. Ruether got a pass to first, filling the bases, but it was followed by the champion force play at the plate.

It was an ideal day, with the thermometer around 75, and there was a crowd of about 15,000 present. The bleachers was coatless and the entire horde was in straw hats. Most of the Cubs purchased summer bonnets this morning.

DARCY FIGHTING BATTLE FOR LIFE AGAINST ILLNESS

Memphis, Tenn., May 19.—[Special.]—Les Darcy, Australian champion pugilist, who has been prevented from boxing in three states after being termed a slacker, may tonight be fighting his last battle, with the "grim reaper" as his opponent. Darcy is confined at the Gartly-Ramsay hospital suffering from a complication of diseases announced by the attending physician as streptococcus infection, causing endocarditis and inflammation of one of the heart valves and pneumonia.

Darcy tonight is going through the crisis. His wonderful vitality and gameness according to his physician may pull him through. "If he lives through the night he may recover," is the only encouragement given by his physician.

Darcy's trouble began in Goshen, N. Y., when he was training for his scheduled fight with Jack Dillon. He was treated for tonsilitis and it was thought he had recovered. He was troubled while in New Orleans and shortly after coming here about a month ago was taken to a hospital. His tonsils recently were removed. The infection entered the system through the tonsils and affected all of his joints, which a few days ago again became normal, the infection progressing to his heart.

It was necessary to bleed Darcy this morning, and after the operation he appeared slightly improved. Fred Gilmore of Chicago, his manager, and Mick Hawkins of Australia, his trainer, are at his bedside.

LONG WALLOPS ROUT RED SOX BY 8-2 MARGIN

Boston Loses Lead to the Yanks—Buck Weaver Poles a Homer.

BY I. E. SANBORN.

Comiskey's warriors drove Boston's Red Sox out of first place yesterday when they rang up their eighth consecutive victory by duplicating Friday's score against the ex-leaders. It was 8 to 2 again.

Dutch Leonard was hurled against the White Sox bats by Manager Barry in an effort to stop their advance and hold the proud position Boston has occupied so long. But Leonard's defense was battered to pieces with the same abandon as that of Ruth the day before. With the aid of a wild throw in the first inning the Rowlands gained a lead of three runs and that would have been enough.

Danforth Rescues Williams.

Claude Williams, who opposed Boston's world's series here on the slab, was invincible for five rounds, during which he baffled every attempt to reach the plate, but in the sixth the enemy began to call the turn on his stuff and whaled it viciously for a few minutes. Brilliant support, in which Felsch and Weaver starred, pulled Williams through that round with only two runs scored off him, then he gave way to Danforth, who finished sturdily, blanking the Red Sox the rest of the way.

The White Sox mauled Leonard right up to the last round and accumulated a total of eleven safeties for nineteen bases. Buck Weaver delivered a terrific punch which sailed the ball half way up the left field bleachers with nobody on bases in the fifth. Eddie Collins led the stick work with three blows, including a triple, which virtually won the game in the first round. Jackson completed the circuit in the eighth inning on a drive to the center field barrier, but he stopped at third until Walsh's throw got away from the relay corps, consequently could be given only a three bagger.

Yankees Ahead of Sox.

Incidentally, the White Sox virtually lead the American league, but are kept in second place by the inequalities of the percentage system on which teams are ranked. The Rowlands have won ten more games than they have lost, while New York has won only eight more games than it has lost, but owing to the large number of postponements the Yankees have experienced they have the advantage that pertains to teams that play the fewest games.

A world's record was hung up by the White Sox in that they made only one assist in nine innings. The lowest limit for assists previously was two in a nine inning game. Weaver threw out Leonard in the second inning on a scratch blow that rolled off Dutch's bat inside the foul line. Every other man who hit the ball flew out, and seven struck out.

John Collins led the winning attack and was punctured by a wild pitch. Weaver scratched a roller toward third. Gardner picked it up and fired wildly past Gainer, letting Weaver reach third and Collins score. Eddie Collins banged a three bagger over Lewis' head, registering Weaver. Jackson struck out and Felsch grounded, then Gandil stung a single, which let E. Collins count.

Homer Happens in Fifth.

Leonard stopped them there with the help of some swell outfielding until the fifth, when Weaver caught one on the end of his bat and sailed it out of the lot for a home run.

The Red Sox scored their two runs in the sixth when Gainer led with a triple and Lewis followed with a double. Walsh sent a long drive to right center, but Felsch went back and pinched it. Gardner chased J. Collins far back after his wallop and the two flies let Lewis score. Scott peeled off a screamer to left, but Weaver jumped, speared the ball with one hand, juggled it, then caught it a second time, and the bombardment was over. Danforth was touched for three hits in the last three rounds, all of them after two were out.

The White Sox made it safe with three singles good for two runs in the seventh, then cinched it with a single, triple, and an error, which netted two more in the eighth.

GLEN VIEW CLUB STARTS SEASON WITH BIG FIELD

Opening Draws 125 Golf Devotees—Tie for Lead in Trophy Play.

BY KEENE GARDINER.

Glen View members turned out in force for the opening golf day of the season yesterday. A field of 125 took part in the qualifying round of the Frazier cup tournament. The first day's play resulted in a tie, R. A. Keyes and J. S. Bartle getting net figures of 78. Peter Berkey was next with 79. The first match round for the trophy will be played next week.

J. F. Bartle won the class A handicap with 87—9—78. R. A. Keyes was winner in class B with 92—14—78, and E. C. Carter was low in class C with 107—24—83. Scores of Frazier cup qualifiers:

R. A. Keyes, 92—14—78; J. S. Bartle, 87—9—78; P. Berkey, 85—6—79; J. J. Charles, 91—11—80; E. Clifford, 98—16—82; J. H. Barnard, 95—13—82; M. F. Ewen, 93—10—83; P. B. Bass, 96—13—83; E. C. Carter, 107—24—83; S. J. Lewellyn, 110—27—83; R. W. Keyes, 88—4—84; B. S. Adams, 100—16—84; G. M. Ludlow, 99—15—84; R. F. Pettibone, 104—20—84; R. E. Wiley, 94—10—84; F. P. Horan, 94—10—84.

Midlothian.

Midlothian Country club golfers inaugurated their season with a turnout of 150. Eighty-four were eligible for the first day's play in the annual Midlothian Derby, honors going to E. H. Bankard, who registered low gross of 82. Yesterday's event determined the handicaps for the thirty-six hole contest today. The event is open to members and guests who have reached the age of 30 years.

Low net honors rested between Dr. A. F. Henning of South Shore, with 85—6—79, and J. M. Tuttle of Exmoor, 91—12—79. Next in line was Fred Gardner of Flossmoor, 95—15—80. Special prizes were awarded to the member and guest who negotiated the second, twelfth, fourteenth, and fifteenth holes in the least strokes. Bankard, with a total of 14, took the members' prize. D. A. Noyes of Glen View, with a like score, was guest prize winner. Leading scores:

	Gross.	Net.		Gross.	Net.
J. M. Tuttle, Exmoor	91	79	F. L. Watson, Midlothian	94	84
Dr. Henning S. Shore	85	79	C. K. Foster, Exmoor	96	84

Maywood.

With a card of 88—10—78, G. Hancock won first prize in the eighteen hole handicap at Maywood. A. W. Drescher, 92—13—79, was second. H. L. Ward equaled low gross figures with 88 and rested third with an 80 because of a handicap of 8.

South Shore.

The South Shore Country club opened its official season with a Red Cross tournament. Daniel G. Trude donated a Red Cross life membership as chief prize, and each participant in the qualifying round was assessed 50 cents for the club Red Cross fund. The event was the qualifying round of an eighteen hole medal handicap against bogey. J. W. Donohue, with an allowance of 14, led the field with 6 up. Other leading scores: C. A. Dunbar [15], 4 up; P. Peterson [24], 4 up; E. J. Lawler [10], 3 up; C. F. Wiley [15], 3 up; F. R. Pierce [11], 3 up.

Glen Oak.

Golfers at Glen Oak competed for five blind bogey marks, twenty equaling the different figures. The players follow: Bogey of 75, Charles H. Burras, H. H. Forester; bogey of 80, L. P. Rittenhouse, Martin Walsh, Douglas McReynolds, Ed. Andrews, Col. Hullenberg; bogey at 81, M. E. Richardson, David James, Harry McCormick, Frank H. Griffin, W. V. Swards, E. C. McKinney; bogey of 82, John Yates, T. J. Hyman, W. McGuire; bogey of 89, H. C. Lust, Frank Getchell, W. Barry, B. Budinger.

Park Ridge.

At Park Ridge, J. C. Duranceau, Dr. Monteith, Charles Hamburger, and E. L. Wickwire won prizes in the sweepstakes. G. M. Lewis won low net with 78. In class B medal play T. P. Kelly beat A. Hamilton, 1 up, and George Miller beat W. C. Campbell, 1 up. Play will continue today.

Englewood.

Semi-finals were played in the class tournament at Edgewood and the events will be decided next week. One match in class C was postponed, but will be played off during the week. Results:

Class A—W. Hastings beat J. R. Sanders, 2 and 1; K. W. Hacker beat H. E. Hollings, 5 and 4. Class B—O. S. Scudder won by default from E. C. Davies; C. E. Beard won by default from W. B. Davies. Class C—E. H. Sherlock beat E. Hubbard, 2 and 1; D. W. Diedrich-C. E. Parks match postponed.

Edgewater.

A liberal allowance of twenty-five strokes enabled H. D. Fargo to win the eighteen hole ball sweepstakes at Edgewater with a net of 70. H. T. Dillon, who notched low gross, 83, was runner-up. George W. Beaven, who had issued a "gross" defi, was reported to have left for New York. Leading scores: H. D. Fargo, 95—25—70; H. T. Dillon, 83—12—71; D. A. Mattson, 86—14—72; L. E. Gosselin, 94—20—74; R. A. Maginnis, 88—12—76.

Elmhurst.

Elmhurst golfers played the first eighteen of the fifty-four holes, Spring medal handicap. Leading scores: J. L. Pentecost, 113—30—83; R. Pentecost, 107—24—83; C. J. Albert, 113—29—84; G. Challacombe, 102—18—84; A. Reeder, 106—22—84.

Calumet.

J. M. Stannard guessed correctly in the blind bogey event at Calumet and won the sweepstakes by chalking up 92—16—76. Other leading scores: L. Miser, 91—10—81; W. H. Leonard, 101—20—81; J. B. Morris, 97—16—81.

Chicago.

Dr. W. A. Montgomery, with 98—20—78, registered low gross and net in the Saturday cup competition at the Chicago Golf club. J. M. Roach, 103—20—83, was second in the net column.

La Grange.

La Grange members played a team match between the president's and vice president's cohorts. The latter brigade, forty strong and captained by J. R. Griffiths, defeated a like number led by S. S. Gorham, 32 points to 26 [Nassau system].

Much interest attaches to the interclub professional foursome scheduled for Monday between J. J. Burke and Robert McNulty vs. Jack Hutchinson and Joe Rossman, at Westmoreland.

Jackson Park.

B. G. Grosse won the blind bogey competition at Jackson park with his round of 82. J. B. Rice was second in the event with 83. Other leading scores: A. B. Cole, William Skates, 77; W. M. Brown, 79.

Ridgemoor.

In the match against par at Ridgemoor F. S. Wheeler won, 1 down to par. Wheeler's card was 47—48—95. His handicap was 24 and his net 71. The golfers completed their rounds just as the rain storm broke, some finishing in the downpour.

West Pullman.

West Pullman Country club celebrated its opening day with a blind bogey event. R. Patterson won with 85. Low gross prize was won by L. Myers with 91. C. A. Pinyard captured the special event of two blind holes.

Printers Cancel Baseball Tourney Because of War

Boston, Mass., May 19.—The tenth annual tournament of the Union Printers' National Baseball league, scheduled for Aug. 18 to 26 at St. Paul, Minn., has been canceled. Joseph J. Dallas, local secretary, said the cancellation was actuated by a desire to encourage members to devote their time and energy to war duties. EXMOOR CADDIES AS FARMERS

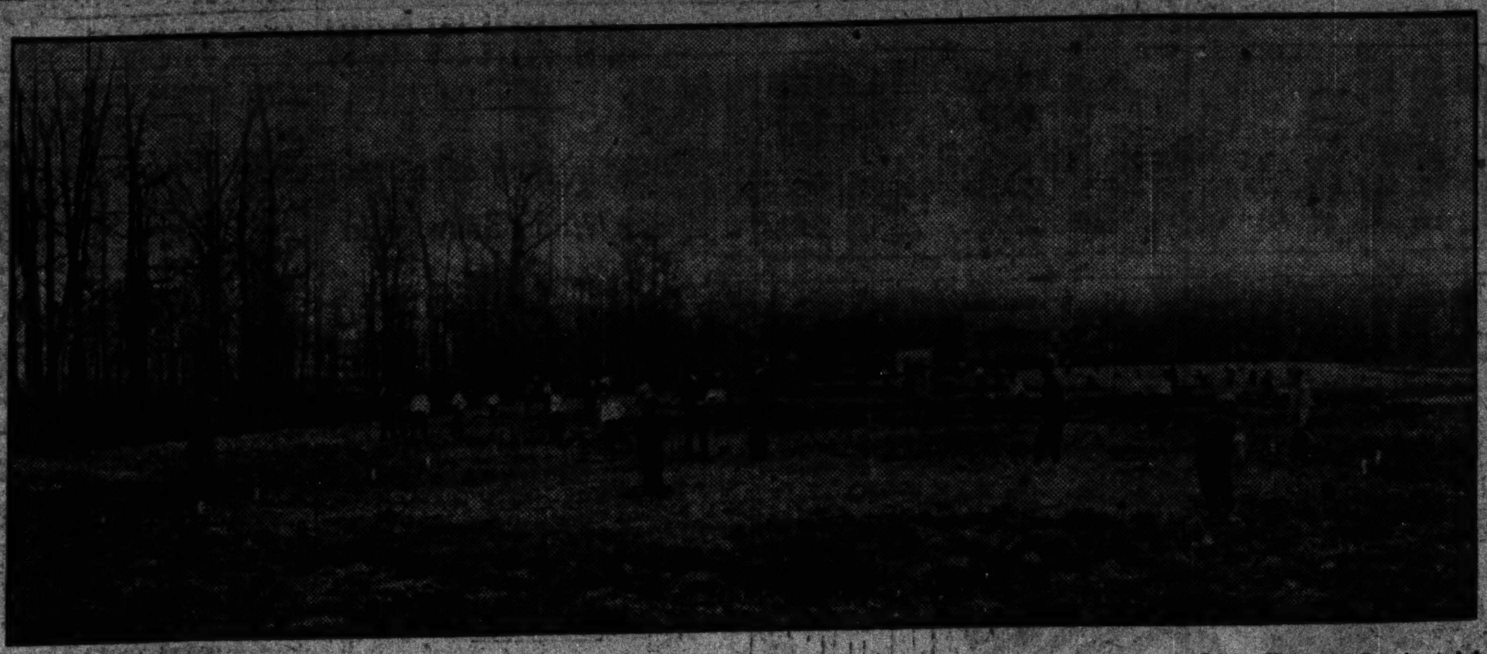
Club Toters Competing for Prizes for Best Vegetables Raised on Club Property with Seed Furnished by Club President.



At the Exmoor Country club, seventy-five caddies are putting in their time as members of the Patriotic Food Growers' Association of Highland Park.

The club has turned over enough land to give each boy a garden ranging from 20 by 30 feet up to 20 by 75 feet, has had this land plowed and prepared, and has engaged an overseer to take charge of the work. Some of the members living in Highland Park have loaned their gardeners as instructors, so the young farmers are starting out under favorable auspices. F. Edson White, president of the club, is furnishing the seed as his personal contribution.

The early garden truck is already making a good showing, but the bulk of the produce planted will be substantial items like potatoes, beans, carrots, and other vegetables that keep through the winter, which the boys can sell or dispose of as they like.

Prizes are offered according to the age of the boy and size of the garden. A harvest fête is on the Exmoor autumn program.

THE JOLLY LINKS OF SANDYSINKS

BY DELL MILTIMORE.

You talk about surprises! Some folks think thet they don't pay,
But when you're hevin' comp'ny any joke thet you kin play
To liven up the visit an' to please your comin' guest,
Is quite the proper thing t' do, so set your mind at rest
Until I tell about the one I sprung on my son Joe,
Who motored out an' brought some friends t' spend the day, you know.

The sun shone out all bright an' clear when they drove in the gate
An' there we were so happylike that we could hardly wait.
They said thet all who'd brought their clubs were anxious-like to play
So we got in—I set with Joe jest so's to show the way.
(You see I'd told them thet a man lives here at Sandysinks Thet wanted they should all come out an' try his private links.)

I took 'em down th' road a-ways, then turnin' to the right
Went round about on cross-roads an' talked with all my might
About this man an' how he liked the young folks, gay an' free
(They never once had happened to ask me who he be),
An' then I told about his wife—how lonely 'twas for her
That's why they gathered in their friends who lived both near an' fur.

An' then we drove up to a gate all fancy-like o'wire
With "Welcome" lettered on in gilt. Joe's eyes lit up like fire,
An' hev you sold the meadow with no word of it to me!"
"I hadn't exactly said it, Joe," says I. Joe says, "I see!
You jest hev leased it for a links—that possibly would do—
But I would know our meadow if it was turned back side to!"

They sorted out their fav'rite clubs an' hed their partners chose,
An' one an' all admired th' view an' then the question rose
"I wonder what's a-keepin' them? Why don't your friends appear?
Wal, then I thought the time hed come t' clear the atmosphere.
I looked at Joe an' grinned a grin, an' then he says to me—
"Air you the man thet owns the links?" an' then I says—"I be!"

Joe grabbed me an' he hugged me like he did 'fore he was grown,
For he was jest so tickled he forgot we wa'n't alone.
The boy an' girl who'd taught me Golf was standin' by his side—
The girl jest hugged Joe's mother an' they laughed until they cried!
Bime-by we started in t' play an' I jest felt so proud
I walked like our old rooster when he struts an' crows so loud.

An' over hills an' crost th' creek an' nigh th' riverbank
A sandy stretch a bunker made where grass grows rank an' dank.
Then up th' hill—a cedar hedge a splendid hazard made.
The "Jolly Links o' Sandysinks" 'twas christened as they played.
Th' best o' the p'formance was, as nigh as I c'd see—
Our Joe said he'd come ev'ry week to play a game with me!

U. High Juniors Defeat La Grange in Track Meet

University High juniors defeated La Grange High school athletes, 51 to 35, on the winners' field. McKay of the visitors took individual honors by scoring twenty-six points by firsts in the 220 yard dash, 100 yard hurdles, and shotput, and seconds in the 50 and 100 yard dashes and broad jump. Donnelly of the Maroon preps scored in seven events, landing twenty-one points. He won the 50 and 100 yard dashes and broad jump, was second in the hurdles, and third in the 220 yard dash, shotput, and high jump.

Tomorrow a Red Cross benefit will be held, Gov. Fred D. Gardner of Missouri and Chick Evans being the main attractions.

NEW TRIER GOLFERS WIN SUBURBAN TITLE

New Trier finished the Suburban High School league golf tournament with low score for the three weeks yesterday, but its right to the championship crown is in doubt by uncertainty over Hessler's eligibility. New Trier's total of 454 was low yesterday, and it has an aggregate low total of 1,427 for the three weeks, the scores including marks made by Hessler. If that player's status is not clouded at a meeting of the league at the City club on Monday, the trophy will be turned over to the Kenilworth school.

If Hessler's scores are ruled out and those of another New Trier contestant substituted for him in the three weeks of play, New Trier will lose the trophy by one point. Thornton's count for the meet is 1,458 and New Trier, without Hessler, mounts to 1,459.

Following are the team totals for the three weeks:

Lake Forest Academy Boys Clip Four Records

Lake Forest academy, winner of the Lake Forest college interscholastic, defeated Elgin High school, 73 to 53, in a dual meet on the north shore field yesterday. Four school records were broken, all by Lake Forest athletes. Owsley won the twelve pound shot with a heave of 46 feet 7 inches, Rogers took the fifty yard dash in :05 2-5, Hanet ran the mile in 4:49, and Brinkerhoff covered the quarter mile in :52 3-5.

USE OF DRIVER EXPLAINED BY GEORGE O'NEIL

The Back Swing

Immediately after the waggle, and as a continuation of it, the back swing begins. If the club is held properly, the player will be conscious of the weight of the club head as the part of the club with which he is to drive the ball. If the club feels like a stick of uniform size and weight—a walking cane, for instance—the grip is too tight or the club is not rightly balanced.

The hands should not go back before the club head. The back swing—like all movements of the wooden clubs—should actually begin with the club head and should almost seem to originate in it, although of course the motive power lies in the hands and wrists.

Guides for Accuracy.

As the club head is carried back by the smooth teamwork of the hands, wrists, and arms there is a roll—not a turn nor a mere bend—of the wrists, and the club is brought to its proper position at the top of the swing. The left arm should be extended and nearly straight, but not stiff. The right elbow should keep—not be kept—near the body.

At the top of the swing the wrists are well under the shaft, and the shaft extends, not behind the shoulder, but across the neck almost horizontally. If the back swing is correctly done the toe of the club will point downward.

The Wrist Roll

There are few matters connected with the game about which there has been wider or more violent disagreement than about the action of the wrist during the drive.

Some writers have spoken of the wrist action as if it were the one feature of importance; others have practically asserted that there is no such thing. Some have described a bending of the wrist; others, a turning. It seems more appropriate to speak of it as a rolling.

If the back swing is carefully observed and analyzed, it cannot fail to be seen that as soon as the club head leaves the ground on its journey backward, a rolling action begins in both wrists. This is a necessary consequence of keeping the right elbow down and near the body and cannot be prevented except by violence.

Normal Position Best.

At the very top of the swing the wrists are slightly bent toward the player's body. A bending of the wrists backward—such as some writers have described and many players have tried to get, in order to secure the so-called snap of the wrists—does not occur in a properly executed swing and would be useless if it did, for there is comparatively little power in the wrists in that direction.

The effort to turn the wrists violently away from their normal positions is also erroneous and worse than vain. If carefully executed, it can hardly fail to spoil the shot.

(In the next article on The Driver, discussion will center on the Forward Lining, Follow Through, Body Help, and "Too Much Thinking.")

INQUISITIVE FANS

Chicago.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Base runners on second and third, with one out. Infield plays in. Batter hits ball to third baseman, who throws home to stop the runner from scoring. Runner sees he cannot make home, so starts back for third. In the meantime runner from second base is perched on third and the shortstop is holding down third base. When the third baseman and catcher run the runner who belonged on third back to within twenty feet of third base the catcher throws the ball to the shortstop and he tags the runner who came from second base and is standing on third. Then he plays for the runner who originally was on third base and who tries to make home again, but the pitcher is at the home base, gets the throw, and puts him out. Kindly advise me why the same is or is not a double play.

W. J. G.

It is not a double play because the major leagues have ruled that the runner originally on second has a tentative right to third until that base is actually reclaimed [retouched] by the runner originally occupying third.

Baseball Fan, Chicago: It is pronounced all kinds of ways, but Cicotte pronounces it as if Spelled Seekott.

S. M. Owens, Chicago: The difference between a "forced run" and a "forceout" is that in the former case the runner is not out, while in the latter case he is put out.

H. J. L., Chicago: Brooklyn had no pitcher by the name of Miller in 1916.

R. F. Wallace, Chicago: Baltimore was a member of the American league in 1901 and 1902.

Chicago.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Batter hits a foul fly near first base, which is fielded by first baseman, who muffs the same. Would he be credited with an error?

J. E. KELLY JR.

Yes.

Premier

The Aluminum Six with Magnetic Gear Shift

$1895

We Challenge You to Describe the Sensation of Driving Premier

THERE is a difference in the very "feel" of Premier. It is lighter and more "wingy" than other cars. It suggests that buoyant moment, in an aeroplane, when you are just in the act of leaving the ground.

By using Lynite-Aluminum in the motor, instead of the usual iron, we have taken 255 pounds of weight off the driver's wrists. As a consequence, Premier steers and handles as easily as the smallest car.

Bear in mind, too, that Premier turns in a 39-foot circle.

Add to this mechanical eagerness of Premier, and its extraordinary ease of handling the quality of instant get-away, and you begin to see why Premier is the fastest selling new car in America.

We make the statement that Premier is the most remarkable car ever shown in Chicago. Why don't you look into this statement?

PAIGE
The Most Beautiful Car in America

YOU may be one of the thousands of people who have planned to buy a Paige Linwood "Six 39" this spring. If so, let us suggest that you place your order immediately.

There is a tremendous demand for these beautiful five-passenger models. Orders are pouring into the factory from all sections of the country, and it is a foregone conclusion that our "Linwood" production will fall far short of the demand.

Then, also, remember that the cost of manufacturing materials is steadily advancing. Each day it becomes more difficult—and consequently more expensive—to secure the steel, aluminum, copper and brass that are found in a car like the "Linwood."

Right now, you can buy one of these cars for $1175. If you delay the matter too long, you may have to pay considerably more. Or, as we said in the beginning, it may be impossible to secure early delivery on a Linwood at any price.

NEW YORK HANDS PIRATES GAME IN LAST ROUNDS

Fletcher's Errors in the Eighth and Ninth Beat Giant Crew, 5 to 4.

New York, May 19.—Pittsburgh defeated the Giants in the second game of the series, 5 to 4. Both sides played loose baseball. New York scored three runs in the fourth inning when Catcher Fischer made two errors on a continuous play. Pittsburgh knocked Perritt off the slab in the fifth and tied the score in the seventh on McCarthy's single and Carey's triple. Errors by Fletcher were responsible for the runs scored by the visitors in the eighth and ninth. Score:

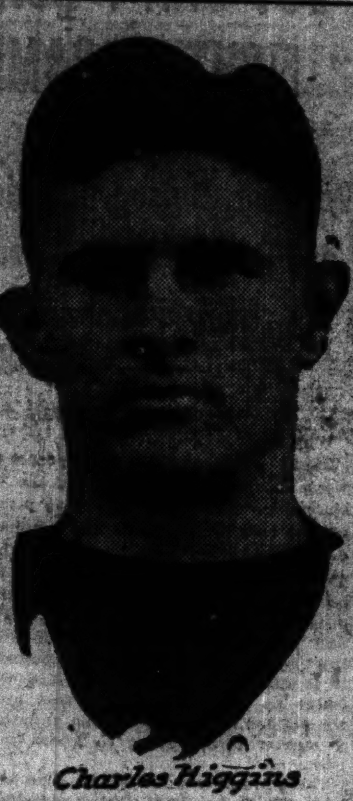
QUITS FOOTBALL

Maroon Star, Too Young for Draft, Sees Duty in Service.



Charles Higgins

"I WOULD be a coward to stay in school for football next fall." That is what Charlie Higgins, Maroon star football and track man, said yesterday when he enlisted in base hospital unit No. 13, and Coach Stagg will be minus a lineman who looked like All-American material, if there is any gridiron sport in the conference next fall. Higgins is 20 years old and still has a year before he would come under the conscription bill.

"I do not say that those under 21 years old are cowards if they do not enlist," Higgins added, "but personally I felt so strongly on the subject that I had to get into the service."

"Hig" was an All-Western football guard in his first year of competition. This spring he has thrown the shot 44 feet and the discus 135 feet. He is 6 feet 5 inches tall and weighs 219 pounds.

MAINE, 7; ELMHURST, 2.

Pitcher Rowski of Elmhurst High held Maine township to three hits, but passed ten men, and his generosity brought him a 7 to 2 defeat at Desplaines. Spiegler allowed seven hits, but passed nobody. Rain ended the game in the seventh after Elmhurst had scored once and had two out. Score:

EVANSTON HIGH BUMPS OAK PARK IN 9 TO 7 BATFEST

Victor Ties Losing Nine for Second Place on the Suburban Circuit.

BY OTTO ENGEL.

In a binglefest, stopped after seven rounds by rain, Evanston High school defeated Oak Park, 9 to 7, and now the two teams are tied for second place in the Suburban league. La Grange still leads the procession with one defeat in seven starts, while the other contenders have been beaten twice each. Six runs in the fifth round as the result of a concentrated attack and walks clinched the game for the north shore team. Oak Park rallied strongly in the seventh, pushing four counters across. The Thrift of the Franklin Car

Our Response to the National Call

AS a people, Americans have so long been charged with wastefulness and extravagance that we have come to admit it as our National sin.

Perhaps the meanest thing that has been said of us is that our only idea of economy is to do without.

That, being a people of extremes, we can save only in the most drastic and obvious way.

That our idea of reducing household expenses is to discharge the help, wear our old clothes and cut the table where it will be felt the most.

That we must either waste coal or shut down the furnace and freeze.

There is just enough truth in this indictment to hurt.

Wasteful Economy vs. Constructive Saving and Use

The call to National economy ought rather to be a call to National Thrift.

Here in the richest country in the world—with nation-wide employment and prosperity, with wages higher than they have ever been in the history of the world, with 935,000,000 acres of tillable land and unprecedented returns for the farmer—we can support another hundred-million people, whether in this country or Europe, on what America wastes, if we only apply brains to our problems, National and individual.

Motor Traffic a Vital Factor in National Life

It takes no brains to practice the economy of doing without.

A good example of this idea of economy is the man who buys a heavy, extravagant car and then limits its use.

Whatever the times or conditions, the Franklin owner knows that he stands firmly on a thrift basis.

That if all cars were as efficient as the Franklin, America would save Four Hundred Million Gallons of gasoline and $192,000,000 worth of tires every year—without cutting one mile off the stupendous motor-car mileage of the United States.

There is Needless Waste of Gasoline and Tires

Thrift always implies a sense of values.

What is the mileage value of a gallon of gasoline—or a set of tires?

Do you realize that all the twenty-odd years of motor-car designing has never produced anything like a standard of mileage for either gasoline or tires?

That gasoline, worth twenty miles and upward in the scientific-light-weight Franklin, drops as low as nine miles and even six miles in many another make of fine car?

That while the Franklin owner is getting his ten thousand miles from a set of tires, the typical fine car owner is getting only five thousand or less?

Franklin Owners Have the Facts on Comparative Costs

Where the heavy car wastes gasoline in the drag of its dead weight—the Franklin devotes its power to mileage.

Where the heavy car hammers its tires out before their time—Franklin light unsprung weight with flexible construction doubles the tire mileage of the Franklin car.

Study the Used Car prices! They tell the same facts in terms of depreciation, emphasizing the security of the Franklin owner in the investment value of his car.

Under all circumstances of road, climate, and the cost of gasoline and tires, the man with a Franklin owns and runs his car on the most favorable terms.

These factors make the Franklin peculiarly the car of free use, of staunch service, of small upkeep, of low depreciation.

Twenty thousand Franklin owners saw these things before there was any call to National Thrift.

TEAMS OF C. A. A. FURNISH 60 MEN FOR WAR DUTIES

Half the Boys in Athletics at Cherry Circle Club Enlist for Service.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

Half the athletic strength of the Chicago Athletic association is now engaged in some branch of war activity.

Sixty of the 120 young fellows composing the swimming, track, and other teams have squared their shoulders and left their home towns, colleges, or prep schools all over the middle west to enter the ranks. Some already have received officers' commissions and the rest are enrolled in different military and naval arms, ranging from those already in Red Cross work in France to others now at sea "somewhere on the Atlantic."

Those rejected as under weight or for poor eyesight or other causes, Coach Martin Delaney has kept on his honor roll. A list compiled shows sixty C. A. A. athletes definitely enrolled out of about 120 possibilities on the books. Here is the honor roll:

IN FRANCE.

Maurice and Hubert James, high jumpers, Northwestern graduates.

E. N. Rubinkam, U. of C., fancy diving champion Big 9.

John D. Barker, Terre Haute, 1917 Northwestern track captain.

Ray E. Williams, ex-Wisconsin 440 yard runner.

Edgar P. Williams, Northwestern football star.

IN THE NAVY.

L. J. Ibold, wrestler.

H. G. Irons [in wireless], track man.

U. S. MARINE CORPS.

Jack Pratt [at Port Royal], interscholastic track star.

J. R. Sweet [at Port Royal], prep school swimmer.

W. G. Farrell [at Army and Navy academy, Washington], preparing for second lieutenant's examination.

AVIATION SERVICE.

J. R. Graham (at Miami, Fla.), pole vaulter.

Andrew C. Ortmayer (at Ashbury), Yale track man.

J. L. McKeown (app. pending), ex-Illinois hurdler.

E. F. Marchal (app. pending), Gary Y. M. C. A. athlete.

U. S. HOSPITAL CORPS.

C. J. Davis (Red Cross post No. 11), track man.

Andy E. Ward (base hospital unit No. 13), A. A. U. sprint champion.

AT FORT SHERIDAN.

George O. West, swimmer.

Claude D. Collins, field events.

Cecil F. Cross, ex-Michigan weight thrower.

Donald Scoles, ex-Northwestern swimmer.

Pierre Blouke, junior member.

Jasper French, junior member.

W. A. Small Jr., Oak Park swimmer.

A. H. (Mike) Mason, Illinois track captain, 1916.

Frank S. Whiting, ex-Chicago high jumper.

Eugene Schobinger, ex-Illinois full back.

George B. Fox, ex-Michigan 440 runner.

Vincent Johnson, ex-Northwestern swimmer.

Neil M. Mathews, Penn football captain, 1916.

Fred B. Curtis, ex-Illinois 440 champion.

W. W. May, veteran sprinter.

ARTILLERY RESERVE.

P. F. Campbell and V. H. Campbell, brothers, Purdue middle distance run stars.

QUARTERMASTER'S DEPARTMENT.

Waldo B. Ames, Illinois track captain, 1917.

FIRST CAVALRY, I. N. G.

L. De Crow, track.

UNITED STATES ENGINEERS.

C. A. Bonnich [bureau of mines, Pittsburgh] ex-Wisconsin athlete.

IN COMMISSION—UNCLASSIFIED.

R. H. Princell, plunger.

A. H. Revell Jr., Yale track.

J. N. Rawleigh, swimmer.

INDUSTRIAL ARMY.

Boulin-Brucks Feel Safe with Their High Pin Mark

With their score of 2,984, made two weeks ago, surviving all their opponents' efforts, the Boulin-Brucks of this city are feeling fairly comfortable over their hold on the championship title in the Illinois Bowling association tourney, now on the closing lap. Three hundred teams have shot at the top figure without threatening the local bowlers. Only thirty-six more quintets get the chance to unseat them. Final shots of the tournament will be fired Tuesday night.

Dr. Hansen and Edward Hunolt, with 1,309, are already proclaimed doubles champions. They staged the first sensation of the last week when they forged ahead of the M. Loeckey-E. Schneider and E. Kouba-F. Pitra pairs, which had been tied for first with 1,208. Joe Newman of Peoria, with his 675, still reigns supreme in the singles, while Hank Marine, by consistent work in the three events, piled up 1,849 for the lead in the all-events.

The rolling yesterday brought out some good scores, the Bowlers' Journal of the Illinois league being high in the team event with 2,883, followed by the Cosmos with 2,836. These were some of the best marks of the week. In the doubles P. Behrendt and H. Drew were high men with 1,162, with A. Birron and C. Mathis running second with 1,120. W. Tornquist was high in the singles with 582.

Sears-Roebuck Net Team Defeats Phone Squad, 7-2

Sears-Roebuck had little trouble winning its Commercial league tennis matches on the home courts, beating the Telephone company team, 7 matches to 2. Roger Carver of the Sears-Roebuck team, former interscholastic champion, was charged with one of the two losses when he was compelled to default, having undergone an operation on his nose. Summaries:

Singles—Hill, Phone, won by default from Carver, S. R.; Segal, S. R., defeated Sandun, Phone, 6—2, 6—3; Elligran, S. R., defeated Dohn, Phone, 3—6, 6—0, 7—5; Marks, S. R., defeated Mehringer, Phone, 6—3, 6—2; Marceau, S. R., defeated McNeil, Phone, 6—1, 6—0; Nichols, S. R., defeated Campbell, Phone, 4—6, 6—3, 6—3.

Doubles—Hill and Dohn, Phone, defeated Segal and Blair, S. R., 6—2, 6—3; Elligran and Nichols defeated Sandun and Campbell, 7—5, 7—5; Marks and Marceau defeated Mehringer and McNeil, 6—2, 6—2.

More Honor for Oliphant.

West Point, N. Y., May 19.—Cadet Elmer Q. Oliphant, recently elected captain of the Army football eleven for this season, also has been selected to captain the Army's baseball nine for next spring.

STARS WEALTHY, BUT CAN'T QUIT FIGHTING GAME

Wolgast, Nelson, Ritchie, and Coulon Linger After Glory Fades.

BY RAY PEARSON.

Why don't they quit?

That's a question the smart people always ask when talking about the ex-champions and others who have picked off the coin, only to fall into pugilistic decline. The road to "Hasbeenville" must come sooner or later and in the boxing game the career of a topnotcher doesn't last a great many years. Baseball players often remain in the limelight for a long period, but in pugilism it is different. Boxers who are wise count up the receipts and toss away the padded mitts before some ambitious youngster comes along to knock their beans off.

There are only a few of the wise boys, however—so few, in fact, that they hardly can be compared with those who stick to get the trimming which is inevitable. It seems that money makes no difference; they seem to think that "once a fighter, always a fighter." Then comes the rude jolt and they never really do get over it.

Nelson, Wolgast, Coulon, Ritchie.

In the present day there are many examples of boxers who failed to heed the warning of decline. A few who might be mentioned are Battling Nelson, Ad Wolgast, Willie Ritchie, all ex-lightweights, and Johnny Coulon, former bantamweight.

The penalty for failure to take heed has hit Wolgast hardest, and today the little Bearcat of the ring is in a sanitarium at Milwaukee, adjudged incapable of handling his own affairs. When he was good Wolgast was one of the greatest little scrappers in the game. He was hardly a lightweight, for he weighed less than 130 pounds, but he fought in that division and scored triumph after triumph until he landed on top of the heap when he defeated Battling Nelson.

Then along came Willie Ritchie, the California automobile mechanic, brimful of pep and confidence, and the defeat of the Cadillac Bearcat followed. No longer was Wolgast champion of the world. But as champion, Wolgast had prospered. Those were the days of big purses in California, when twenty round bouts were permitted, and Ad, a shrewd youngster, pulled down the big coin and saved it. He stuck a lot of it into farm land in Michigan, and it is there yet, a monument to the ring prowess of its owner. He's credited with being worth $200,000.

Aimed to Regain Title.

But financial success wasn't enough for Ad. He liked the boxing game and, even worse than that, there stuck deep in his craw the belief that he could accomplish that remarkable feat of winning back a championship after he once had lost it. It was too bad that the game little Bearcat thought that, and there are many others being led on by that foolish mirage. So Ad wouldn't quit. He got himself a new manager and ordered that manager to go ahead and arrange matches for him. He fought battle after battle and often met defeat, nearly always taking a lacing. He did not keep in condition and that is mainly responsible for his present condition. That's one of the lamentable stories of the boxing game—and an exception.

Passing on brings us to Willie Ritchie, the boy who took the title from Wolgast. Only recently Richie left Chicago after a visit of several months, going to California to enlist in the aviation corps. But Ritchie still wants to fight with the gloves, probably just as much as he wants to knock German aviators out of the sky. Before joining the aviation corps, Willie made all kinds of efforts to secure matches, but he found he couldn't pick off the kind of money he got when he was champion.

Ritchie Worth $150,000.

Ritchie has perhaps $150,000, a good part of it invested in apartment buildings in San Francisco, and is in perfect health.

Last and smallest comes Coulon. Johnny has made over $100,000 in the ring. He doesn't need any more, but he wants that old title. He made an effort to get it a few days ago when he tackled Champion Pete Herman at Racine, only to be knocked out in the third round. But he won't quit. And his health never was better than at the present time.

PRELIM SHOOT AT SOUTH SHORE C. C.

In order that local trap shooters and those who belong to suburban clubs may become accustomed to conditions at the South Shore Country club traps, where the Grand American handicap, the feature event of the trap shooting world, will be held from Aug. 20 to 25, officials have arranged a three day shoot to be called the South Shore handicap.

On June 6, practice day, the contestants will shoot at 100 targets from the sixteen yard rise. On the following day a registered 150 bird race will be shot. The contestants will shoot from the sixteen yard mark.

The South Shore handicap, 100 targets from distances ranging from sixteen to twenty-three yards, will be decided on June 8. In addition there will be a 100 bird event from the sixteen yard rise. Entries for the main event close at the South Shore Country club June 7, while entries for other races will be received at the grounds.

Jackson Stops Ray Rivers.

New York, May 19.—Willie Jackson of this city knocked out Ray Rivers of California in the third round of a scheduled ten round match in Brooklyn tonight. Jackson weighed 131 pounds, Rivers 130.

Kilbane Bout Off; No Coin.

Detroit, Mich., May 19.—[Special.]—The Johnny Kilbane-Eddie Wallace fight, scheduled at Windsor tonight, was declared off. There was not enough money in the house.

TRIBUNE DECISIONS

Decisions of "The Tribune" fight representatives are:

At New York—Willie Jackson knocked out Ray Rivers (3).

CHARLEY MORIN WINS CUE GAME

Ending with a perfect bank shot, Charley Morin defeated Charles McCourt in the only game played yesterday in the Mussey three cushion billiard tourney at the Monroe street rooms. The final score was 50 to 42. Morin, when he needed only one point to win, missed several shots by a hair, while his opponent gradually crept up on him. Morin went out in sixty-five innings, his high run being six. McCourt had a 5. Score each ten innings:

WHIST QUERIES

Chicago.—[To the Editor.]—If a hand is dealt which does not hold face cards or honors, is the holder entitled to a new deal? Has this ever been permissible to your knowledge?

I have been advised that the player of a hand can expose and return to his hand any card he chooses. For instance, the adversary on his left plays a small heart, dummy plays low. The player exposes the jack, therefore the third hand [holding queen and ace] plays queen. Would player have right to return jack to his hand and play king or would he have to play exposed jack? M. O. S.

Ans.—A player is not entitled to a new deal because he holds no honors. There never has been a law in whist or bridge making a deal void for such a reason. A card from the declarer's hand is not played until it has been actually quitted and the declarer is subject to no penalty for an exposed card. However, if he expose a card before the player at his right has played, with the evident intention of tricking his opponent, he should be made to play the card which he exposed.

Chicago.—[To the Editor.]—This deal appeared in this paper of May 6. At trick five if south leads the spade instead of the diamond and east, taking it, leads the diamond, the result would be the same as played the way it is illustrated if west takes the club finesse. Would the play be correct (the finesse I mean) after the ace of spades is gone from east's hand? Is there not a misprint in the paragraph I have pinned onto the paper? I shall hope for a reply to these questions in next Sunday's paper. The auction articles are the first part of the Sunday paper I always look at. C. R. K.

Ans.—While south wished to keep an extra trick in the west hand, his play would have been easy after the ace of spades was removed from dummy. Had the play gone as described by you south could have taken the third round of clubs and north and south would have made three more tricks.

PRACTICAL FISH FARMING—ARTICLE II.

A FISH POND should consist of two parts, a shelf and a kettle. The shelf is used as spawning beds for the breeding fish and as the feeding grounds. The kettle is usually at the inlet end of the pond and is much smaller in area and considerably deeper than the shelf, as the bass winter here. If the kettle is too shallow the fish are likely to be smothered by a heavy freeze.

Ponds with sloping bottoms are popular with professional fish culturists, but are not recommended for the beginner. The kettle should be from six to ten feet deep, although if the pond is spring fed, with inlet at the kettle end, the ever flowing water will prevent freezing here, and in that case five or six feet is ample depth. The shelf should be from two to four feet deep.

The size of the pond or ponds depends, of course, on the amount of land available and on how extensive the fish farmer wishes to operate. The ordinary farm duck pond can be enlarged, say, to 100, or even 75, feet square and will produce enough fish for family use with practically no attention from the owner, but a commercial plant must be much larger.

Even the state fish commissions, which do not aim to raise many mature fish, but plant the fry (newly hatched) and fingerlings (from 2¼ to 5 inches long) into the public waters, are using ponds a great deal larger than formerly, and the fish for food farmer must keep in mind that he must not only hatch the fish but must keep them until they reach a respectable size.

For purely commercial purposes, C. B. Whitford, Illinois state fish culturist, recommends a main breeding pond of eight or ten acres and two brood ponds of an acre each for the young fish. Such an establishment, made by as little excavating as possible and fed by a good spring, would easily produce 1,000 pounds of fish every year, and the only attention necessary would be transferring the fry from the nest to one rearing pond, the older youngsters to the other one, and seining out the large fish for market.

Under these conditions, providing aquatic weeds were established, it would not be necessary to feed either the fry or large fish. Thus ten or twelve acres of otherwise waste land could be made to produce about $200 of good food. If the owner has more time and his spring will give a flow of sixty gallons of water a minute he could build concrete ponds between the spring and the bass ponds and raise trout.

At the Illinois bass breeding establishment at Spring Grove, Ill., they have four of these trout ponds, each measuring 8x40 feet, and with judicious feeding of chopped liver and minnows these ponds will produce about a ton of fish, worth around $800.

Such a plant would require no more time or care than the average farmer, or, more correctly speaking, the average farmer's wife, gives to the farm's poultry. At Spring Grove the overflow from these trout ponds feeds the bass ponds, and as the bass do not like as cold water as do the trout it is a good scheme.

Coming back to the bass, the two brood ponds recommended for the younger fish are very important, as most good fish are cannibals, and if all sizes are allowed to run together in one pond the small ones will be destroyed by their older, hungrier brothers. Besides, young fish need warmer water than do adults and they and the minute organisms they feed on thrive in it.

Ponds from one to two feet deep are practical, and if possible some provision should be made so that they can be drained whenever desired, so that seining out the little fish will not be too much of a job when they are to be transferred to the other water. For ease of seining making the brood ponds long and narrow, or rectangular, is a good plan.

Brood ponds should, of course, be well stocked with aquatic weeds to furnish cover and food for the young fish. This food can be produced by introducing muck and weeds from older ponds and by a forkful of well rotted manure here and there in the shallower water. Minnows should not be placed in the brood ponds used for the newly hatched fish, as they feed on the young fry of bass.

A young fish culturist of our acquaintance once put a few perch in with his small bass, believing that the latter, being famous for their fighting ability, could take care of themselves. A few weeks later he had some very nice fat perch, but his bass fry had departed hence. Minnows, either native or goldfish, are safe in ponds used for advanced fingerlings or older stock.

(Concluded next week.)

The Sinai Hiking club, now numbering about fifty young men and young women, will hike to Batavia next Sunday, stopping at Col. Fabyan's estate for luncheon.

Veteran Hikers to Race.

George Stokes and Dan O'Leary, veterans of the hiking game, who met first in Manchester, England, thirty-nine years ago, will revive their old rivalry on a local track. Three races of one, three, and five miles are planned, but the two old timers cannot agree on the track. Stokes won from O'Leary in the Manchester race, but Dan beat the Englishman a few years later at Glasgow, Scotland. Since then the two have not met.

EXPECT RECORD ENTRY OF 5,000 FOR SKAT MEET

Plans Well Under Way for Annual Congress Here Next Month.

BY A. I. LAUER.

Plans for the twentieth annual skat congress of the North American skat league, to be held at the Coliseum July 16 and 17, are rapidly rounding into shape. President Louis J. Niehoff is carrying the burden of the tournament and his efforts are indicative of success.

It is freely predicted that this will be the largest tournament ever held in the country and it would not surprise the local fraternity in the least if over 5,000 players were at the tables.

Write to Paul Mueller.

It is the object of the officers to send notices to all skat players within the United States inviting them to our skat congress, and should any reader of this column not be affiliated with any club, upon receipt of his name by our local secretary, Paul F. Mueller, [illegible] North La Salle street, he will receive such literature as will be issued from time to time appertaining to the welfare of this game.

The prize list for the players has been decided upon. Sixty per cent of all entrance money, plus $500, will be returned to the players as prize money. Of the amount $1,000 will be for first prize.

Local Men In Milwaukee.

President Niehoff, accompanied by a large delegation of local players, will play in Milwaukee today, and incidentally will advise the players there of the preparation made by Chicago for the coming big event.

The belief that the game of skat is played by Germans only is an erroneous one. This is evidenced by the fact that all our national officers and directors are men born in America and representative of varied ancestry.

Smith Wins Shoot Prize at Lincoln Park Traps

Jay Graham, professional, led the forty-five contestants in the 99 target shoot at the Lincoln Park Gun club, but the prize went to G. A. Smith, amateur, who scored 90 breaks. Graham's total was 95 and his brother Ed, likewise a pro, hit 90. C. G. Burmeister was second amateur with 89. The competition was at 25 targets from 16 yards, 25 from eighteen yards, 25 from 20 yards, and 12 pair. Leading scores:

LAST week's real estate market fell short of the fine showing it has been making for several weeks past. There was a fairly good movement of property, as evidenced by the figures of the recorder's office, which showed only a small decrease as compared with the corresponding period a year ago, but the week's business was along restricted lines, while the character of the transactions in point of magnitude and general importance was decidedly below that of the preceding two weeks.

Apartment property, which cut such a conspicuous figure in the market of the two previous weeks, with several unusually large transactions, made an exceedingly poor showing by comparison. The same is true of outside business as well as residence and vacant property.

Some important building announcements, together with several large leases of building space in the downtown district, comprised the most important features of the week.

Building Permits.

The building announcements were especially interesting in view of the sharp falling off in building operations of late, as compared with the corresponding period a year ago. Belief has been expressed that because of the soaring prices of material, the falling off is to become more pronounced during the remainder of the year.

Neither owners nor operators are disturbed because of this, the general opinion being that it will have a wholesome effect on the market, which for a year or more has suffered because of overbuilding. A sharp letup for several months or more will, it is believed, result in materially stimulating the investment market for improved property as well as vacant ripe for improvement.

While the market as a whole continues dull, in sympathy with the generally disturbed business situation, it has a good undertone, the belief being that an exceedingly active market is a practical certainty with the coming of the general activity which is expected to follow the present period of adjustment to war conditions.

New Apartments Planned.

The most important of the building projects involves the construction of another big high grade apartment building in the Lincoln park district, which, together with the land, will, it is said, represent an investment in the neighborhood of $1,200,000. The building, which will be erected by Dr. M. L. Blatt, after plans by H. R. Wilson & Co., will be located at the southwest corner of Surf street and Pine Grove avenue, on a lot 184x165 feet.

It will be ten stories high with a solarium and other roof garden features forming an eleventh story overlooking the lake. The entire exterior will be constructed of cream colored texture brick with terra cotta and granite in combination. It will contain 171 apartments of two and three rooms, each with baths, dressing rooms, Pullman kitchen features, etc.

Hotel Service.

The first floor will contain a large reception room with wood fireplace in place of the conventional hotel lobby, also grill rooms, smoking room, ladies' parlor, tea room, office, barber shop, valet and other service shops, thus affording hotel service if desired. A unique feature will be a pavilion at the terminal of the carriage drive, having fountains, mosaic decorations, and conservatory features under a glass roof.

In connection with the construction of the building Greenebaum Sons Bank and Trust company has underwritten a bond issue loan of $750,000, ten years at 6 per cent. The building will be completed about March 1, 1918.

New War Supply Plant.

Work has begun on the building for [illegible] & Black, manufacturers of surgical supplies, at the southwest corner of Twenty-fifth and Federal streets. It is of interest as being the first to be erected since the war began for the exclusive purpose of providing supplies for the United States government.

The architects, Holabird & Roche, have been commissioned to deliver the building in forty-five working days, the completion being set for June 15. The building is three stories on 88x200 feet of ground, and will cost in excess of $160,000. Complete dining facilities are to be provided for the employés, including kitchen, a women's dining room ninety feet long, men's and officers' dining and rest rooms, etc. It is independent of the large plant of the company which was erected under the supervision of the same architects.

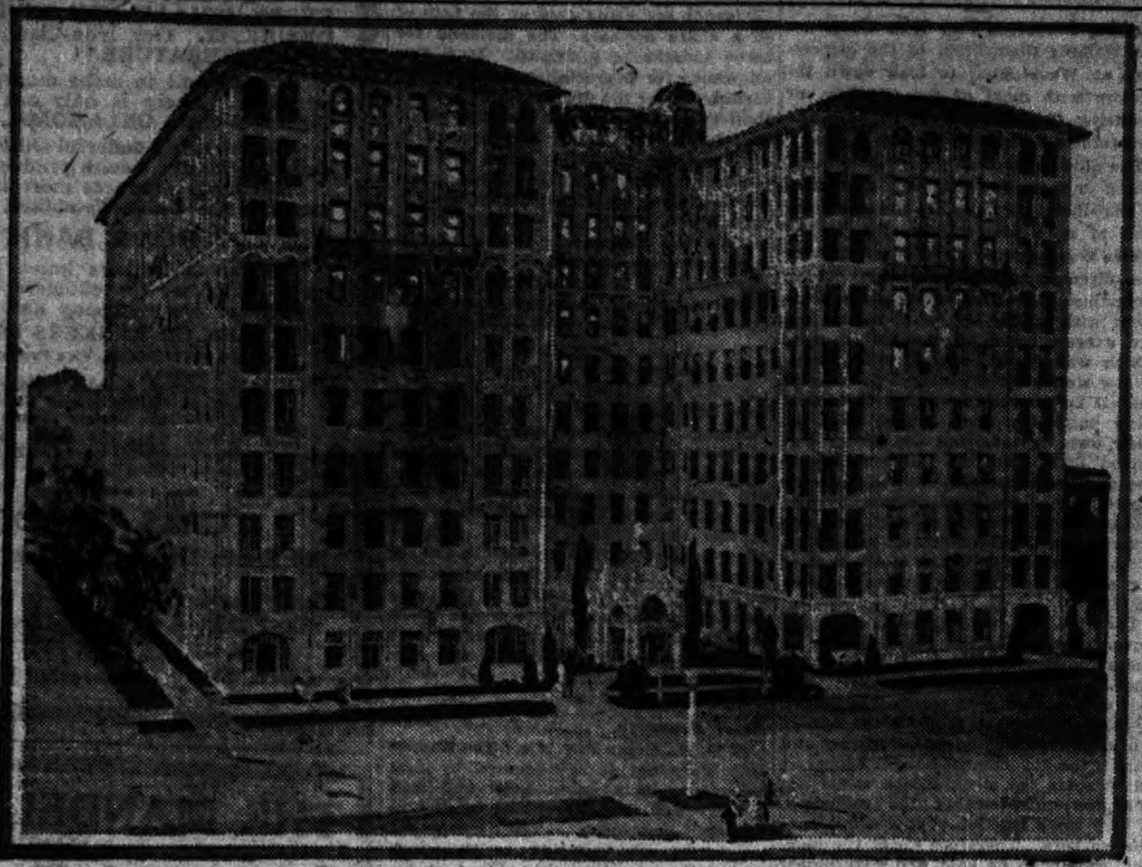
FLATS DE LUXE

The "Surf" Apartment Building, to Be Erected at the Southwest Corner of Pine Grove Avenue and Surf Street, Is the Latest High Grade Flat Building Planned for the District West of Lincoln Park and North of Diversey Parkway.



FLAT BUILDING FOR NEW STREET ON NORTH SIDE

Land Lately Bought from Catholic Bishop.

There was not much doing in vacant or acres. A north side deal of considerable interest was the sale by Charles F. Marsh through Baird & Warner of 60x143 feet in the new subdivision recently purchased from the Catholic bishop. The property, which is on the new street known as Brompton avenue, between Cornelia avenue and Addison street, south front, 271 feet west of Sheridan road, was sold for $265 a foot. It is to be improved by the purchaser with a high class apartment building.

Leland Homestead Sale.

Sherman T. Cooper, the builder, has sold the rear part of the old Warren Leland homestead property at the northeast corner of Forty-seventh street and Drexel boulevard. The plot sold comprises 101x131 feet and was sold to Mrs. Emma Salvat, the consideration being nominal, subject to an incumbrance of $14,000, but the actual price is said to have been about $30,000.

The purchaser has already begun preliminary work looking to the construction of a three story building to cover the entire frontage to contain stores on the ground floor and offices and apartments on the upper floors, with a garage in the rear. The cost of the improvements is estimated at about $100,000.

In part payment Mrs. Salvat conveyed to Mr. Cooper the residence property in Kimbark avenue, 216 feet south of Fifty-third street, lot 50x177 feet, east front, consideration nominal, subject to an incumbrance of $14,000.

Lumber Company Deal.

Record was made of the acquirement by Herman H. Hettler, president of the Herman H. Hettler Lumber company, of the property at the southeast corner of California avenue and Roscoe street, 736x141 feet, a nominal consideration being given.

The property was acquired by Mr. Hettler about two years ago with the purpose of using it as a lumber yard, but as the company later acquired the land where its yard is located on Elston avenue, nothing was done with it, and it is said Mr. Hettler has no present plans regarding it.

WOMAN LEASES THREE SOUTH SIDE THEATERS

Three large south side theaters have just been leased by Leonore Van Ronkel, wife of I. Van Ronkel, from the Boulevard Amusement company, of which Herman Schoenstadt is president. The Boulevard Theater building, at the northwest corner of Garfield boulevard and Ashland avenue, containing nine stores, three offices, and a lodge hall in addition to the theater, has been leased for a term from May 14, 1917, to April 30, 1927, at a yearly rental of $10,000.

The Archer Theater building, at 2006-10 West Thirty-fifth street, also containing two stores, has been leased at a rent of $4,000 per annum for the same period, while the Halfield theater, in the building at the northeast corner of Halsted street and Garfield boulevard, has been leased at a rent of $4,072.72 for the remainder of this year, and $8,000 per annum thereafter until Sept. 31, 1922.

Previous to the leasing of the latter theater the Boulevard Amusement company acquired it from the Chicago Cinematograph company for a reported price of $85,000. The present lessee paid $37,500 cash in addition to the rent provided by the lease.

FARM LAND INVESTMENTS

I specialize on farm lands that show a bona fide investment, with the present high prices of all kinds of farm products, and with the prospect of them remaining at the present high levels. What is a better and safer investment at this time than good, black, productive land that will grow all kinds of crops that will grow in this state? I have several very desirable tracts of this class of land in one of the best drainage districts along the Illinois river, in a proven success, land nicely improved, all tiled, near to markets, schools, and churches.

Write or, better, come and see my offerings.

Old J. F. Smith Home Gives Place to Apartments

The old J. F. Smith residence at the corner of Paulina street and Warren avenue, one of the west side residential landmarks, is being torn down to make way for a new eighteen apartment building. It was built by Mr. Smith, who came to Chicago in 1836 and who for many years kept the old New York house on Randolph street between Franklin and Wells streets, where he frequently was a host to Indians. He built the house in 1862 and lived there until he died in 1897 at the age of 82 years. The house was then on the outskirts of Chicago, and it was here that Mr. Smith's youngest daughter, Allie, was married to W. W. Wells. They have lived there for almost forty years. Barnett Brothers, builders, have purchased the corner and are now beginning the erction of the apartment building.

H. A. Hubbard Buys 20 Acres in North Evanston

Harry A. Hubbard, who operates in North Shore acres, has just acquired from William Herbert Johnson of Glencoe twenty acres in North Evanston, located southwest of the Centralwood subdivision, with a frontage on Simpson street and bounded on the west by the extended city limits. The consideration given was $20,000, or $1,000 per acre. In this connection Mr. Hubbard conveyed to Mr. Johnson a high grade six apartment building at 230-34 Galt avenue, at a price of $40,000. F. M. Lowe was the broker representing both parties.

Building to Go Up in Forty-eighth St. Leased

Robert Glendenning has leased to the Flett Paper Stock company a three story building which he will erect on 100x160 feet of ground at the southeast corner of Maplewood avenue and Forty-eighth street. It will be of heavy mill construction with sprinkler system, having switch connections with the Indiana Harbor or Belt line, and has been leased for a term of years at a term rent of $45,000. Hart & Whetston were the brokers. It will cost $40,000.

George H. Helberg Gets Property Near Wilson Avenue.

An interesting transaction filed for record late in the week was the transfer by Ira E. Pontius to George H. Helberg of the property in Lowell avenue, 120 feet south of Wilson avenue, 280x142 feet, east front, and other property, consideration nominal, subject to an incumbrance of $35,040. The improvements comprise seventeen bungalows valued at about $4,500 each.

The residence property at the northeast corner of Buena and Hazel avenues, 66x121 feet, was conveyed by Edward S. Whitney to Joseph P. Early, consideration nominal, and then conveyed by Early to Mrs. Louise W. Blocki, wife of Fred Blocki, consideration also nominal. It is understood, however, that the actual price was about $30,000.

The semi-detached stone front residence at 5117 Dorchester avenue has been sold by Arthur L. Hardin to E. M. Posey of Posey & Perry, investment securities, for a reported consideration of $9,000. T. D. O'Hern of C. W. Hoff & Co. was the broker.

He also sold for Lillian R. Deane of Los Angeles, Cal., to William H. Stuart the detached brick residence at 4575 Oakenwald avenue for a reported consideration of $9,000.

Death of Russell D. Hill Loss to Realty Interests

In the death last week of Russell D. Hill, after a comparatively short illness, the Chicago real estate board and the real estate interests of the city sustained a great loss. He was a particularly conspicuous figure in the mortgage loan field and also was actively interested in all matters looking to the betteremtn of the real estate and general interests of the city. He always took an active interest in the affairs of the real estate board, of which he became a member in 1889. The board held a special meeting on Wednesday at which brief addresses were made by several of the leading members and resolutions submitted by a committee consisting of William Scott Bond, Frederick S. Oliver, and Francis E. Manierre were adopted.

Transfer of Property, Site for New Dormitory

Record was made of the transfer by William H. Holden, an attorney, to the Moody Bible institute of three parcels at the northeast corner of Chestnut and La Salle, 129x57 feet, 22x57 feet in Chestnut, 129 feet east of La Salle street and Institute place, 110 feet east of Wells street, respectively. Mr. Holden took title for the institute some time ago. The property is to be the site of a new dormitory.

A Real Business OPPORTUNITY
Reducing Coal Cost 25% to 40%

The public must pay the high price for coal, but with BURNALL Fuel Savers the quantity consumed will be reduced 25% to 40%. BURNALL is the only fuel saver installed on every type of heating plant and hot water heater. It has stood the test for years. Thousands are in operation in all parts of the United States and Canada; more than 1,000 right here in Chicago.

A live man or sales organization with $25,000 or more available for working capital can secure the exclusive selling rights for BURNALL Fuel Savers in Chicago and Cook County, the most fertile all-year-around field in the world.

As we are sole owners of BURNALL, we desire to devote our entire resources to manufacturing and serving our many branches. This is not a stock proposition, but a prosperous, going business. A thorough personal investigation required. No details given by mail. Phone Central 7169 for appointment.

30 APARTMENTS ON 61ST PLACE BOUGHT FOR CASH

Building Has a Frontage on Dorchester Avenue of 164 Feet.

As indicated elsewhere, there was little doing of an important character in apartment property during the week, the showing being the poorest for some time. There was a fairly good movement of property in the aggregate, but a marked scarcity of transactions of any magnitude.

A noteworthy transaction in south side apartment property was the sale by Albert E. Halverson to Earl C. Mahaffey of the thirty apartment building at the northeast corner of Sixty-first place and Dorchester avenue. The lot fronts 164 feet on Dorchester avenue and 120 feet on Sixty-first place, and while a nominal consideration is given, subject to an incumbrance of $37,000, the actual figure is said to have been $75,000. The building is said to have a gross annual rental of about $11,000, and the transaction has a special interest for the reason it was a cash transaction, no exchange entering into it. Newton W. Hopkins of Byron M. Hopkins & Sons represented all parties to the transaction and will have the management of the property.

21 Flats Sold.

Edward E. Leadbeater has sold to William H. Burke the twenty-one apartment building known as the "Viola," at the northwest corner of Paulina street and Glenlake avenue, for a reported consideration of $65,000, subject to an incumbrance of $38,000. The purchaser conveyed in part payment a berry and fruit farm of thirty acres at Three Rivers, Mich., valued at $32,000. O. P. Curran Jr. represented Mr. Leadbeater and Emil Schmied Mr. Burke.

Record was made of the acquirement by master's deed by Hester A. Spades from William C. Humphreys et al. of the property at the northeast corner of Indiana avenue and Thirty-eighth street, lot 250x124 feet, for an expressed consideration of $105,000. The improvements comprise a four story apartment building containing forty-two apartments known as the "Asby" apartments.

The fifteen apartment building on 50x125 feet of ground at the southeast corner of Avers avenue and Fifteenth street has been conveyed by Max Stepner to Alexander Kleinman, consideration nominal, subject to incumbrances aggregating $29,100, but the actual price is said to have been about $40,000. The purchaser conveyed in part payment the six flat building at 3640-42 North Central Park avenue, 140 feet south of Thomas street, east front, 50x124 feet, subject to an incumbrance of $9,500.

Six Flat Sold.

August Handt sold to Soren D. Christensen the high grade six flat building at 839-43 Lafayette parkway for a reported consideration of $35,000, subject to incumbrances aggregating $19,500. The building is on a lot 66 1-3x125 feet, and is said to have a gross annual rental of $4,000. In part payment the purchaser conveyed the flat property at 7231 Coles avenue, at a valuation of $11,000; a flat building at 6800 Wabash avenue, valued at $5,500, and vacant at Seventy-fifth street and Cregier avenue. Mrs. F. C. Patterson & Co. represented both parties.

Edward H. Hughes has sold to Rosalie Heinsohn the high grade six apartment building of seven rooms and two baths, lot 50x198 feet, at 4032-34 Sheridan road, for a reported consideration of $32,000, subject to an incumbrance of $18,000. The new owner is said to contemplate remodeling the building for business uses. Victor J. Curto of W. K. Young & Bro. was the broker.

Sale on Eastlake Terrace.

Fred Becklenberg, the builder, sold to Mary E. Brown the three flat building at 7730 Eastlake terrace, formerly Garrison avenue, lot 40x150 feet. The building is all rented for $3,240 a year. A nominal consideration is given, subject to an incumbrance of $17,000, but the actual figure is said to have been around $27,000. Netling, Kahler & Co. were the brokers.

Silas J. Barton has conveyed to Julia L. Miller the property in Fargo avenue, 100 feet east of Greenview avenue, lot 45x150 feet, north front, consideration nominal, subject to an incumbrance of $26,500.

Dr. Edgar S. Burnham of Detroit has sold to Sarah Main of Chicago the high grade six flat building on a lot 66 2-3x197 feet, at 427-61 Oakdale avenue, just west of Sheridan road, consideration nominal, subject to an incumbrance of $80,400. C. N. Whitehead & Co. were the brokers.

Leases and Loans

AS indicated elsewhere, leases of building space in the downtown district were the most conspicuous feature of the week's market, the aggregate of the business making an exceedingly good showing. There were few loans of any importance, and while it cannot be said that interest rates are any higher yet, the tendency distinctly is in that direction.

Of special interest was the announcement of another large lease in the loop district by the Horn & Hardart Automat Company of Illinois. They have leased from Chester A. and Raymond Cook, trustees, the five story and basement building at 18-22 East Van Buren street, between State street and Wabash avenue, for a term of twenty years. The rental is not disclosed, but is said to be in excess of $350,000 for the term. The building is 52 by about 80 feet, south front, and adjoins the alley opposite Rothschild & Co.'s store.

The lessees have taken possession of the property and the building will immediately be remodeled, after plans by Marshall & Fox, with a new terra cotta front and extensive interior alterations, at a cost of about $50,000. The company will occupy the first and second floors and basement with an automatic restaurant, to be opened about Sept. 1. The upper floors will be remodeled and leased for mercantile and office purposes. H. C. Winnie of Willoughby & Co. and David S. Simon, in the office of Albert L. Strauss, were the brokers.

Announcement was made last week of the lease by the Automat company of the Manierre building at 116-22 North Dearborn street, between Washington and Randolph streets.

In connection with the cancellation of the ninety-nine years lease of the property at the southeast corner of Wabash avenue and Monroe street, 160x171 feet, by Modie J., Arthur H., and Sidney M. Spiegel, and the making of a new twenty years lease by the University of Chicago to the Spiegels, which transactions were negotiated by Albert L. Strauss, he also has leased for Modie J. and Sidney M. Spiegel to the Spiegel Housefurnishing company, now at 127 South Wabash avenue, the five story and basement building, 60x171 feet, together with the top floor of the building at the southeast corner of Wabash and Monroe, for a term from Sept. 1, 1917, for a reported term rent of $1,000,000. Willis & Frankenstein, who negotiated the original ninety-nine years lease, will have charge of the building.

They also have leased for the Spiegels to the A. H. Andrews company the store and basement at 107-09 Wabash avenue, 40x171 feet, together with the second floor of the building at the southeast corner of Wabash and Monroe, for a term from Sept. 1, 1917, at a term rent of $250,000; also the five story building at 115-17 Wabash for a term until the completion of the alterations at 107-09 Wabash, at a term rent of $25,000.

An important store lease covers the store at 11 West Madison street which has been leased by the Madison Building company to the Elysian Candy company for ten years at a term rent of $100,000. It was necessary to secure the cancellation of a three years' lease to Arthur Feilchenfeld. The candy company has three other loop stores. Howard C. Winne, manager of the renting department of Willoughby & Co., was the broker. He also has leased for the Durand estate to E. C. Amling & Co. the store and basement at 175 North Wabash avenue for ten years at a term rental of $90,000; also for D. A. Schulte to Louis Litt store at 234 South State street for four years at term rent of $35,000; for Durand estate to Joseph Ziska & Sons second floor 175 North Wabash, five years, at term rent of $14,000; for Harry Moir to the Clover Leaf Waffle company store at 27 North Clark street, five years, term rent of $18,000.

The John R. Thompson company has made more leases for restaurant purposes outside of the downtown district. The company has leased from Murray Welbach the three story building on a lot 50x80 feet, at the northwest corner of Clark street and Grand avenue, for ten years from May 1, at an annual rent of $7,200, with privilege of two five years' renewals.

The company also has leased the first floor and basement, 25x100 feet, in the building at the southeast corner of Halsted street and Twelfth place, from Lena R. Gottstein for fifteen years at a term rent of $36,000, with option to renew for ten years.

A short time ago the company leased from the trustees of the Otto Young estate the property at the southwest corner of Michigan avenue and Twenty-second street, a two story building on a lot 62x86 feet, for ten years at an annual rent of $10,000.

E. C. Brownlee has leased for F. R. Barnheisel to the International Lamp Shade Manufacturing company a part of the building at 536 South Wabash avenue for ten years at a term rent of $33,000. Also for same to the Lighting Fixture Studios arcade Nos. 10 and 12 on the first floor of the Barnheisel building for ten years at a term rent of $27,000.

Paul C. Loeber & Co. have leased for Joseph E. Tilt to the Commercial Car Service company the one and two story buildings at 410-22 West Superior street for a term rent of $45,000. The Diamond "T" Motor Truck company is now occupying the property. The new tenants will take possession about June 1 and will use the buildings for garage and automobile shop repair purposes.

White & Tabor have closed leases in the wholesale district embracing the third floor of the entire block bounded by Market, Adams, Quincy streets and the Chicago river, aggregating 32,000 square feet, for a term rent of $54,000.

J. Cassinelli & Co., in connection with Harvey M. Doyle, have negotiated a loan of $120,000, ten years, at 5½ per cent, to Busnak Bros., in connection with the construction by the latter of a four story and basement building adjoining their present building on North avenue.

The Chicago Title and Trust company is trustee in a loan of $80,000, due Sept. 20, 1917, at 5 per cent, secured by the property at the southeast corner of Lake and Clark streets, 30x80 feet, and the 20x80 feet, north front, in Lake street, eighty feet east of Clark street.

An interesting lease in South Chicago covers the new Exchange hotel at the northwest corner of Ninety-second street and Exchange avenue, which has been leased by Garry E. Browne to Fred G. Sangster of Columbus, Ind., for a term rent of $60,000. The building, which recently was completed at a cost of about $120,000, is three stories high, and contains about seventy-five rooms, with nine stores on the ground floor, which were not included in the lease. W. E. Schofield was the broker.

Army Supply Warehouse in Central Manfg. District

The United States government has closed a lease with the Central Manufacturing district which will make Chicago the home of the central supply warehouse for the army during the war period and will transfer the quartermasters' department on Ontario street to the Central Manufacturing district. The government has leased the five story warehouse at Iron and Thirty-sixth streets, which has been occupied by Montgomery Ward & Co., and from it will be distributed all kinds of equipment and supplies which the middle west will produce for the use of the government. Hodge & Chandler represented the government and H. E. Poronto the district.

Buy Land Now in Western Canada
Opportunities for Land Agents and Home-Seekers.

This is the day of grain and live stock. Both products are setting new price records. The prosperity of Western Canada is growing daily, for every day sees higher prices and increasing demand for grain and live stock.

Now is the time to buy land in the great Canadian West. Values will mount with the increasing demand for Canadian wheat and live stock. The homeseeker who wants to buy and locate on his own farm, and the agent who is interested in large tracts for quick re-sale will both do well to investigate our offering of Alberta and Saskatchewan lands.

COAL MAN BUYS MICHIGAN AND SOUTH WATER LOT

Parcel Sold Valued at $219,000 by Board of Review.

Business property made an exceedingly poor showing during the week, in rather sorry contrast with that of the preceding two weeks. This is especially true of outside property. The downtown district was represented by one transaction, although of a rather unimportant character.

In the exercise of an option of purchase contained in a ninety-nine year lease, Herbert E. Bell, president of the Bell & Zoller Coal company, has acquired from Ernest C. Richardson, trustee, the fee simple of the property at the northeast corner of Michigan avenue and South Water street, 150 feet on Michigan avenue by 75 feet on South Water street, improved with a four story and basement building, for $175,000.

The property was leased May 1, 1902, by E. Stiles Ely of New York to Lorraine F. Bowyer at an annual rental of $5,250 for the first six years and $7,000 for the remaining ninety-three years of the term. The lease provided for the construction within twenty years of a building not less than six stories high and to cost not less than $75,000. The board of review valued the property at $219,204, of which $40,000 is in the building. The purchase is said to have been an investment on the part of Mr. Bell, who has no plans for any changes in the property.

Herman H. Ehrman has sold to Catherine E. McDonough the four story and basement building, 23x100 feet, dimensions, at 27 West Illinois street, for a reported consideration of $20,000, the seller taking in part payment the vacant southwest corner, 58x177 feet, at Milburn and Orrington avenues, Evanston, valued at $4,900. W. H. Suchier was the broker.

Two valuable holdings in the central business district and three parcels outside of the downtown section figured in a conveyance connected with the readjustment of the title to the Durand holdings. The conveyance runs from Almira W. Durand to Ella F. D. Kennett and Charles W. Durand of Pasadena, Cal., and John M. Durand of Denver. The holdings include 171-173 North Wabash avenue, 110 feet south of Lake street, west front, 40x[illegible] feet, valued by the board of review at $282,391; river, and Kenwood avenue, 100 feet north of Washington street, west front, 20x80 feet, valued at $91,125; Wells street, 79 feet north of Ohio street, east front, 87x110 feet, an undivided half interest; Market street, southeast corner Carroll avenue, west front, 170 feet to river, and Kenwood avenue, 110 feet south of Fifty-fourth street, west front, 100x182 feet, through to Ridgewood court.

McCollam Retires; Firm Name to Continue

The real estate firm of McCollam & Kruggel has been dissolved, Mr. McCollam retiring. Arthur Kruggel will continue the business under the firm name of McCollam & Kruggel at 910, 140 Dearborn street.

INVEST IN IOWA FARMS

Iowa—the billion dollar state—the largest solid piece of good, black, tillable, fertile soil offers the choicest farm investment in the world's great corn belt.

Your principal is safe—your revenue is certain. Statistics show Iowa farm land on constant increase for the last fifty years. Land values are bound to continue upward. A total crop failure unknown. Present and prospective prices for wood products and live stock bound to help increase land values.

Very little Iowa land for sale—notice real estate columns of all papers—but I am developing a suburban property (Cedar Heights, between Waterloo and Cedar Falls) and will sell two of my highly improved, income bearing Iowa farms. Address the owner

William Galloway,
Waterloo, Iowa.

Wheat futures scored a net advance of 12c yesterday, the big gain being accomplished with the aid of comparatively little buying. The short selling had been overdone and after the first few minutes of trading there was little or no wheat for sale. The result was a scramble among the shorts to get under cover, and prices jumped sharply between trades. Much of the recent short selling has been in anticipation of the reported intention of the allies to unload their holdings of wheat. Thus far there has been no evidence of such liquidation and without this selling the shorts can hope for little success, particularly in view of the strong situation in cash wheat.

Prices were lower at the outset, but the market soon took a turn for the better, and there was a rally of 17c from the low points. July finished right at the top, but September was off 5c from the high price.

Favorable weather continued to prevail, but a material drop in temperature in the northwest is indicated. Showers are promised for the winter wheat belt, and rain is needed in northern sections and will be welcome elsewhere. Clearances of wheat and flour for the day were 140,000 bu, against 970,000 bu a year ago. Primary receipts totaled 334,000 bu, against 990,000 a year ago. Minneapolis stocks show a decrease of 125,000 bu for one day.

Sharp Rally in Corn.

Corn started easier with wheat, but advanced sharply later. Resting spots showed net advances of 3½@4c for the day. The buying was largely in the way of short covering, but there was also demand from cash and commission houses. The lack of offerings was a conspicuous feature. Logan & Bryan, Bennett, Knight-McDougal, Clement-Curtis and Wagner all bought corn in material quantities. Much of the demand was stimulated by the fact that cash corn maintains a big premium over the futures. Favorable weather and everything to indicate that a big acreage is being planted were bearish factors.

Cash corn ruled 1@2c higher. There were moderate offerings of corn to arrive, with prices up close to the spot limits. Most of the corn at interior points appears to be in places that are not tapped by main or popular branch lines of the railroads. Primary receipts were 473,000 bu, against 446,000 bu a year ago.

Oats Active and Strong.

Oats were active and strong. Closing prices showed net gains of 1⅝c. Cash houses, such as Nye-Jenks, Rosenbaum Grain company, and Jackson Bros., continued to buy oats. There was free covering by shorts and the short interest in the market is thought to be large. Offerings were small. Some July was sold by the Armour concern. Crop news was generally favorable, though some sections are commencing to complain of dryness. Cash oats were 1@2c higher. Clearances for the day were 50,000 bu. Primary markets received 635,000 bu oats, against 1,197,000 bu a year ago.

Provisions ruled higher and closed with a fair advance. Scattered commission house buying was encouraged by the advance in hog prices at the yards and the strength in grains. On the bulge there was moderate realizing. Hog receipts at western markets for the week were 434,500 head, against 506,000 last week and 545,000 a year ago.

Firm Market for Rye.

Rye was strong with No. 2 selling at $2.38. Receipts were 5 cars.

Barley ruled firm. Malting was quoted $1.38@1.60 and sold $1.40@1.58; feed and mixing quotable $1.30@1.40 and screenings 90c@$1.00, with latter selling at 99c; skimmings were quoted 80@95c. Receipts, 2 cars.

Timothy seed was firm. September sold $9.10 and cash lots $4.50@7.00. Clover seed was firm. Cash lots quoted $12.00@17.00 and spot prime $18.00.

Flax closed 1½c higher. Cash quoted $3.40@3.46. Duluth and Minneapolis as well were 1½c up and Winnipeg closed 10c higher.

NEWS AND GOSSIP OF BOARD OF TRADE

Washington reports were received to the effect a plan has been arrived at between the representatives of the allies, the federal government, and grain men representing the exchanges whereby a committee of grain dealers and representatives will designate the amount of grain to go to the allies. Great satisfaction was expressed at confidence of grain men that ample supplies were available in this country to meet the need of the United States and the allies. It was said the opinion was expressed that abnormally high prices were due not so much to speculation as to unwise competition in the legitimate demand for grain. It is said the arrangement will abrogate some of the grain contracts with the allies, which are for larger supplies than needed. The Italian demands, it is said, will be cut materially, with French estimates cut, while the English estimated requirements were regarded as about fair. It is understood the new board will be known as the food administration and Hoover as the food administrator. A London cable received said that plans for H. C. Hoover to become international food director met with approval of the English cabinet.

"Liverpool cabled: "Oats market easy with increased arrivals and reduced consumption. Continental demand continues good, especially from Italy and France, the military needs being important. American offers increasing. Barley and rye continue firm. Corn is strong, reflecting discouraging Argentine reports and the strong American markets. Continental demand for flour is urgent. Arrivals of provisions are moderate, but consumption is light and stocks are fair. Some arrivals are reported from Scandinavian countries."

Oats offerings in the pit were moderate yesterday and there was steady absorption of oats by commission houses. On the extreme advance there was profit taking and selling against the offers. Commission houses were again credited with buying against cash sales. Country sales were reported a little larger, with premiums a little lower relative to the futures. Receipts are moderate in the west compared to a year ago, and this fact, with the good export business reported, has stimulated buying.

Minneapolis wheat stocks decreased 125,000 bu for one day.

Cash trade in grain was reported slow yesterday. No sales of round lots were reported. The upturn in futures evidently checked business to some extent. The last few days there has been a big business. Wheat prices were relatively firm in the cash market, and at outside points there was no weakness, while mills were fair buyers. Both corn and oats were quoted 1@2c up. Offerings were a little larger of oats, but moderate of corn.

Minneapolis wired that the cash wheat market was firm for all grades good enough to mill. Premiums were better on all grades. Some choice No. 1 northern sold 55c over the July. About 30 per cent of the receipts is Canadian wheat grading mostly No. 3 or lower. No. 3 yellow corn sold at 9c over Chicago July. Oats are about 2½@3½c over Chicago July.

"Oats have been hammered and sold short for weeks past now on increased acreage and big visible stocks," said Bartlett-Frazier. "This morning there are a few reports drifting in about the crop not looking so well on account of dry weather. The cash position is growing stronger all the time owing to the continued export demand and the large quantities already sold to go out."

"Liverpool was again lower for lard and meats, the former for both prompt and future delivery, and the cash demand is quiet," said W. L. Gregson. "Hog receipts are light, but there appears to be no insistency on the part of buyers, and we think lower levels are quite possible."

Bennett's reports from Kansas said wheat fields were showing more promise from Topeka to McPherson and Salina along the Union Pacific. Not much corn is up, but the acreage is the largest ever known. Oats acreage also is reported large.

Receipts inspected Saturday: Wheat, 36 cars; corn, 41 cars; oats, 145 cars; rye, 5 cars; barley, 2 cars. Hogs estimated for Monday, 34,000, and for all next week, 130,000 head.

Some reports were received to the effect dry weather is becoming a factor in some sections. Northern Illinois and Indiana are sending in reports claiming damage to oats.

COTTON.

NEW YORK, May 19.—COTTON—There was a further excited advance in the cotton market this morning, with the general list closing steady at a net advance of 34@46 points. The opening was comparatively quiet, with first prices 4 points lower to 5 points higher, but after a few minutes of irregularity the market showed increased activity and strength, and reached the highest point of the day in the late trading. Closing prices were within 2 or 3 points of the best. Sales of print cloths at Fall River for the week were estimated at 1,800,000 pieces, not including the government contracts placed for more than 1,500,000 pieces, deliveries on which will extend to the end of the year. Prices were reported 1-16@¼c higher. Port receipts were 4,615 bales, and 6,715,099 for the season. Exports today 130, and 4,774,108 for the season. Stock, 909,036 bales. Futures:

Fresh hog receipts of 7,000 head at Chicago yesterday, including 2,000 direct to packers, met with an urgent demand at an advance of 10@15c from Friday's prices. The trade was over about as soon as it was started, as the supply on hand was far from sufficient for requirements and prices closed strong at the full advance. Top sales were made at $16.50 and the bulk at $15.85@16.45.

Final prices were weak to 10c lower than a week ago for matured hogs and unchanged to 25c lower for pigs. The average price of all hogs here this week, however, was $16.15, or 5c higher than the previous record mark and compared with an average of $15.85 last week. The top last Monday, $16.65, stood the highest on record.

CATTLE.

Beef cattle values at Chicago this week closed largely 25c higher than a week ago. For the general run of beef steers the values secured were the highest on record. Fancy beeves were lacking and top sales rested at $13.70, the previous week's best figure. The bulk this week, however, made $10.85@12.85, compared with $10.40@12.65 last week, the advance being wholly in cost, as quality was no better. Calves finished the week at an advance of 50c for the general run of vealers.

Cattle at seven western markets for the week, 160,000, against 157,800 the preceding week, 120,400 a year ago, and 116,700 two years ago. Total for 1917 to date, 3,200,000, against 2,720,000 the same period in 1916.

SHEEP.

Facing an absolute shortage, live mutton buyers at Chicago this week paid new record breaking prices for sheep, yearlings, and lambs, and the market closed on a strong basis at a net advance of $1.00@1.40 for the week. Total receipts for six days were only 42,300 head, showing a decrease of 3,000 head. Advices from the country told of depleted feed lots, and while prospective future supplies looked scanty, the consumptive requirements of the trade promised an increase. Sheep topped the week at $16.00 and lambs at $20.40.

Making Investors Pay War Cost.

A striking illustration of the disposition at Washington to load down investors with most of the burden of financing the war can be seen in the government's plans for buying copper.

The allies have been paying 30 cents a pound or more for the vast quantities of that metal they need in the manufacture of munitions. When the United States began preparing to enter the war the directors of several large copper companies offered to supply the government with all the copper it needed for the average price of the last decade, which was figured out at 16 2-3 cents. A few stockholders ventured to suggest that if the directors wanted to exhibit their patriotism they should do it at their own expense, but the protest received little attention. Directors said the government could use only a very small part of the total output anyway, and stockholders ought to be glad to contribute that small amount at half price. Nothing more was heard of the matter for a time and it was supposed to be settled.

Then the statement appeared that the government would not accept copper at the average price, but would pay just a shade under the present market. Why this sudden change of plan? The reason appears to be that some of the miners work under a sliding scale contract and that if the government bought copper at 16 2-3 cents the stockholders would not bear the entire cost of the reduction. A very small fraction of it would fall on the workers. Therefore about the market price is to be paid and government will get back the money by levying a heavy tax on excess profits.

It should be added that most holders of copper stocks are not, as is commonly imagined, men of great wealth. The shares of the large copper companies are scattered among many thousands of small holders all over the country. They are not suitable for savings investments, but many people, tempted by large dividends, have invested savings in them and are likely to feel the excess profits tax severely.

Sinclair Oil.

P. H. W., Moline, Ill.: The Sinclair Oil and Refining company reported combined gross earnings of subsidiaries in the three months ended March 31 last at $3,199,022, net before depreciation $2,873,775. The company now has 970,074 shares outstanding and no bonds. Dividends are being paid at the rate of $5 a share a year. The dividend for three months is $1,212,600. If a fair allowance for depreciation is made, the earnings cover the dividend a little more than twice. The stock, which is of no par value, was issued a year ago in exchange for properties taken into the company. The original balance sheet showed about $86 of net assets back of each share. The only criticism made against the company is that it has issued earnings statements showing no allowance for depreciation. Each of these statements, however, has called attention to the matter of depreciation.

Père Marquette.

J. M. M., Mount Carmel, Ill.: The new Père Marquette 5s are secured by mortgage on the property, subject to $5,870,000 of old bonds, which are undisturbed by the reorganization. There are $30,455,000 of new bonds, making the total bonded debt $36,325,000, which is less than $18,000 a mile. Interest charges are $1,667,760 a year. In the six months to Dec. 31 earnings applicable to interest were $2,714,000. In the three months to March 31 there was a great decline of net, and fixed charges were not fully earned. Evidently the new bonds need seasoning.

Brief Answers.

H. G. H., Green Bay, Wis.: The Kansas City Terminal 4s are secured by first mortgages on a union depot and belt railway and are guaranteed by twelve railway companies. The mortgaged properties are supposed to be worth more than the loan, but the best security is the guarantee of the tenant railways, to which the terminal is a necessity. The bonds are a conservative investment. They are selling on a 4⅝ per cent income basis.

O. R., Fort Wayne, Ind.: Brokers say that United Agency stock is offered at $7 a share and $6 is bid, but that there are practically no transactions because the company objects to transferring shares.

Shippers and Carriers Seek Get-Together Plan

A conference will be held between the executive committee of the American Railway association special committee on national defense, of which Fairfax Harrison is chairman, and the executive committee of the National Industrial Traffic league at Washington next Wednesday. The meeting was arranged, said H. C. Barlow, chairman of the executive committee of the traffic league, as a result of the desire expressed by the railroad committee that the shippers and carriers get together in order to avoid possible friction in the carrying out of the orders of the government for a readjustment of the transportation service of the country.

SUGAR.

CHICAGO, May 19.—SUGAR—Prices were quoted by the wholesale dealers per 100 lbs: Powdered, standard, $9.40; standard cane granulated, $9.25; beet granulated, $9.25; extra C, $8.40; canary, $8.30.

NEW YORK, May 19.—SUGAR—A firmer feeling prevailed in the local market for raw sugar today with offerings light and prices ½c higher. There were sales of 10,000 bags of Cubas for late May and early June shipment at 5c cost and freight, equal to 6.02 for centrifugal, and 10,000 bags of Porto Ricos for May-June shipment at equal to 5.95c for centrifugal. The market closed firm at 5c for Cubas cost and freight, equal to 6.02c for centrifugal, and 5.14c for molasses. There was only a quiet trade in refined sugar, with refiners still restricting orders. Prices were unchanged, ranging from 7.50c to 8.50c for fine granulated. There was a sharp rise in sugar futures, the market at one time showing a net advance of 33 to 34 points, although part of this gain was lost under realizing sales near the close. Final quotations were 21 to 32 points net higher, with sales of 18,750 tons. May sold from 5.05@5.20c, closing 5.15c; July, 5.10@5.30c, closing 5.23c; September, 5.16@5.45c, closing 5.30c; December, 4.90@5.15c, closing 5.04c.

Chicago Securities.

Chicago stocks were again irregular and with no special trend to the course of prices. Stewart-Warner was an exception, showing an advance of 4½ points over the previous close. The packing house stocks were dull. Sears-Roebuck was lower and Union Carbide sold off fractionally.

In the bond department Commonwealth Edison 5s sold at 99⅝, a new low quotation. Swift & Co. 5s did fractionally better at 100.

Railroad Earnings.

TEXAS AND PACIFIC.

Second week gross increased $84,403; from Jan. 1 gross increased $856,521.

Money and Exchange.

Money rates in Chicago firm at 5 per cent on collateral, 5 per cent on commercial paper, and 5@5½ per cent over the counter. New York exchange, 15@20c discount. Chicago bank clearings, $74,125,148.

LOCAL CURB LIST STILL INACTIVE

The local unlisted securities market showed little improvement in activity, with consequent small changes in quotations. American Fork and Hoe common was in demand at 126 bid, with stock offered at 129. The preferred was offered at 128. Avery common was exchanged at 90 bid, offered at 91. Some inquiry was in evidence for Moline Plow preferred at 96, with small offerings at 97½. Emerson Brantingham preferred changed hands at 40, and the common at 9½.

The motor stocks were heavy, selling off from 1 to 3 points. Reo Motor Car sold as high as 30½, and as low as 25½, closing at 27 bid, offered at 27½. Paige-Detroit was wanted at 29 with stock offered at 31. Continental Motors remained steady, closing at 6¾ bid, offered at 7¼. Kellogg Switchboard and Supply changed hands at 290 and closed at 286 to 291. Inland Steel sold at 180, and closed at 180 to 186.

Sugar securities held steady, Holland-St. Louis closing at 15¾@16¼; Utah Idaho, 26½@27¼; Michigan Sugar, 94@96.

Public Utility group showed a slightly better demand with some small advances. Cities Service common improved about 5 points, changing hands at 282. The preferred sold at 85½. Northern States Power common changed hands at 88, while the preferred closed at 98 bid, offered at 100. Standard Gas common was quiet around 19½. The preferred was traded in at 49½. Tri-City preferred declined from 91 to 90.

Other sales were as follows: United Light common, 41; preferred, 69; American Public Utilities preferred, 66; common, 30; Commonwealth Power common, 30; Pacific Gas common, 56; American Water Works and Electric common, 7½; Middle West Utilities common, 45; preferred, 70, ex-dividend; Federal Sign System Electric preferred, 68.

IN FOREIGN STOCK MARKETS.

LONDON, May 19.—Bar silver, 37⅞d per ounce; money, 2½@4 per cent; discount rates, short bills, 4 11-16 per cent; 3 months' bills, 4⅝ per cent.

PARIS, May 19.—Prices were steady on the bourse today. Rentes, 61 francs 40 centimes. Exchange on London, 27 francs 10 centimes; 5 per cent loan, 87 francs 75 centimes.

NEWS OF THE FINANCIAL WORLD

The trading element on the New York stock exchange appears to have a deep conviction that the motor shares may be safely sold short. From their viewpoint apparently there can be no further value in the motor industry regardless of the great shrinkage in values already experienced in the motor shares. This bearish attitude has to date been sufficient to keep the general public out of the motor issues. If the bears are right, then the quotations are sufficiently high, but if earnings are to be taken as a guide prices of some of the stocks are certainly low. Meanwhile there is no public interest in such issues, though once they were favorites and at from 50 to 60 points higher than now.

A heavy export demand for steel billets, rails, and plates is reported. One new inquiry for 10,000 tons of ninety-seven pound rails for France has just been put out. This makes a total of 50,000 tons wanted for France and 60,000 tons for Russia. It is declared, however, that the ports are choked with large tonnages of steel.

New York commission house sentiment is said to be changing for the better and that there is a strong tendency among regular traders to go long after covering shorts. Outsiders are said to be coming interested in the copper shares, the rise in steel issues being largely responsible for copper sentiment.

The Owen Bottle Machine company is offering about $500,000 par value of its common stock to its employés at the same price the stock was last offered to shareholders plus the additional book value. The principal executive officers and larger shareholders are not included in the privilege.

Interests close to Charles M. Schwab claim to have knowledge that suggests a much higher level for Bethlehem B stock, and they are telling their friends to buy it whenever reactions take place.

It is announced that all the properties of the Cassopolis Milling and Power company have been purchased and will be operated by the Middle West Utilities company.

WAR SOBERS MARKET.

New York, May 1.—The dullness of today's short trading period was in striking contrast to the activity of the two preceding sessions. Momentous overnight events, such as the president's call to arms and the decision of the government to dispatch an expeditionary force to France, had a sobering effect upon speculative sentiment.

Prices were little changed at the opening, apart from another severe break in Denver and Rio Grande preferred, a result of the ruling of the federal court, which inflicted a severe monetary penalty upon that system.

Other minor rails, including some once known as part of the Gould system, were firm to strong, a marked inquiry developing for the new Missouri Pacific issues. Among representative transportation stocks, the Pacifics, Reading and other high grade shares ruled firm to strong.

War Shares Make Recovery.

War shares were better by one to two points, their setback in the middle of the season being largely made up at the end. United States Steel came within a fraction of its recent maximum and the more distinctive equipments and munitions recovered 1 to 2 points from yesterday's reversal.

Metals, shippings and petroleums were irregular at times, but hardened later with specialties like Industrial Alcohol, Distillers Securities, and Ohio Gas. Gains on these stocks extended from 1½ to about 3 points.

The automobile group accentuated its backwardness of the early week. General Motors, Studebaker common and preferred and Chandler lost two to four points, but rallied slightly on short covering.

Bonds were heavy, Denver Refunding 5s breaking 3 points and Union Pacific 4s and Chicago and Northwestern 3½s 1½ each. United States registered 4s were up ¼ per cent on call during the week, but other governments were ½ to 1 per cent lower.

Mercantile paper, 4¾@5 per cent. Sterling, 60 day bills, $4.72; commercial 60 day bills on banks, $4.71½; commercial 60 day bills, $4.71¼; demand, $4.75 9-16; cables, $4.76 7-16. Francs: Demand, $5.72; cables, $5.72. Guilders: Demand, 41c; cables, 41⅛c. Lire: Demand, $7.01; cables, $7. Rubles: Demand, 28c; cables, 28⅛c. Bar silver, 74⅜c. Mexican dollars, 57⅛c. Government bonds steady. Railroad bonds heavy.

Preferred as to Assets and Dividends

Dividends payable quarterly, February, May, August, and November 1.

No Mortgage indebtedness exists nor may be created without the consent of 95% of all the holders of the Preferred Stock.

SINKING FUND—Beginning January 1, 1920, the Company shall set aside not less than $50,000 per year for the retirement of the Preferred Stock, which shall be purchased in the open market or called at $107.50 per share and accrued dividend.

Peoples Trust & Savings Bank, Chicago, Registrar

Union Trust Company, Chicago, Transfer Agent

Over 511%, or an average of 35% per year, was earned by Bunte Brothers on its original capitalization during the fourteen years of its corporate existence ending December 31, 1916.

¶ For forty years, each succeeding year has witnessed a substantial increase in this business. Last year's net sales were $2,369,736.25. Increased sales for the first four months of 1917 promise over $3,000,000 for current year.

¶ Only once in the entire history of the old firm and present corporation has the concern ever borrowed money from a bank or individual. The company owes no money —does now and always has paid cash for everything.

¶ Bunte Brothers Company are not now in the market for funds. Do not need any more money, nor could they use any more profitably in their business. The shares we have purchased, a part of which we are offering for sale, are simply the holdings of two of the old partners who are retiring from business. The management and control remains with Theodore W. and Charles F. Bunte, who have conducted the business for many years.

PRICE We will accept reservations at $100 per share for the Seven Per Cent Cumulative Preferred Stock (Par Value $100). For a limited period the privilege is extended to buyers of the Preferred Stock to buy 5 shares of the Common Stock at $4 per share (Par Value $10) with each share of Preferred. At present the business is earning 7% for the Preferred and over 7% for the Common, on their par values. The earnings for the Common Stock, therefore, at $4.25 per share, show better than 164% annually for 1916. The first four months of 1917 show a very substantial increase in sales and profits.

—showing how easy it is to get $8,000

If you sell us within a year $100,000 accounts averaging paid in 30 days, it will cost you only 1% flat.

Simply sell us about $10,000 of your active accounts receivable. To do this it is only necessary to furnish us with a copy of your financial statement, arrange agreement with us warranting the accounts, send us duplicate invoices and shipping evidence.

We immediately advance about $8,000 (exact amount depends on your sale terms) upon receipt of the above papers. We let you collect the accounts and thus avoid notifying your customers.

If sixty days after our purchase one customer pays you $1,000, we send you the approximately $200 withheld balance immediately upon receipt of the check, after first deducting our charge, which is only 1-30 of 1% per day (plus additional flat charge of $5 per $1,000 if you sell us less than $100,000 within a year).

Could anything be simpler? And it's just as easy to get $80,000 as it is to get $8,000.

By our plan you can place your sales practically on an 80% cash basis. It is needless to point out how much more business you can do, what additional profits you can make, and how you can improve your credit.

Why not sample our plan now? If it does not satisfy, you can discontinue at any time, without having disturbed your customers or business connections.

ALL OF ILLINOIS FOR BANK LAW, LOWDEN CLAIMS

Governor Confident House Will Pass the Measure Despite Attacks.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Springfield, Ill., May 19.—[Special.]—Gov. Lowden went on the firing line today for the private banks bill. He expressed confidence that the house would pass it.

"One thing I want to make plain," Gov. Lowden said, "is that the demand for a private banks law is just as strong and just as well founded in the downstate territory as it is in Chicago.

"Any statements made to the contrary by legislators or the private bank representatives are entirely unfounded."

"Do you think that the bill can be passed through the house?" Gov. Lowden was asked.

"I certainly do think so," he answered. "The senate has acted favorably, and it is now on the floor of the house. Desperate tactics undoubtedly will be the last resort of the interests that have fought this legislation in many sessions of the general assembly. If we work together, as I believe we will, the bill ought to pass."

Plan Third Reading Thursday.

It is the present policy of Speaker Shanahan and the house organization to have the bill on second reading Tuesday or Wednesday and on third reading Thursday.

Eighty-three members of the house pledged themselves to support a bill for private banks regulations in the preprimary and the general election campaigns. Only seventy-seven votes are required to pass the bill. At least fifteen members are working for the bill in addition to the eighty-three who pledged support.

Gov. Lowden today determined to permit the Hull Parks pension bill to become a law without his approval under the ten day rule.

The coming week will be the last in which bills in committee in the house in which they originated will be considered and all unreported measures Thursday will be dead.

The house calendar holds about 250 house bills awaiting roll call and about fifty senate bills. The senate calendar has about forty-five senate bills and twenty-five house bills ready for final disposition. These do not include the appropriation measures that will be reported from committees next week and will have precedence over all other matters on the calendar.

Chicago Traction Up This Week.

The Chicago traction bills will be up for consideration before the senate public utilities committee Tuesday night and probably will be decided before the week end. Walter L. Fisher is to appear in their behalf before the senate and house committees.

The sanitary district power plant bill still slumbers in the house waterways committee. A final drive to get this bill out to the floor of the house is to be attempted early in the week.

County Judge Scully has not abandoned hope of getting through his central registration bill. It is now being fought by the dry interests in Chicago, who profess a fear that the registration lists will be jammed in anticipation of the Chicago local option election next spring.

SUNDAY SPORTS ARE DENOUNCED BY CHURCHMEN

Presbyterian Assembly Also Against Forums on That Day.

Dallas, Tex., May 19.—The one hundred and twenty-ninth general assembly of the Presbyterian Church of the United States of America today went on record as disapproving "all Sabbath day sports" civil life and in the army and navy and all "unnecessary" traveling excursions and "emphatically" condemned Sunday newspapers and urged members of the church not to subscribe for, read, or advertise in them.

The assembly also went on record as disapproving the use of public school buildings for the holding of community forum meetings on Sunday.

Dr. R. S. Coffin of New York opposed adoption of the resolution excluding Sunday forum meetings in public school buildings, saying there are many Jews in New York who hold these meetings on Sunday.

Dr. Charles Stelzle, New York, said he favored Sunday excursions for the laboring classes if they were not given half holidays on Saturdays.

Samuel F. Irwin of Chester, Pa., was appointed vice moderator by the moderator.

Overtures relating to a reunion of the Presbyterian churches of the north and south were presented to the assembly today and referred to a committee which will report next week. Prominent delegates say prospects for a reuniting of the forces are brighter than ever, but several express belief that the reunion will not take place, at least during the present assembly meeting.

STATE SUES FOR $60,000 ON OLD RAYMOND BOND

Suit to recover $60,000 alleged to have been withheld by Samuel B. Raymond, formerly treasurer of Cook county, who died in 1915, was brought yesterday by Attorney General Edward J. Brundage against Maurice Rosenfeld, Fred M. Blount, William Best, and C. K. G. Billings, sureties on his bond.

According to Assistant Attorney General James H. Wilkerson, Mr. Raymond at the time he left office retained about $34,000 interest on inheritance taxes, as had been the practice of former county treasurers. About the time of his death in 1915 the Supreme court ruled that this was illegal.

Mr. Wilkerson said the defendants have signified their willingness to make good the amount, but desired to have court action as a matter of protection.

POLICE HUNT UP LOOP YEGG GANG ON REGAN'S TIPS

Joseph Regan, former sergeant for the Stanton Detective agency, who was brought back from Piedmont, W. Va., yesterday, with his sweetheart, Stella Vallas, made a complete confession at the detective bureau, the police say. He is said to have admitted that he and two other attachés of the agency and men connected with other private detective agencies looted fifty or seventy safes in buildings which they were detailed to guard. The loot of the band is believed by the police to have approximated $50,000.

More arrests are expected as the result of Regan's statements.

We Can't Keep It a Secret Any Longer

For two weeks we have been telling you of the wonderful opportunity we are offering investors, and now we want to prove to you that this investment is really better than we have been representing it to be. The stock we are offering is the unsubscribed portion of a Million-Dollar issue recently placed on the market by the American Merchants Syndicate

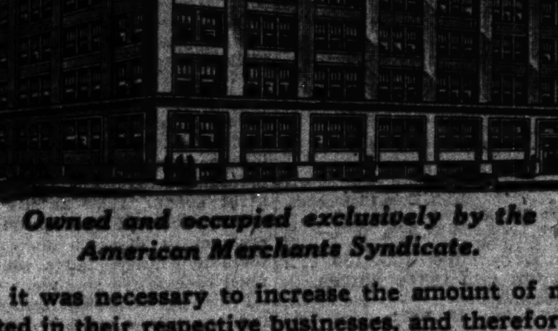
a national organization composed of over 12,000 retail merchants doing business in every state of the union, with headquarters and exhibition building at 155 East Superior Street, Chicago, Illinois.

The American Merchants Syndicate is a buying organization owned and controlled by successful, hustling, wide-awake merchants located largely in the small cities and towns throughout this country who are keen business men enough to realize that it is impossible for any merchant to meet the competition of today single-handed.



Owned and occupied exclusively by the American Merchants Syndicate.

It was due to the foresightedness and good business judgment of its President and General Manager, John Baskerville, that this organization was started in 1910, and the fact that the American Merchants Syndicate now needs additional working capital to take care of its fast increasing volume of business is positive proof that it has been well managed and is being operated along correct lines.

When the directors voted to make an issue of One Million Dollars to be used exclusively as working capital, a letter was sent to each one of our merchant stockholders, which was in part as follows:

> "At the suggestion of the Advisory Board and numerous members consulted by the Directors, the latter decided that the old stockholders should be given the right to subscribe for the One Million Dollars par value of stock which the growth of the business requires be issued.
> "Please understand the enclosed Right to Subscribe is handed you as a privilege. You are under no obligation to take more stock in the Syndicate, and should not take more if the investment will take money out of your business which you need in it.
> "The present merchant stockholders made the American Merchants Syndicate what it is, and they are entitled to the opportunity to buy this additional stock before it is offered to the public."

You will notice from the above that the organization recommended to its merchants not to take money out of their business to buy additional stock unless they could spare it. Hundreds of merchants responded immediately, buying their allotment, but several hundred wrote letters of regret, expressing their approval of the action of the Board of Directors, but saying that owing to the increased cost of merchandise during the past three years it was necessary to increase the amount of money invested in their respective businesses, and therefore recommended that their organization sell their allotment to some new merchant member or to an investor.

It is this unsubscribed portion of this new issue of a successful, seven year old, fast growing, gigantic business that we are offering to you as a new merchant member or as an investor.

And we know for a positive fact that the public has never been offered a cleaner and safer investment—one that carries with it wonderful possibilities for rapid increase in value.

Nothing can keep this organization from expanding and growing in all directions. It has been built upon a sane, logical and practical business principle.

The future of our nation depends upon the development of our rural districts and the rural districts cannot thrive and prosper without convenient and well established market places. So the small city and town retail merchants must meet the competition that has been making rapid inroads into their business.

There Is Only One Logical Way to Meet This Problem and That Is to Enable the Retail Merchant to Buy His Merchandise Direct from the Manufacturer.

The local retail merchant is the correct channel through which merchandise should reach the consumer. It is the most economical distribution possible and the American Merchants Syndicate is proving that it is the logical way, regardless of the fact that the public has been led to believe otherwise.

Students of political and social economics all agree that the rural districts of our nation must be encouraged and helped. Our government is spending huge sums every year trying to change the drift of humanity away from the great cities back to the country—back to the small towns—back to health, happiness and right living—back to nature.

President Wilson has never uttered a more truthful statement than when he said:

> "Do you know what the vitality of America consists of? Its vitality does not lie in New York, nor in Chicago; it will not be sapped by anything that happens in St. Louis. The vitality of America lies in the brains, the energies, the enterprise of the people throughout the land. That is the wealth of America, and if America discourages the locality, the community, the self-contained towns, she will kill the nation."

Granting that you agree with us that the logical channel of distribution of merchandise is direct from the manufacturer to the consumer through the local retail merchant, let us return to the vital issue before you for your earnest consideration.

WHAT WILL THIS INVESTMENT MEAN TO YOU? This is the question in which you are interested, and we want to be as conservative as possible, but at the same time we want to give you an honest but comprehensive answer.

HERE IS OUR ANSWER—Keep these figures for future reference.

The American Merchants Syndicate already has over twelve thousand merchant members—less than one-tenth of the number they will have when the country is completely organized. If only 10,000 of the present members buy one-half of their merchandise from their organization it will amount to over $100,000,000 a year. The Syndicate receives 5% on the merchandise that it buys for its members, and saves an average of 10% for the merchant. This means that the Syndicate would receive $5,000,000 for its service and the merchants would save for themselves and their customers $10,000,000 every year. The Syndicate can be operated on three per cent, leaving two per cent for profit for the stockholders.

NOW FOLLOW US CLOSELY—If the Syndicate should never add another merchant member to its organization, but should sell every dollar of its present authorized capital and should sell ten thousand of its members one-half of their merchandise, it would net the Syndicate $2,000,000 a year, or 20% dividend on every dollar of its total capital stock.

THIS IS WHAT WE HONESTLY BELIEVE WILL HAPPEN DURING THE NEXT FIVE YEARS: The organization will double its present number of merchant members, and inside of that time at least 20,000 merchants will be buying one-half of their merchandise from their organization, which will mean a gross business of Two Hundred Million Dollars annually, which will be handled for 3%, leaving a net profit to the Syndicate of $4,000,000, or 40% on the total capitalization.

These Figures Are Conservative—We're Staking the Reputation of Our Firm That They Are Conservative and Will Come True.

Let us again call your attention to the fact that this is a six per cent guaranteed, full participating preferred stock, and that "full participating" means that every stockholder shares equally in all the profits.

Any investor living in or near Chicago is invited to visit the Exhibition Building at 155 East Superior Street and carefully inspect the thousands of samples that are on display in their own seven-story, magnificently constructed, fireproof building.

Which Shall It Be This Time?

Dividends— or —More Regrets

Have you ever had cause to regret that you did not buy stock in some of the companies that have become very prosperous in recent years?

Of course you have—we all have.

Have you ever promised yourself that you will not let another such an opportunity get away from you when it knocks at your door.

Well it is knocking right now. Listen!

If you could be shown to an absolute certainty that there is an opportunity today to make as good an investment as any that you have let get away, would you be far sighted enough this time to invest from $100 to $10,000?

Here is what we have to offer you:

A six per cent guaranteed, full participating investment in a wholesale mail order merchandise business that is now doing business in every state in the Union, and has long passed the experimental stage.

Better still

The company has been paying an annual dividend of six per cent since 1913, and last year it paid a handsome stock dividend.

Even better still

The company is selling its stock at par, while the book value is considerably more than 25% above par value.

Don't forget this is full participating stock.

If you don't understand what "full participating" means, let us explain that this unusual clause in a stock certificate gives the holder an equal interest in all the earnings with the common stockholder. This is a very unusual clause in preferred stock certificates, and one that makes the stock very desirable.

Let us give you full particulars.

For the benefit of those who did not read our advertisement of May 6th in The Chicago Tribune we reproduce same below:

IF you have from $100 to $10,000 to invest and are interested in FACTS, NOT FIGURES, in what has been done and is being done every day;

Not prospects and promises;

If you want to invest your money in something that is paying dividends now and has been doing so for five years;

If you want your money to share equally with every other dollar invested in the corporation instead of taking only six or seven per cent while the common stockholder gets 15 or 20 per cent;

If you want to invest your money in a business that is doing in a wholesale way what the big mail order houses are doing in a retail way;

If you want to make an absolutely safe investment in guaranteed 6 per cent Full Participating stock that is sure to increase in value every year,

Then investigate one of the cleanest and safest business investments that has ever been offered to the public.

"THE BLUE DEVIL" is the appellation given Lieut. Col. Fabry, commander of the daring Alpine chasseurs of the French army. He came to this country with Gen. Joffre and the French delegation. He was practically unnoticed until the spokesman for the country's guests, M. Hovelacque, told of the awful experiences and remarkable instances of heroism of Lieut. Col. Fabry.

JOFFRE, "pere Joffre" (papa Joffre), he is called by all France. He is the hero of the battle of the Marne, was the active commander-in-chief of all the allied forces in France for two years, is the present marshal of France, an honorary title and a tribute, and he is now the guest of this country. This photograph was posed in full dress uniform by Marshal Joffre just before he left Paris for America.

"THE CINDERELLA PRINCESS," the maharanee of Kapurthala, recently gave the British government $200,000 for motor cars to be used in the war. She was Senorita Delgado, a dancer at the Royal theater in Madrid, Spain, when the maharajah attended the wedding of King Alphonso. The wealthy and powerful Indian prince fell in love with her and she with him. She became his favorite wife, as he already had several under the polygamic system of India. Later she captured the hearts of European society by her beauty and accomplishments. The maharajah, at the outbreak of the war, gave the British government his regiments of Sikhs and his income for a year, which amounts to over a million. He has since been a frequent contributor to the British government. The maharanee lost $4,000,000 in jewels when the P. & O. liner Persia was torpedoed.

A SNIPER'S END—This German sniper, an excellent shot, day after day had been picking off British soldiers who were indiscreet enough to get their heads above the trench parapets. They were unable to locate the sniper's position, so they called upon "Bull's Eye" Khan, a Durani from Kabul, once a cattle thief and specialist in battle, now a lance-duffadar of the British Indian light infantry. "Bull's Eye" stuck a helmet on his rifle butt, traced the direct line of the shot and picked off the German menace with one bullet.

Where the doctor put the blame

Diphtheria broke out among several children in a family. The parents could not account for it; there had been no other cases in the neighborhood.

The mystery was only solved when the family physician, who insisted on examining the whole house, found bits of decayed vegetable matter clinging to the sides of the garbage can.

It was the mother's fault. Her children were in the sick-bed because she did not know the importance of keeping her whole home sanitary. She had never realized the necessity of having the garbage can thoroughly disinfected inside and out.

Protect your family from disease

Profit by the experience of others. Keep your garbage pail free from contagion with Sylpho-Nathol, the sure disinfectant for waste-pipes, garbage can and scrubbing.

It is a germ-killer three and a half times stronger than the U. S. Public Health Service standard. It is entirely safe. For thirty years New England women have used Sylpho-Nathol. The leading hospitals of New York and New England use this disinfectant. Let your home profit by their choice.

Keep your home sanitary

Use germ-killing solutions of Sylpho-Nathol in the course of your regular housework. In the waste-pipes, in the dark corners of the house, in the cracks of floors and woodwork, in the closet bowl; in all these places lurking disease is destroyed by Sylpho-Nathol.

Ask your dealer today for Sylpho-Nathol. Four sizes—10c, 25c, 50c and $1.00. Sent prepaid on receipt of price if your dealer hasn't it. Booklet telling uses and directions with each bottle. The Sylpho-Nathol Co., [illegible] Street, Boston, Mass.

Disfiguring blemishes need the "soap cream" treatment.

If an oily skin and shiny nose is your bugbear, make the lather treatment a daily habit.

To clear a blemished skin

What is the matter with your skin? Is it marred by disfiguring blemishes?

It need not be.

By the proper treatment, you can make your skin what you would love to have it. Begin tonight this treatment for blemished skins. See if it does not make your skin so strong and active that it will keep your complexion smooth and clear.

How to treat blemished skins

Just before retiring, wash in your usual way with Woodbury's Facial Soap and warm water, finishing with a dash of cold water. Then dip the tips of your fingers in warm water and rub them on the cake of Woodbury's until they are covered with a heavy "soap cream." Cover each blemish with a thick coat of this soap cream. Let it stay on for a few moments, then rinse off. Rinse very thoroughly first in tepid water, then in cold. Repeat this cleansing antiseptic treatment every night until the blemishes disappear.

Use Woodbury's regularly thereafter in your daily toilet. This will make your skin so strong and active that it will keep your complexion free from blemishes—clear and attractive.

A 25c cake of Woodbury's Facial Soap is sufficient for six weeks or a month of this blemish treatment. Begin tonight to get its benefits for your skin.

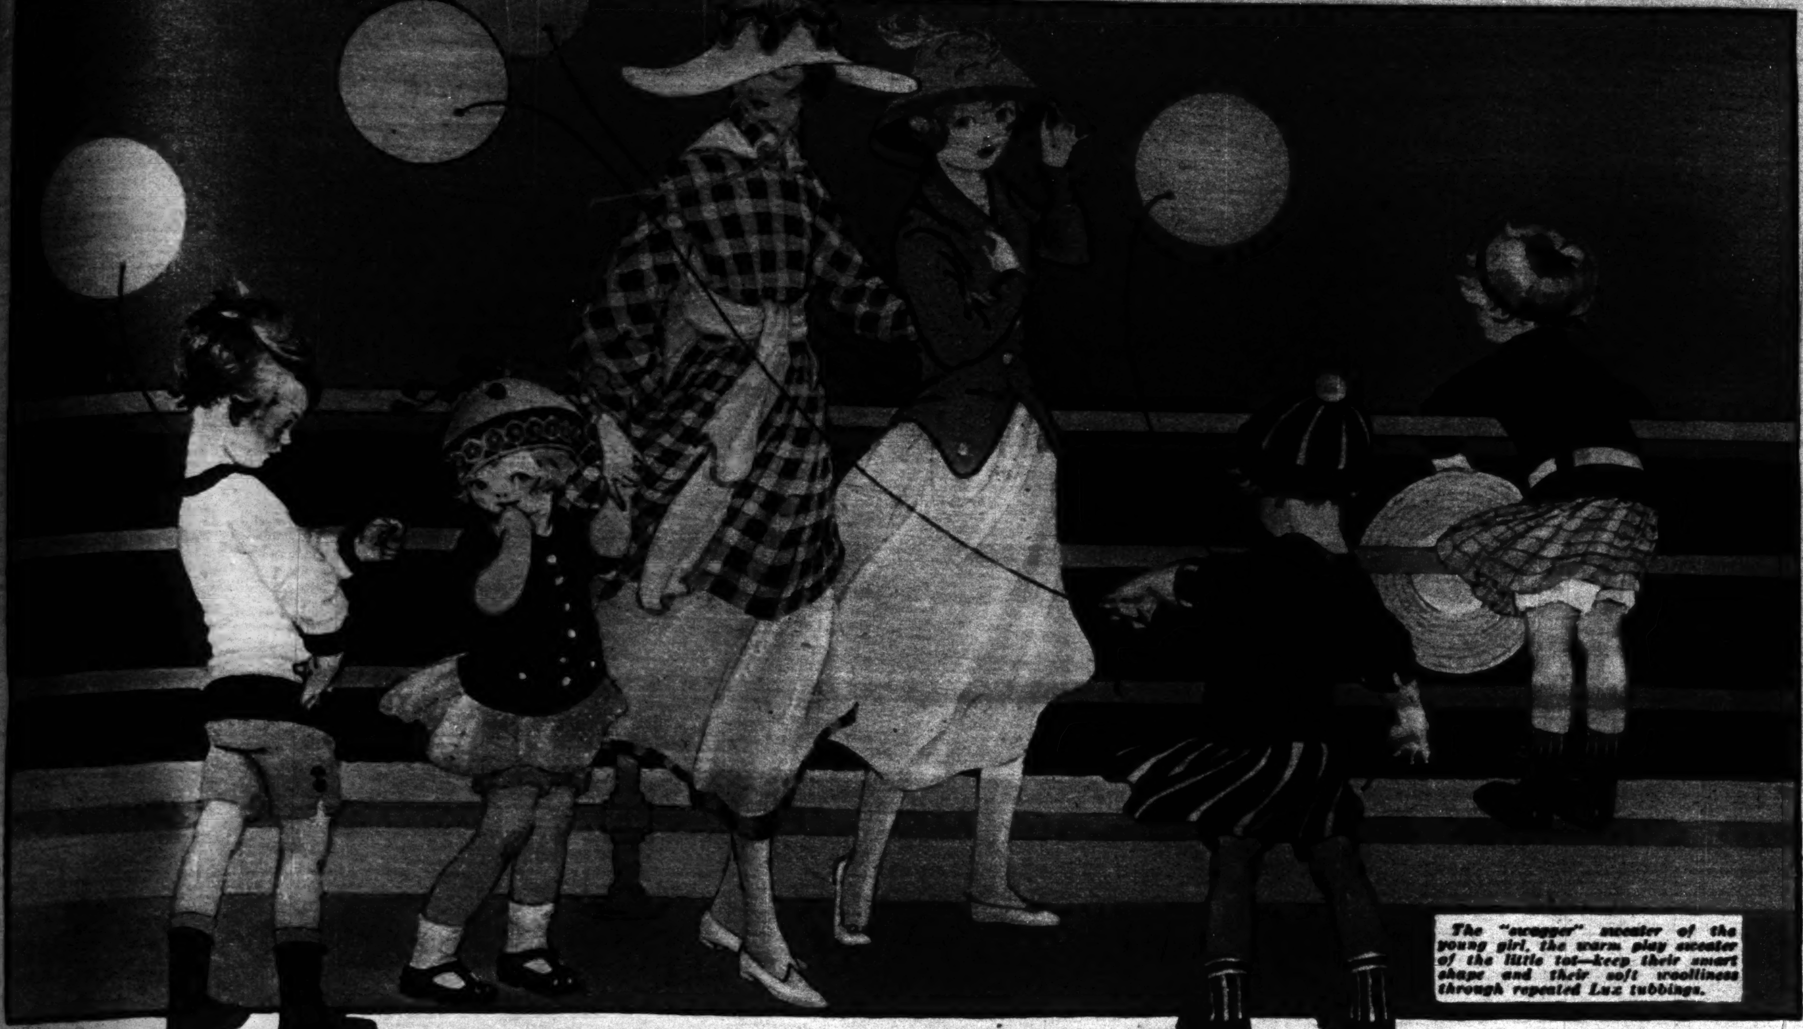
Send for a week's-size cake

For 4c we will send a cake of Woodbury's Facial Soap large enough for a week of any of these skin treatments, together with a miniature edition of the large Woodbury Book, "A Skin You Love to Touch," giving all the famous Woodbury skin treatments and valuable facts about the care of the skin which few people know. For 10c we will send the booklet and samples of Woodbury's Facial Soap, Facial Cream and Powder. Address The Andrew Jergens Co., 5013 Spring Grove Avenue, Cincinnati, Ohio.

If you live in Canada, address THE ANDREW JERGENS CO., 5013 Sherbrooke St., Perth, Ontario, Canada.

Woodbury's Facial Soap is for sale by dealers everywhere throughout the United States and Canada.

JOHN H. WOODBURY'S
FACIAL SOAP



The "swagger" sweater of the young girl, the warm play sweater of the little tot—keep their smart shape and their soft woolliness through repeated Lux tubbings.

Wonderful for Sweaters! Blouses! Stockings!

No rubbing to break the threads—no discolored or faded stockings.

And all these are things that you have found it most difficult to launder!

Even the greatest care could not bring them from a tubbing without their softness, freshness and loveliness gone!

You have become so used to it that you expect your prettiest things to be half spoiled when laundered—you wear them as long as possible before their first laundering, and try not to look at them too closely when they come back.

Keep your sweater soft and woolly

You need not be resigned to ruined things; you can dare to look closely at your filmiest blouse, your fuzziest sweater, even after they have been laundered many times.

For it is not that your sweater or silk stockings cannot stand a tubbing, but that they cannot stand the kind of soap you use.

Even the best cake soap should not be used on woolens or on delicate fabrics.

Rubbing the soap on the garment, more rubbing to get the soap out, makes the wool fibers shrink and grow harsh, makes your silk blouse turn yellow, wears through the threads in your very nicest stockings.

Do not let your loveliest waist be spoiled

The fragile Lux flakes do away with every bit of rubbing. They melt into a bubbly lather that contains more cleansing value than is possible with any other form of soap.

You dip your softest woolens, your sheerest waists and silk combinations, through it a few times—and the dirt is gone!

Your woolens will come from their laundering like new if you will use Lux and very hot water. The hotter the water the more quickly the dirt will loosen and fall out into the thick suds.

For silks the water should be just lukewarm—and in lukewarm water, too, the Lux flakes bubble into the same creamy, cleansing lather.

Thousands of women all over the United States could hardly believe it when they first heard of the wonderful results Lux gives.

Thousands and thousands now say that they cannot afford to be without Lux. They wonder how they managed before they found it, how they bore to see their things lose their beauty and wear out so quickly.

Everywhere that Lux has been introduced women have recognized its wonder at once. No woman who has tried it is willing to be without it ever again.

Even the frailest things

Their "difficult" laundering is no longer difficult! They buy the most fragile waists, the most elaborate camisoles, and wear their most expensive sweaters every day, without a qualm about their getting dirty.

They know that their own and the children's sweaters will be as soft and well shaped as ever, that their silk blouses will stay white and lovely, that fine lace collars and sheer, embroidered baby dresses can be cleaned and yet stay whole and beautiful.

At grocers' and department stores

One trial of Lux will prove to you what wonderful results it gives—try it on anything that pure water won't injure. Do not risk any more fragile silks or laces, any more soft woolens, with ordinary soap. Order Lux today from your grocer, or from a department store. Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Mass.

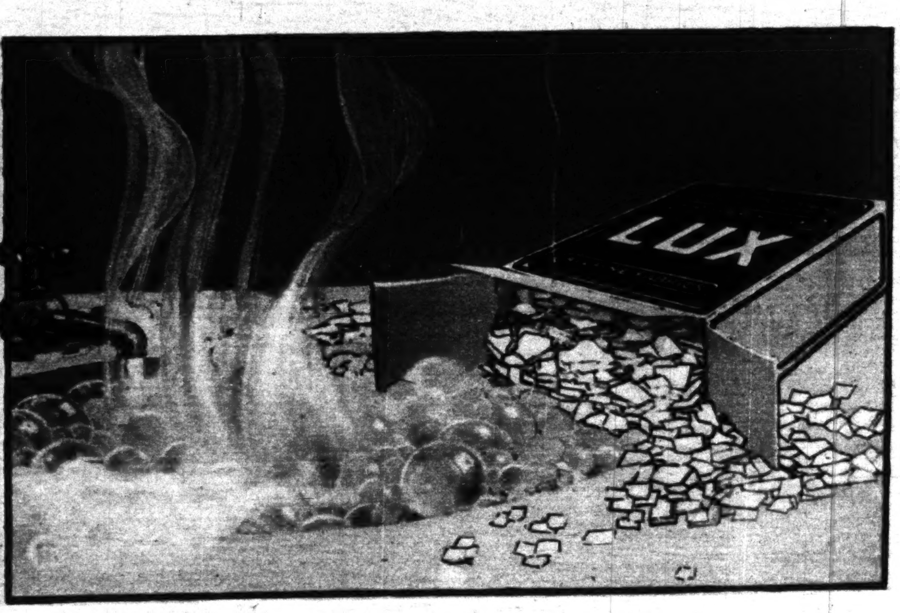
LUX

Won't shrink woolens!

Won't turn silks yellow!

Won't injure even chiffons!

When your nice blouses come from their Lux laundering, one glance tells you that they are not only clean again, but are as lovely as when they were new.



The creamy Lux lather is so cleansing that it does away entirely with that rubbing which is so hard for you, and so ruinous to fine garments.

OWN·YOUR·OWN

BUILDINGS

THEY'RE-READY-MADE

Choose Yours Now

THERE are two very important facts for you in that heading. First—Togan cottages are ready-made—they save time, trouble and money for you. You pick out the cottage you like and it is shipped directly to the spot where you want it assembled. Two or three inexperienced men can bolt it together in from one to four days, depending upon the size of the building.

The second fact is this: Summer is almost here. Now is the time to order your cottage so you can have it just when you want it. Lumber prices are on the rise and it will cost you at least 25% to 50% over the Togan prices to build these cottages and then they would not be nearly as good looking as Togan buildings.

Now think of that first point again—You buy your Togan cottage like a piece of furniture—ready-made. It's the modern way of doing things. Take your dressing table for example: It came to you built—all you did was to have the mirror standards screwed on and the glass hung. You did not have a carpenter get some lumber and build it—no, indeed—nor did you not order the lumber cut the right size and then have the carpenter nail the table together. That is the "ready-cut" method of building. You bought that table ready-made and that's just the way you buy Togan buildings.

Togan cottages are made in a modern factory. Through big buying and big manufacturing, concentration in production and the scientific division of labor, you enjoy a substantial money saving and you get better buildings. The carpenter work has been done by experts such as you could not find or hire ordinarily.

Togan cottages come to you in sections ready to bolt together. The doors are hung—the windows are placed—no sawing or nailing. The sections go together with the Togan lock joint, making an absolutely rain-proof, dust-proof and wind-proof building.

Togan cottages are beautiful in design. You can see that from photographs reproduced here. They are made from the best grades of selected lumber—quality you seldom see in the finest homes.

Togan cottages come in sizes and styles to suit every taste or need. Now is the time to make your plans—summer is almost here and you'll want to get up to that favorite spot at the lake or out in the country. You can own your own cottage the Togan way with a minimum cost to you and without building worries or delays. By ordering early, you get your Togan cottage just when you want it.

Togan Garages

They are ready-made—just like the cottages. They come in sections in any size you wish that is a multiple of 3 feet (three feet being the width of the sections). For example: 9' x 12', 12' x 15', 15' x 18', etc. Notice the photograph in the lower right-hand corner—it is every bit as good as it looks, too. One of these garages will pay for itself in a few months.

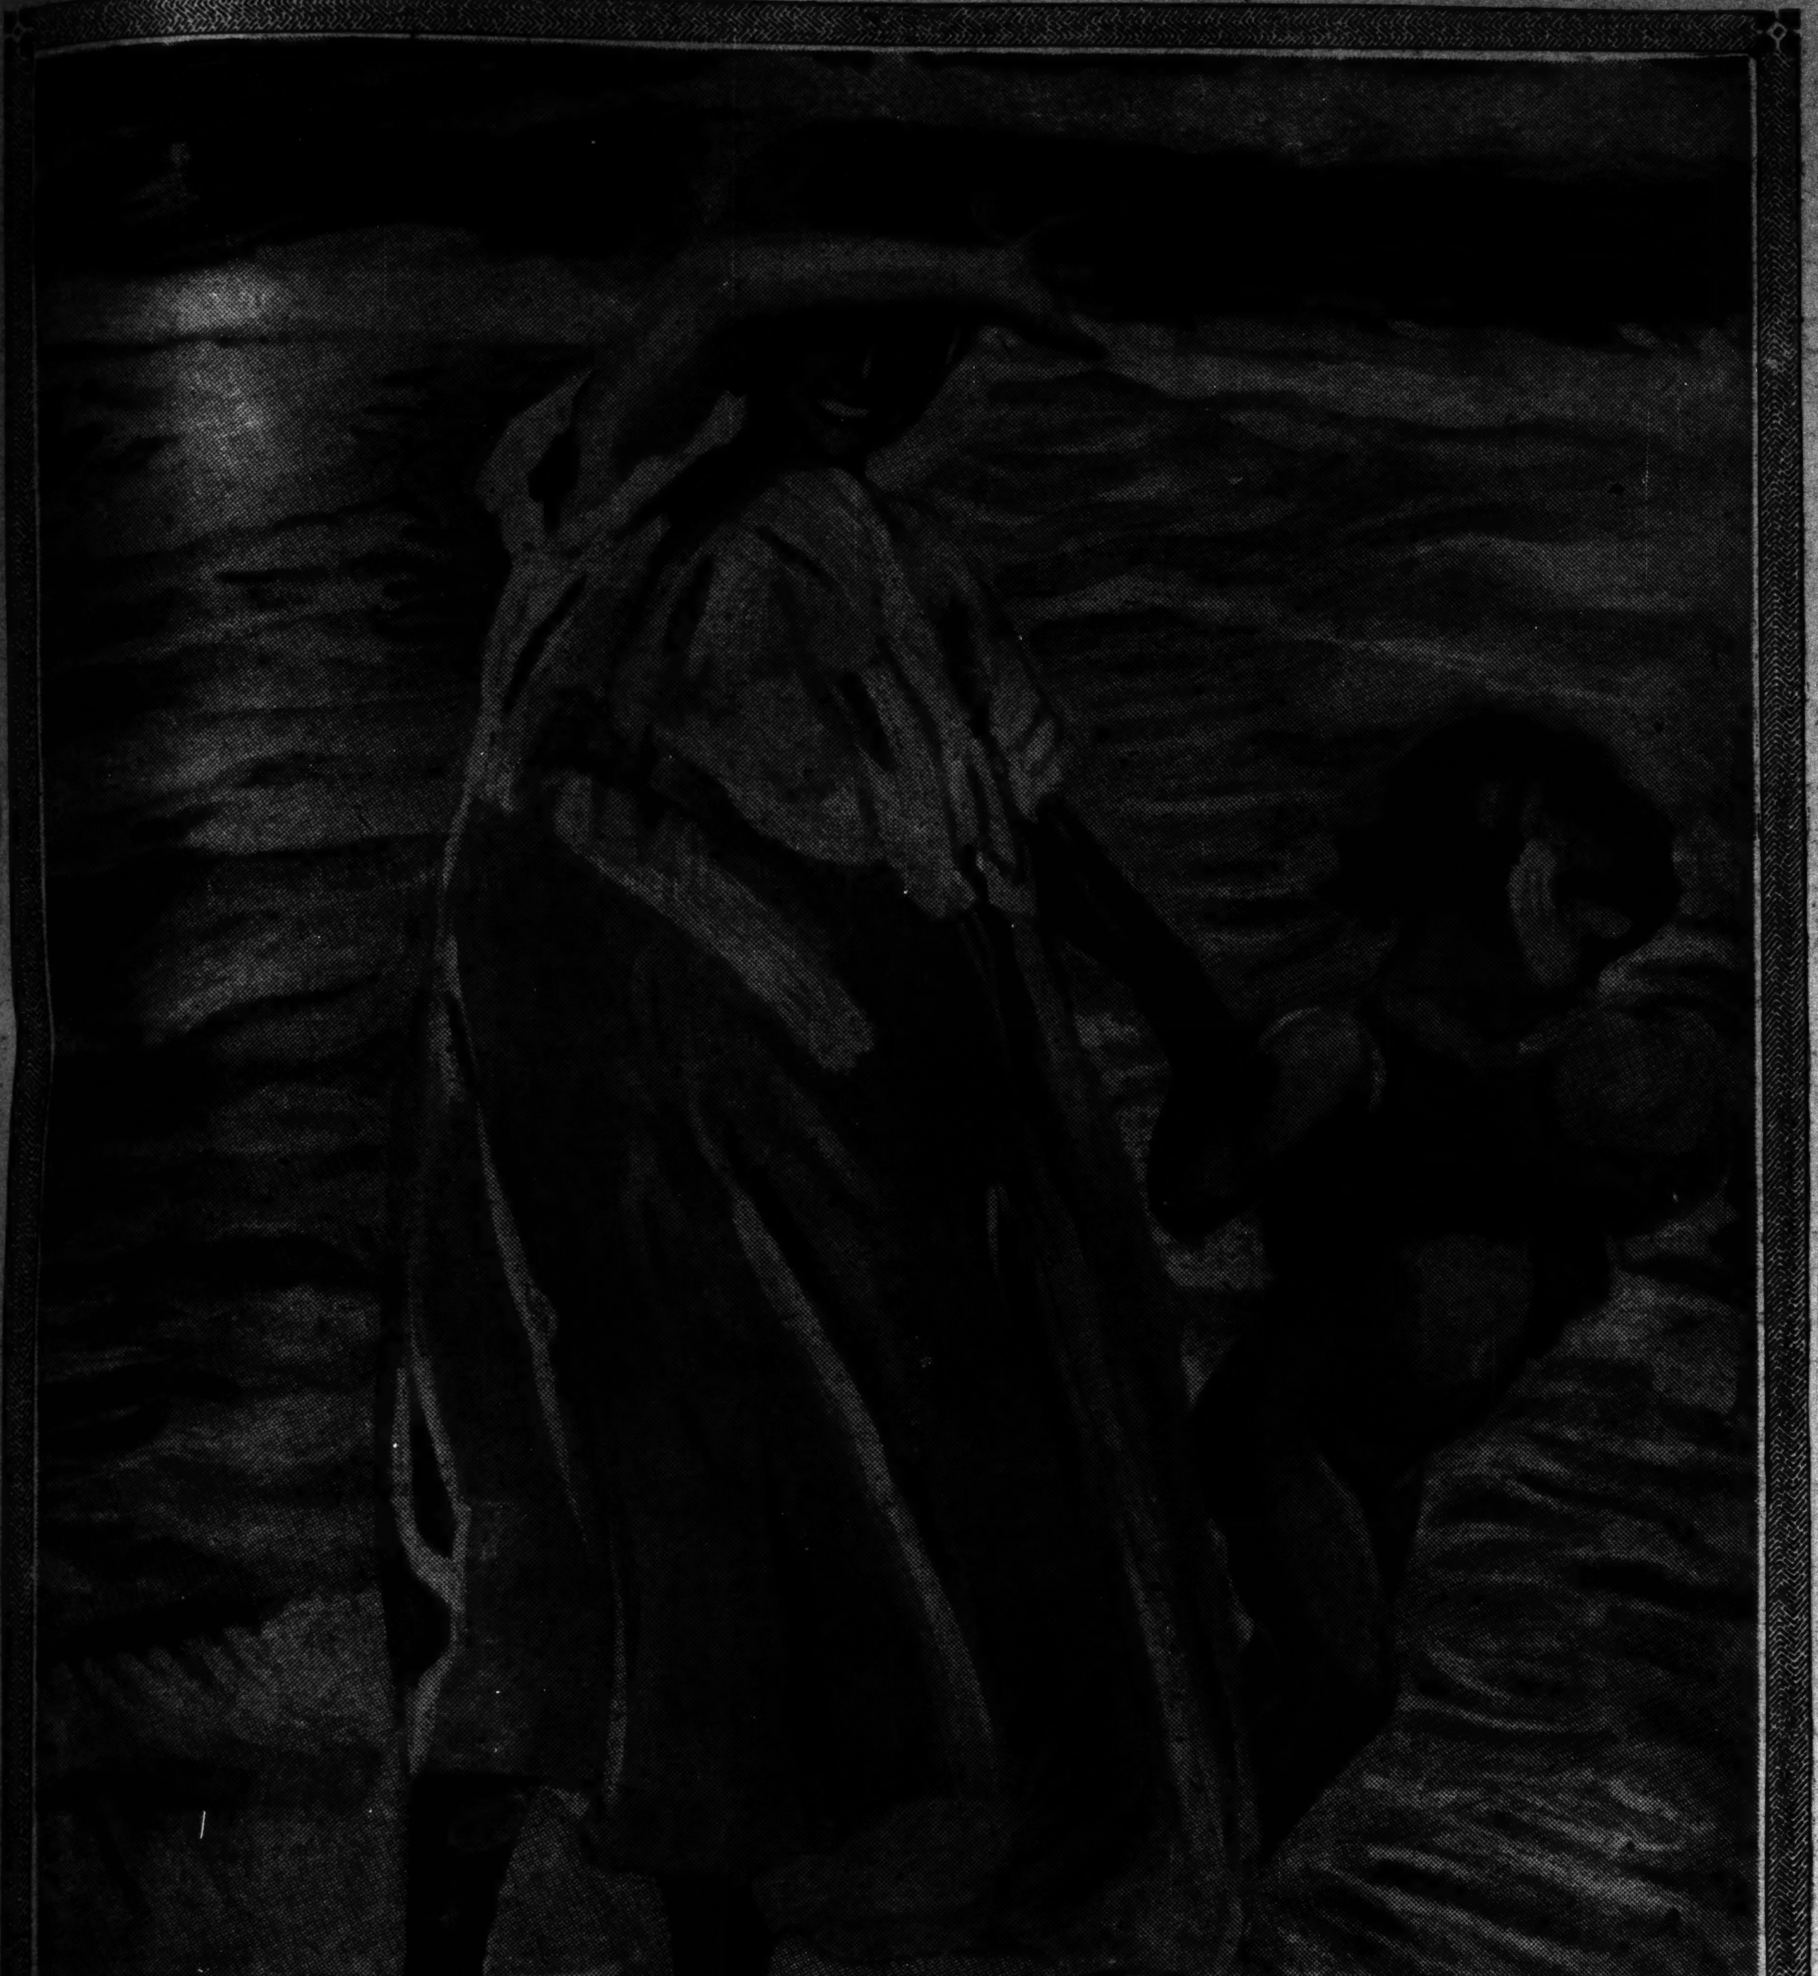
THE TWO SISTERS ⁘ By SOROLLA



(The story of the painting will be found on page 2.)

"The Two Sisters," by Joaquin Sorolla y Bastida. Art Institute of Chicago. (1862, Valencia, Spain.)

SEVEN years ago the Hispanic society in New York held an exhibition of pictures by Senor Sorolla. In a few weeks' time over 160,000 people had crowded the galleries to view the display, and each day miles of motor cars and carriages crept past the white walled museum to carry away the enthused and somewhat ecstatic visitors. It was as if New York had sighted a new land of art and in the completeness of its joy had raised its voice in one vast chorus of praise to this "conquering painter of sunlight."

One can understand something, at any rate, of this almost unexampled popular enthusiasm for things artistic in even a brief survey of this "Two Sisters." It is a brilliant sketch of a summer instant with lithe wet figures glistening in a radiance that dazzles. The atmosphere is fairly saturated with sunlight; it is a blazing piece of work, a furious assault on open air that takes away the breath for a moment and then leaves one swept with an inarticulate sense of satisfaction.

Have you ever listened to a good tenor declaiming the "Miserere"? From Sorolla's paintings one may get somewhat the same keen thrill. Perhaps this is due the dynamic fashion with which he handles the primary colors. He is a modern luminist, claiming many of the honors of impressionism because he experiments in new delineation of sunlight and atmosphere.

In the Metropolitan museum there are four of his paintings, all done in the same blazing style. In one three girls are poised on the iridescent whirl of a broken wave, and in another a girl whose form glows rosy under a sheer and shimmery wet robe is standing still while a boy places a mantle about her shoulders.

They are, as the painting shows in the accompanying illustration, agreeable, entertaining, diverting. And though there are many who deny him any right whatever to the title of greatness, and who marvel vociferously on the madness of a throng that, knowing Zorn and Hassam and Sargent and Whistler, puts itself to actual physical discomfort to view the paintings of this Valencian, the fact remains that Sorolla does hold the interest of the multitudes.

This picture, which hangs in the permanent collection of the Art institute, may be had in several sizes; the most popular size, however, is the 25 cent reproduction in color.

Another famous painting will be reproduced next Sunday.

Captivating Mary Carstairs

by HENRY SYDNOR HARRISON

SYNOPSIS.

Elbert Carstairs, estranged from his wife and longing for the sight of his daughter, Mary, engages Larry Varney and Peter Maginnis to take the Carstairs yacht, the Cyprian, to Hunston-on-the-Hudson, there to kidnap Mary. On arrival in Hunston, Varney and Maginnis as a blind enlist with the reform element to throw out the political grafters who are running the town. By accident, Varney learns that Mary Carstairs is not a 12 year old girl, but a beautiful young woman. Varney's close resemblance to Ferris Stanhope, an author of pink tea literature, who has got himself into bad grace in Hunston through affairs with girls, makes Varney's presence in the town hazardous. The political gang, working under the direction of Boss Ryan and through Calleny Smith, editor of the Hunston Gazette, use the lever of Varney's resemblance to Stanhope to balk Varney's help in the reform movement. A scurrilous article about Stanhope and a picture finish Varney in the eyes of the townspeople. Hammerton, a local reporter who is correspondent for the New York Press, by a ruse learns that Varney's real mission to Hunston is to kidnap Mary. Maginnis buys out the Gazette and thus steals a march on Ryan, and he and Varney win Hammerton over by making him editor of the paper. On pretext of giving a tea, Varney gets Mary aboard the yacht intending to take her to her father, but he loses heart and turns back. He learns that the engine of the yacht has been damaged by the skipper.

SIXTEENTH INSTALLMENT.

Varney Has to Pay a Price.

THE young man descended the steps in a state of the flattest depression. Disappointment, he reflected bitterly, crowded upon the heels of disappointment on this anti-climactic afternoon, which yet should have been, in a bigger sense, so gloriously climactic. He had missed his train, and with it his honorable confession to Mr. Carstairs; missed Higginson; last, and worst of all—it seemed to him now that this was all that mattered in the least—he had missed Miss Carstairs. In sooth, the world was all awry.

But at the gate a thought came to him, radiant as a heavenly messenger. Miss Carstairs was at her seamstress' on the Remsen road. Had she not told him with her own lips that she was to be there at this hour?

He made a "Te Deum" of the click of the gate and turned northward a face which bore record of an inner splendor.

He had set out to see Miss Carstairs in order to ask of her if she knew the whereabouts, in Hunston or New York, of the fair spoken yet elusive Higginson. But with every step he found the force of this errand weakening within him. The memory of that gentleman's villainy, so burning a moment since, grew steadily fainter and more inconsequential. Failing to locate him, he would, of course, make a precautionary round of the newspaper offices in New York that night. At the worst, he told himself with the swift fading of his anger, there was only a remote risk of any unpleasant aftermath. Why, the thing was over and done with—let bygones be bygones. As for those other matters supposed to be upon his mind—hints of approaching trouble for himself, and the knowledge of Mr. Carstairs' bitter disappointment over the collapse of his all but triumphant scheme—he could not for the life of him give them any attention whatever.

A far nearer and more vital matter was pressing upon his mind and heart.

To tell her everything at the moment when the yacht had swung back and he had thrown up his commission forever had been his first strong impulse. He had crushed it down only because he saw that to speak then was to take her at an ungenerous disadvantage. Now fortune had sent him this new meeting, to be untrammeled by any such restraints. No grim duty governed his movements now; no consciousness of secret chicanery any longer enfolded him like a pall. Already the thought of what he had meant to do came back to him hazily, like the plot of a half forgotten play. The hobgoblins in a nightmare seemed not more unreal to him now. His heart sang with the knowledge that he was to see her again, this time with no shadow between.

Two nights' rain had left the road dustless; it was silent and empty. All about him fell the pleasant evening noises of the wood, but he did not hear them. As he walked his mind was rehearsing the whole story of his coming to Hunston, as he was now free to confess it to Uncle Elbert's daughter. That she would forgive him he never entertained a doubt. For he would throw himself wholly on her mercy—telling her everything, painting himself as blackly as he could—and suing for pardon only because he had failed.

But when suddenly he saw her, sooner than he had expected, his polished and elaborate phrases dropped from his mind as cleanly as had the recollection of the roguery of Higginson.

It was at that hour when the skies remember the set sun in a gold and pink glow. A little kink in the road straightened out under his swift feet, and a small cottage in a fair sized lawn jumped out of the woods into vision, almost upon him. On the small square porch, her back to the road, stood Miss Carstairs, talking through the open window to some one in the room beyond.

Varney, having stopped short at the first sudden sight of her, walked on very slowly. Her voice came to him distinctly, and now and then he caught scattering words of what she was saying. She wore her blue dress of the luncheon and the hat which Mrs. Marne and others had so admired; and she gave him the odd impression of being somehow older than she had ever seemed before. Yet she was ten years his junior, and three days ago, at this very hour, he had never so much as laid eyes upon her.

"I'll come Saturday morning, then," she was saying, "and you'll certainly have them ready for me, won't you? Good-by."

She turned from the window, came toward the steps. At the top of them, she saw Varney standing at the gate, not twenty yards away, and stopped dead. Then she came on down the stairs, down the graveled walk toward him.

"I'm going away at 8 o'clock," he began, without greeting, striving to make his voice casual. "I went to your house first—and——"

"You—followed me here?"

"Yes," he said, unsmiling. "I had to see you before I went—on matters of business—and——"

She was nearer to him now; for the first time he could see her eyes. In them lay a faint shadowiness like the memory of shed tears; but sweeping over that and blotting it out he saw a look which struck him like a blow.

"There is nothing for you to see me about, I think—any more," she said, with a little laugh. "The game is up—isn't that what they say in melodrama? My mother has told me all about it."

"Your mother has told you!" he echoed, stupidly, as one to whom the words conveyed no meaning.

"She had not expected to see me so soon again, when I went off to lunch on my father's yacht. The surprise was a little too much for her. You must try to forgive her," said Mary, and punctuated the observation with a small, final bow. "Will you open the gate for me?"

"No," said Varney, pulling himself sharply together. "Not like that."

The shock of her voice and look, even more than her words, had been stunning in their first unexpectedness. But now he remembered, with infinite relief, that of course she did not understand the matter at all; of course she would speak and look very differently when he had made his explanation.

"You think," Varney said, "that I mind your knowing about our poor little plot—that I am found out and my plans are all upset? How on earth could you think that? Why, that's all like something in another life. Don't you know what my being here at this moment means? The thing is all over, Miss Carstairs—all past and done with an hour before you ever saw your mother. I gave it up voluntarily. When the time came, just now on the yacht, I found out that it was impossible—unthinkable—I couldn't do it. The game was up then. That is one thing that your mother could not tell you, and it was to tell you this, and all the rest of it, that I followed you here."

She stood on the other side of the gate, hardly an arm's length from him, looking at him; a figure so pretty, so dainty, so extremely decorative that she seemed incapable of giving anything but pleasure. But in the eyes that met his own so unwaveringly he read at once the contradiction of this.

"Yes, I suppose that would always be the way, wouldn't it—that whenever I found out you were just going to tell me?"

If she had searched her mind for a way to strangle his headlong self-defense, she could not possibly have done it more effectually. There followed a horrible pause.

"You mean—that you do not believe me?"

"In the little while that I have known you, have you given me much reason to?"

"Can't you see that that is exactly the reason I wanted to tell you all the truth now?"

"Why did you wait till now? Weren't there chances to tell me this afternoon on my father's yacht? But—there's no use to speak of all this. It is enough that I know it now."

He was aware that her voice had lost that hard and polished lightness with which she had first struck at him; on this last sentence he thought that it trembled a little; and in a flash he saw the whole matter from her side of it, and for the moment ceased to think about himself.

He leaned his arms upon the green panel of the gate and looked down at her.

"Don't think that I blame you for not taking my word. Probably I couldn't expect it. We can't very well argue about that. And, of course, I have known all along—how you would feel about me, when you found out what I came here to do. I was ready for that—ready for you to be angry. But I don't seem to have taken it in that you would be—hurt. That makes it a good deal worse."

She made no reply. She had lowered her heavy fringed eyes; her slim, gloved hands were busily furling and unfurling her white parasol.

"There is nothing in this that need hurt you. Believe me in this, at any rate. Only three people are concerned in it. You will have no doubt of your mother. That she told you shows how impossible it was to her, even with Uncle Elbert wanting you so much. You will not mind about your father—not in any personal way. He is a stranger to you. That leaves only me."

Still she said nothing. It seemed to him that he had never looked at so still a face.

"For me, I might make you angry as any—acquaintance might—any stranger. But that is all. It is not—as if we had been friends."

She raised her eyes, and the look in them seemed to give the lie to every word he had said.

"What do you call a friend? Did I not trust you—put myself in your power—fall confidingly in with your hateful plot—when I had been plainly warned not to? Oh, if I had only listened to Mr. Higginson I should not have the humiliation of remembering that—hour on the yacht!"

The name stung him into instant recollection. He stood staring at her, and his face darkened.

In the first staggering revelation of her look his subconscious mind had leaped instantly to the conclusion that his cunning enemy, having found out his secret, had betrayed it to Miss Carstairs. Her first words had disposed of that. It was the tortured mother, not the professional sneak, who had been before him with his explanation. But now it rushed over him that he had an infinitely deeper grudge against the vanished spy. For it was Higginson, with his bribe money, who had broken down the yacht; Higginson who would, in any case, have forced the return to Hunston; Higginson who had given this girl the right to think, as she did think, that she owed her escape wholly to an "accident" to the machinery.

He had thought that he had saved Uncle Elbert's daughter from himself, and lo, his enemy had plucked the honor from him. The world should not be big enough for this man to elude his vengeance.

"You mention Mr. Higginson. Where is he?"

She glanced at him, impersonally, struck by the unconscious sternness of his voice.

"I do not know, but I am most anxious to see him—to thank him——"

"I am told that he left town at 4 o'clock. Perhaps you know his address in New York?"

"I do not," she answered, coldly. "No doubt he went away hurriedly—frightened of you because of his kindness to me."

She came a step forward to the gate. Instantly his thought veered back to her and his tense face softened.

"How can I blame you," he said, hurriedly, "for thinking the worst of me? I've been thinking badly enough of myself, God knows. But don't you know, can't you imagine, that nothing could have held me to the miserable business a single moment after I saw you, had I not been bound by a solemn promise to your poor father?"

"My father! Oh, if he is the sort of man to plot a thing like this, and to bludgeon my mother into it, how could you endure to promise to do it for him?"

"Because he is breaking his heart for you, and you didn't know it. It seemed right that he should see you, since he wants to so much."

All her sense of the wrong he had done her flared up in anger at that. "How do you—dare say what seems right between my father and me? He is breaking his heart for me, he told you? Did he mention to you that she had broken hers for him? Don't you suppose that I have had time—good reasons—to decide which of them I belong to?"

"All this," he said, "was before I knew you."

About them hung the stillness of the country and the long empty road. The woods stirred, a bird called; a portly hare poked his nose through the brush over the way, and suddenly scuttled off, his white flag up. In Mrs. Thurston's yard the quiet was profound.

"All his life," said Mary Carstairs, "my father has thought about nothing but himself. I am sorry for him—but he must take the consequences of that now. If he is lonely it is his own making. If my mother has been lonely till it has almost killed her that is his doing, too. For you—there was never any place in this. As for me, I owe him nothing. He must beg my mother's forgiveness before he shall ever get mine."

She came forward another half step and laid her hand upon the gate latch with a movement whose definiteness did not escape him.

"You may take back that answer from me if you wish. And so, good-by."

"Not good-by," said Varney instantly. "You must not say that."

"I am quite sure that I have nothing else left to say."

Her eyes went past him over the gate, out into the wood beyond. Dusk was falling about them; it shaded her face, intangibly altered it, made it for the moment almost as he had known it before. She looked very young and tired. This was the picture of her, and he knew it then as he looked at her, that he would carry with him to the longest day he lived.

"Is it nothing to you," he cried in a rush, "that when the time came I couldn't do it? The yacht's breaking down had nothing in the world to do with it. I had already decided to turn back, to break my promise. That the—accident happened just then was only a wretched chance. I was going to put about at that moment."

She hesitated almost imperceptibly, seemed for a brief second to waver. But perhaps she dared not let herself believe him now; perhaps the strongest wish of her heart was to hurt him as deeply as she could.

"To say the least," she said with a little deliberate movement of distaste, "your coincidences are unfortunate. You—won't mind if I go on being grateful to the—gear?"

Under that crowning taunt his self-restraint snapped like an overstretched bow-string.

"You shall not say that. You shall not. Miss Carstairs, you know I could have kept you on the yacht if I had wanted to. You know how I gave the order to put about and bring you back to Hunston. Did I look in the least then like a man whose hopes and plans had been ruined? You know I did not. You know I said to you that I—I was the happiest man in America. Will you tell me what on earth that could mean—except that I had decided to give up a thing that has been a millstone around my neck ever since—I met you?"

She made no reply, did not look at him. The dusk shadowed her eyes; and whether her silence meant good or ill he could not tell.

"You cannot answer, you see. We both know why. You will not be fair to me, Miss Carstairs. It is that night in the Academy box office over again. Because I had to deceive you once—not for my own sake—you will not look at the plain facts. But in your heart—just like that other night—I know you believe me."

Of course she could not let that pass now. "I do not!" she said. "I do not. I must ask you, please, not to keep me here any longer."

Varney's face went a shade paler. Arguing about his own veracity was even less bearable than he had thought; his manner all at once became singularly quiet.

"The merest moment, if you will. I can prove what I say," he answered slowly, "but of course I won't do that. You must believe what I say, believe me. Nothing else matters but that. Don't you know that it took a very strong reason to make me break faith with my old friend, your father—to make me stand here begging to be believed like this? You have only to look at me, I think. Don't you know that I couldn't possibly deceive you now—after what has happened to me?"

"I don't know what you mean. I don't understand. Don't tell me. Nothing has happened."

"Everything has happened," he said still more quietly. "I've fallen crazily in love with you."

She did not lift her eyes; neither moved nor spoke; gave no sign that she had heard. He went on slowly:

"This—might be hard to believe, except that it must be so easy to see. I've known you less than three days, and I never wanted to—even like you. My one idea was to think of you as my enemy. That was what Maginnis and I agreed—plotting together like a pair of nihilists. It all seems so preposterous now. Everything was against me from the beginning. I wouldn't face it till today, this afternoon. Then it all came over me in a rush, and, of course, your happiness became a great deal more to me than your father's. So we turned around, and it was then that I told you how happy I was. Didn't you know then what I meant? Of course it was because I had just found out . . . how you were the one person in the world who mattered to me."

There was a long silence. It deepened, grew harder to break. Little Jenny Thurston, watching these two through an upstairs shutter, marveled what adults found to say to each other in these interminable colloquies. A young cock sparrow, piqued by their stillness, alighted on the fence nearby and studied them, eye cocked inquisitively.

"Of course, I'm not—asking anything," said Varney. "About this, I mean. I am answered, and overanswered, already. But . . . do you believe now that I—voluntarily gave it up?"

"O," said Mary, "you—you must not ask me that. You must not talk to me like this. I did trust you once—fully—when you were almost a stranger; last night—and then this afternoon——"

"Do you believe me," said Varney, "or do you not?"

Her lower lip was trembling slightly, and she set her white teeth upon it. The sudden knowledge that she was near to tears terrified her, goaded her to lengths. She gathered all her pride of opinion and young sense of wrong and frightened feminine instinct for a final desperate stand, and so flung at him more passionately than she knew: "How many times must I tell you? I do not! I do not!"

Varney gave her a last look, stamping her face upon his mind, and took a step backward from the gate.

"Then," said he, "this is good-by, indeed."

Presently Mary raised her eyes. He had turned southward, toward the town, but at a pace so swift that he was already far down the road. A jutting curve came soon and he vanished behind it, out of her sight.

Dusk was falling fast on the wood now. The green of the trees deepened and blackened, turning into a crooked smudge upon the sky line. The road fell between them like a long gray ribbon. Nothing was to be seen upon it; nothing was to be heard but the rustle of the early night wind and the pleasant sounds of the open road.

Varney's mind as he walked was a blank white wall. He had forgotten Elbert Carstairs, forgotten the train he was to take, forgotten even the unendurable injury that Higginson had put upon him. His one blind instinct had been to get away as quickly and completely as possible. But now slowly it was borne in upon him that he knew this road, that he had walked it once before like this, at the end of the day. His first night in Hunston—he remembered it all very well. It must have been just here—or here—that the rain had caught him, and he had gone on to meet her.

The cottage which had sheltered them that night must be close at hand. His eyes, which had been upon the ground, lifted and went off down the road. They fell upon the dark figure of a man, shuffling slowly along in the gloom, not twenty yards ahead of him.

He was an old man, shambling and gray whiskered, and stooped as he walked. If he was aware that another wayfarer followed close behind he gave no sign. Suddenly he stopped short with a feeble exclamation and began peering about the ground at his feet. The young man was up with him directly, and his vague impression of recognition suddenly became fitted to a name.

"Orrick?"

The bowed form straightened and turned. Through the thickening twilight the two men looked at each other.

"You were not by any chance waiting for me?"

The darkness hid old Orrick's eyes; he shook his head slowly a number of times. "I passed you when you was at Miz Thurston's, sir. I can't walk fas' like you can." And he bent down over the road again.

"What's the matter with you?" asked Varney. "Have you lost something?"

"Los' my luck piece," said the other slowly, not looking up. "I was carryin' it in my hand 's I come along an' it jounced out. A 1812 penny it was an' vallyble."

He cut rather a pitiful figure, squatting down in the dirt and squinting about with short sighted, old eyes; and Varney felt unaccountably sorry for him.

"I wouldn' los' my luck piece for nothin'," he added, dropping to his knees. '"I'm a kind of a stoop'sitious man, an' I allus was,"

"Perhaps I can help you; my eyes are good."

He went back a step or two, bending down and scrutinizing the brown earth. Orrick, presently announcing that the coin might have rolled, made a slow way across the road on his knees, patting the ground with his hand as he moved. Near the edge of it, half in the woods, lay a thick piece of split firewood, long as a man's arm and stouter. The knotted old fingers stealthily closed on it.

"It couldn't have rolled far on this soft road," said Varney presently. "Just where do you think you dropped it?"

Sam Orrick rose behind his stooping figure with upraised club, a blaze of triumph in his sodden old eyes.

"There!" he cried, with a senseless laugh. "It's there, Stanhope!"

The club fell with a thud, and Varney, meeting it as he straightened up, toppled over like a log, face downward.

Old Orrick stared down at the prostrate figure, and presently touched it with his tattered foot. It did not stir. His fierce joy died. He looked about him apprehensively, and his eye fell at once upon a dim lit cottage off the road just back of him. His cottage—how had he forgotten that? Was that dark thing—a man—standing there at the gate? Suddenly a great terror seized the old man. He threw his stick into the woods and slunk away toward the town. A loud yell from behind brought his heart to his throat, and he broke into a wild, lumbering run.

In the new made study of his Remsen road cottage, Ferris Stanhope, Hunston's returned celebrity, sat under a green shaded lamp and frowned down at a sheaf of his own neat manuscript. Behind him, in a corner, books and various knickknacks lay spilled over the floor around an open trunk. The room was, in fact, in the litter incident to getting to rights. But this did not act as a stay on the great man's habit of industry, which happened to be of the most persistent variety.

The study blinds were drawn, and the rest of the house was in darkness. The author noted three emendations upon his manuscript, made three more. Then, with a muttered exclamation, he stripped off the interlined sheet altogether, tore it into shreds, threw the shreds on the floor, and reached for a pad of white paper. At that moment he became aware of footsteps and heavy breathing in the hall, and looked up inquiringly.

His man servant, Henry, was standing in the doorway, the long limp body of a man in his arms.

Mr. Stanhope sprang hurriedly to his feet. In his face the servant saw that same odd look of fleeting anxiety which he had noted there when they descended from the train that morning.

"In the name of heaven—what have you there?"

"Harskin' your pardon, sir," gasped Henry, staggering into the room, "I'm honcertain whether 'e's kilt or not. Struck down from behind by an old codger with long 'air and gray whiskers. Hi was at the gate——"

"But what do you mean by hauling the carcass in here? Do you think I'm running a private morgue?"

Henry, who had been in his present employment a bare month, came to a wobbly pause, surprised. The body grew very heavy in his stout arms. Now the man's head slid off Henry's shoulder and tumbled backwards, hanging down in the full glow of the lamp.

"Hi thought, sir——" began the servant with panting dignity.

"O, my God!" said the author suddenly.

Henry, who had not had a look at his burden, misunderstood.

"Ghastly sight, hain't it, 'r—that bloody gash on 'is 'ead?"

"Quick! Put him on the sofa. Now some water."

The servant, whose limbs were numb from the long carry, obeyed with alacrity. But returning hurriedly with the water he was met at the door by his perverse master, who took the glass from his hands with the curt announcement that that would do.

Henry looked as displeased as his subservient position made advisable. "Hif, you please, sir, I have quite a 'and with the hinjured and——"

"He's only stunned," said his master impatiently. "I'll attend to him myself."

And he banged the door in the servant's face.

Orrick rose behind his stooping figure with upraised club.

THE GIRL IN THE VINE COVERED COTTAGE

"The Cottage Spilled Out a Girl, a Slim Willow Wand of a Thing, in a Boy's Bathing Suit of Gorgeous Faded Blue."

IT was half after 9 of a Sunday morning; three ashen weeks on end it had rained without stopping, and a phonograph in the vine covered cottage to the east of Delaney's white bungalow had been playing since before breakfast:

"I'm here and you're here,
So what do we care?"

The phonograph sounding through the rain had a peculiar effect on Delaney's consciousness. It reminded him of flies droning, of mosquitoes whining, of lost souls sitting on the parapet of hell and whimpering when little flames licked up at them. As soon as the record was done some one apparently lifted the needle and started the whole unfeeling thing afresh:

"I'm here and you're here,
So what——"

Also as soon as the rain slackened the wind blew up, piling the clouds before it over the mountains, and then there came a freshening spatter on the window panes; a drizzle, then a downpour, then a cloudburst.

Delaney took his nose out of his newspaper and swore quietly; he did all things quietly.

Naka, wiping off the legs of the chairs in the living room, replied with an upward inflection and cryptic grin:

"Yess?"

"I'm about fed up with weather," said Delaney grimly.

"Yess," said patient Naka.

"That phonograph is an infernal nuisance."

"Yess?"

"Never is anything in the papers anyhow!" muttered Delaney, a statement manifestly unfair to both makers and breakers of news.

From the newspaper open in his hands looked up, in headlines, the coronation ceremonies of Yoshihito and Sadako; the departure of Kitchener for the Dardanelles, as well as the somewhat painful and sudden demise of a matron in the Twenty-fifth infantry who had unwisely deceived her lord—news almost sufficient unto any day, but Delaney distinctly was not at his best. You cannot, if you are in any way sensitively adjusted, retain a belief in the ultimate uses of adversity while rainbows are perpetually in the making.

Naka said "yess" once more and went back to his kitchen. Delaney got up with an uncontrollable movement of irritation, walked to the bookcase, and took out "The Wings of a Dove," which was presently to irritate him yet further.

To the south of his white pergolaed bungalow Diamond Head and the Pacific showed dimly across the town and through a pall of mist; to the north, a corrugated mountain range, deeply purple beneath a sagging weight of clouds. There was something menacing, something very nearly sinister, about those mountains. When Delaney looked out of his living room windows and met that wall of shadow he had a little sense of stifling. He remembered, as soon as his eyes fell upon that welter of sunless cloud, that life is not long but that death is longer. Also that the race is not always to the swift nor the battle to the strong, and that no matter how hard a man fights the nighttime cometh. Other things occurred to him, such as the faithlessness of humanity, the uselessness of art, and the not to be palliated emptiness of life in general.

Poor thoughts, all of them, for a man who has worked himself half way out of the world and has been sent by his doctors to Honolulu for sunshine and fresh air and love in idleness.

West of the bungalow a road ran, flowed rather, past occasional, small, sullen islands of grass, and east of the bungalow stood the vine covered cottage. Which orientates Delaney rather fully.

"The Wings of a Dove" lifted no one beyond the walls of that damp, inquiet living room.

The clock struck 10, after a vacant infinity the half hour, later 11. On the mountains the clouds lolled darkly. A mist came over those deeply shadowed gulches. Out either side of the valley, like a ghostly army marching, wraiths in file, from the mountains to the ocean, came the rain. The distant phonograph whined steadily:

"I'm here and you're here——"

"Ah-h!" said Delaney on a long drawn breath, between a sigh and a snarl. He flung his book across the room.

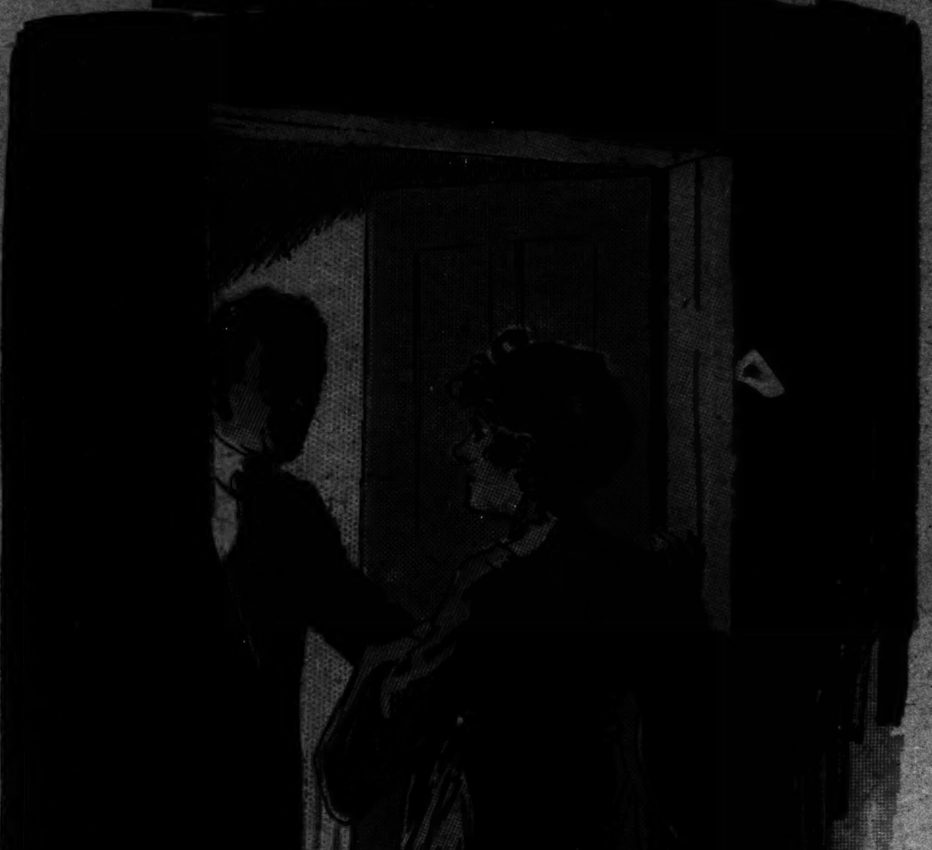
It struck with a thud and a rustle of leaves.

Naka looked out of the pantry door, much as a squirrel looks out of a tree, and waited for orders. Receiving none, he said "yess" very pleasantly and went back to his work.

"I'm here and you're here——"

It was then that a spirit in Delany's feet led him into his bedroom and back to its farthest window from which he looked with bitter resentment upon the vine covered cottage and directly upon its extraordinary occupants.

The vine covered cottage stood flat in a hollow of sodden grass. Buginvillea trailed upon its modest roof, and two sleepy lidded dormer windows looked out from under the Buginvillea. Roses stood about the door, a glimmer of drenched and mud veiled pink.



"I'm sorry," she said, "had to call you: it's a shame—but—have you got a gun?"

It was an unsubstantial cottage, mostly trellis work and deep, generous windows: sweet for a sunny day, something to dream of under an August moon, but for rain—three weeks of rain!

Delaney shivered, thrusting his hands into his trousers pockets, and while he shivered he heard a shriek; a high, gurgling shriek softened by some fifty yards of weather. The door of the vine covered cottage did not open. It had no door, merely a wide and hospitable gash in one of its many trellises. But out of this gash came a second shriek, ending in a bubble of laughter, and after that a boy—a man if you like, but a very young one—spinning out into the rain. He wore pink silk pajamas, and his blond, curly hair was brushed back from a face as unaffectedly malicious as a faun's.

At his heels the cottage spilled out a girl, a slim willow wand of a thing, in a boy's bathing suit of gorgeous faded blue. Her slender legs and arms were white as milk, but her hair was red. It flamed through the atrocious grayness of the air like a finger of sunset through a cloud. When she ran out of the cottage this splendid hair was pinned high, but with the first flying leap it loosened and fell about her shoulders. She flung back her head, shook out the ruddy masses, laughing. Then she and the pink pajamaed boy took hands and danced. The rain beat down in sudden, swirling fury all about them.

It was a mad dance. Delaney, watching, whistled between his teeth. North, south, east, west, only the swinging grayness, the swish and rustle of rain; empty road, for all the look of it, empty world—and there in the core of the streaming clouds those two incredible figures, leaping and turning, springing and pirouetting, shrieking with laughter, light as two wind blown feathers. At the climax of their unbelievable fandango a tiny Japanese poodle, a sketchy morsel of black and white, with hair bobbing into its eyes and a scrap of a tail worn proudly, whirled out of the cottage and clamored at the winged ankles.

Pink Pajamas yelped and ran in mimic terror. The girl in the faded blue bathing suit, her glorious hair dank against her cheeks, followed, snapping her fingers like castanets, her outstretched arm against the murk, a line of utter loveliness. The little dog stopped for a moment at the trellis, sniffed the air, then trotted mutely after his charges.

The world was once again a matter of mere wetness and different layers of gray.

"But, my Lord!" said Delaney to himself.

He left the window abruptly.

That afternoon the clouds broke and the sun came out for an hour: a watery truce, but grateful. Beyond Diamond Head the sea took on a certain cast of blue. Delaney wrote to his mother. He frequently wrote to his mother on Sunday afternoons. She was a rather remarkable old lady of strong Irish [illegible], and it was from her he had the hills and hollows of his nature. When he had finished his letter he sat for a while with his elbows on the desk and thought. The hour of sunshine being over, the sun set behind impenetrable clouds and the living room grew dusk.

Presently Delaney was aware of a footstep in the pantry which lay beyond the dining room. It was a lighter footstep than Naka's and moved more swiftly. Delaney went forth to see. As he went he snapped on the lights in the dining room and, when he had come to it, he turned the pantry switch as well. There had been sneak thieves that autumn in Manoa, camp followers of the rain, but it was not a sneak thief whom Delaney found in his pantry.

The girl with the red hair—it was now quite dry and done in a magnificent knot on top of her head—stood by the pantry shelf with a cup of sugar in one slim hand and blinked at Delaney impertinently. She wore a striped black and white frock, entirely respectable if a trifle flamboyant, and smashing little brilliant buckles on her rather muddy little black slippers. Her mouth was pink and her eyes were wide and lovely.

"Gee!" she said simply, "I didn't know you were home."

Delaney allowed the swinging door to close behind him. He put his hand in his pocket and took it out again. For incriminating embarrassment it might have been he and not she who carried that dubious cargo in the blue and white cup.

"I'd like to borrow some sugar," she said boldly, when Delaney only stroked his chin and stammered. "Matter of fact—I—have borrowed some sugar."

"You're entirely welcome," said Delaney, attaining a certain tardy assurance.

"Thanks. I thought Naka'd be here."

"No, he's off Sunday afternoons."

"Oh," said the girl—"of course! Well, I found I hadn't any for my tea, and I'm kind of old maidish about my tea—milk and sugar both, you know, or nothing doing—so I came over to beg."

"It was very good of you," said Delaney.

The girl looked at him with a quaint little grimace of protest.

"Don't encourage me. I'm a perfectly good little beggar, and I see Naka baked bread yesterday."

"Let me lend you a loaf."

Delaney had his hand on the bread tin. His eyes lit with eager amusement.

She made a boy's gesture of refusal.

"Not this time; much obliged. I've got to be trotting."

Delaney sought unexpectedly for something that would detain her.

"Haven't we had unspeakable weather?"

"Fine for swimming," said the girl cheerfully. She turned in the doorway.

"Good-by, Mr. Delaney."

"Wait—please wait!" cried Delaney. He added weakly: "I don't even know your name."

"And yet you lend me sugar! I'm Vera St. John." Her hand was on the screen door now.

"Why," said Delaney desperately, "why can't you stay and have tea with me, Miss St. John? I'm all by myself and the rain's on my nerves. Honestly, it would be a mercy. Would your people mind?"

Miss St. John shut the screen door and turned back into the pretty blue and white kitchen that was Naka's dominion.

She said gravely: "My maiden aunt's abroad. My chaperon has gone to sleep over her knitting, and it's my maid's afternoon off. I think I could stay all right. What were you going to have?"

Delaney looked helpless.

"You weren't going to have tea at all," she decided with a friendly grin; "a drink, maybe—and I see Naka has left you a plate of sandwiches. Tea was only a stall to get me to stay. Never mind! Heaven will protect the working girl. Where do you keep your teapot?"

She made tea before Delaney's relieved eyes, removed a damp napkin from the plate of sandwiches, and investigated calmly.

"Anchovy," she commented. "Isn't that bad! And Neufchatel with ripe olives chopped up in it. Some little cook, dear Naka! You've got a tea table, of course?"

"Of course I have," said Delaney. But he had first to sweep his tea table clear of a box of cigarets, the morning paper, and two ash trays.

Miss St. John brought a napkin for a tea cloth and set down two cups and saucers, green with a white Fujiyama on the side of each.

"You might turn off your bright lights and turn on your lamp," she suggested. "Why is it that a man always wants to light a home like a circus?"

When she had arranged all the paraphernalia of the party to her satisfaction she poured Delaney's tea and handed it to him with an elaborate sigh of content. "After my third cup," she warned, "I may insist upon telling you the story of my life. Gee, this is good, isn't it?"

Delaney admitted that it was. He leaned forward in his chair, a warm little feeling of friendliness growing in the back of his mind. His eyes lingered pleasantly on Miss St. John's ruddy hair, on the frank sweetness of her eyes, and the deliberate deviltry of her lower lip. He ate a number of sandwiches and asked for a second cup of tea.

"What was it?" she inquired thoughtfully as she offered the sugar bowl. "Nerves or typhoid?"

"Both," said Delaney, adding after an instant's quizzical uncertainty: "How did you know?"

Miss St. John graciously gave herself a second cup.

"You don't look like the sort to be doing nothing without a reason. Awfully sick?"

"About a couple of months."

"Gee, that's bad! You came out here to lie around in the sunshine, I suppose?"

"Something like that."

She raised her eyebrows, shrugged her shoulders, and laughed outright. "It's a rotten shame."

"O, I'm all right," said Delaney. He had not thought so that morning. "I need to be up a bit; that's all. Typhoid and overstrain." He added curiously: "Do I look such a wreck?"

"You did when you came three weeks ago."

Delaney smiled a little.

"I never saw you before today."

"Women—and cats—see farther than men," Miss St. John explained sweetly. "I'm on my third cup, you notice. Get me some more hot water, there's a duck."

So Delaney went out into his own unaccustomed kitchen, heated some water in a granite saucepan unnecessarily large, and returned to the pretty, lamp lit room, whistling quite unconsciously "I'm here and you're here——"

His guest looked up at him sharply, but he only said: "This was to have been the story of your life, wasn't it?"

And his smile was so cleanly nice that Miss St. John, her own eyes shining a little, replied: "Do I interest you strangely?"

"Immensely." She smiled in future, fingering her teacup, and turned quiet.

"I'm over here with my brother Gilbert—he's a mere kid—Gilbert the filbert, I call him. We're all that's left of a mid-Victorian family and I like to keep an eye on him. He's got the roving foot; doesn't like to stay at any one job too long for fear of going stale on it, so I've seen quite a bit of the country by and large. He's working for the gas company here now and I'm keeping house for him. We've been in that little cottage in your back yard almost six months, but I think Gilbert's getting restless again. I see the signs." She lifted her eyes to Delaney's keenly. "You like this place?"

Delaney opened and shut restless hands. He picked up a cigaret. "Mind if I smoke?" She shook her head.

"Well, then, I might like it if I weren't on edge to get back to the east."

"The east?" she said, slowly. "New York, eh? That's me! Funny: it spells you like any other town in the world, doesn't it?"

"It does me," said Delaney, briefly.

Miss St. John leaned forward, elbows on her knees, and the lamplight made a glory of her hair. Her eyes were wells of darkness.

"Today's the 6th of November," she mused. "It'll be cold enough for furs on the avenue. The velvet suits in the fashion magazines make me hungry. All the new shows will be "Practicing. I dance, you know."

"I didn't know. I might have guessed it. You move like a dancer," Delaney added, his lips twitching at the memory: "I saw you yesterday in the rain."

"O, that? Gilbert started that. I suppose you thought we were crazy. It was fun. Dancing's not really my best stunt, though. I'm a goodish stenographer. I gave up a job I was nuts about when Gilbert got tired of New York. I was in a lawyer's office."

"Aren't you pretty good to Gilbert?"

Miss St. John looked round the little room and out of a window before she answered. There were a few pictures on the walls, not bad ones, and a pile of magazines lay on the table. A trailer of crimson Buginvilleas hung across the window. "O, well," she said at last, "he's the baby of the family. You know how it is. He's 19; I'm 26. I like to stick around. He's got a good enough job now, and I give dancing lessons. He falls off the wagon once in a while, but I think he'll learn better." She finished with a haughty little movement of the eyebrows: "I never talk for reporters, you understand." Her laugh stayed in Delaney's ears when he went back to the white bungalow and to his solitary luncheon.

After that he saw Miss St. John almost daily. They passed each other in the yard or he knocked at the trellis of the vine-covered cottage. She came to tea with him once or twice again and displayed a lively interest in the number of eggnogs which Naka was able to force upon him.

"Naka says he thinks boss feel much more better," she told Delaney gravely.

"I do," said Delaney.

"Well, you want to go slow and take the best kind of care of yourself," said Miss St John warmly.

That day, for the first time, Delaney mentioned her in his weekly letter to his mother.

On the third of his visits to the vine covered cottage Delaney met Gilbert, and conceived on the instant of shaking hands a proper dislike for him. The boy had his sister's eyes, but the chin of Reuben. He bragged of his position with the gas company and patronized Delaney in the matter of health.

"You fellows that don't take any exercise, what can you expect?"

"You musn't mind Gilbert," said Miss St. John when Gilbert had gone out, his hat accurately placed, a pair of tortoise shell rimmed spectacles lending cachet to his general appearance. "Gilbert's only a kid. He's got to lot learn."

"He's got an adorable teacher," said Delaney unexpectedly and ardently.

Color tipped even the little ears of Miss St. John.

"Don't make me laugh," she said primly; "it hurts my face."

About a week after that Delaney had Miss St. John and the graceless Gilbert to dinner. It was by way of being a fiesta and the first regular party at which Delaney had been host in the bungalow. Forget me nots, violets, and little pink rosebuds adorned the table.

"Let's dress," Miss St. John had said, "for the fun of it!"

So the two men wore their dinner jackets, and Miss St. John herself came in an altogether fascinating arrangement of apple-green satin and green tulle. "It's my dancing dress, and I made it myself," she confided to Delaney while they were waiting for the cocktails; "but, at that, it cost me ten cold pesos. Whatever you do, don't step on it."

So Delaney was mindful of his feet. It was, from any standpoint, a throbbingly successful party. Naka had toiled and fought over the courses as some men toil and fight for the Victoria Cross, and Delaney sat across the table and watched his candlelight shining on Miss St. John's beautiful red head, quite unaware that his heart was slowly rising to his eyes. Gilbert alone dropped to the rear and the slaves.

Gilbert consumed not only his own cocktail but that remaining in the shaker for a gentleman sometimes known as Mr. Manners. Gilbert's glass was twice refilled with Delaney's sparkling sauterne, and when the party was over Gilbert left his sister at the door of the vine covered cottage without a regret.

"Too slow for me," said Gilbert. "Going downtown. Don't you sit up for me. Awful fizzle, wasn't it?"

"Come in and practice that canter waltz," coaxed Miss St. John, holding her dear bought apple green satin away from the chilly, wet fingers of the vines. "Come on, now, honey man!"

"Is that your idea of a party?" inquired Gilbert, politely. He went downtown, of course. She had known all along she could not stop him.

Up in the white bungalow the quondam host of the awful fizzle sat in a wide armed wicker chair beside his empty tea table and smiled across the room at nothing at all. He was imagining Miss St. John with a lace breakfast cap on her hair in the act of operating a percolator. Then he decided that such sunset gold should not be hidden from the world, and removed the lace cap firmly, in spite of her protests—all women love the things.

"I forbid you to wear 'em," he said to her. Then he kissed the tip of her nose because she made a face at him.

At this point Naka came in to say good-night.

Half an hour later, which would be about 11 o'clock, Delaney fell asleep in his chair.

He was awakened at five minutes after twelve by a frenzied knocking on the panels of his front door and by some one calling his name.

"Who's there?" cried Delaney, huskily. He sprang up dazed with sleep. When he turned the key in the lock he went suddenly pale.

One hand on her breast, the other clutching the folds of a voluminous dragon-sown kimono closely about her, stood Vera St. John. She was gasping for breath and her eyes were frightened. "I'm sorry," she said; "had to call you; it's a shame—but—have you got a gun?"

"A gun!" Delaney echoed, stupidly.

"There's somebody," said Vera St. John, "in my house. I lost my nerve and ran—bring a gun if you've got one."

Delaney fetched a gun—he had invested in an automatic in San Francisco—and begged the girl to wait for him in the living room of the bungalow.

"While you go over and grab a burglar? Not much!" said Miss St. John, with a momentary reversion to type. "I'm going right alongside."

So they went together, Delaney's fingers gripping the automatic, Miss St. John pattering beside him over the grass like a small red headed Cio San.

"In the kitchen," she whispered, "I heard steps. Somebody knocked over a cup. I was sitting in the living room waiting up for Gilbert."

But there was no burglar in the vine covered cottage. A room-to-room search revealed merely the odd, uncanny emptiness of the hours after 12.

"You may have heard a rat," said Delaney, when they stood once again in the living room, but he laid his gun upon the table.

"Rats," said Miss St. John, scornfully, "do not wear muddy shoes and do not put half a cold ham on the table. I left that ham in the icebox myself."

"Gilbert," said Delaney, grimly, "ought to be whipped for leaving you here in this place alone."

"Then you saw those muddy tracks on the kitchen floor, too!"

"Oh, somebody was in there, undoubtedly," said Delaney.

He sat down. Miss St. John sat down. "I'll be all right now," she said, gamely. "Don't bother."

Delaney said without a smile, "I'm going to stay till Gilbert gets back."

They talked about robbers and detectives and the awful inadequacy of the police. Delaney told a funny story. After a while Miss St. John's color came back. Later she even laughed. In the green crêpe kimono with dragons writhing everywhere about her, after the holy pearl, she looked very little and rather younger than 26. Her hair was in its usual high knot. She had not taken it down since the party. Delaney looked at her and the vision of the lace cap and the percolator came back to him. You would never have guessed it, however, from his smile, which was the essence of impersonality, nor his conversation, which ran just then to politics. In the little, quiet, roughly furnished room with its one orange shaded bulb swinging from the ceiling Delaney shut his fingers about the arm of his chair and tried to dream red hair across his eyes.

"Gee, you're getting sleepy!" said Miss St. John, pathetically. "This is a crime."

Just before the little brass clock on the table struck half after twelve there were footsteps outside the vine covered cottage.

"Gilbert!" cried Miss St. John. She slipped to her feet and met him in the doorway. "Gilbert, I've had a scare——"

It was not, however, the repentant prodigal that she faced.

Gilbert's gait was unsteady. He wavered to and fro where he stood and his bloodshed eyes were shiny. He looked from his sister to Delaney and back again. A very evil thought distorted his inadequate boy's face.

"Ex—explain—— This looks pretty funny!" said Gilbert.

Delaney had risen. He put his hands in his trousers pockets because of the almost uncontrollable tightening in his finger tips.

"Your sister," he said, very distinctly, "was frightened by burglars who got into the kitchen. She came to me for help and I refused to leave her in this place alone. You should take better care of her, Mr. St. John."

"I'll take damn good care of her—and don't you forget it!" said Gilbert, loudly.

"Gilbert!" cried his sister. Her face burned. She put her hand on his arm and he thrust her away. "Gilbert! You must be crazy. Listen to me! Apologize, do you hear? Apologize to Mr. Delaney at once!"

"I became engage' tonight," Gilbert continued, with sardonic dignity, "—to a ver' beautiful girl—and I want to be able—to introduce my—my sister to her—you understand?"

Delaney clenched his hands.

"You little cad!" he said, huskily.

"Oh, Gilbert!" breathed Vera St. John. It was almost a moan. She put the tips of her fingers to her eyes, and when she took them down her look was frozen.

"I'm through with you," she said, between her teeth. "This is my limit. I don't have to take everything from you; mother wouldn't have asked it of me!"

Then she lifted her voice a little, still standing with one hand on the table, where he had pushed her off, and Gilbert listened.

"You go to your room," she said, quietly, "and go to bed. Go on—and go now!"

Gilbert went. He stumbled a little crossing the room. By some queer inversion of drunken reasoning he was smiling fatuously when he stumbled.

Miss St. John walked blindly to the doorway and passed beneath the trellis. She stopped with the little pink roses clutching at her green dragon kimono.

Delaney followed and stood beside her. "Can you manage him?" he asked, quietly.

"Oh, I can manage him all right," said Miss St. John. She added, incongruously, stiff lipped. "Thanks—and good night."

"Vera," Delaney said—his voice broke on her name—"I want you to marry me."

"Why?" demanded Miss St. John, brusquely. Her hands were crushed down above her heart in the darkness. Not even he should be sorry for her.

"Because I love you—like all heaven and hell," said Delaney, simply. "Will that do?"

Miss St. John's hands went out like two white birds. She let Delaney put his arms about her, and he kissed her—once. His dreams were nothing to that reality. "Go back to your vine covered cottage," he told her, "and go to sleep, if you can! You're going to be married tomorrow."

"Gee!" said Miss St. John, softly and unsteadily, "what do you think this is—a benefit?"

Nevertheless, when Delaney had gone she stood there under the drowsy stars and made the sign of the cross above a heart that fluttered wildly in her breast.

"Dear God!" she whispered with lips that trembled, "I love him—and he—loves—me! Give us a chance, will you?"

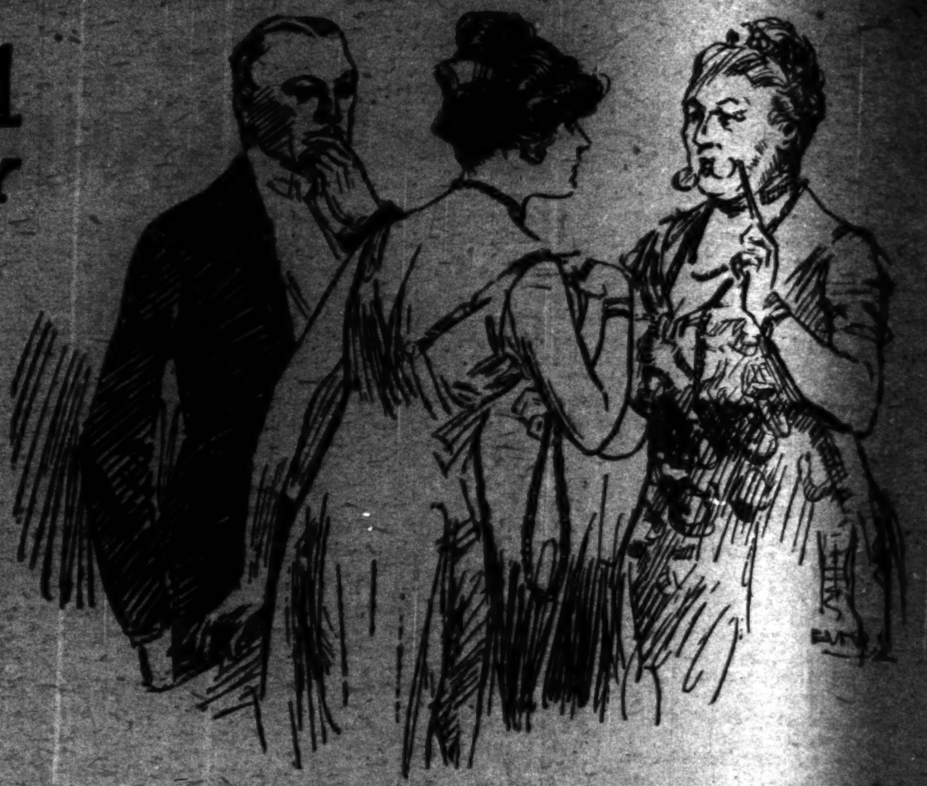
A Tryout for Mabel

by BERTON BRALEY



An Experiment at Breaking Into High Society.

"NOPE," said Stanhope, positively, "you can't do it. Class shows as sure as the sun shines, and while you could doll up a waitress or a shop girl to look like Lady Vere de Vere, she couldn't mix with the real ones and get by with it."

"She could," contended Hatton, "if she had a day or two of coaching first. One really ought to have a few weeks, but I'll bet I could take a dishwasher out of the kitchen of a cheap restaurant like this and sit her down at a swell dinner and nobody'd know but what she belonged."

"What'll you bet?" demanded Stanhope, the sporting gleam in his eye. "Name your sum."

"Inasmuch as the experiment is likely to cost me a hundred dollars or more for clothes for the girl, I wouldn't make the bet large. Say two hundred."

"You offer to bet two hundred bones that you can bring a dishwasher in a restaurant to a dinner at——"

"At Mrs. Van Alstyne's next Friday," said Hatton, "and guarantee that nobody will know or suspect that she's not the real crême de la crême. I simply specify that the dishwasher shall be able to speak English understandably, though if she has a Swedish or Polish accent that needn't matter greatly. I can then account for her as my friend just over from foreign parts."

"You're on," agreed Stanhope. "I propose we pick out the damsel and put the proposition up to her right here in this restaurant. I saw a couple of them working behind that steel partition as we came in."

The Dartmouth lunchroom was not exactly the style of place the two men were accustomed to patronizing, but they had dropped in because it looked clean and pleasant, and it was quite a long drive downtown to their club.

"Well," asked Stanhope, "do I pick out the model for the experiment or do you?"

"Suppose we consult with the manager," suggested Hatton, "and then try it together."

"Look here," said the manager, when they finished explaining their purpose. "This is a respectable place and I ain't going to have my girls bothered by slick strangers. I don't know who you are or what you are—and you can believe me I won't have any of this white slave scandal coming out of my restaurant."

For answer Hatton and Stanhope handed him their cards and addresses and promised that he should be present at the interview with the dishwasher while they broached the subject with her.

"I dunno's I'm very strong for this even now," said the restaurant man; "help's awful scarce just now and I dunno where I'm going to get an extra dishwasher."

But in the course of time he agreed to give them a few minutes with the girls behind the steel partition, and Stanhope and Hatton, somewhat ill at ease, stepped back to pick out their lay figure.

One of the girls was squat, low browed, and frowsy, heavy of hand and ankle and impossibly thick of lip. When Stanhope spoke to her she shook her head dully and answered, "No Inglish."

"She wouldn't be a fair test, anyway," said Hatton; "you've got to give me some one who looks human, at least."

"Well, how about this one," remarked Stanhope, nodding at the other girl, whose bright eyes were watching them very warily. "She's not so bad looking, her figure is fair, she——"

"Don't stand in front of the cages," said the girl he was talking about. "Whaddyeh think I am, a laughin' hyena?"

Hatton met her angry glance as she banged the dishpan with a smile and a bow.

"Don't mind my friend," he said, "he hasn't any manners, he's a native New Yorker. And now that's settled," he continued, "perhaps I ought to state our business. I want to invite you to go to dinner with me next Friday at Mrs. E. B. Van Alstyne's on Fifth avenue. Will you do me the honor to accompany me?"

"I'm sorry," the girl replied, grinning, as she wiped her hands on her apron, "but I gotta date that night to go to the theater and to a dinner dance with Vincent Astor at the Waldorf."

"Say, listen," said Hatton, earnestly. "I mean it. I made a bet with my friend here that I could take a working girl like you to such a dinner and say she was a society swell and get away with it. And he said I couldn't. And when he took me up on that bet I thought I'd been sort of hasty until I saw you, and then I knew that if I dolled you up nicely you'd pass for the queen of Sheba. Will you help me?"

"How much was this bet for?" asked the girl.

"Two hundred dollars," replied Hatton.

"Lead on, MacDuff," said the girl, "I'm with you. If I can help skin that gink out of two hundred bones it'll tickle me to death. Him talking about me as if I was deaf and dumb!" She glared at Stanhope. "What do I do and what do I get?"

"You go to my home as the guest of my sister until Friday night," said Hatton, "and she'll take you out and buy you what clothes you'll need for this stunt—and give you some lessons in high society manners, which you ought to get wise to mighty quick. Then when the dinner comes you'll go with me—and we'll make 'em think you're Gladys Vanderbilt or somebody like that. And then—then you'll get all the clothes we've bought for you and twenty-five dollars besides. Fair enough?"

"Fair enough is right," said the girl. "Here I'm being no lady for eight a week, and you're offerin' me twenty-five to be a lady for four days. I'll do my best and if the society folks don't think I'm the regular thing my name's not Mabel Dorgan."

Stanhope, watching the entrance of the Van Alstynes' drawing room intently as the various guests were announced, stared incredulously as the butler swung wide the doors and boomed:

"Miss Hatton, Miss Dorgan, Mr. Hatton," for the slender, graceful girl on his friend's right arm resembled the girl at the sink in the restaurant as the butterfly resembles the caterpillar—an old figure, but there isn't any other which fits. Her white shoulders rose from the corsage of her evening gown in dazzling beauty, and above them her face, piquant, whimsical, and flushed with excitement, was framed in gorgeous red gold hair.

Hatton caught his eye and grinned. Stanhope moved over to the little group.

"How do you do, Miss Hatton?" queried he, "and you, Miss Dorgan?"

"Very nicely, thank you," responded Miss Dorgan, in a voice with the faintest trace of a burr to it, "and you?"

"O, I'm bully," responded Stanhope. "Shall I present you to your hostess?"

"Thanks," said Miss Dorgan, with a slight toss of her head, "but Mr. Hatton and his sister have promised to do that."

So far, Stanhope saw, there was no flaw in the young lady's demeanor. Evidently she had absorbed the instruction given her in the three days to excellent advantage. Appearance, intonation, manner—all were quite perfect. His eyes noted that dishwater did not seem to have spoiled the contour of the girl's hands—they were white and, though strong and competent looking, very well shaped. Still he managed to be near when Miss Mabel Dorgan, of the "Dublin Dorgans," met Mrs. Van Alstyne, whose terrible stare was wont to daunt even the most impeccably acceptable debutante and send social climbers away trembling and discomforted.

"Mrs. Van Alstyne," said Miss Hatton, "this is my friend, Miss Mabel Dorgan, who is visiting us from Dublin."

Mrs. Van Alstyne glanced up and down Miss Dorgan as if she were a theatrical bill, for, being a great lady, she did not have to be polite. Whereupon Miss Dorgan, instead of being highly embarrassed by this famous "once over" of the old leader, gave Mrs. Van Alstyne a similar up and down survey.

And there was a humorous gleam in her eyes as she did it quite different from the cold stare of the grande dame. Stanhope and Hatton, watching the exchange, waited with bated breath for Mrs. Van Alstyne to blast the young woman into nothingness, but it didn't happen.

Mrs. Van Alstyne's face broke into a repentant and rather wistful smile.

"I'm sorry, my dear," she said to Miss Dorgan, "I'm afraid I've grown rather rude with the years. It wasn't nice to look you up and down that way, but I'll confess to you something that I haven't, so far, to anybody else, and that is that my eyes have been getting very bad and I have to stare at people to see them well. And you are worth seeing well."

"It's all right, Mrs. Van Alstyne," said Mabel Dorgan, "sure and I didn't know you were just admiring me. Never could I get angry at anything like that."

And so, with a gay smile on her face and an independent toss to her head, Miss Mabel Dorgan, of the old Irish family of Dorgans, walked away on the arm of Charles Hatten, victor over the most dreadful social potentate of the city.

And after that Stanhope knew his bet was lost, for Mabel could have eaten with her knife and supped up her soup with her bread and these would have looked upon as unimportant and rather delightful eccentricities.

None of these things did Mabel do, however. She had been too well instructed for that. She handled the forks with ease and dexterity; forks were no new thing in the hands of a dishwasher—and there was small danger of her eating with her knife, for she had heard many a waiter talking disgustedly in the kitchen about a guest who was a "sword swallower."

Mabel, like nearly every working girl in New York, could wear a fourteen dollar dress as if it were a hundred and forty, so why should she be ill at ease in one that actually cost a hundred? She wasn't. Mabel had learned a good deal about moods and tenses and other grammatical matters in school—and if she forgot a good many of them in her daily life, she could remember them for this occasion. Besides, she needn't talk much—and she didn't. They dance better on the east side than anywhere else in the world, and Mabel could dance beautifully.

Hatton, who had had more than a little to do with the drilling of Miss Dorgan for this ordeal, watched her through the evening with glowing eyes. And as he saw the men crowd about her and heard from the dowagers the comment that "the little Irish girl was certainly a success—and so simple and gay and sweet, too," his heart warmed gratefully within him.

What had started as a jest was developing into much more than that for Hatton. He had found this girl refreshing after the bored beauties of ballroom or stage whom he knew so well. Mabel was a strange amalgam of absolute naivete and strange sophistication, and he felt that, with time and training, she might go far.

"You're wonderful," he told her, as he led her into a secluded spot after a dance. "Nobody would know but what you'd been doing this sort of thing for years."

"Sure," said Mabel, "what is it but smiling and laughing and being pleasant and not spilling your food and dancing on the floor instead of your partner's feet. And you can do all that at the waiters' ball. Will you win your two hundred?"

Hatton nodded.

"I'm glad of that," said the girl, "though I've got over being mad at the other [illegible] chap—for talking about me like a monkey in a cage."

"These three days you've been with us," said Hatton, "were very enjoyable. It's been fun teaching you the little you didn't know—and it's been fun just being around with you. I didn't imagine a—a working girl—"

"O, say dishwasher and be done with it," said Mabel.

"Could be so quick and intelligent and—and charming. It isn't just your clothes and all that, it's—O, there's a certain sort of alertness and enthusiasm in you that I've never met before."

"Well, why wouldn't I be enthusiastic when I'm having a lovely time, getting some new scenery for nothing, and earning twenty-five dollars besides? Anybody but a restaurant cook—that's always mad at everything—would be merry and bright."

"Perhaps—but you're not like any girl I've ever known before. I thought girls in places like yours would be dull and common and coarse, but you're—you're full of life and there's a real refinement about you that—"

"Well," said the girl, practically, "maybe that's so, but tomorrow I'll be back at the dishpan again, soshing them around in the water."

"Not necessarily," suggested Hatton. "Suppose I should ask you not to go back to the dishes. Suppose I should tell you that I have enjoyed seeing you and being with you so much that I want to have you around our home always. Suppose that I [illegible] you and my sister wanted you to brighten up our home with your presence—to bring to it new enthusiasm and freshness and—perhaps, in time, to become an even more intimate part of it—what would you say?"

"Gee," said Miss Dorgan, her eyes shining. "I'd say yes, of course."

The Power of Prayer

by Wells Hastings

His Ring Preceded Him in a Most Mysterious Way, But the Lovers Were Too Happy to Even Try to Solve the Miracle.

On her knees beside the cot, which in the daytime masqueraded as a divan, Leila Blaine poured out her sobbing supplication, asking aid and direction in her extremity and passionately pleading that he should be given back to her. If she had been of smaller faith, she might long ago have lost belief in the efficacy of prayer. For six terrible months she had prayed practically the same thing—that some means of living should be shown to her, that somehow she might exist until his return, and that heaven would send him back safe and sound. And all this time her fortunes had grown worse.

He had left her buoyantly, big with the high hope that was normal to his age and nature, assuring her of his speedy return from the land of gold. He would bring back such wealth as should make possible all their dreams of life, and raise both of them high above the uncertain plane of drudging manual labor. And though her heart had misgiven her, she had let him go; for she knew that he could never be really happy or content otherwise.

But hers had been the greater gamble. She was risking, she had felt, the happy little commonplaces that would have satisfied her, on the doubtful chance of the wealth he thought they needed. To her his trip to the Klondike seemed as awful and perilous as if he had proposed going to the north pole itself. She believed in him and thought he would win, if any man could, but any such distant victory seemed to her problematical.

She had been unemployed for almost a month, and had 15 cents in her pocketbook. Ten of this must be spent in carfare, for she lived far up town, and the firm which had answered her last advertisement was at the other end of the city, a distance impossible to walk. She knew by experience that she could dine on the other 5, but after that—what, even if they took her? She could hardly expect them, she reflected, to make her an advance.

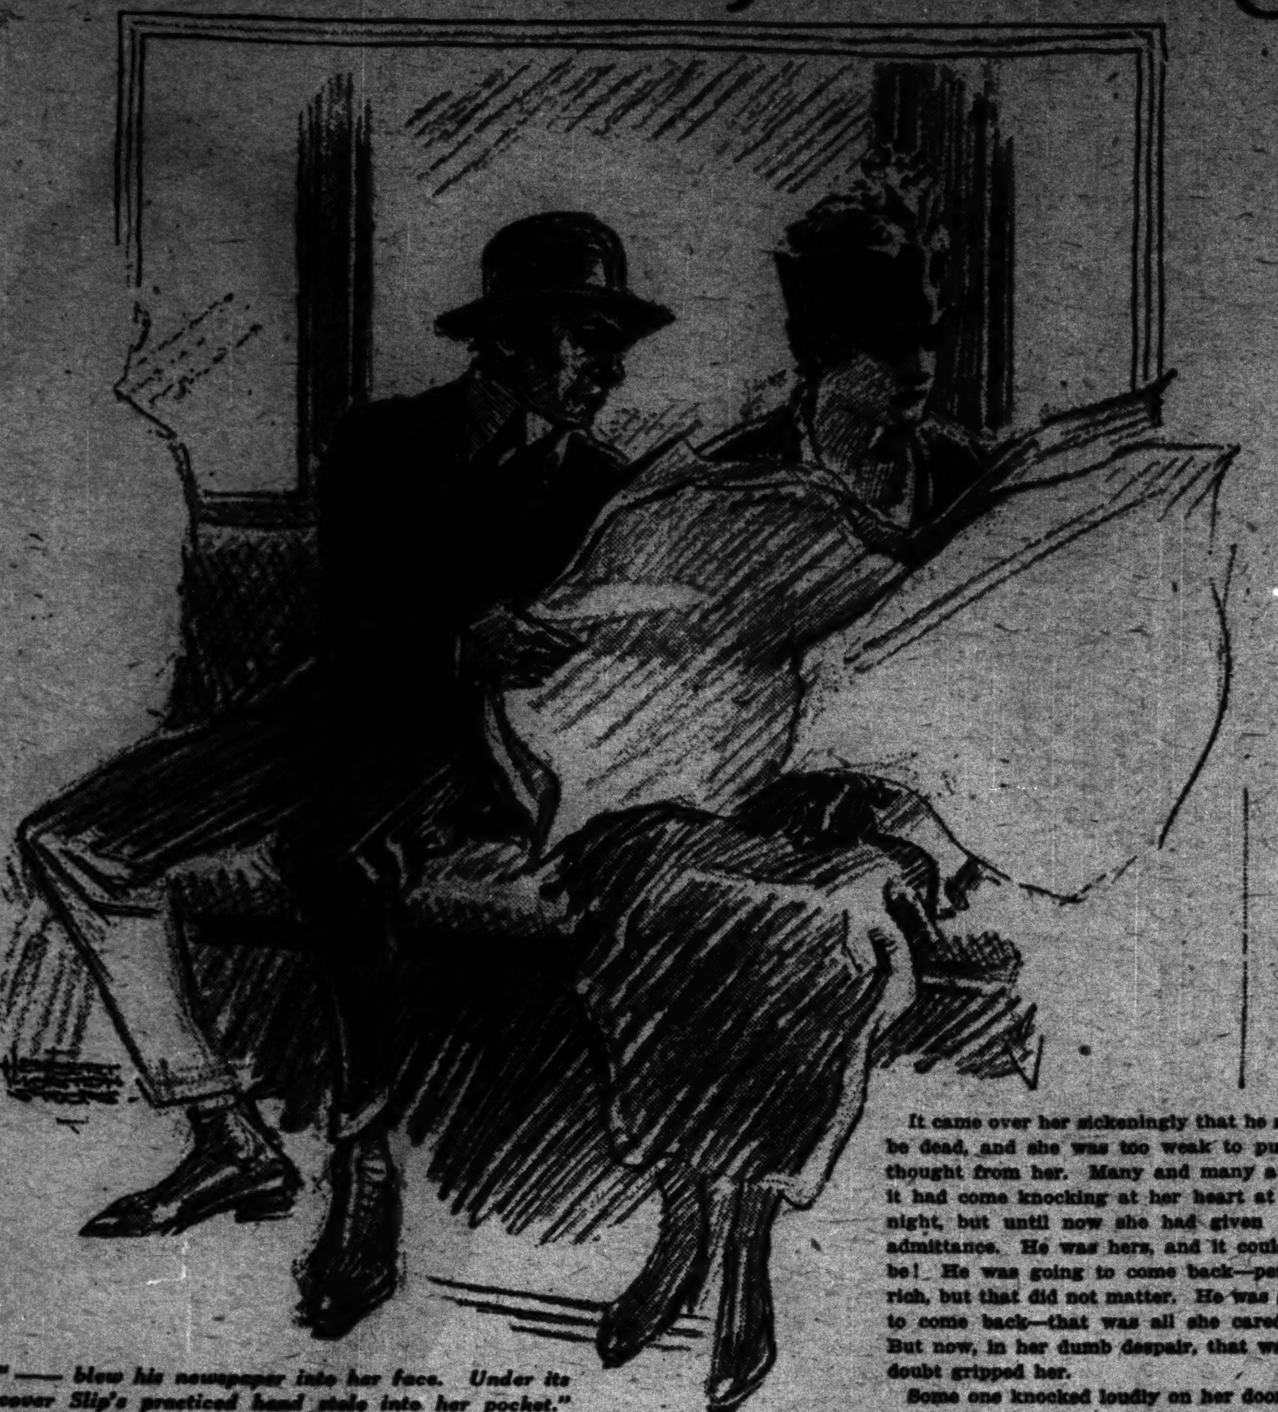
Perhaps there was something more that she could pawn; perhaps something might happen. At any rate, she was going to put the best face upon the matter, and with that end she set about washing the tears from her own.

Certainly no one would have thought of her as a candidate for starvation as she gained the platform of the elevated and pushed her way bravely into the packed train. It was, she considered, something that concerned herself only, and she had scrupulously hidden every sign of the horrid specter. Although most of her wardrobe lay in usurious camphor, she had kept her best tailor suit as something sacred, a treasured necessity to a seeker of employment.

Many other women were standing; but as she reached for a strap two young men on different sides of the car rose and offered their seats to her. After hesitating for a moment between them, she took the seat of the one who appeared less weary, and dropped into it with a little murmur of thanks—an unconscious but momentous decision, for it brought her elbow to elbow with Slip Egan.

Slip accepted her philosophically, reflecting that the young man who had escaped him carried, in all probability, nothing of great value; for he had already decided that his former neighbor's watch chain was plated. Like many of his kind, Slip preferred "moll buzzing" to "leather pulling." In other words, the contents of women's pockets interested him professionally more than the more dangerous abstraction of the leather wallets of the other sex.

He could not exactly be called a woman specialist, because, when easy opportunity offered, his taste was catholic enough to turn to masculine valuables; but he took more pride in his work with women, and felt himself more at home in their pockets. There was a certain romance about them, he felt. He might only smear his fingers on a powder puff, or touch a crisp bundle of bills, or even, with rare good fortune, a piece of jewelry. There was no telling what might be in a handbag, or a small and difficult pocket. The erratic, feminine idea of security was a constant source of amusement and delight to him.



"—— blew his newspaper into her face. Under its cover Slip's practiced hand stole into her pocket."

From behind his newspaper he appraised Leila cautiously. Her suit, he determined, was good, but he noted with some disappointment that the sleeves had been altered from some former cut to their present modish style. Her black gloves fitted her well, but the finger tips had been carefully mended, and retouched, he thought, with ink. Her shoes, from the little peep he got of them, might or might not have been resoled. She looked prosperous, but there had been evident economies.

Still, economy was a hobby with some women. He remembered that once he had taken $500 from the pocket of a dyed dress. That was it, that was part of the fun of it—with a woman you could never be sure.

Not many hours ago he had brought off a successful coup, the third he had accomplished from the dangerous, detective ridden precincts of a world famous firm of jewelers. His victim had been a man—a large and muscular looking young man—so that the adventure had been more perilous, and in retrospect filled Slip with a more complacent satisfaction. He had followed his intended victim for blocks before he had seen him joyfully greeted by friends and dragged, with some show of reluctance, into the crowded bar of a big café.

There the crowd and the hilarity of the new met friends had given Slip his opportunity. He had been unable to get at the wallet, which he suspected made that bulge in the young man's breast pocket, but he was well content with what he had found in a side pocket—a small, square, cushion topped box, which he had had in mind from the first.

Now, as he sat watching the girls, he felt the big diamond with appraising thumb. The box he had kicked into a convenient sewer. He knew pockets too well to trust them, and he had slipped the ring upon his little finger, with the stone turned inward. He kept feeling of it nervously, much as a child will feel with his tongue the unfamiliar gap of a new lost tooth; for it fitted insecurely. He had tried it on his third finger at first, but it was just too small. Slip's hands were slender and graceful, as became his profession, and on his little finger the ring hung loosely.

The train was grinding into a station. When the doors were flung open a puff of wind blew his newspaper, flapping wide, across her lap and into her face. Under its cover Slip's practiced hand stole into her pocket, while he murmured profuse and awkward apologies. Leila hardly heard them, for she, too, had been dreaming, and she realized with a start that the guard was shouting his distortion of the name of her station. Waiting passengers had already begun to stream into the car.

She sprang to her feet, and with some excitement made her way to the door, leaving behind her a disappointed gentleman of the nether world, who cursed the well known abruptness of womankind in perfervid silence that he longed to break. But the car was in motion again, and it was too late to follow her.

If Slip could have got out, however, and climbed the steps on the other side he would soon have seen her; for Leila, as she had dreaded, had met the ill chance which she had struggled to put from her mind. The place, the position that was to stand between her and that gaunt thing she knew to be looking over her shoulder, was already taken. They were sorry, but the former incumbent had suddenly changed her mind and come back again. They were sure, however, that Leila would have little trouble in finding something to do. New York, they assured her cheerily, was full of positions.

She had bravely winked back the tears and turned directly homeward. Home, as she knew it, was empty and heartless and bare, but she was driven there by an uncontrollable impulse.

She knew it would be wiser, now that she was downtown, to visit the newspaper offices, make a list of the day's likely "want" advertisements, and try each one in person, on the bare chance of finding something. But she could not do it; she was faint and dizzy and heartsick, and she wanted to be alone, to draw her shades upon the world that jostled her and shut her out. In short, she longed for a good cry. Her dizziness should have told her that she needed a good meal.

She climbed the stairs droopingly, and, once in her room, found that she could not cry after all; things were too bad for that.

It came over her sickeningly that he might be dead, and she was too weak to put the thought from her. Many and many a time it had come knocking at her heart at midnight, but until now she had given it no admittance. He was hers, and it could not be! He was going to come back—perhaps rich, but that did not matter. He was going to come back—that was all she cared for. But now, in her dumb despair, that waiting doubt gripped her.

Some one knocked loudly on her door, but she could not open it. There was something sacred in her grief. But the knocking continued, loud and impatiently imperative, so that she shuddered and staggered wanly to her feet. She withdrew the shot bolt, and, gathering her last strength, stood erect as the door was pushed open.

He could not see her paleness in the sudden light, but he shouted boyishly aloud at the joy of seeing her. Stooping, he gathered her up close in his arms, swinging her clear from the floor in the new, buoyant strength he had earned with his fortune. She had not even time to think him a specter. His kisses fell warm on her cold little cheek, and she could hear him dimly, through the staggering joy of her senses, whispering the old, dear, pet names in her ear.

"When we are married tomorrow," he said calmly. "And you have never had a ring—a decent one, that is—and it took some time to choose that. I am afraid it is too big for you even as it is."

He felt in his pockets, then began heaping their contents on the table in front of him in scrupulous self-disgust.

"It's not there!" he said at last. "I've been touched like a Reub the first crack out of the box! Never mind, I'll get another."

"Another what?" asked Leila.

"Another ring. I got you a dandy this morning."

The tears rose to Leila's eyes, it was so silly and so sweet of him. She felt hastily for her handkerchief. Her exploring fingers found something round and hard, and she drew it out and stared at it in amazement. It was inscribed within, "Frank to Leila."

"Is this it?" she asked in a whisper.

He took it from her outstretched hand and examined it in a wonder more wide eyed than her own.

"Yes," he said. "How did it get there?"

Could she be dreaming? No, she knew that this was reality. But, awake or dreaming, the thing was awesome. Then she laughed. After all, what did it matter? The man before her was the greater miracle.

"I don't suppose that we shall ever know," she said. "It is a little too large."

And only a mournful pickpocket and the Power who answers lonely women's prayers ever did know.

The TEENIE WEENIE

DUNCE HAS A—WELL READ THE STORY AND SEE WHAT HAPPENED.

BY WM. DONAHEY.

"THE Doctah is right," said Gogo to the Dunce one sultry afternoon as the two Teenie Weenies threw themselves down on the grass beneath the cool shade of a mushroom. "Too much pie is mighty sure to make one sick."

"Jimminie Christmas! what's the use livin' if you can't eat all the pie you want?" growled the Dunce.

The poor Dunce had been very sick during the night, and the Doctor had told him that he must not make a little pig out of himself if he expected to be well and happy.

The two little fellows sat in silence for some minutes, and presently the Dunce felt some one touch him on the shoulder. Turning his head, the little chap saw a strang looking mouse, dressed in a suit of very baggy clothes.

"Sh—silence. Follow me," whispered the mouse, tiptoeing softly away.

"How'd you like a nice juicy piece of cherry pie?" said the mouse after he had led the Dunce quite a little way.

"I would! That's what I would, I would," said the Dunce after he had thought deeply for some seconds. "The Doctor says that pie makes me sick, but I don't care if it does, I'm going to have some."

"Follow me," whispered the mouse; and, chuckling in a strange manner, he led the Dunce through a thick fog on to the crust of a fat pie.

"This is a magic pie," grinned the mouse, picking up a tiny ax which lay on the crust. "You take this ax and cut a hole in the center of the pie, and when it's big enough a big piece of cheese will come out. That's what I want, then you can have all the pie you can eat."

The Dunce picked up the ax and began to chop into the crust with all his might. Soon he cut a place about three Teenie Weenie feet wide, and suddenly a big piece of yellow cheese began to rise out of the juice. With a squeal of delight the mouse caught up the cheese and made off over the edge of the pie with great speed.

"That's funny," thought the Dunce. "He never stopped to thank me for cutting this hole."

While the Dunce stood staring after the retreating mouse a thin stream of green smoke suddenly appeared out of the hole, and as it curled up into the air it took on the shape of a man's head and arms.

"Who—o—o are you?" gasped the startled Dunce.

"Me?" grinned the head. "I'm Indigestion, the fellow who makes people sick when they eat too much pie; and that mouse, he's not a mouse, he's Old Man Appetite. He certainly has tricked you. Come here, my hearty!" shouted the head, and, catching the Dunce by the arms, he pulled the frightened Teenie Weenie down into the hole. The poor Dunce looked up just as he went down into the juice of the pie, and, to his horror, he saw the crust which he had cut away slowly roll back into place.

"Oh—o—o—o! Oh, help! Help!" he screamed.

"What's the matter with you?" cried Gogo, shaking the Dunce by the shoulder. "Are you sick?"

"Why, oh, I—I—I must have been dreaming!" gasped the Dunce as he rubbed his eyes.

That night the Cook made a most delicious pie for dinner, and the piece which the Dunce ate was so small that it could hardly have been seen even with the most powerful microscope.

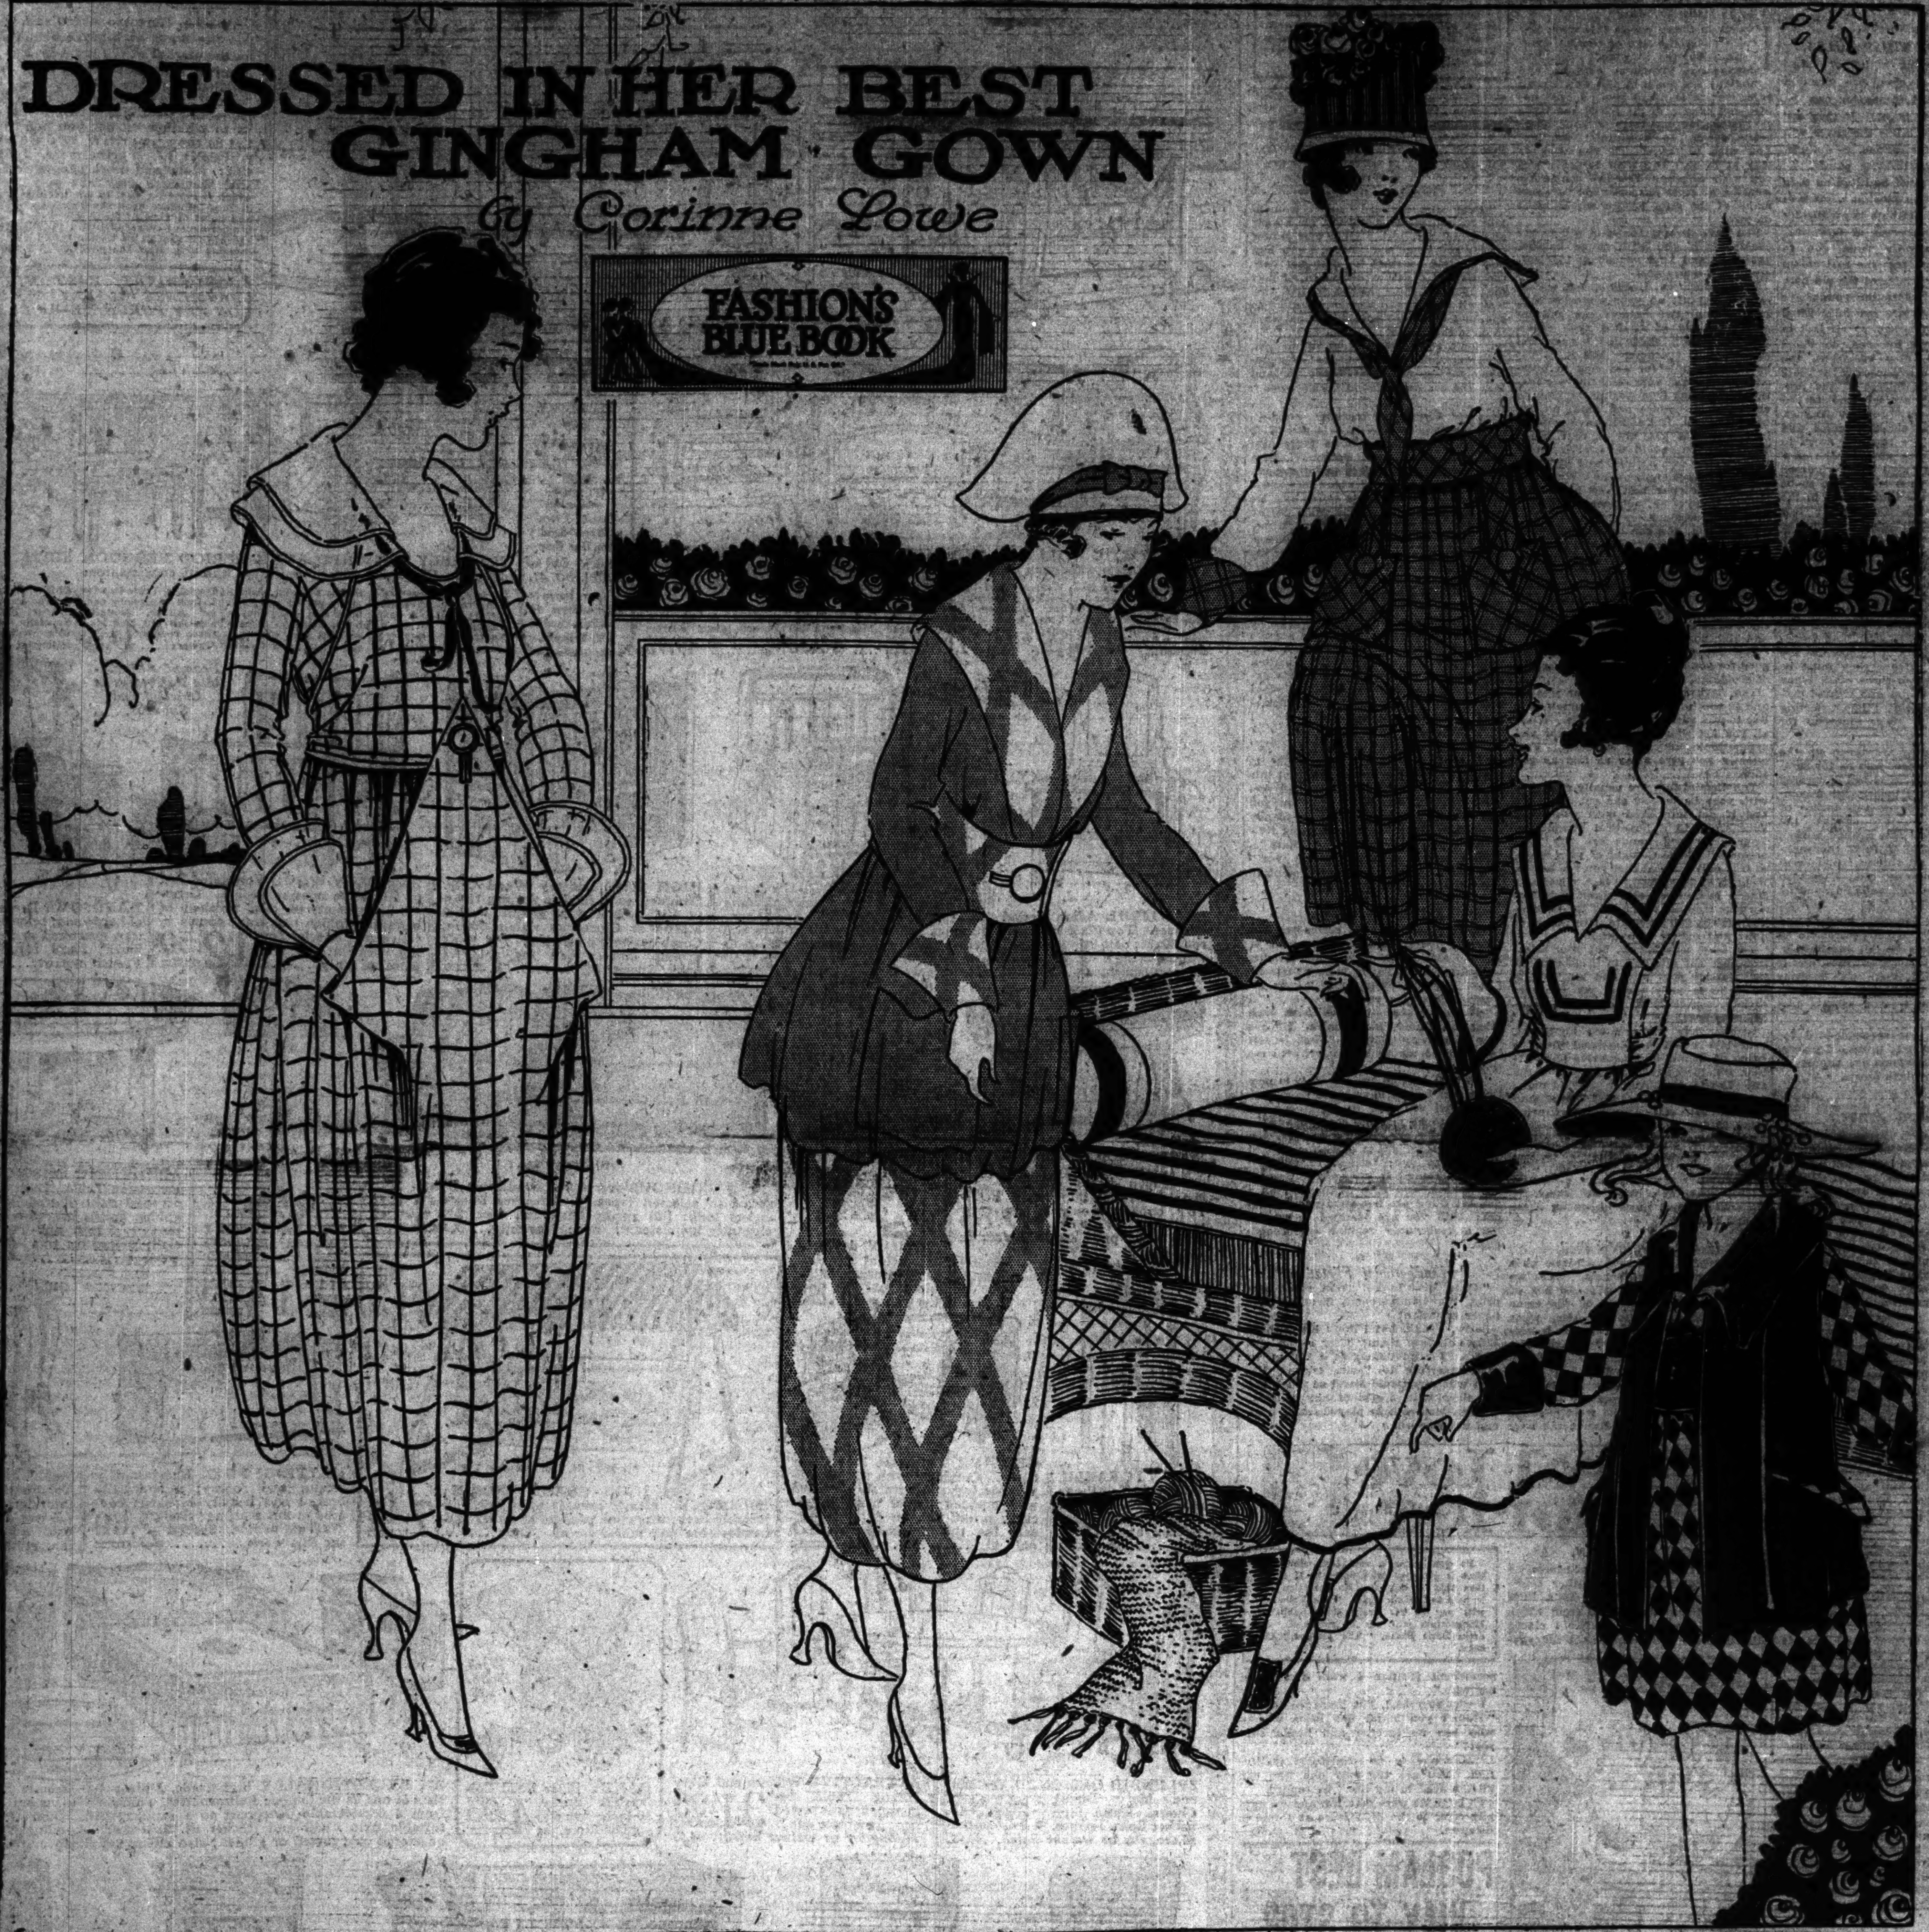
PART 6

DRESSED IN HER BEST GINGHAM GOWN

By Corinne Lowe



This department appears every day in "The Daily Tribune."

NEW YORK.—(Special Correspondence.)—What we saw at the Hewlett races convinced us. It was a suit of black serge with cuffs, vest, and collar piping of red and black checked gingham. With it traveled a black straw hat faced with the same gingham and set off with a gallant bow of black taffeta ribbon. Net result, altogether smart and different and charming.

Since that time there is no doubt in our minds about gingham. It goes as far as a bone in French cooking. If we don't lay out the suburbs of our clothes in this humble fabric we have a whole frock of it and if we decide we'd rather have a suit than a frock—why, that, too, is of gingham. Some of these days, in fact, we may happen in upon our dressmaker just in time to avert gingham thingumbobs on our best black satin evening gown.

Nowadays you go to the smart Fifth avenue dressmaker. "I want something up to date for this summer," say you. Off trots that dressmaker cute little bit of engineering at the front. There are cuffs and collar of white organdy, and please to her most secret, guarded shelves and brings you back a blue and white gingham. "Here is something awfully smart—only seventy-five dollars," she remarks. She is pleased with herself as though she were the slave of the lamp and had just brought you an emerald or half a potato. Yet all you can see to that smart little seventy-five dollar model is some blue and white check and a little bit of organdy!

Some of the frocks of this epidemic fabric are natural. Others don't have quite the courage of their gingham and are combined with crepe de chine, voile, or chambray. For instance, here in one place we find a smock of Copenhagen blue voile going off hand in hand with a blue and white check gingham skirt. Another green and brown checked model leads off into captivity green crepe de chine cuffs, collar, and pipings. There are, in fact, a dozen ways in which to sugar the plain gingham loaf.

The first model shown today—the one at the left—wears a brown and white check with a note that the collar is double. Nowadays so many of them do this that to forget yourself and try only one is almost as bad as going out in sleeves of the same material as your gown.

Suits of gingham? How we would have laughed at that quaint fancy in the days when we used to switch lightly about the gas range in this now priceless material. Yet two piece costumes of our lowly friend are much made of. Here in the foreground we have one of green and white plaid with some plain green gingham to take up the main duties of a coat.

Whether to wear a gingham skirt with a white waist or a white skirt with a gingham waist is one of those grave problems which make us toss restlessly each night on our pallet of straw. Really, it doesn't make much difference, though, how you gae just so you ging. Here in the picture the lady has solved the problem by wearing a rose and green plaid skirt with military pockets and a white linen blouse.

But the subject in hand does not confine itself entirely to either plaids or stripes. Sometimes we get just plain colored gingham, as, for example, in the figure engrossed with the knitting materials. Here the material is yellow and the bands are of brown. As for the child, we may fancy it saying in a peeved voice, "Well, of course this gingham tastes just like oatmeal to us, but since you grown folks are going to take up my childish pastime, I'll take a new turn with it myself." She does this by a cunning little blue and white check with a blue chambray coat and, of course, the coat has picked up a few crumbs of gingham.

Linen is also one of the favored materials for the summer, and sad news it is, too, for those who don't care to devote their entire time to not mussing their frock. Some of the smart new white linens are set off with black velvet ribbons. One such frock does not care to give too much publicity to the black velvet and runs it —both at the Moyen Age belt line and at the collar—through a white muslin footing.

But, although the white linen with black velvet ribbons has come in for a good deal of vogue, perhaps the smartest thing just arrived from Paris is the string colored kind. Like all fabrics of this neutral shade, such a frock needs considerable brightening up. So they trim it with striped toile de Jouy or perhaps cretonne. Fancy one of such frocks! The string colored linen tunic falls over a foundation of rose and green striped toile de Jouy and the bodice is almost preempted by a waistcoat, cut into a sharp V, of the same blithesome stripe. The sleeves are elbow length and, like the guimpe with its high [illegible] collar, are of white net.

Today there's no place where a free born gingham frock cannot enter. in. The model to the left shows a French way of going about in brown and white check gingham with organdy collars and cuffs and a bit of engineering in the front. The suit is of green and white plaid with a plain green gingham coat. The jaunty lady on the rail wears a white linen blouse with rose and green check—you know what!—and the last grownup has selected plain yellow gingham with bands of dark brown. Gingham has long been the trial of the young one, but here is where the old staple is made appetizing with a coat of dark blue chambray.

Article No. 76.

DISPOSAL OF TULIP BULBS.

As the blooming period of tulips draws to a close the question arises, What disposition can be made of the bulbs? If they are bedding or cottage tulips the space will now be required for cannas, geraniums, and other summer bedding plants.

The tulip bulbs must be lifted as soon as they are through blooming. It will be found that the old bulb is practically consumed by the process of flowering. Young bulbs, generally from one to three, have sprung from the root crown below. The outer scales of the old bulb may still partly inclose the young.

The entire plants are carefully lifted and after the soil is shaken off laid in single layers, side by side, in short rows, in a cool, airy basement, the foliage in each row overlapping the roots and two-thirds the foliage of the preceding row. They are left undisturbed in this position until July or August. At that time the old dry scales and shrunken foliage are removed down to the yellowish brown skin of the new bulbs. The larger and more vigorous young bulbs are then sorted out to be again planted in the tulip bed or in the perennial border in October or November. The smaller bulbs, down to the size of a hazel nut, are culls which may be used to plant among shrubbery or in inconspicuous places.

Tulips in perennial borders, such as Darwin or Parrot tulips—the late flowering—are commonly left in the ground from year to year and deteriorate rapidly for lack of cultivation and fertilizing. They multiply in numbers at the expense of size. Hence they must be taken up every two or three years when the leaves begin to dry and treated precisely like the bedding tulips, selecting the strongest and most vigorous for propagation.

When these tulips are taken up the soil should be prepared just as for summer bedding plants. The bed is covered to the height of four inches with decomposed horse manure or two inches of fresh cow manure. For cannas, the latter is preferred. The ground is then turned with a spading fork, thoroughly pulverising all lumps, and well raked for a smooth even bed. The sharp outline of bed, border, or lawn must be carefully preserved.

Narcissuses, in perennial borders and among shrubbery, do not deteriorate as do tulips, and may be left indefinitely. If they are used in beds, however, and it is desired to replace them with summer bedding plants, the narcissuses should be taken up and treated exactly like tulips.

Hyacinths are not recommended for this vicinity, except in protected places. Their too early blossoms are almost invariably killed by late frosts.

Questons and Answers.

Q.—I want to plant a rose on a grave where regular care is impossible. Is the Rose of Sharon suitable? Would the plant bought in central Illinois thrive in Wisconsin?—C. McC.

Ans.—The Rose of Sharon [Hibiscus Syriacus] is not a rose, but a rather tall shrub, too stiff for the purpose. The rose commonly used for grave decoration is the Gruss an Teplitz, a graceful plant of medium height, with large clusters of red roses. Yes, it is entirely hardy and comparatively independent of care.

Q.—I transplanted my cherry tree last November and covered the roots with two feet of stable manure. Though it was full of cherries every year and the wood is still green, it seems the twigs are drying up, and it has not blossomed yet. What can I do?—Mrs. S. S.

Ans.—If there are buds which formed last year, and they are not dried the tree will blossom after loosening the soil around the roots and giving them a thorough watering. Fruit trees rarely bear fruit the first year after transplanting.

Suitors' Mistakes Contest.

Did you make a mistake that cost you the one you wanted to win more than any other? Was it an unkind remark, a selfish deed, a mean or careless one, an error or tendency of your part come to light? "The Tribune" will pay $1 for every letter published on "The Mistake That Cost Me the One I Wanted Most to Win." Address Doris Blake, "Chicago Tribune."

He Was Polite, but Cold.

The mistake that resulted in my losing the one I most cared for I blame on my baby sister. One night my mother was out, and so, leaving my little sister in charge of my brother, I started out with my boy friend. I had cautioned brother to see that the baby did not go near the goldfish, but on coming home the first thing I saw was the floor all littered with dead fish. Before I could call my friend's attention to the horror of it he accidentally stepped on one of them, slipped, and sat down forcefully. Apologies were of no avail. He was polite but cold and when he left it was with no definite promise to call again.

Doris Blake Says

If you were born this week you are

Dual Natured.

Have you a perplexing love affair in which you need the counsel of a friend? Write Doris Blake, care "The Sunday Tribune." If you wish a personal reply send stamped and addressed envelope.

This department appears every day in "The Daily Tribune."

If your birthday comes this week you come under the sign of Gemini, symbolized by the "twins." Restless, changeable, vivacious, nervous, and anxious are some of the well known adjectives to apply to you. A dual nature—not exactly of the Jekyll and Hyde character—but one trait of your character seems to contradict another. You wish to travel and you wish to stay at home. You wish to study and you wish to play. You are constantly working at cross purposes and so waste many of the gifts nature has lavished on you.

You have to exercise your will power constantly if you wish to be helpful, energetic, and kind instead of indolent, cruel, and ungrateful.

Given education, training, and will to control and lift up your wavering self, so that your two natures can pull together instead of against each other, you can attain unequaled beauty and sweetness of character. But it is just about impossible for any one to influence you against your will; the reformation must come from within. If you do choose to be gentle and kind, no one can excel you, just as you have no equal in coldness if you are of that mood. Therefore you should set a high valuation on your own abilities and associate with the refined and genuine. When you are true to your best and higher instincts, there is no such word as "fail" in your vocabulary.

If you will, you can be so charmingly fascinating that every one will like you, for you have a naturally magnetic personality. While your interest lasts you will be exceedingly enthusiastic in whatever direction your thoughts lead you. One thing, however, holds you firmly—the love of the good things of the world and high position.

You like flattery, but too much isn't good for you any more than an overdose of scoldings.

You have a great regard for wealth, and if you haven't money yourself, you like to mix with those who have. Withal, you are thoughtful of the poor and sympathetic with the suffering. Frequently you give away as fast as you earn.

You Gemini folk are usually executive with your hands and can cut and plan, and if not interfered with will bring your work to a beautiful completion. Your arms and hands are the "expressers" of the thought of your brain, so it is only natural that you are active, restless, and anxious, in fact, never satisfied. In time this may result in serious nervous trouble, which will be accentuated unless you associate with people of quiet and restful disposition.

You love your family, but your affection does not always run in deep channels outside your kith and kin. While domestic in your tastes, yet you like society, especially if you can be conspicuous in it.

In marriage the greatest happiness, probably, could be expected from a union of Gemini and Aquarius [Jan. 21-Feb. 19], the corresponding poles of the air. Leo [July 23-Aug. 23] would make a congenial companion; also Virgo [Aug. 24-Sept. 23], and possibly Sagittarius [Nov. 23-Dec. 22].

As a publisher, author, reporter, critic, reviewer, musician, or artist you will find success.

Your colors are green, red, blue, and white; birthstones, beryl and sapphire; fortunate weeks, those beginning April 29 and Nov. 14.

Use Raillery, Not Rail.

"Dear Miss Blake: We are two girls of 16, attending high school. Were we right in accepting a five pound box of candy from boy friends of the same age at Christmas time? Also, what should a girl do when a boy who is taking her home kisses her? Should she get angry or make him apologize?

"W. W., P. B."

There is not anything wrong in your accepting the candy from the boys. A little light raillery is the most effective weapon with which to disarm the boys when they ask kisses. Don't give them to them. Of course, if the boys won't be disarmed by raillery, get cross enough with them to make them understand that you are not the kind of a girl who will allow boys to be fresh with her.

Wants a Divorce.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am a woman, just 26, and my husband left me a year and a half ago with a child that is now a year and a half old. When I saw him last he told me that he does not care for me and does not intend to support me. Now, I don't intend to live this way all the time. I had on my mind to sue for a divorce. Please advise me what to do in this matter. M. L. V. O."

I don't advise in matters of divorce. Like questions of religion, that is something that people must decide for and take the responsibility of themselves.

On Her Vacation.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am a girl of 18 and am a bookkeeper for a large firm that pays me a good salary. I have been away for my vacation and have met a young fellow of about 20, whose company and friendship I would like. He paid much attention to me while on my vacation, but has never written to me, as I had forgotten to leave my address. Do you think it would be proper for me to drop him a card? B. A. B."

It is rather late to attempt the renewal of a last year's summer courtship, don't you think? It seems to me his interest was not tremendously absorbing or he would have found the means of acquiring your address. I think I would wait until I saw him again before indicating your feelings toward him. You may experience a change of heart entirely when you see him again. Such is the fickleness of human nature, alas!

Thais, Say Thanks.

"Dear Miss Blake: I would like to have you advise me in a situation of this kind, if you will do that favor for me. When a gentleman friend calls on you and favors you with a box of candy what should you say on accepting it?

"Thais."

Thais, say a simple, "Thank you." And here's hoping you are favored often and with your favorite kind.

Dilatory in Writing.

"Dear Miss Blake: It seems you are the only one I can ask in my hour of need. I am a girl of 19. I am keeping company with a young man who is 28. I love this man dearly and I have always believed he cared for me.

"We have kept company with each other for almost three months. He has now gone away to work. When he left he promised me he would write to me each week.

"He has written twice and it is now two weeks since I have heard from him. Please tell me what to do, as we are engaged to be married soon. Maud."

Yes, if you are engaged to him, you certainly were right in expecting prompt answers to your letters. It may be that something has happened to prevent his writing, and then again men as a general thing are not good correspondents. Still you are justified in expecting a reasonably regular correspondence.

"Handkerchief Flirtation."

"Dear Miss Blake: Will you please print the handkerchief flirtation and finger flirtation? Frank."

Sorry, Frank, but I don't know them. Why cultivate them? They sound silly to me. I cannot imagine a full grown man resorting to "cute tricks" like that when he would stand so much better show with a girl of any sense or worthwhileness if he played frank, open, and aboveboard.

Real Love Stories

LOST AND WON.

Shortly after my appointment as school teacher my father died—leaving me sole heir to a little business, the income from which had kept us modestly. I placed the business under competent management and continued my duties as teacher.

A few years late I applied for the principalship of the school. I called on the school commissioners to see if they favored my appointment over the other candidates. One commissioner refused to aid me by his vote. I saw him repeatedly and finally he stated that while he knew I was fitted for the office, he felt the position should go to some woman dependent upon it for support. I argued that the department of education was not a charitable institution and positions should be dealt out to the most capable. I could not change his idea, so I lost the appointment, and continued to be a grade teacher.

One Saturday evening not long afterward I was at my store when this school commissioner came in. I laughingly remarked, "Well, look about, for this is the store that lost for me the principalship." He replied, "This store caused your visits to my office and is responsible for our better acquaintance." He continued, "I have come to offer a permanent position—I want you to be my wife."

I was surprised, but managed to say, "Hadn't you better ask some woman who has no income and needs support?"

"Marriage is no charitable institution. You are the only one who can fill the need in my life," he replied.

So later we were married, and we happily refer to the little store as Cupid in disguise.

WHAT DRINK HAS COST ME

By Antoinette Donnelly

If you missed the Antoinette Donnelly series telling how she reduced Mrs. Eva Ross thirty-six pounds in six weeks, or how she added twenty pounds in five weeks to Miss Helen Barnett's weight, or how she corrected a head of dry, thin, falling hair and an oily scalp with dandruff, or the article on treating Miss Hill's complexion for pimples and blackheads, send a stamped, addressed envelope and the information will be mailed to you. Any other questions pertaining to beauty and hygiene will be gladly answered.

This department appears every day in "The Daily Tribune."

"EXACTLY the sort of girl any mother would want her son to marry." That's how some one described Elizabeth A.

But that was before Elizabeth took her first drink. That was before Elizabeth took her first step through the door of a cabaret.

It wasn't long ago, at that, though—less than a year ago—that Elizabeth deserved the encomiums her twenty-four years of exemplary conduct had earned for her.

Within one year after she had reached her twenty-fourth birthday Elizabeth was no longer the girl any mother would want her son to marry. Drink had made her the girl no mother and no mother's son would want sharing the family name.

It is hard to imagine a higher price exacted of womanhood by alcohol than that which Elizabeth A. has paid and will have to keep on paying to her dying day.

You must know something of Elizabeth to understand this; of her family life, her education, her social position, and her highmindedness until the day she first made the acquaintance of the arch destroyer Drink.

"Is anybody proof against it?" was the thought that flashed through my mind when I first laid eyes on Elizabeth A.

"Only those who never touch a first drink," was the answer flashed back to me through a reasoning consciousness.

For there before me sat a girl with every stamp of refinement of soul and intelligence of mind written in her face. A girl whom education had fitted for the social service field in which she worked, a girl of whom you would say: "I could as soon think of my own sister or my sweetheart [or the one girl whom you hold in highest ideal] being guilty of murder as that drink could have had a part in Elizabeth's ruination."

She's more than pretty. She is tremendously good looking. Or I mean she was before the tears, the anxious lines, the sleepless nights and clouded days that—but I will let you hear her story in her own words:

"I've cried until it doesn't seem to me I could shed another tear," Elizabeth told me. "I'm sick and worried to death and the thought of what a heart break I will cause my mother when she learns the truth makes me so ill I cannot hardly work. I've thought of suicide and I've planned it. And then the thought of another life for which I am responsible jerks me back and urges me to fight on against the odds that are so terribly against me.

"I have heard my mother brag in my presence many a time that her children had never caused her a moment's worry and she knew we never would, because we were a temperance family. But I've been the one out of three of us to be the black sheep, and I the oldest, too!

"If any one had told me a year ago that drink would be the bomb and I the one to throw it into our family hearth I should never have forgiven the insult. Perhaps it is because I was so prideful, so conscious of a superior strength, in my own mind, so above temptation and especially that of drink, that I have been punished.

"Never again will I say about any wrongdoing any one commits, no matter how heinous, 'I never could or would do that.' One never knows how easily the house of ideals one has builded tumbles when drink has been allowed to soak into a single one of them.

"I never tasted a drop of liquor in my life until seven months ago. I never entered a cabaret until then. Everything has occured to me with such kaleidoscopic swiftness it seems I were not the one to whom the dreadful thing could have happened.

"But here I am not knowing from day to day what I am going to do. I can't go on working much longer. Already I feel everybody must suspect my secret. I'll have to go away from here, but how can I explain my absence to my mother? And besides I haven't money enough to support me without working. And then what am I to do after the baby is born?

"O, God in heaven, spare the misery I have brought on others," Elizabeth prayed with a fervor that must have reached the throne toward which she turned her unhappy eyes, "and spare every other girl from such a sin.

"I was at a frat dance one night and there I met a man my own age who fascinated me. He was not my escort that evening, but he got my telephone number from me and the next evening he called me up and asked me to go to a dance with him the following week. I was pleased, of course, and went. That night after the dance he asked me if I wouldn't stop off at a cabaret for awhile before we went home. I pleaded that it was so late my mother would worry to death. He had money and a car and was a good looking youth, but I knew from the start he was not the right kind of man to go with. But he hypnotized me and when after a third party I attended with him at [naming an exclusive club in the city], where his father is a member, I not only went to a cabaret with him, but I drank with him for the first time in my life.

"Advances he made on the way home that night should have warned me of his dissolute type, but my own drink-indiscretion excused him in my own mind. And I accepted his next invitation, which proved to be a stop off at an inn patronized by motorists and which he told me was thoroughly respectable, but which I learned later was not.

"That night I took a cocktail at dinner, the same as he ordered for himself, and I remembered it made me feel queer and dizzy. Then with the dinner we had champagne. I do not know how much I drank, but I know that all my home training, all my self-respect, all my ideals for purity, virtue, and holy motherhood were drowned in that wine, and here I am today what I am, responsible, too, for the probable entailment of lifelong misery of the child born of an alcoholic hour.

Elizabeth A., from whom drink exacts extortionate toll.

"I believe there are any number of people who read and have been reading your stories of what drink has cost women who sit in judgment—harsh, cruel judgment—on the offenders whose stories you have presented them," said Elizabeth A. to me. "Well, that was exactly the kind I was. Harsh, arrogant, haughty—that was I when such as my crime borne by another was told to me.

"If I only had never drunk with him he never would have dared brought me to this," Elizabeth continued. "And he tells me now he wouldn't marry me for any money.

"Next week there is coming to visit me a man whom I will not be able to face. He has been a suitor for four years. He has money, position, and is a good man. He is coming for the answer I have delayed giving him because I was not sure I loved him enough to marry him. Think of it! He was so disappointed in me when I told him that I had been to a cabaret for the first time in my life. He said, 'Elizabeth, I'm sorry. You are the one girl I thought above it.' What will he think of me when he learns the real truth?"

The wise old Romans never allowed women to touch alcohol. It was regarded by them as an absolute menace to family purity. The price that any individual woman must pay for alcohol cannot be determined in advance. It is greater or less according to the inherent stability or susceptibility of the woman herself.

But, even though Elizabeth A. does not follow in the footsteps of other women as highly born, reared, and educated who sought to drown their grief in more of the drug that caused it until they have become social outcasts, her toll to drink is extortionate.

Answers to Inquiries.

LILLIAN R.: A GREAT DEAL CAN be done by diet in relieving constipation. The abundant eating of fruit and green vegetables, if persisted in, is the most effective means of overcoming constipation. Ripe raw fruits and cooked fruits are particularly efficient; baked apples, stewed figs, and prunes are good. A glass of cold water before breakfast and before retiring is beneficial. Corn, graham, or bran bread may be substituted for white. I shall be glad to send you an exercise which is helpful in overcoming constipation if you will send me a stamped, addressed envelope.

GEORGE: IF YOUR COMPLEXION is too florid, look to your diet; it may be too stimulating. Avoid greasy foods and spices and, if possible, avoid drinking tea and coffee. Eat plenty of fruit and vegetables. Indeed, you can use the aluminum chloride for excessive perspiration. Be sure to use it at night and see that it is perfectly dry before you put on any clothing, as it will rot the clothing if not dry. Take a 25 per cent of aluminium chloride in distilled water and dab it gently on the arm pits every second or third day and let it dry on. It is usually sufficient to make three such applications, then wait for a recurrence before resuming treatment. Apply it with a piece of absorbent cotton.

PRETTY: YOU CAN EITHER USE warmed witch hazel or the following lotion to close enlarged pores on your face: Rosewater, six ounces; elder flower water, two ounces; simple tincture of benzoin, one-half ounce; tannic acid, ten grains. First scrub the face in hot water and soap, rinse off with warm water, then apply cold water, after which apply the astringent. I shall be glad to send you my treatment for excessive perspiration if you will send me a stamped, addressed envelope.

* *

G. E. R.: IT IS ALUMINIUM CHLORide that is used for excessive perspiration. A 25 per cent solution of aluminium chloride in distilled water, dabbed gently on the part every second or third day and allowed to dry on, will cause a rapid amelioration of the excessive sweating. It is usually sufficient to make three such applications, then to wait for a recurrence before resuming treatment, or one application a week may be made to ward off recurrences. It should be applied in the evening and only as described above. It must thoroughly dry on before putting on clothing, as it is liable to cause an irritation of the skin and it will rot the clothing. If your druggist does not have aluminium chloride on hand ask him to order it for you.

* *

DOTTY: NO, I DON'T CONSIDER it vulgar to use an eyebrow pencil. On the contrary, it is quite an innocent aid to beauty and there is no reason why any one with colorless brows should not use one. But you must be skillful in its use. Follow the line of the eyebrow. Take your mirror to a strong light and assure yourself that you have not applied it too generously. I have a formula to promote the growth of eyebrows and eyelashes which I shall be glad to send to you if you will send me a stamped addressed envelope.

For and By BUSINESS GIRLS

Miss King will be glad to help business girls solve their problems. If you want a personal answer send a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Address Miss Mary King, "Sunday Tribune," Chicago.

STICK TO YOUR JOB.

IN these days of unrest and feverish excitement, when every woman is eager to do her "bit" for the great cause, the business girl ought not to lose the proper perspective on her duty.

At this time and under present conditions it seems to me that her duty is to stick to her job, rather than to obligate herself for active service in the field or hospital. Throughout this splendid country of ours there are numberless women, besides the army of professional nurses and doctors, who have the time and the means to devote themselves to preparing for service with the Red Cross or other organizations that pledge themselves to the care of the wounded and diseased soldiers.

To insure the greatest security to the country at this time our industries must be kept in motion with as much smoothness and efficiency as is possible. Thousands and perhaps millions of young men will be taken from the industrial field for service at the front, and as such a drawing off of the working forces might seriously cripple commerce it is doubly necessary for any and all women now engaged in, as well as those who might be otherwise obtainable for, industrial service, to realize that their country's greatest need of them is in the positions they now hold, or stepping into the places left vacant by the men who have answered the call to arms.

The business girl justifiably prides herself on her ability to keep her head in a crisis. Now, in this greatest of all crises, she is being called upon to keep herself cool and collected and free of the vortex of hysteria and unrestrained emotionalism which in the intensity of the moment is mistaken for genuine patriotism.

On account of the lessening of the working forces by the withdrawal of the young men for service the work of many of the women in the factories and offices will be greatly increased and made more difficult. On this account they will need all their strength and energy for their work and it would be folly for them to attempt to spend what little spare time they have in sewing, knitting, or taking courses in nursing. They are doing their share and more than their share by helping to fill the places in the many important industries of the country of the men who have been called away.

The girls in the business world whose work will not be materially increased by the war, and whose positions are comparatively easy if they do not work nine hours or more a day, might devote an hour or two an evening, without seriously interfering with their daily work, in helping to make kits for our fighting men, both sailors and soldiers; knitting socks and mittens, if they have the talent, or learning to roll bandages.

By paying $1 to the Red Cross you are entitled to an annual membership in that organization without obligating yourself to any service whatsoever; and $2 gives you, besides the membership, an annual subscription to the magazine issued by them. This small monetary sacrifice can be made by most any business girl and thus she can satisfy her patriotic spirit by the knowledge that she is helping in a great way to make of the Red Cross a complete and efficient organization.

By sticking to her job and doing her own work and, where she can, a man's work as well, the business girl will not only be doing her bit but will make herself felt as a sustaining power to the nation in the hour of need.

The TRIBUNE COOK BOOK

All recipes have been scientifically tested by Miss Eddington with current market materials and are indorsed by her.

This department appears every day in "The Daily Tribune."

SALT PORK SOUPS.

THERE is more than one unfortunate side to this high cost of living talk besides there being too much of it. One of these is that many people are trying to devise food substitutes at a lower cost than those it is proposed to supply an equivalent for. A substitute is rarely an equivalent, and it may be so far from it as to be utterly unworthy of the name of substitute.

A considerable number of correspondents have presented ideas they wanted to see in print for reducing living costs, which represented simply a means of cheating the body of its just dues. It is the height of folly to save a few pennies if we cheat the bodies of pounds of healthy and needed tissue. Therefore these ideas have not been printed.

In devising substitutes for the more expensive foods we must provide equivalents in body upkeep or we are simply saving money for the doctor, who in this day and generation is likely to prescribe more nourishing foods rather than medicine. Trying to save money by reducing the potential power in our foods, and trying to get other people to do the same on our advice, may seem like present gain, but it always means ultimate loss. Better save on dress, find substitutes for our amusements, etc., than to cut the heart out of our diet to save a few dollars.

A trained ability to replace something [illegible] necessary by something that may be almost as satisfactory is most worth while. This is the more worth while when there are times when the one cannot be easily obtained and the other can—for instance, milk or meat stock for soups. What can replace them?

Nothing can replace milk in the diet. Children must have it. Most adults need more of it than they get, and best if it is cooked in some form. But as an alternate or as a next best thing in quick soup making and for a milkless emergency salt pork and flour may serve, and most acceptably, too. Clean, delicious flavors may be secured when these have the proper additions. Flour and dripping are not so reliable. If there is always some potato in these soups they are brought nearer to being an equivalent in total yield of nutriment of the milk soups.

Any thick soup well made may be substantial enough to equal half a meal at least, not be a mere appetizer like meat soups. Such a meal may be prepared in camp or at a picnic and yield a maximum of joy and sufficiency while reducing the problem of transportation. Some dates or raisins for a finish have high food value from the energy standpoint and other virtues as regulators.

A piece of clear fat salt pork averages 3,670 food units or energy units pure and simple, fuel or heat or energy units you may also say, to the pound. One-sixth of it then yields practically 610 food units. Whole milk averages 325 fuel units per pound (pint). If, then, we use one-sixth of a pound of pork to one quart of water and one-third of a cup of flour as a basis of a soup, we are not depriving the body of many of those nutritive units called calories. It is by calories that as much as nine-tenths of our nutritive needs may be profitably measured. They represent our total activity, beating of heart as well as use of hand. Flour averages 1,665 calories per pound, so it is more than easy to make up the forty calories lacking in the pork to make it equal calorically to milk.

Of course we usually add butter to milk soups, but the pork soups of the old fashioned sort were much thicker than those of milk, and this fact gave them higher food value. Fish soups or the fish chowder have that good measure of good protein which other pork soups may be almost without, which milk of the best of protein foods is in milk. While dietetically the milk soup is best and necessary for the person of weak stomach, the pork soup gives all that we could ask for one who is living out of doors, especially if fish is added to it.

It is such lessons as these, comparing value for value in body terms—a calorie is a measure of body heat which can be balanced by foods giving off the same measure of heat when burned—that those most eminent in food knowledge believe the world must learn. Perhaps half of the arithmetic lessons of the future will be problems on the heat or food unit values of foods instead of their money values, as at present.

Plain Fish Chowder.

Salt pork, a little or much onion to taste, potatoes, fish, water, salt to taste, remembering that the pork is salt, and at the end milk and crackers, whole or rolled fine, have been the ingredients thrown together for a chowder, proportions of each varying according to supply, in many cases. Perhaps no dish cooked may be excellent with so little precision as this.

The salt pork, cut in dice, is first fried out in the bottom of the iron kettle in which the chowder is to be cooked. If only a little onion is used, it may be gently fried without browning it in the fat. If much is used, it is sliced and put into the kettle in layers with the potato and fish, the potato, then a layer of onion, then one of fish, and then repeat. Potatoes and fish, pound for pound, are in good proportion. The potatoes are sliced, the fish cut in rather thick squares. The whole is covered with cold water and when the potatoes, sliced rather thin, are done the chowder is ready for some milk to finish it, with cracker crumbs or whole Boston crackers cooked in it for a few minutes.

Fresh cod and perch are considered as perhaps the best chowder fish, but halibut is also good and any white meated fish will do. Of the common dishes, chowder is one of the most palatable.

Poverty Stew.

Poverty stew is a potato made on the same model as the fish chowder. The pork is fried out gently, alternate layers of sliced potatoes and onion added, cold water to cover, salt to taste, and milk and crackers to finish. A few tablespoons of cream may replace the milk. If thick, this is a real stew, but when thinner by using more liquid it may be strained and served as soup.

Brown Potato Soup.

Pork fat may be used in the following as may butter. Heat the tablespoon of fat, brown in it carefully three tablespoons of flour, then add one and a half quarts of cold water, a teaspoon of salt, and two potatoes cut up fine. Cook until the potatoes are thoroughly done; three-fourths of an hour is the time from first to last.

Fat and flour and potatoes in ordinary times make the least expensive of soups.

Pork and Flour Base.

One-sixth of a pound of pork, one onion cut fine, one-third cup of flour, and a quart and a half of water may be made the starting point of all sorts of additions. For instance, we may make what seems like a tomato bouillon with beef stock, only better, by adding canned or raw tomatoes cut up rather fine when the potato and flour are well cooked, and then after the tomato is cooked straining the whole. About half the measure of canned tomato will do and less of uncooked.

Left Over Soup.

Suppose there is some cold cauliflower or cold cabbage among your supplies. Chop it fine and add it to a soup base of the pork, flour, onion, and water which has been cooked for three-quarters of an hour, and cook until the cold vegetable has been heated through. If a potato or two have been cooked in the preparation the soup will be improved.

Cream of Corn Soup.

One-half cup of canned corn added to each cup of this soup preparation, especially one in which the potatoes cut in dice have been cooked, must have a little cream added to it or it will not suit the eye, although sufficiently palatable for a meal once in a while. If some butter is added the whole will have high food value per portion.

Near Borsch Soup.

This recipe was worked out by me and printed with a slight error but recently, but there are reasons why a repetition of this soup, like the Russian borsch, may be profitable: Fry out without browning the fat from a sixth of a pound of salt pork cut in squares, preferably in the bottom of the kettle, in which the soup is to be cooked. Gently stew, in the tried out fat, without coloring, one or two sliced onions for about five minutes. Put in two or three carrots sliced thin, and stir them around, and then one-fourth cup of flour or a little more, and stir until it is well mingled with the other ingredients. Add a quart and a half of water and stir the whole until the water is well thickened, then add one small cabbage from which the leaves have been removed one by one and cut in nice little squares. Cut the stem part in thin slices and add that. A potato or two may be added or omitted. The soup may be cooked three-quarters of an hour, and potato then added and the whole cooked until the potato is tender. A fresh tomato or two cut in small pieces and added at the same time improves the appearance of the soup and adds something of flavor.

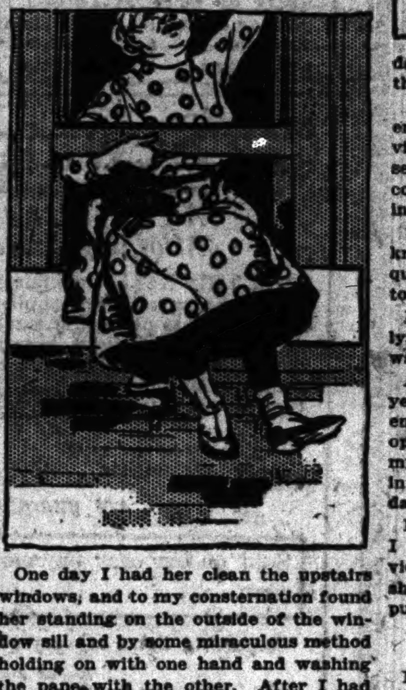
Olga Washes Windows.

A few weeks ago I secured a new maid who was most anxious to please and very apt at taking suggestions but likely to take directions too literally.



One day I had her clean the upstairs windows, and to my consternation found her standing on the outside of the window sill and by some miraculous method holding on with one hand and washing the pane with the other. After I had her safely landed on the floor inside I said rather sharply:

"Mary, don't you ever do anything like that again. When you wash windows sit on the sill and wash the pane as far up as you can reach."

I then left her with instructions to do the inside of the windows when she had finished the outside. While sitting in the living room some minutes later I noticed that every one who passed the house looked up and then seemed fairly convulsed with laughter. My curiosity getting the best of me, I too went outdoors to investigate, and, looking up, saw a pair of legs dangling from the front window. Then I realized that my maid was washing the inside of the windows according to the directions I had given her for doing the outside.

Looking for Change.

That was in Indianapolis. We went to the courthouse one New Year's morning for a marriage license, called up a justice of the peace, and soon had it over. I've made my pile since, but all I had in the world then was a $20 bill. I handed this to the man and he nonchalantly tucked it away. My wife, the clerk, the witnesses, were all looking. My heart was pounding and face was red when I blurted out, "Don't I get any change?"

The Wrong Date.

Wednesday and Thursday had been spent in entertaining in honor of four school friends who were visiting me. It was well known in our small town that Friday, for us, was our very own day, and that "callers" were not enthusiastically received.

We were lounging around in kimonos, enjoying our indolence, when Genevieve, an intimate friend, whose absence at the parties had caused much consternation, was ushered informally into the hall.

She said sweetly to the maid, "I know the way up, Lettie. I see I'm quite early, but I'll just run in and talk to the girls."

In she came. Greeted us all profusely, and asked how it happened that she was first to arrive.

After I explained that the party was yesterday and that she had made an enormous mistake, she composedly opened her vanity box and presented to my astonished gaze my own invitation, in my own handwriting, which was misdated.

In a meek, confused, submissive voice I murmured my apologies, but Genevieve was downstairs, asking to be shown to the door by a giggling, impudent maid.

She Called Bob.

My dog Jerry had a friend across the street, a beautiful young setter who became quite a pet with me. The people that owned him were strangers to me, but I often heard the children calling "Bob," and it was not long till the friendly dog would come when I called him Bobby.

One day as I lay in the hammock I saw the white flash of Bobby along the walk and called to him lazily, "Hello, Bob! Come here and see me, can't you?"

To my surprise the young man who owned the dog, and who, until now unnoticed, was close behind him, halted, open mouthed, and seemed about to speak. Fortunately he thought better of it, but my delighted brother explained that the dog's name was Jack, and the young man, a total stranger, was the only Bob in the neighbor's family!

Asleep at the Bridge.

I was so tired that night that I would have given anything to get out of going to the auction bridge party. But it was too late to send regrets.

Towards the end of the evening I felt myself getting drowsier and drowsier, and had to make a desperate effort to pay attention to the game.

At last mine was the dummy hand and I settled back with a sigh of relief, for a moment's respite, when off I went, fast asleep.

What was my horror and embarrassment to feel my hostess' hand on my shoulder as I woke up.

Never will I forget the amused faces of the players—my partner was nearly convulsed. And the peculiar flat look on the face of my hostess.

Why Rice Powder in Face Powder Is as Bad as White Lead

Everybody knows white lead is a deadly poison; it causes blotches and irritations. To avoid white lead face powders many women have used rice powder. Today, specialists say rice powder is almost as bad as white lead. Rice powder is starchy, and, like bread flour, it is quickly turned into a gluey paste by the moisture of the skin. It clogs the cuticle, swells in the pores, causing enlarged pores, blackheads and pimples. Prove this yourself. Ask a number of your friends who have enlarged pores, blackheads or pimples what face powder they use. Nine out of ten will say rice powder or they use "Poudre de Riz," which is French for rice flour. If you value the charm of a lovely complexion, stop rice powder. You can now use a pure face powder that really beautifies your complexion and is guaranteed not to injure the most delicate baby skin. It is the only powder sold in America, at any price, guaranteed not to contain rice flour or talcum or bismuth or white lead. The specialist who makes this improved powder uses an ingredient that doctors prescribe to heal pimples. Every time you apply this new powder you give your complexion a real beauty treatment. It helps to prevent enlarged pores, blackheads and pimples. It is also remarkably astringent; it tightens the skin, discouraging flabbiness, crows' feet and wrinkles. And it really stays on better than any of the old fashioned powders. You can also use this same powder as a liquid powder. Just sprinkle a little dry powder in a dry saucer and apply it with a damp sponge. No other powder can be used both ways. If you honestly want a perfect complexion powder go to any big store and ask for La-may face powder (French, Poudre L'Amé). The Fair and Buck & Rayner are now selling the 50c size at only 35c. When you use this delightful Powder La-may you will be surprised to see how wonderfully it beautifies your complexion. If you live out of town and your best dealer has not yet got it you can order white, flesh or brunette for 35c by mail of the American agent, Herbert Roystone, 106 E. 19th St., N. Y.

Baby's Face Disfigured With Eczema Scales. Itched and She Would Scratch. Spread Over Side of Face. Cuticura Healed in Four Weeks.

Above are extracts from a signed statement recently received from Mrs. C. E. Outland, 351 Leggett Avenue, Barnesville, Ohio.

If Cuticura did no more than soothe and heal eczemas, rashes, itchings and burnings, bringing speedy comfort to tortured, disfigured men, women and children it would be entitled to the highest praise. But it does more. By using the Soap exclusively for toilet purposes, allowing no other soap to touch your skin, with touches of Cuticura Ointment now and then to soothe and heal the first sign of skin troubles, you will in many cases prevent these distressing experiences. It is always a pleasure, not an effort, to use them, they are so pure and delicate.

MARION HARLAND'S HELPING HAND

By MARION HARLAND

This department appears every day in "The Daily Tribune."

When an address or other information is wanted by mail, a stamped, addressed envelope should accompany the request. Please do not send parcels to the newspaper office.

Memorial Day Program.

"I AM to give a Memorial day program. I have searched high and low for a civil war poem beginning:

"'After the battles are over,
And the war drums cease to beat,
And no more is heard on the hillside,
The tramp of hurrying feet.'

"Please help me to get it, for I need it badly. Perhaps some of your readers have a copy of it?

"E. L."

Referred. And may we ask that response be made quickly by anybody who has the selection? It is wanted for use at a party. The querist's address is in our books.

A Box of Pictures.

"I saw in a recent issue a box of pictures offered to a shut-in who would be willing to pay postage. May I have them for my little girl, who is a shut-in? I will gladly pay postage on them. And if any one has little pieces of calico, silk, or velvet for her to piece and use in making dresses for her dollies she would be much pleased, as she can do that and pass many lonely hours.

"MRS. L. S."

I am sorry the writer of this letter gives no clew by which I can get trace of the friend who offered the article she wishes. All I can do is to put this letter in print in the hope that some kindly disposed friend who wishes to cheer the lonely lot of this shut-in child may see the appeal and write for the address with the intention of sending the pictures and the pieces for dolls' dresses.

Would Please Little Cripple.

"I am the friend of a little girl crippled in both legs from the knees down by infantile paralysis, who would be happy to receive the things mentioned in the inclosed clipping. Her father has also met with a serious accident, and there are in the family five other children who are partly supported by the mother. I give her address here.

"D. P."

The articles referred to in the clipping are cards, pictures, cutout dolls, stories, and nursery rhymes with colored pictures from the papers. Any or all of them would please a little crippled child, and I regret all the more that they had been given to some one else before the above letter came to me. But there are many other such articles and plenty of loving women and girls who would love to send them to some one less fortunate. So I shall put the address of D. P. on file and hope to receive a number of applications for it. The "inasmuch" promise applies especially in the case of such helpless and suffering "little ones" as the one mentioned in this letter, and I shall be surprised if a number of calls do not come for the address.

Help for Rural Sunday School.

"I should like to have the addresses of those who are interested in reading magazines, especially shut-ins, if you have them on file. I should also like to know if there is a Sunday school in the rural districts anywhere that is not financially able to furnish sufficient literature, as I would like to help it also. If there is a Sunday school or any kind of religious or charitable institution which needs financial help and has exhausted all means for raising the necessary means, I might be able to make some useful suggestions and I will certainly take pleasure in doing so.

"V. N. W."

This is a helpful letter, and I am sure there will be some of the Corner readers who will be glad to take advantage of the kind offer. I will be happy to supply the address of the writer to those who wish to accept her generosity. I should also like to point out that in writing for information it would be well to inclose postage for reply, as it seems hardly fair to add the expense of this to the trouble that is given by seeking the aid proffered. We think too little of the burden we sometimes put upon those who are liberal enough to say they will give assistance which demands time and effort. We might at least spare them the cost of postage stamps needed to send us their letters.

Likes Letters from the Country.

"'Shut-ins, old or young!' It is certainly refreshing that a young matron cares to write to an old person these days. May the Lord bless her! I am yet under 50, but in miserable health since the loss of my two children. My mother and an uncle, who sent weekly letters, passed away this last year, so if Mrs. J. L. A. does not find too many demands upon her time, may I hope to hear from her, especially if she lives in the country, as I think that is the ideal life?

N. B."

A number of would-be correspondents have written for the address of the kindly young matron who wished to write to shut-ins, old or young, and although her address has been given to the writer of this letter, I fear that perhaps her chance of getting the missives she longs for may be slender. Is there not some one else who would like to have her for a correspondent and who can send her some of the letters from the country of which she speaks? I hope so, sincerely, and will be glad to give her address to those who write for it.

Needs Invalid's Chair.

"I am 77 years old and served four years in the civil war, passing the last four months of it in Libby prison. My wife and I celebrated our fifty-fourth wedding anniversary last January. My family consists of my wife, my invalid daughter, and her two young boys. My only income is my pension from Uncle Sam. A year ago my wife fell and broke her hip and since then she cannot walk without crutches. It seems too bad for her to be shut up in the house these pleasant days, when, if I had a wheel chair, I could take her out into the country and on the sidewalk, but I am unable to purchase a chair. If some one has an old chair that could be spared—even if it needed repairs, I could fix it up—I would greatly appreciate it, and so would she. I should be glad to make and send to the donor a rustic plant basket or vase for the lawn or porch, or a rustic birdhouse for the grounds, or both.

E. H. W."

At this time when our thoughts turn upon soldiering and all connected with our soldiers, there is an especial appeal in the need of our veterans. I hope that some one else besides myself may be touched by this letter and may think up some means by which the desired chair may be procured.

Old Baby Clothes.

"For long I have planned to write you a letter, but owing to feeble health I have not, but finally make the attempt now. I have read the Corner for a number of years and have learned many useful things, and so many that have been a great help to me. I feel it is truly a Helping Hand. I have noticed that many have offered articles and others have asked for them. If I should ask now, would my wishes be granted? If any one has some old baby clothes that are no longer needed, I would be grateful if such could be given to me, as I am to become a mother again and my feeble health has not thus permitted me to prepare any garments for the little one-to-be. I have one little girl, 2 years old, and have a hard time getting clothes for her, so that I will greatly appreciate the favor of the small clothing and will send in return anything in my power.

MRS. L. W. N."

Almost always there are baby clothes that have been outgrown which can be spared to help a needy prospective mother. I trust this may prove the case in this instance.

How to Order Your Clotilde Patterns.

In ordering a waist the size should be determined by the bust measure. Give the bust measure. In ordering a skirt the size of the hip is more important than the size of the waist, but give both the hip and the waist measure. Ten cents for each waist, coat, or skirt.

In ordering misses' patterns the age should be stated—12, 14, 16, or 18 years. Ten cents for each waist, coat, skirt, or dress.

In ordering children's regular patterns order them by the age of the child. Ten cents each.

Clotilde's patterns are made in New York exclusively for "The Chicago Sunday Tribune" and may be obtained through no other service. A Chicago distribution office has been opened, and following this announcement orders will be filled on the day of receipt. An extra 2 cent stamp will allow for letter postage and will thereby hasten delivery. Patrons are requested to send stamps instead of dimes, as money is frequently lost in the mails.

Varied Activities of Women

He's Too Good.

I questioned a silly little newlywed, who seemed dissatisfied with married life, as to the reason, and this is what she said: "I married Howard to reform him and would you believe it, he hasn't done a single thing to require it? I am so disappointed." H. A.

"Come on Over, See My Corn Fall Off!"

"I Put 2 Drops of 'Gets-It' on Last Night—Now Watch—"

"See—all you have to do is to use your two fingers and lift the corn right off. That's the way 'Gets-It' always works. You just put on about 2 drops. Then the corn not only shrivels, but loosens from the toe, without affecting the surrounding flesh in the least. Why, it's almost a pleasure to have corns and see how 'Gets-It' gets them off in a hurry and without the least pain. I can wear tight shoes, dance and walk as though I never had corns."

"That Was a Quick Funeral That Corn Had With 'Gets-It.'"

"Gets-It" makes the use of toe-irritating salves, bundling bandages, tape, plasters and other things, not only foolish, but unnecessary. Use this wonderful discovery, "Gets-It," for any soft or hard corn or callus. It is the new, simple, easy, quick way, and it never fails. You'll never have to cut a corn again with knives or scissors, and run chances of blood poison. Try "Gets-It" tonight.

"Gets-It" is sold everywhere, 25c a bottle, or sent on receipt of price by E. Lawrence & Co., Chicago, Ill.—Advertisement.

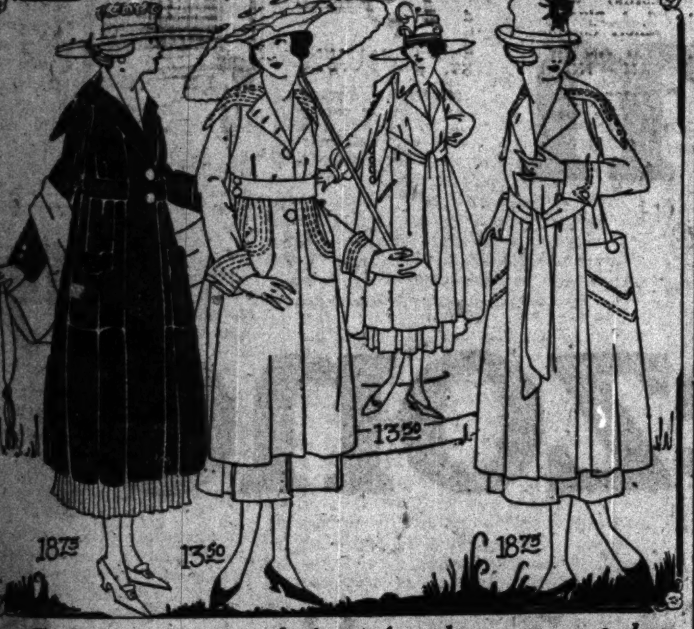
Two Coat Specials



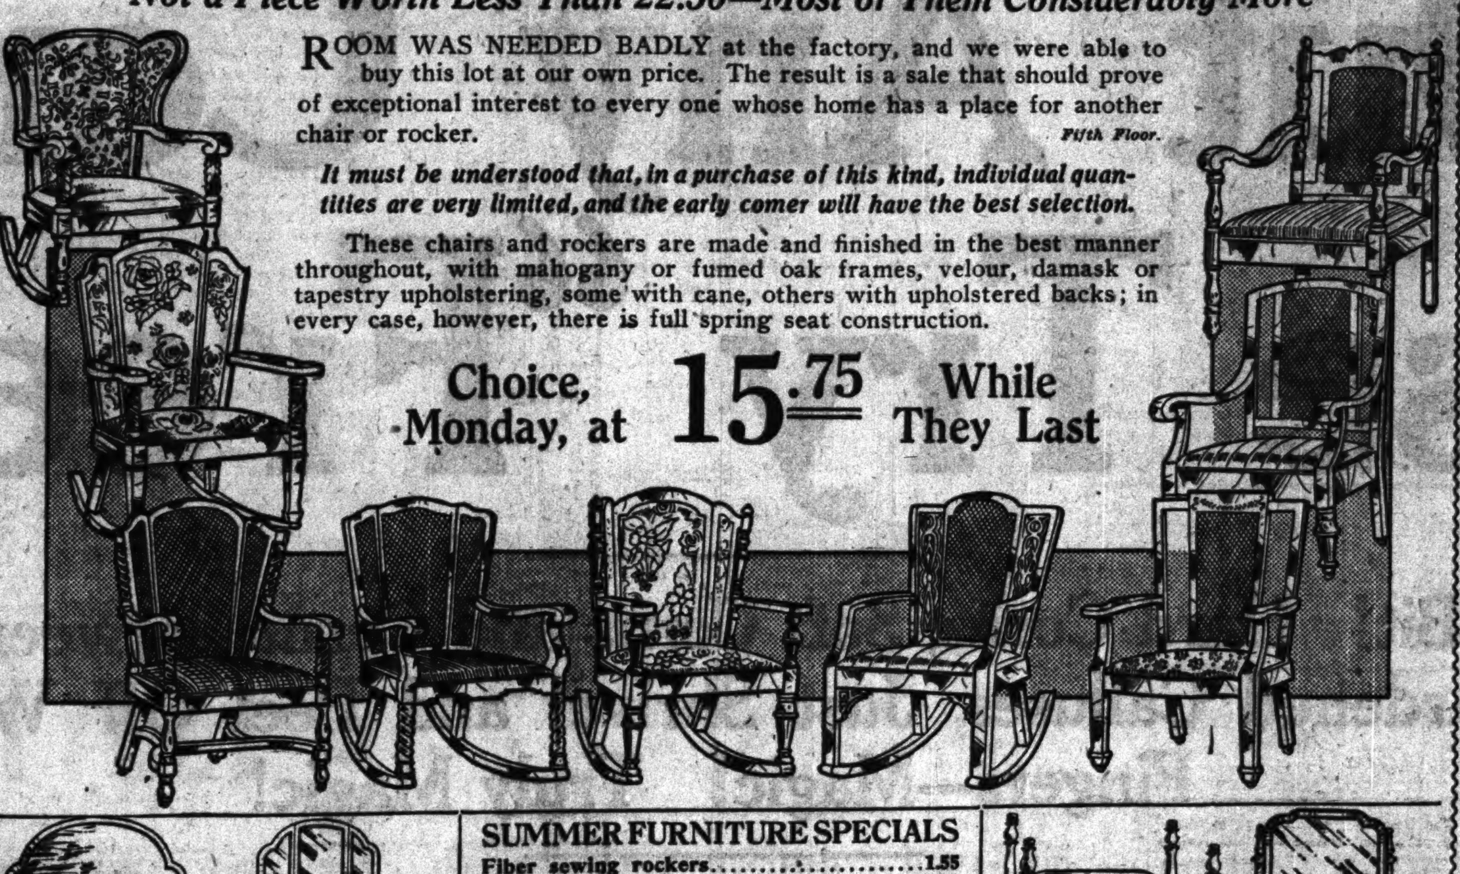
To keep our coat stocks in perfect shape, we must clear away the broken lots. The result is a substantial saving for the many women who are the lucky buyers of these garments.

IN the first group there are hundreds of coats to select from, including values as high as 24.75. The season's most desirable fabrics—burellas, serges, poplins, velours and fancy [illegible]. Colors are rose, gold, honey, Copen, navy blue, black and green. Coats for every occasion, motoring, street wear, sports, are represented, here at 13.50

INCLUDED in the second big lot are models taken from our regular stock, in broken sizes, formerly 29.75, 32.50, $35. There are a number of smart stripe and plain silk sports coats; fancy checks and jerseys for motoring; fine velours, gabardines, burellas, serges and Poiret twills; there are belted, loose flare, semi-fitted and stout models, special, 18.75

145 Chairs and Rockers to Go at Factory Price

Not a Piece Worth Less Than 22.50—Most of Them Considerably More



ROOM WAS NEEDED BADLY at the factory, and we were able to buy this lot at our own price. The result is a sale that should prove of exceptional interest to every one whose home has a place for another chair or rocker. Fifth Floor.

It must be understood that, in a purchase of this kind, individual quantities are very limited, and the early comer will have the best selection.

These chairs and rockers are made and finished in the best manner throughout, with mahogany or fumed oak frames, velour, damask or tapestry upholstering, some with cane, others with upholstered backs; in every case, however, there is full spring seat construction.

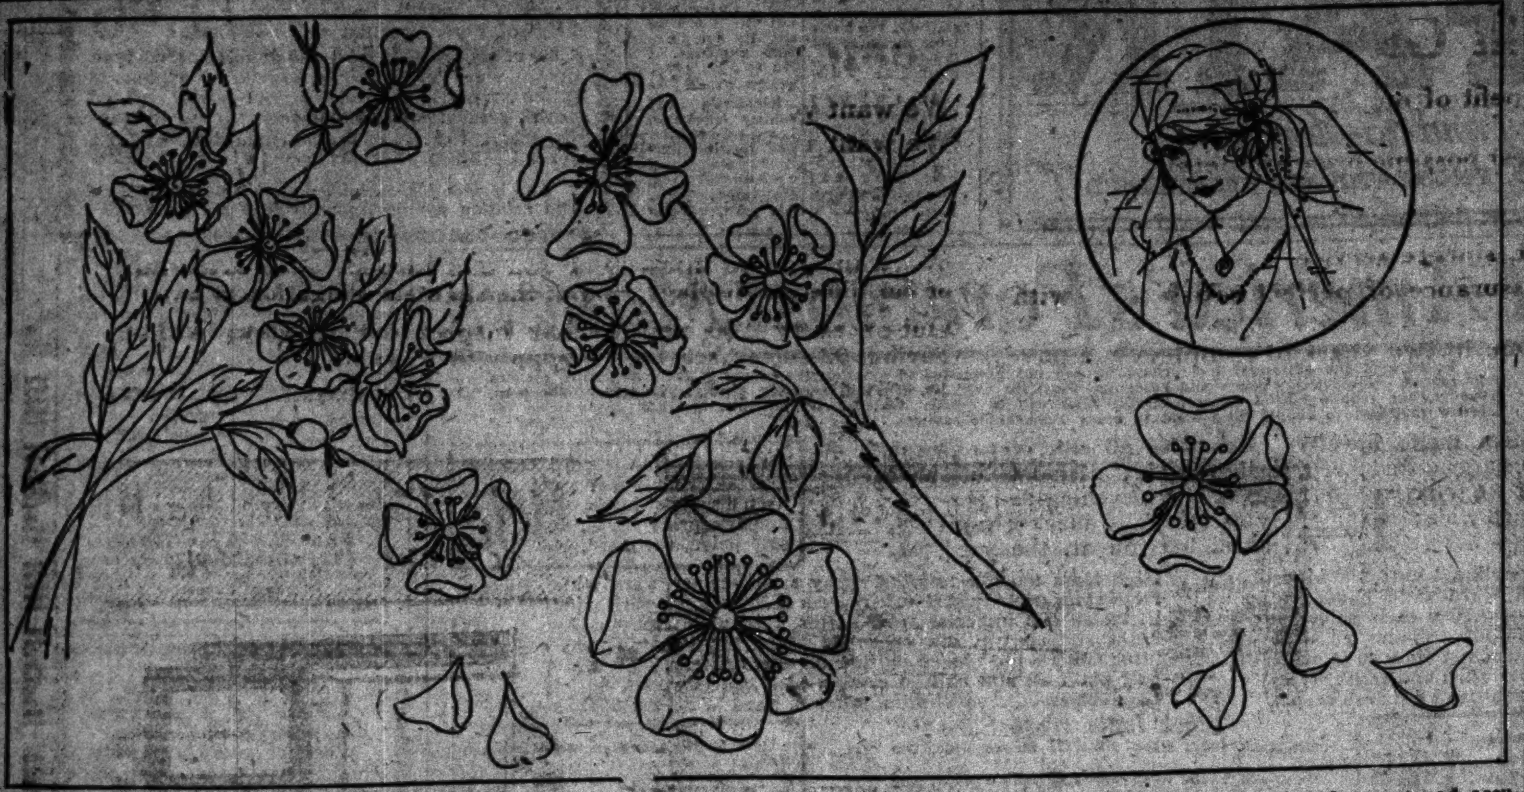
Practical and Fancy Needle Work

ROSE DESIGN FOR BRIDAL LINGERIE.

By CLOTILDE



In using the printed design from the paper the directions are as follows: If your material is sheer, the easiest way is to lay it over the design, which will show through plainly, and trace each line with a hard, sharp lead pencil. If your linen is heavy, secure a piece of impression paper—the kind that does not rub off—lay it on the material face downward, place the design over it, and trace with a hard, sharp lead pencil. On removing the design and transfer paper you will find a neat and accurate copy of the design on the material.

Small Brother Contest.

You've heard that story about two women discussing a wedding. "Who gave the bride away?" asked one. "Her young brother," answered her companion. "He yelled out, 'Susie, you landed him at last.'" Perhaps he was your young brother, or perhaps your young brother got in his demoniacal work before you got as far as the altar. Or maybe the young imp wasn't your brother, but a diabolical young sister who pretty nearly queered the game for you. Write and tell us about it, anyway. "The Tribune" will pay $1 for every letter published. No manuscripts returned. Address Doris Blake, Chicago Tribune.

An Unlucky Find.

I have no small brother, but I have a small niece, who with her widowed mother has been living with us, and who is about the limit when it comes to saying things she ought not to.

Coming home from the store with her one windy day I noticed upon entering the house that the wind had carrie away one of my hair puffs. We both went in search of it, but could not find it.

Now my beau had often praised my beautiful hair and I did not deem it necessary to enlighten him that a part of it had been bought in one of the stores downtown. The Sunday following we had a number of visitors besides my beau, when suddenly my little niece burst into the room holding high the lost hair puff and crying at the top of her voice: "O Elsie, look what I found—that hair puff you lost; it was hanging on one of the lilac bushes on the lawn."

It took a lot of explanation about the present way of dressing the hair to square myself with my beau after the visitors had gone, for he insisted that I must be as false as the hair I wore, since I never told him the truth when he was admiring the abundance as well as the color of my hair.

ETIQUETTE

By ELIZABETH VAN RENSSELAER

Any question on etiquette will be answered if you write to Elizabeth Van Rensselaer, "Chicago Sunday Tribune." If you wish a personal reply inclose a stamped, addressed envelope. Please write on one side of the paper only.

MARKS THE WELL BRED.

THE annals of history have proven time and again that those who have "batted well," as Mr. Service calls it, have done so only by dint of stoic self-forgetfulness and iron perseverance. This is true not only of the great actions of national and international interests but of those small deeds that occur in everyday life.

How many of us appreciate, I wonder, the forbearance exercised by a well bred man or woman who "keeps a stiff upper lip" and smiles, though the day seems interminable and the necessary associates uncompromisingly stupid?

The woman giving a dinner and having trouble with the servants at the last minute, who can go on with it with serene and unruffled countenance, is no less an example of inborn power and verve than the man in his office who, facing possible ruin, through no dishonesty on his part, yet keeps up his courage and that of his employes.

Both have acquired something which is a character builder, and both possess qualities without which it is hard to gain the distinguished—if somewhat old fashioned—titles of "pefect lady" or "thorough gentleman."

A. I. B.: "How do you do, Miss Smith?" is the proper thing for a young man to say when he is presented to a young woman. When introduced to a man it is correct for him to say, "How do you do, Mr. Jones?" or simply, "Mr. Jones." A boy may give flowers, candy, or a book to a girl on her seventeenth birthday. Jewelry is not a suitable gift. When any course of a dinner does not require the use of a knife, it is as incorrect for a man to use one as for a girl to do so, and vice versa. There is no set rule regarding the places where two men and two women sit when they are dining together. Usually a woman sits at the right of her escort, but, except at formal dinners when many people are present, the matter is not important.

A. B.: It would not be improper for the bride to give the bridegroom a present on their wedding day, but it is not customary. If she cares to give him a gift, any personal thing as a pair of cuff links, a stick pin, a cigaret case, or studs would be suitable.

* *

MRS. M.: It is your duty to call upon the bride who lives near you as soon as possible after the date upon the at home card. Since the second bride lives so far away, why not write her a cordial note and, if you feel so inclined, send her a little gift?

Bright Sayings of Children

"The Tribune" will pay $1 for each childish saying printed. The story told must never have been printed in any magazine or paper. It is not possible to acknowledge or return unavailable contributions. Address bright sayings to Aunty Bee, "Tribune," Chicago.

This department appears every day in "The Daily Tribune."

Theodore, who had but just passed his third birthday, had long since learned the power of tears to gain his point. One day big brother Herbert was coaxing his father for a gun, but his father was obstinate. Thereupon Theodore ran to Herbert's side and whispered the following advice: "Ki, Hubbut; ki hard; den oo'll det it."
A. J. B.

My little boy while in our neighbor's yard at play would always ask for an automobile ride. When I found it out I told him not to ask for any more rides because it was impolite. The next night when he came home I asked him if he asked for a ride. He replied: "I didn't ask for a ride, but I asked where I should sit."
V. L. G.

Elsie is one year older than Frank and consequently likes to domineer over him whenever she can. I was amused to hear her call out scoldingly from the bathroom one day to him: "Frank, why don't you ever hang your towel up? I can never tell which is mine." Frank answered: "O, mine is the one that is not hung up."
M. R. W.

A woman visited our home a few days after my brother Herbert's fifth birthday. Herbert promptly and proudly displayed the gifts he had received, whereupon she said: "Herbert, I bought a pretty ball for your birthday, but forgot to bring it last Friday" (the day of his birthday). Herbert immediately replied: "O, it's still my birthday."

My little nephew, who is an active 5 year old, was sent to visit his grandmother, an elderly lady who did not appreciate that small boys like to be on the move and not just talk. In this instance I was present and fed the little man on home made taffy and romped with him for the half hour of his stay. When he started to go he leaned up against his grandmother and said confidentially, "I did not fink I'd have a bit good time when I camed, but I did."

After serious ear trouble Stewart had had to have both ear drums lanced. When convalescing his auntie nurse wished to give him a hot foot bath. To this he strenuously objected, saying: "I don't see why I have to take it, for I am sick entirely at the other end."

Ruth was upholding the negative side in an argument with her elder brother and was getting decidedly the worst of it. Thinking only of obtaining an "honorable peace without victory," she appealed to her mother, hastily adding: "Mamma, just say 'yes,' then look at me and wink."

Our next door neighbors, the O'Connors, have a dog named Happy, who is a great favorite with the children in the neighborhood. One day last summer just as the dog catchers passed, Happy ran out on the street and was gathered in. Billy, one of Happy's friends, saw the dog lifted into the wagon, whereupon he ran home, crying, "Mamma, mamma, the dog catchers got Happy O'Connor."

Bobby was sprinkling the lawn—as big a treat as it was difficult for him. But by and by the hose began to feel heavy and the task became a bit tedious. Over in the shade of a big tree his 2 year old sister was taking her daily nap in the baby carriage. He spied her. Something new to sprinkle!

His mother, who was on the veranda, read his thoughts and sounded a quick warning: "Bobby, if you turn the hose on baby I shall put you to bed for the rest of the afternoon."

Bobby considered this and its alternative solemnly. Then: "All wite, mamma; get th' bed weady."

Arthur had been asking that he be allowed to go swimming in a neighboring park pool.

"I'll not allow it, Arthur," said his mother. "We'd never see our little boy again if you were drowned."

"Yes, you would," replied Arthur, reassuringly. "They clean out the tank every week."

Childhood Ambition Contest.

Did you ever have a childhood ambition—a humorous one? Of course you did. And what you did wasn't anything like what you dreamed. Tell us what your great ambition was—and then tell us how far short you fell. Do it in 250 words, on one side of the paper, and address manuscripts to Childhood Ambition Editor, Chicago Sunday Tribune. For each story printed $1 will be paid. No manuscripts returned.

She Yearned to Spurn 'Em.

I was a constant reader of fairy tales, detective stories, and novels; so my ambition was to be like the heroines of these love stories, who with scornful words would refuse the love of their countless admirers.

I had my little speech by heart, and practiced it daily, thus—with my left hand clutching my dress over my heart, and my right arm thrust out stiffly, I would turn my head aside and utter these words, "Though I do not love you, I will marry you, but I will be your wife in name only." Then, staggering back a few steps, I would add, "Please leave me now, I would be alone."

I was so thrilled with the words and the part I was to play that I often wept.

Alas, for my childish ambition. I was madly in love with the only man that ever proposed, married him, and am the mother of three children.

Yearned to Battle.

In my early teens I was athletic and unusualy strong. Several older men and physical directors of gymnasiums complimented me on my physique, and many people kidded me about my "bull neck," and my having the appearance of a prize fighter.

I naturally liked to box and wrestle and soon developed the ambition to be a prize fighter. I secretly swore to never drink or to use tobacco, and spent my spare time in exercising and improving myself physically.

After finishing school I secured a place in a grain office and lost all of my old ideas. My former ambition seems a joke to me now, and I realize that I probably never would have been a success, as my reach is too short and I am now inclined to be slow and clumsy as well as overfat.

ALKALI IN SOAP BAD FOR THE HAIR

Soap should be used very carefully if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is just ordinary mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than the most expensive soap or anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at any pharmacy; it's very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.—Advertisement.

Beautifully Curly, Wavy Hair Like "Nature's Own"

Try the new way—the Silmerine way—and you'll never again use the ruinous heated iron. The curliness appears altogether natural. Quickly acquired; lasts a long time.

Liquid Silmerine

is perfectly harmless, is neither sticky nor greasy. Easily applied with brush. Serves also as a splendid dressing, keeping the hair soft, fluffy and glossy. Directions with bottle. At your druggist's.

Just One Application and the Hairs Vanish

(Modes of Today)

A harmless, yet very effective treatment is here given for the quick removal of hairy growths: Mix enough powdered delatone and water to cover the undesirable hairs, apply paste and after two or three minutes remove, wash the skin and the hairs have vanished. One application usually is sufficient, but to be certain of results, buy the delatone in an original package.—Advertisement.

Lift Out Any Corn Please Try "Freezone"

Doesn't Hurt a Bit! Hard Corns, Soft Corns and Corns Between the Toes, Also Hardened Calluses, Just Shrivel and Peel Off With Fingers—Magic! Truly Magic!

Remarkable Discovery By Cincinnatian! A Few Drops Stop Corn Pain Instantly. Women Should Keep a Tiny Bottle on Dresser and Never Let Corns or Calluses Ache Twice—Millions Getting Rid of Corns

For a few cents you can obtain from any druggist a tiny bottle of the magical drug Freezone. This is the remarkable ether discovery made by a Cincinnati man which you have been reading so much about in the papers lately.

A few drops applied to a tender, aching corn or callus relieve the pain and soreness instantly; then you will see the corn or callus shrivel up and become so loose that it lifts out, root and all, with the fingers. It really does this! No humbug! No catch!

No pain or twinge of irritation is felt when applying Freezone or afterwards, and it does not inflame the surrounding skin or flesh.

Hard corns, soft corns or corns between the toes and hardened calluses loosen and lift off. It seems magical—It is magical! It works like a charm.

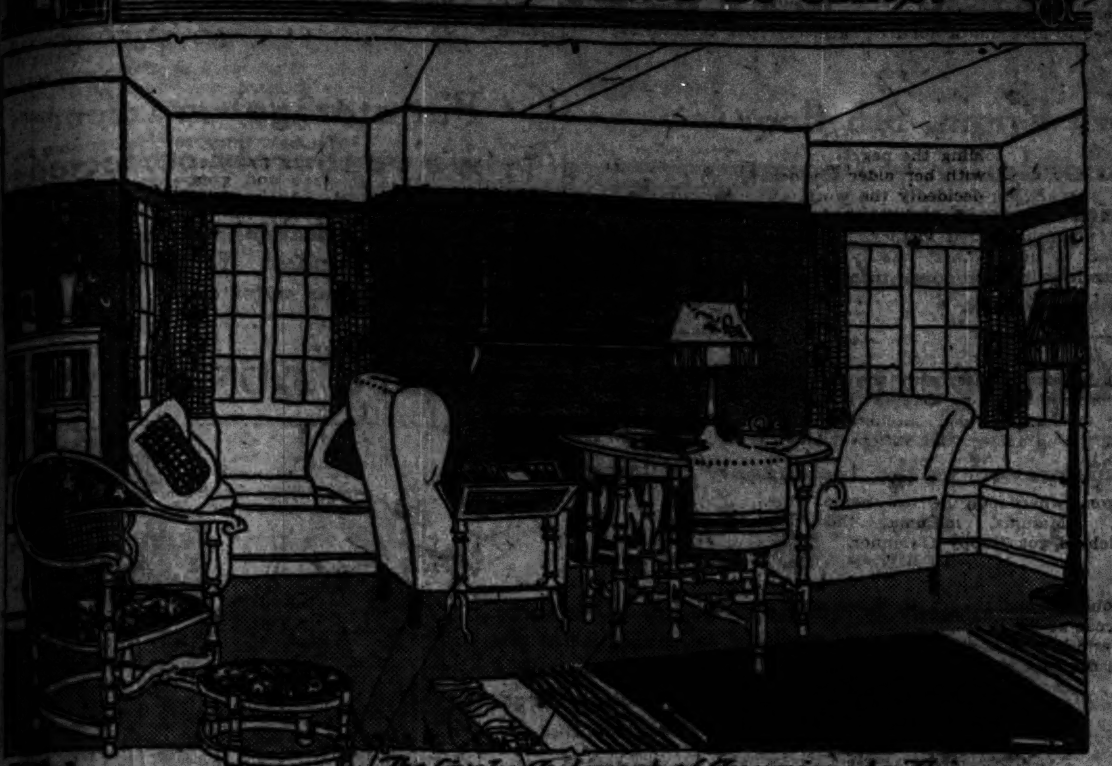
WOMEN! KEEP FREEZONE ON DRESSER! LISTEN!

When a corn starts aching, just touch on a drop of Freezone. It dries instantly. Put on your stockings and shoes and forget you ever had a corn. You will feel no pain or soreness. Walk, dance and wear tight shoes if you want to. Your corns won't hurt a bit. Try Freezone!

Genuine Freezone is sold by all druggists, in tiny bottle as here shown, each bottle packed in a sealed, round wood case—NO OTHER WAY.

HOME HARMONIOUS

By Anita de Campi



The Lively Interest of Inanimate Things.

Miss de Campi will be glad to assist the home maker in any problems pertaining to interior decorations. Address your letter to Miss Anita de Campi, "Sunday Tribune," Chicago. Inclose a stamped, addressed envelope if you wish a personal reply.

THERE is a source of gratification in "changing things about" in the home that is second only to entire replenishing. The average housekeeper's acquaintance with the principles of decoration is purely empirical, as she delights in the harmless experiment of shifting her possessions, often in this way achieving by happy accident results that would do credit to the best artist's skill.

It would be hard really to overestimate the importance of the arrangement of furniture. You may go to boundless expense in the selection of belongings, but if they are poorly grouped together the effect will be spoiled.

The professional decorator makes it a part of his training to be well grounded in the rules of composition, about which the amateur knows little or nothing. But the amateur may make up in a measure for the lack of accurate knowledge by experimenting. She will have the advantage of time enough at her disposal to try out a variety of schemes. She will soon see that a small spindle legged chair does not look well, for example, close beside a huge overstuffed one.

Recognizing this fact will give her a feeling for correct scale. She will unconsciously, perhaps, begin to give importance, too, to focal points. She will begin to see that as a rule the most important space is that opposite the entrance of the room. And she will place her loveliest piece of furniture to catch the eye at a visible point from the entrance. Say, for instance, her best looking object is a bookcase; she will not place it at the wall space beside the door, so that one would have to come into the room and turn around to find it. Study well your possessions. Notice the best by giving it the place of honor. If the fireplace is good do not obscure it by clumsily placing a davenport before it. Strive to temper informality with dignity. Above everything, avoid all that is trashy. Remember that the trend of really good decoration is towards simplifying and do not complicate your home surroundings by a clutter of useless baubles, picked up at random because they were temptingly cheap.

The clearing out of all that is not really worthy, either in point of usefulness or unquestioned beauty, is the first step towards home improvement.

Only by repeated attempts at rearrangement are the best results attainable. It is like working out a puzzle picture sometimes. If not quite certain of the solution, place it this way and place it that and patiently try another way, until at last the perfectly satisfying one will present itself and the picture will be complete. You will probably be surprised to find that you lack for nothing—that all of the parts have been there all the time and that they merely required correct adjusting to give the needed air of completion.

Women, as a rule, have a wonderful knack of "humanizing" the surroundings. I mean that they put warmth and a lively interest into inanimate things, and this is all done by force of arrangement. Two chairs may be placed in a room and though well chosen in shape and size they may express nothing but cold formality. But let a woman arrange the same two chairs in her own home living room—let her place a gate leg table near them, with books on one side and a basket of work on the other and crown the group with the glow of softly shaded lamplight—not only will those two chairs have been drawn together but they will have become intimately related and in a lively way will tell a tale of pleasant evenings spent in tête-à-tête.

In the scheme illustrated here the sidewalls are old blue with old ivory woodwork, walnut furniture, and gray and blue rugs. It is saved from somberness by the interjection of soft orange color in the silk lamp shades. The orange silk is neutralized by a thin veiling of light mauve chiffon. A touch of dull orange is repeated in the draperies, which are further figured in dull mauve on a gray ground.

It is difficult to give set rules for furniture arrangement. So much depends upon the area of the rooms and the quantity of furniture involved. Theoretically the lines of the furniture should correspond with the structural form of the room. This lends neatness and restfulness. In a word, it is more reposeful to have things set straight than zig-zag. A [illegible] placed in a parallel line with the wall is in better form than one slanting diagonally out from a corner in the room.

The same holds true in regard to rugs. Pictures also, if hung with their upper edges equidistant from the molding, give more pleasing restraint than if they were allowed to follow an up and down course about the room. The best of things will take on a look as rowdy as a hat cocked on one side if poorly

Common sense is the great guide. Couple it with a finely cultivated sensibility and the ultimate outcome will be effective, of strength and wholesome

Answers to Inquiries.

MRS. R. T. N.: If you will go to the public library and look in the Poole index you will find all the information you need. The librarian can give you the names of books also which you can look over and find something to read from among them.

* *

MRS. JOHN H. S.: Putty colored grass cloth would be nice throughout. Use tan and cream sunfast curtains for your dining room. In the bedroom with the walnut set use a good deal of old blue. Have the side walls gray and blue and the rug a deeper blue. In this room use light yellow silk lamp shades. I should advise you to eliminate some of your furniture. Mission rockers with leather seats are utterly impossible in the same room with walnut furniture covered with plush.

* *

MRS. G. A. E.: I think you make a big mistake in using your white and red Navajo in a pink bedroom. I should rather have no rug at all than that. If you want inside draperies for life, as you say, I can think of nothing that would outlive rep. Could you not make a silk lamp shade on a wire frame? Amber color would be best.

* *

MRS. W. W. H.: It would do well for you to use blue draperies with your tan side walls if you trim the curtains with tan fringe or upholstery braid.

* *

G. A. F.: Plate rails are not as popular as they have been.

* *

MRS. F. A. W.: Straw color and blue would make a good combination with your brown mahogany. Brighten this with touches of lighter yellow. You might carry this scheme through into the dining room.

* *

MRS. C. L. R.: The twelfth anniversary is not that of the china wedding. The special years go from the tenth to the fifteenth, allowing no unusual commemoration of those between. However, it is quite proper to celebrate your twelfth wedding anniversary with a party. Your invitations might read: "Mr. and Mrs. John Smith request the pleasure of Mr. and Mrs. Jones' company on Thursday evening, June 14, at 8 o'clock. R. S. V. P." There are many forms of entertainment that would be enjoyed. The guests might dance or play cards, or you could provide some special entertainer, a singer or violinist. Often, however, these affairs are far more fun if they are kept simple and informal. If your guests are intimate friends and congenial, you might play old fashioned games. An air of good fellowship and informality often makes a party more successful than some elaborate plan. You might serve chicken salad, cucumber and lettuce sandwiches, fruit lemonade, almond ice cream, and small sponge cakes, since the affair is to take place in the middle of June, when warm weather may be hoped for.

I. H. O.: I have seen small rooms made into possible dining rooms by using a built-in table and a pair of benches at either side of it. The table must be narrow and is usually placed with one end to the wall. China cabinets are coming into fashion again. Couldn't you use the cabinet you dislike as a bookcase? I don't believe your suggestion of making a window seat into a bed would be practical and I cannot, of course, give you an estimate on work of this sort. It all depends on the quality of the workmanship and material used. No, I don't think the addition of the mirror in your hall would improve it. If the woodwork is in poor condition by all means go over it all. Walnut furniture is lovely with the color in upholstery that you admire. If you possibly can, get a few pieces of real Italian walnut.

* *

MRS. W. H. B.: If you find that your wainscoting of dark oak is gloomy, try painting it in some light neutral color and lining the panels with tiny lines of a contrasting tint. If your landlord will consent to this remove the plate rail and place a simple molding instead.

* *

M. K.: If possible, I should advise you to run your paper up to the ceiling. As it is now, your whole room must be a little like a layer cake. I think you gain better sense of space by having your two rooms that open together decorated as one. Blue is certainly a popular color this season, and if you select the right shade of blue and have touches of color to brighten it, it will be lovely, but deadly if you choose too cold a blue. If you decide on blue, you would better brown your oak woodwork. A light orange tan would be the best color for the other rooms to harmonize with the paper you have sent me. Use the same paper for both.

* *

MRS. F. W. S.: Yes, the side hangings are on a rod that is fastened on the two ends of the lambrequin frame on the inside. These curtains may be on brass rings, so they will slide easily, and they may be closed at night if you wish them to. Decorators' canvas makes a fine wall covering and is the best material on which to paint if you want painted sidewalls. Have a large rug rather than small ones. Mahogany is lovely with yellow. For that matter almost any other wood is also. The chair beds are serviceable if you are going to use your sleeping quarters as a living room as well. Stiff bolster frames are no longer popular. The pillows are laid side by side and rolled into a sort of a bolster shape and covered with a long strip that is tucked over and under them.

* *

MRS. W. G. McC.: Why do you not leave your walls as they are, in the rough plaster? That, I should think, would be the best finish for your bungalow interior. I see no reason why you should not build in another tier on the other side of the room. Your old furniture must be particularly appropriate in its present surroundings. Add as few pieces to what you have as you can possibly do for your actual comfort. Your sort of furniture is large in scale and it is best to limit the number. Some blocked linen would be nice for your slip covers. The architect who designed your house was particularly partial to rough plaster as a decorative feature of this style of architecture.

* *

MRS. C. A. B.: Blue and tan would be good colors for a man's room. Men like checks and stripes in draperies and they are appropriate patterns, too—much better than flowered designs. Have a buff wall, dark blue rug, and tan and blue checked curtains. These things would go well with your Flemish oak furniture. The same material you use for the curtains could be used for the bed cover.

"TIZ" FOR FEET

For Tired Feet, Sore Feet, Tender, Aching, Swollen Calloused Feet and Painful Corns

"Can't beat 'Tiz' for aching, swollen feet. Don't stay footsick!"

Just take your shoes off and then put those weary, shoe-crinkled, aching, burning, corn-pestered, bunion-tortured feet of yours in a "Tiz" bath. Your toes will wriggle with joy; they'll look up at you and almost talk, and then they'll take another dive in that "Tiz" bath.

When your feet feel like lumps of lead—all tired out—just try "Tiz." It's grand—it's glorious. Your feet will dance with joy; also you will find all pain gone from corns, callouses and bunions.

There's nothing like "Tiz." It's the only remedy that draws out all the poisonous exudations which puff up your feet and cause foot torture.

Get a 25-cent box of "Tiz" at any drug or department store—don't wait. Ah! how glad your feet get; how comfortable your shoes feel.—Advertisement.

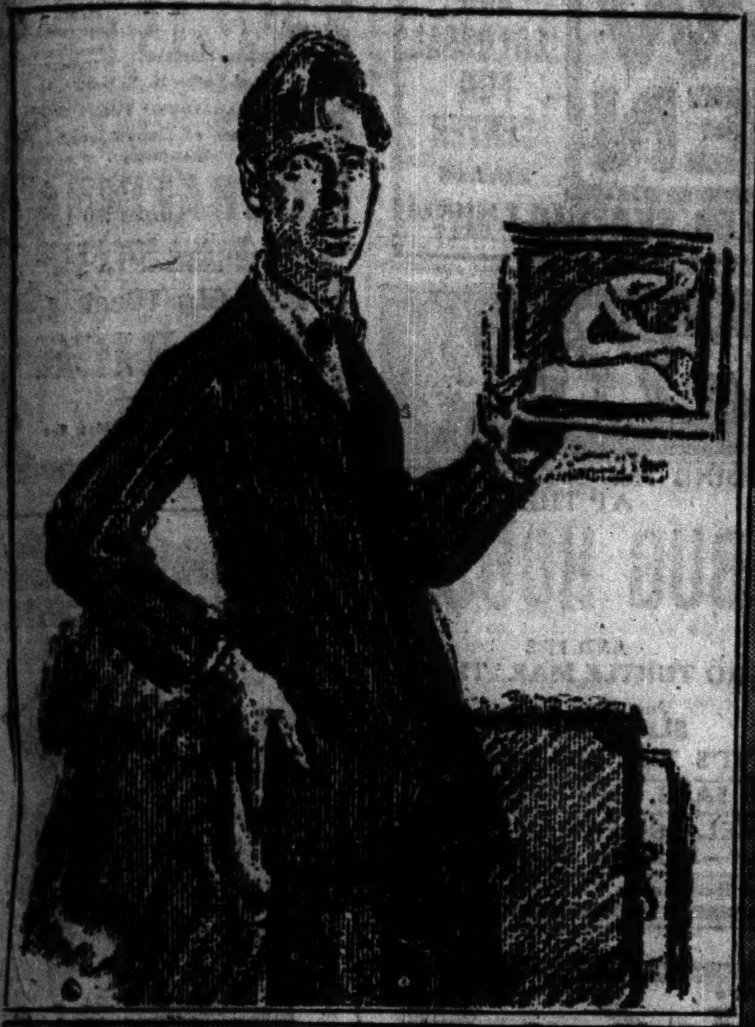
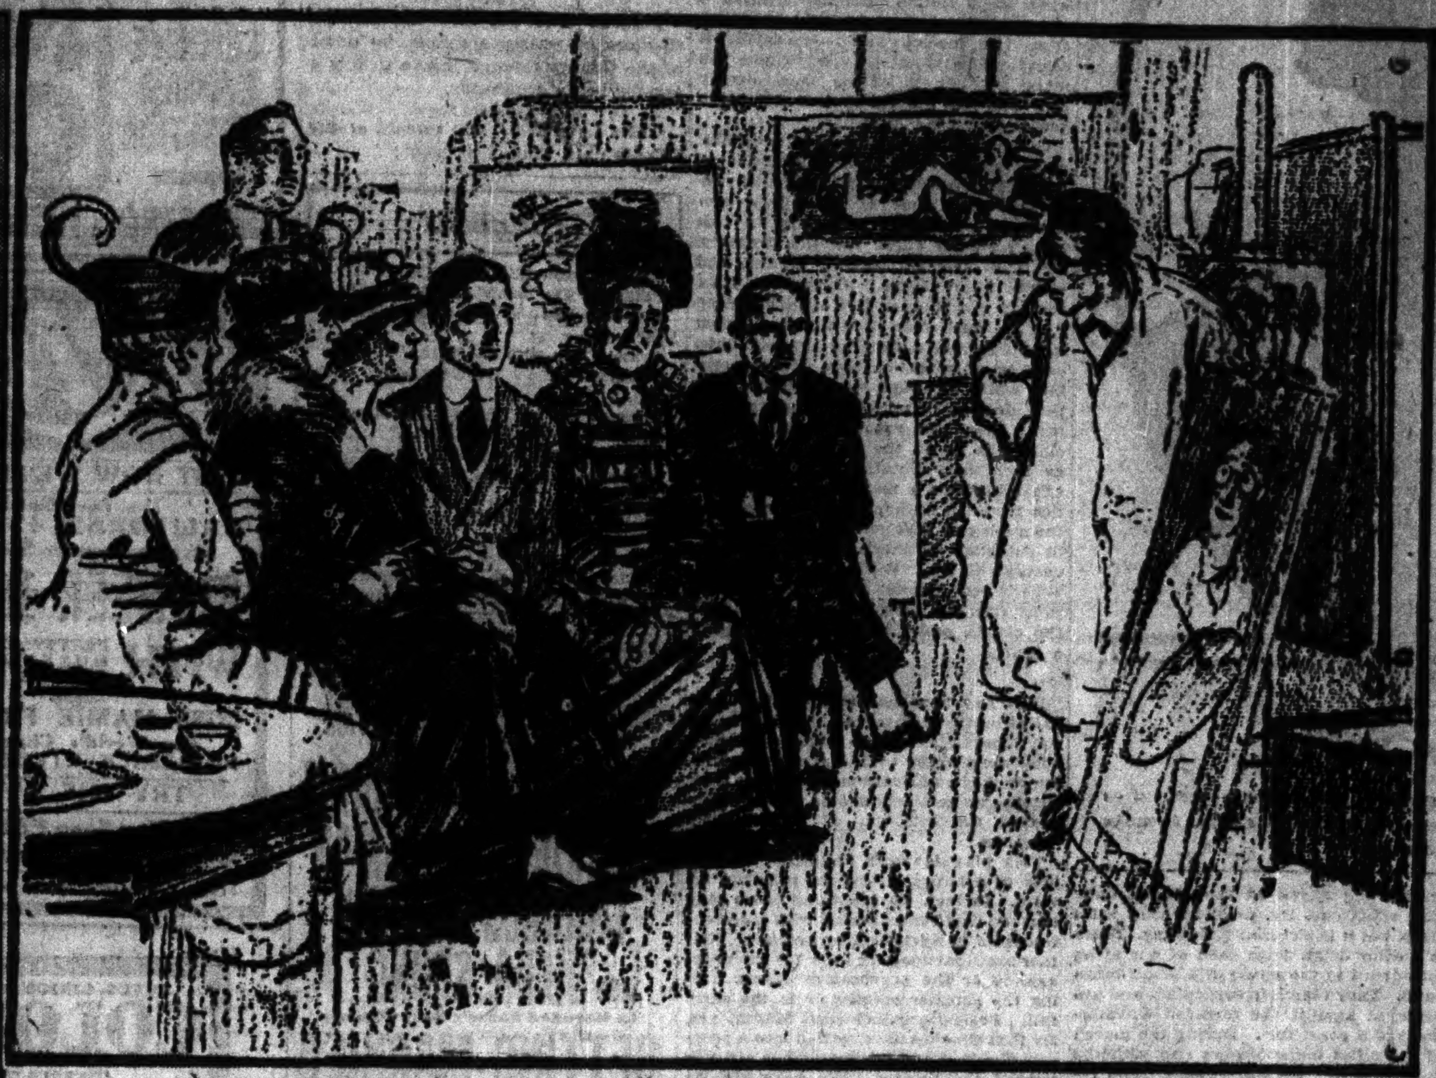
AMONG US MORTALS

DRAWN BY W. E. HILL

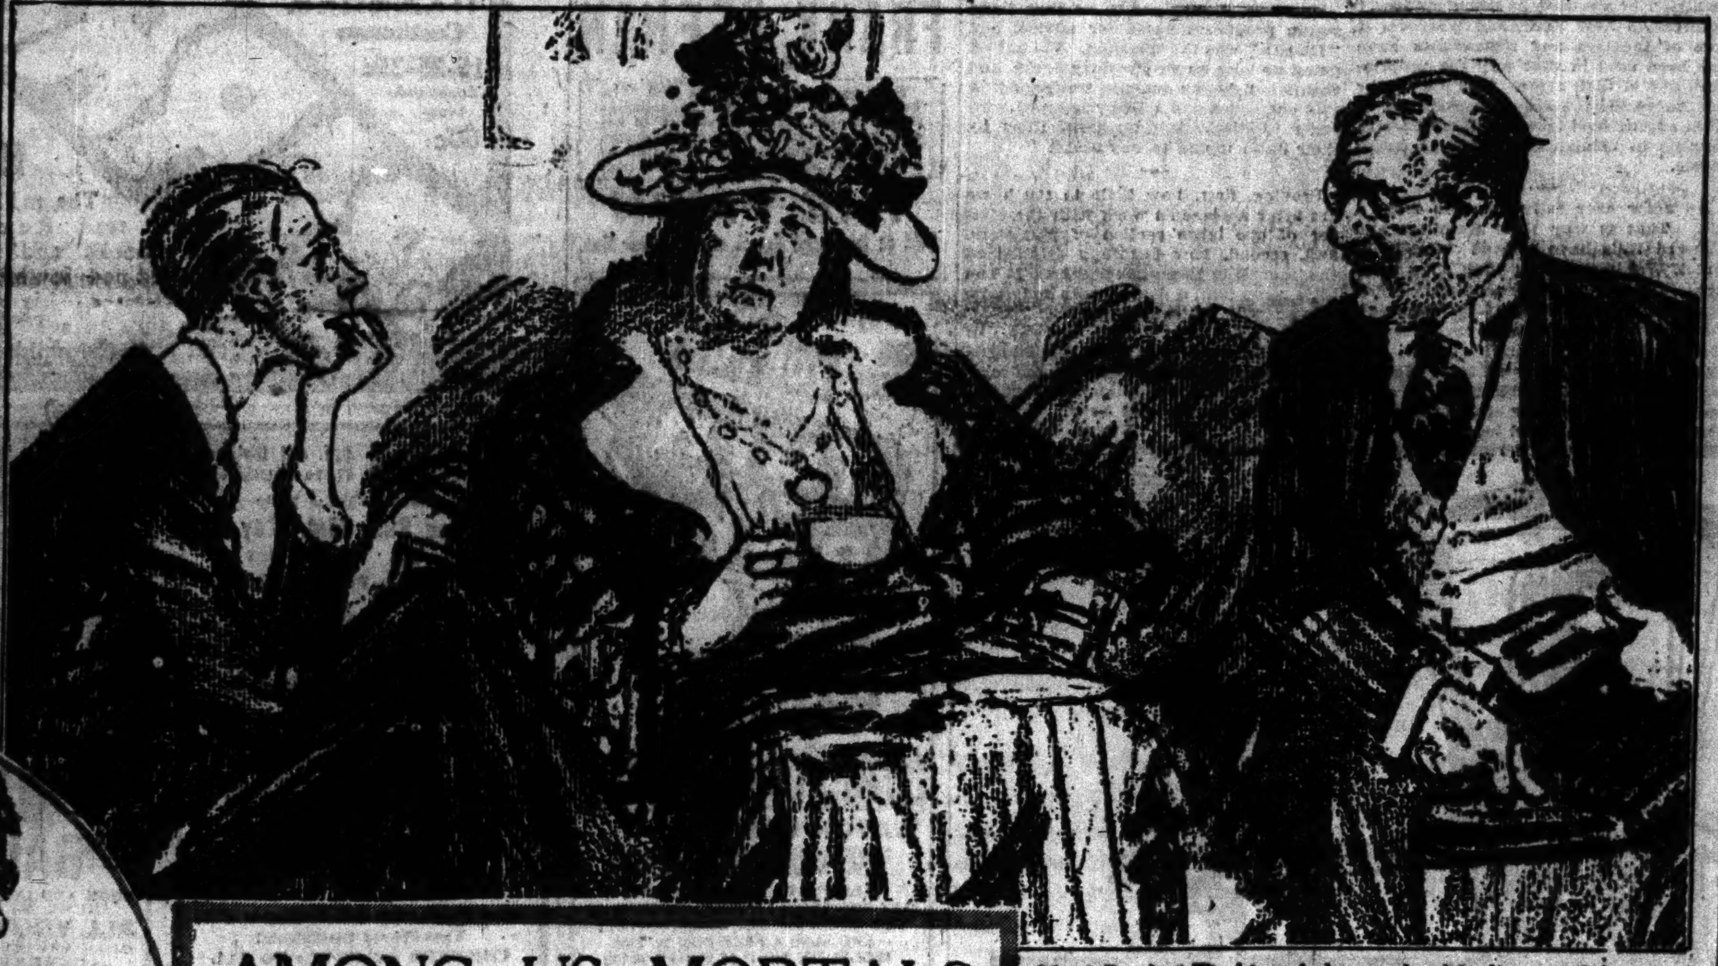
THE STUDIO SOIREE



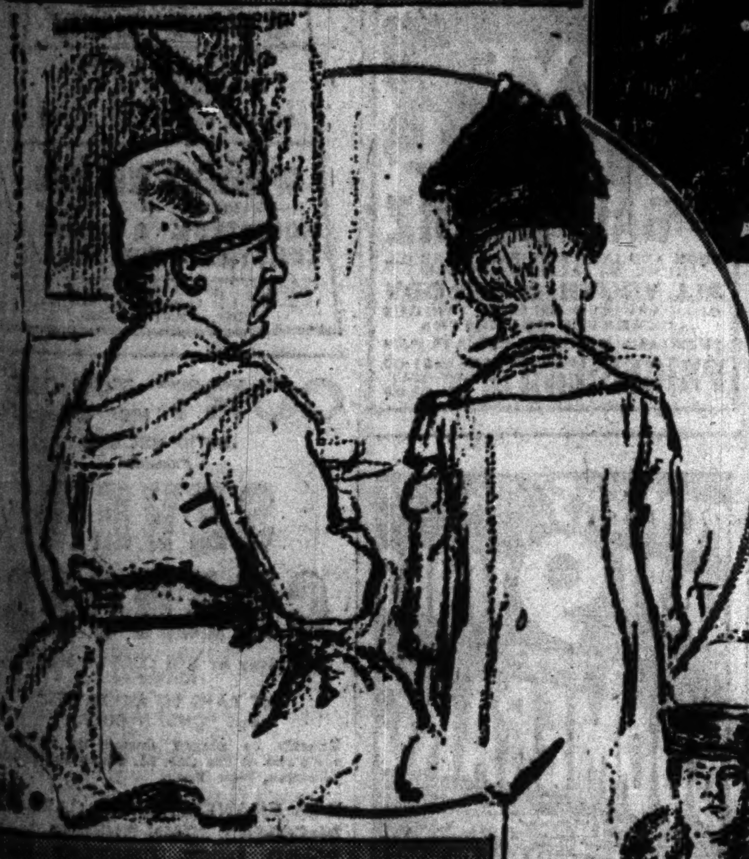
Worthington Woof, the futurist whose great slogan is "self-expression."



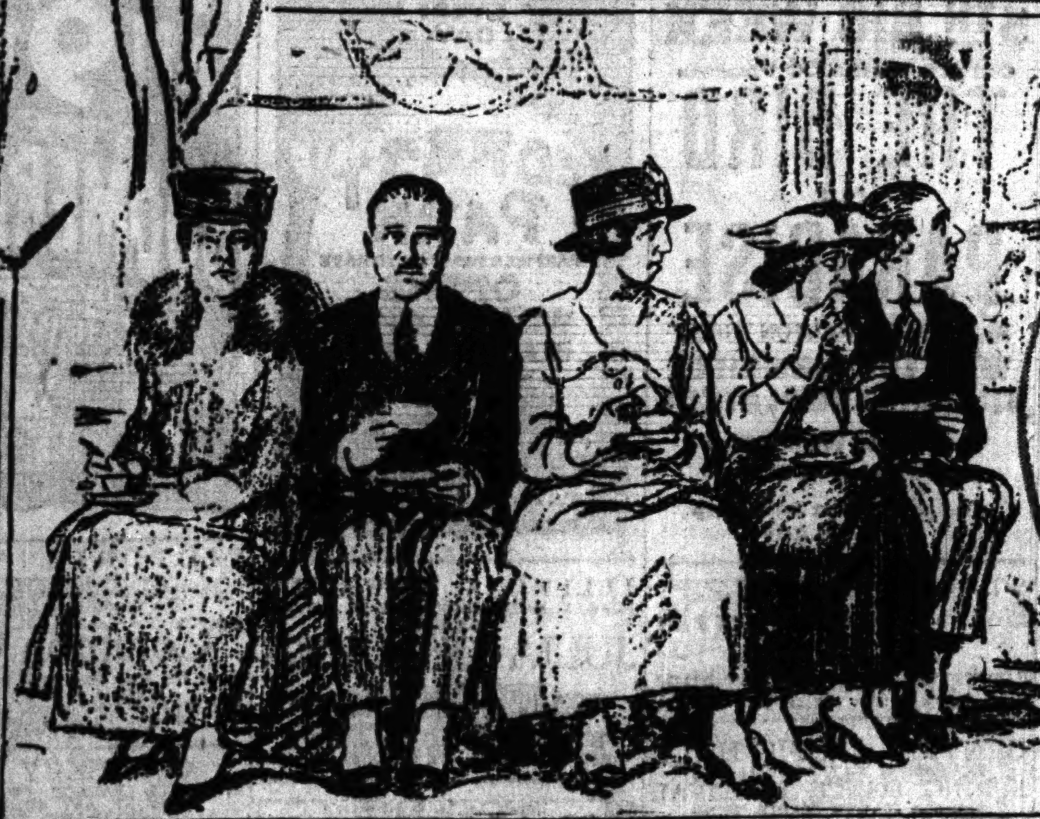
Everybody swallowing hard and trying to think of something to say about the seventeenth picture shown them. The day is saved by the second lady from the left, who thinks "it is perfectly great-o!"



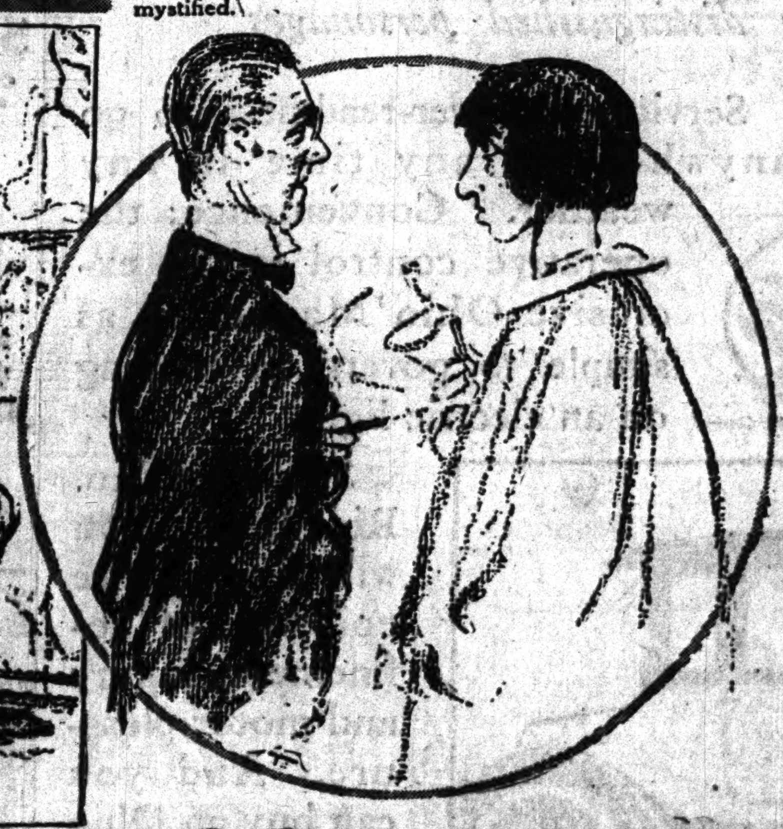
Mrs. Bertha Timbie, (who sculpts), discusses the Freud theory of dreams with Wadley Diggs, the poet, who has had some wonderful ones. Cousin Rollo Boatwood from Altoona, who is considered a very interesting talker if you keep him on the right subject—namely, the kid and leather business—is quite mystified.



"I would rather have a photograph of myself than the best oil painting ever made."



Couch full of visitors who have never been in a studio before and expected a regular Paris-by-night. They are very much disappointed, particularly the two young men who had supposed there would be a lot of models around.



The lady with the Dutch cut, from the studio in back, who was asked in to lend atmosphere. She has just sprung her views of birth control on a totally unsuspecting youth.

News and Views of the Theater

By Percy Hammond

THE players, thus far, have been reticent about donning the helm and harness of valor, and few of them are to be found in the rehearsals for the Big Show. Lewis Stone, who acted here in "The Bird of Paradise" and "The Misleading Lady" is one of the men at Plattsburg, having abandoned his rôle in "The Brat" to try for a commission; and Thomas Achelis is another. Mr. Achelis under the name of Paul Gordon was the stricken aviator in "Moloch" and he appeared at the Blackstone with Mr. Arliss in "Paganini." William Harrigan, son of the late Edward Harrigan, and Everett Butterfield complete the list of the courageous as compiled by the New York Herald.

They make fine soldiers, the actors, according to men who have seen them fight in France. A British officer, talking about them in a London newspaper recently, said that no matter how great their terror their bravery is always spectacular; that they seem to act in a real crisis as they would in one that was make-believe—his theory being that the habit of acting is strong enough in the weakest of them to overcome the emotion of human fear. One of the latest to do a dauntless thing is Ernest Lambart, an impersonator of asinine Englishmen in American musical comedy. Just how the practice of rôles of that sort would inspire daring in an actor-soldier is not explained in the British officer's psychology.

Allan Pollock, gravely wounded at Arras, was the player of the senile king with Douglas Fairbanks in "Hawthorne, U. S. A." He played also with Miss Billie Burke at the Blackstone in "Jerry" a season or two ago.

Among others at the front now are Leslie Faber, Miss Doris Keane's leading man in "Romance"; Stanley Dark, Jacob Wendel, George Relph, Alan Mudie, Wallace Widdicombe, and Peter Bassett, Phillip Merrvale, who was the professor of phonetics with Mrs. Campbell in "Pygmalion," is learning to be an aviator in Canada, and Julian L'Estrange is a recruit in the troops of the Dominion. Of the dancing masters, Wallace McCutcheon, is a major, and Mr. Castle's intrepidity as a flyer is said to be as notable as his grace as a waltzer.

The roll of those who have fallen in France now includes Basil Hallam and Arthur Holmes-Gore, who played in "The Blindness of Virtue," Capt. Morton Horne of the Follies, Maj. Lionel Walsh, Lieut. Col. Lewis Howard, and Charles Howson.

Stage women who have summer homes near New York have organized an agricultural movement by which they hope to mitigate the threatened famine in foodstuffs by cultivating their fallow lawns and gardens. So earnest are they that at a recent meeting they decided that each should specialize on one especial harvest. The chairman, Katherine Kidder, will grow potatoes; Billie Burke, strawberries; Marie Dressler, spinach; Elsie Janis, string beans; Marguerite Clark, lettuce; Irene Fenwick, scallions; Viola Allen, onions; Marie Doro, asparagus; Louise Drew, cucumbers; Chrystal Herne, parsnips, and Frances Starr, radishes. Crops, in case there are any, will be marketed to New York hotels and restaurants.

Miss Ruth Chatterton's next rôle will be that of a moving picture pet—curls, big eyes, cupid's bow mouth, and all the rest of it. She is the heroine of Monckton Hoff's comedy, "Anthony in Wonderland," which Henry Miller will produce in California this summer and which Charles Hawtrey is now playing in London.

These are Mr. Faversham's last performances of the urbane bishop in "Getting Married." When next he plays it will be as an Englishman who has prospered in America and who returns to England to get even for wrongs done his mother. The play is called "The Old Country," it is by Dion Calthorp, and Gerald Du Maurier acted it in London. Mr. Faversham will not appear in his production of Shaw's "Mésalliance," but perhaps Mrs. Faversham will.

William Gillette, acting in Clare Kummer's comedy, "A Successful Calamity," will return to Chicago when A. H. Woods' new theater is ready to be played in. Mr. Woods, as yet, is in doubt as to what to call the playhouse. There are days when he thinks the Randolph would be a good name, and other days when every dictate of modesty suggests that Chicago would be distressed unless he call it the Alwood.

Miss Kummer is the author of the comedy by which Miss Billie will return to the stage from maternity and the films. The name of it at present is "The Rescuing Angel."

The week's new play is a production by David Belasco of Roi Cooper Megrue's "Seven Chances," with Miss Carroll McComas and Frank Craven in the most important rôles. Mr. Megrue is to be recalled as the author of "It Pays to Advertise" and "Under Cover." The first performance will be given at the Cort tonight.

William A. Brady is making ready a new play called "Eve's Daughter," in which the unique topic of sex will be discussed. Alicia Ramsey is the author and Christine Norman the leading actress. Mr. Brady seems to have no place for his wife, Miss Grace George, though her favorite author, Mr. Shaw, was never more popular than at present.

The owners and producers of "Turn to the Right" have bought a new play by John Tainter Foote, a novelist and a student officer at Plattsburg. Its title, "Toby's Bow," refers to the salute of an elderly Negro named Toby. They are also making ready to produce "Love and Learn," by Salisbury Field, co-author of "Twin Beds."

Miss Edith Taliaferro will perform the principal rôle in "Mother Carey's Chickens," by Kate Douglas Wiggin and Rachel Crothers.

Joseph Santley and Miss Ivy Sawyer, late of "Betty," will lead the cast of "Oh Boy" when it is presented at the La Salle next season. They are now in vaudeville.

In "The Pawn," which Frank Keenan will bring to the Princess next week, other players will be Marjorie Wood, Blanche Yurka, Malcolm Duncan, and Desmond Gallagher.

The Messrs. Shubert plan to present a cycle of Reginald De Koven's operas in London before long, including "The Highwayman," "Robin Hood," and "Maid Marian."

It is said at the Garrick theater that Ernest Truex of "Very Good Eddie" will be starred next season in a musical comedy version of "Too Many Cooks," Frank Craven's funny farce.

Montgomery Phister, for forty years the writer about plays and actors for the Cincinnati Commercial Tribune, has retired for reasons of health. In the mid-'80s he wrote a musical farce called "A Soap-Bubble," in which the then well-known "team" of Baker and Farren starred.

Miss May Irwin has an offer to take part with Lew Fields and Raymond Hitchcock next season in the extravaganza Mr. Dillingham is preparing for the Century theater in New York City.

The New York presentation of "The Ohio Lady," now called "The Country Cousin," has been deferred till September, when Miss Alexandra Carlisle will have the part acted last year in Chicago by Miss Mary Nash.

"Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford" succumbed with great celerity to public indifference after its revival in New York last week, and it is no more.

The Hattons' piece called "Upstairs and Down," on view all season in New York City, will be the first thing of the new season in the Cort. It will be presented early in August.

H. B. Irving, among the good actors neglected when he was in the United States, is playing Hamlet in London with Miss Gertrude Elliott as Ophelia.

One of the new London revues is called "£150," the title indicating, it is said, the precise cost of putting the piece on the stage. The military authorities there recently suggested to theatrical men that they cut down the most of mounting plays, the argument being that money spent on settings and dresses "at a time like this" is sheer waste.

By way of proving, again, that the English have no sense of humor, it seems that the two most popular comic songs in years there are called, respectively, "Meatless Days" and "Half-a-Pound of Sugar."

In "Out There" which Miss Laurette Taylor is playing in New York, Haunted Annie, who has come back from the war, calls for recruits in the following exhortation delivered in Trafalgar square:

"Don't think I'm for war," says she. "No one with any sense is. I'm f'r peace. But w'at ar y' goin' t' do w'en y'r country's in it except 'elp y'r country? If you 'old back you're 'elpin' the enemy, ain't y'? So, come on, boys, and join up!

"Naa, suppose y' don't? Suppose y' says 'Let the other feller do it! I've got me wife, me kids, me shop, an' I ain't goin' t' leave 'em! W'at'll 'appen? D' y' think the enemy'll leave y' y'r wife, an' y'r kids, an' y'r shop?

"If y'd seen w'at I 'ave aat there, if y' knoo w'at I know, there ain't a man of y' would 'old back. O' course no one wants war. We want peace. But we want peace with honor. An' we want t' know that w'en this is over there never carn' be no war no more. An' the on'y w'y t' do thet is by maikin' the henemy know 'e carn't attack a peaceful people an' think 'e can git aw'y with it.

"Hit's a dreadful thing, is war! 'Orrible! But it 'as some compensation. 'Cos I'll tell y' w'at it does. It makes a country find its soul! An' it makes a people find its soul. D' y' know w'at a soul is? I'll tell y' w'at I think it is. It's the thing as maikes y' notice the flaars, an' smell 'em, an' look up at the sun w'at maikes 'em. It's the thing y' see in a mother's eyes w'en she plays with 'er baiby. It ain't the eatin', sleepin', fightin' part of y'. Naoh! It's the gentle part, thet maikes life worth livin', that's w'at a soul is. An' I've seen it aat there. I never knoo' 'aa wonderful man could be—not only dooks an' lords an' gentle people, but men, just men—roughs an' slackers an' rotters 'oo never thought there was anything in life but slackin' an' rottin'. They've faand somethin'—a soul."

Burns Mantle's New York Letter

NEW YORK.—(Special Correspondence.)—As we visualize the incident just before 9 o'clock last Saturday night, Secretary Tumulty politely reminded President Wilson—probably right in the middle of whatever it was the president was saying about Col. Roosevelt's exasperating determination to fight—that he (the president) was expected to press a button which would set the wheels in motion at the Actors' Fund fair in New York.

Or it may be that Tumulty, noting the president's excitement, decided to say nothing and pressed the button himself. Or asked Col. House to do it. Any way, the fair was successfully opened. Somebody pressed the button and immediately there arose a great noise and a great cheering at this end of the line. Seven or eleven thousand people (we are not good at counting crowds) jammed into the Grand Central palace, stood on each other's feet and saw a curtain fall away from the assembled colors of all the allies fighting for a world democracy; heard a great discordant chorus of whistles, both human and tin; marveled at the racket made by hundreds of electric horns, bells, and buzzers, and saw Daniel Frohman lead Louise Homer, the little mother of grand opera and America's answer to Shumann-Heink's boast of maternal efficiency, toward the railing of the balcony.

Mrs. Homer sang "The Star Spangled Banner" with fervor and a faultless tone production which kept even the remote corners almost in tune, and the crowd resumed its cheering. All around the floor soldier men and boys stood at attention. Everywhere the military was at least second in command, only the actors themselves coming first. There were two official recruiting stations, as well as an army and navy tearoom, and enough equipment on exhibit to outfit several regiments, from rifles to vivandieres.

After the opening was thoroughly launched the fair settled to the usual activities of similar exhibitions. Nearly everybody took a chance or two on an automobile, or an autographed picture of Mme. Bernhardt, or a jeweled garter buckle worn by Richard Mansfield, or bought a ticket on so homely a necessity as a barrel of potatoes at the solicitation of Helen Ware, or pasted dimes and quarters to strings of adhesive tape coyly presented by that kind of a chorus girl. So far as we could see nothing was overlooked that might reasonably serve as a separator twixt a man and his money, and if all eight nights the fair is to continue are even half as successful as was the first night the fund should be completely rehabilitated.

This is the first fair the actors have held in seven years. They were reluctant to break in upon the war charities this year, but they are really in need of money. It costs them $70,000 a year to maintain their home on Staten island, and the annual outlay in sick and death benefits distributed from end to end of the country has been very heavy of late.

Fourteen or fifteen years ago Fred C. Whitney produced a military operetta called "When Johnny Comes Marching Home," having to do with the concluding months of the civil war. "Johnny's" success was moderate. We recall that there was a determined effort on the part of its promoters to popularize as a sort of substitute national anthem a song from the score called "My Own United States," and that Julia Gifford was a member of the cast. Miss Gifford's presence is fixed in the memory because at the time she was the bride of that distinguished citizen and winner, Mr. Robert Fitzsimmons.

Miss Grace Fisher
SHOW OF WONDERS — PALACE

Miss Fisher is new to the extravaganza of this neighborhood, but as one of the prima donnas of "The Show of Wonders" she helps to make that spectacle worth hearing as well as seeing.

Last week Mr. Whitney, believing the time ripe for a revival of "Johnny," because of its military spirit, staged it elaborately at the New Amsterdam theater. He did not, we judge, alter a word of the text or a line of the stage directions, but the only member of the original cast present was that same Julia Gifford, long since returned to private life, so far as her pugilist husband was concerned. From her appearance today we gather she must have been about 12 years old when she married ruddy Robert.

The book of this revived opera, written by Stanilaus Stange, who died just the other day, is a pretty sad affair, but the music, written by Julian Edwards, dead these many years, stands the test beautifully. In fact, few better scores have been heard on Broadway in recent seasons, and if Mr. Whitney had spent on a smartened libretto a part of the money he has ventured on costumes and scenery I believe there would have been a very good chance of "Johnny's" making a host of new friends.

To bring the proceedings up to the moment a patriotic finale has been added and staged by R. H. Burnside, who puts on the big shows at the Hippodrome. This effect cost Mr. Burnside very little sleep, but it is pictorially pleasing. There is a color detail from each of our allies introduced to the music of a small brass band. They march in separately and are deployed against the terraced embankment of a coast fort. During the march of the allies the audiences rise with the first notes of "Le Marseillaise" and remain standing and singing until the fall of the curtain on "The Star Spangled Banner."

The army regulation, by the way, that the national anthem shall not be played as a part of a medley is being gradually enforced in New York, and wherever it has been used in that way the proprietors of theaters and restaurants have been told of their error. Also the mayor has instructed the license department to close any cabaret in which the orchestra persists in using the anthem as dance music.

No actor ever fully recovers from a hit. That is why Hale Hamilton and Edward Ellis have revived "Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford" at the Cohan theater. In the original company they played Wallingford and "Blackie" Daw, and ever since the applause of the multitude has rung in their ears and made their nights restless. Neither has ever found a character so well suited to his particular style of comedy, Hamilton, the hale and hearty, the good natured, oily, alert Wallingford type; Ellis the sly and shifty, the suave, soft tongued, sincere rascal.

This particular revival, however, has proved its own justification. It is still, in the estimation of a majority of his admirers, George Cohan's best comedy, and it is just as smart and just as amusing an entertainment today as it was seven years ago when it had this town by the ears. It really is to be regretted that there is no writer of the snappy Broadway-curb type of play to take George Cohan's place, and no stage director for this most characteristic of American "shows" to succeed him in staging it.

He may come back. But just now, when as a picture star he is piling a second fortune atop the one he saved from his success as a showman, it seems unlikely. Money may make the mare go, but it is the most deadly squelcher of ambition that American genius has ever known.

This revival has recalled to the Lambs' club gossip the story told of how George Randolph Chester lost a fortune in royalties at the time of the play's production. He had, according to this tale, accepted $1,500 for the dramatic rights to the Wallingford stories, and waived his royalties. Cohan wrote the comedy and Cohan & Harris produced it with much fear in their hearts that it would prove a failure. It was, however, an overnight success. Next morning, while the boys were feeling good, they decided to take back the arrangement they had with Chester and declare him in on the profits. But just as they were dictating a note to that effect in came a messenger with a notice from the author's lawyers notifying the managers that suit would be brought to establish Chester's rights to a percentage of the "Wallingford" receipts. Whereupon Cohan & Harris tore up their friendly note, fought the suit in the courts, and Chester never collected a cent.

If it had happened that we had been called into a conference of the Washington Square players two weeks ago, when they were trying to find something with which they could reasonably fill out their season, we certainly should not have approved the selection of Mr. Ibsen's "Ghosts."

This play is most decidedly not our idea of a happy choice for a spring revival. In fact, we can think of no play that we could miss seeing with more enthusiasm in April or May or June. Neither am I particularly keen for the propaganda or the provocative drama during the summer months or in the early fall. From December until March, yes. By that time we have settled into a properly dignified and fairly studious attitude toward the theater. We have written our share of the "O-why-should-such-things-be?" editorials and are eager for mental stimulation. We have freely inhaled the atmosphere of the theater and life is not as filled with cheer as it was.

However, it was not to us that these young producers came for advice, and "Ghosts" was the selection. We put off going as long as we decently could, and then what do you suppose we found? A sold out house and a lobby jammed with eager intellectuals (you know them by their hats) trying to buy seats!

Proving, first, how little in touch we are after a season's work with the temper of one large section of playgoers, and, second, how definitely established the interest in Ibsen has become. It was little more than a dozen years ago, most of you will remember, that "Ghosts" was considered the most intimate of closet dramas, a play to be discussed in whispers and presented only behind carefully guarded doors, that none but the mature might see and hear.

BURNS MANTLE.

Notes of the Stage

When A. H. Woods presents Robert Hilliard in "A Scrap of Paper" Miss Clara Joel will be the leading actress. The name of the story has been changed to "Plunder" by Owen Davis, who dramatized it.

* * *

The London public's present attitude toward the theater is indicated, perhaps, by the fact that Charles Hawtrey, in a success, is giving daily matinees with night performances Wednesday and Saturday only.

* * *

Persons who get into the London theaters on passes are now, by order of the County Council, made to pay a tax for being deadheads.

OHIO ELECTRIC

When fashionables paraded in the seventeenth century, the sedan chairs bore many distinguished personages

BUT the two-man-power chair did not ever supply true comfort, true service, true convenience.

These three features are demanded by every American woman who owns any kind of a motor vehicle. They are rendered in a superlative degree by the Ohio Electric. Comfort: a perfect, artistic body upholstered with deep, soft cushions in individualized color schemes.

Service: an ever-readiness to go anywhere at any time in any weather. Convenience: the operative control is the exclusive Ohio Magnetic; as simple to govern as turning on an electric light.

The Ohio Magnetic Control

See the Ohio. Ride in it. You will find it the epitome of refinement, luxury and motor pleasure. And you can buy an Ohio Electric for as little as $2480.

By Mae Tinée.

THE STUDIO PROP LIST.

COMES an honest press agent to enlighten the world with the truth about "the studio prop list." He gives us two versions which form it, the one which goes to the property man and the one foisted upon an open eyed public with mouth a-gape. The one in question had to do with a recent Lockwood production, we are informed.

FIRST VERSION.

By the Property Man.

Organ, to be rented from dealer. See junkman at Ninth and Olive. Secure at $2.50 for the week, if possible.

Pajamas, to be made by studio seamstress. Buy goods at Hamburger's.

Glassware for dinner set. Get at Woolworth's. Not to exceed $3.

Antlers, use one of old pairs in prop room.

Tapestry, rent piece four yards square from S. Goldberg, outfitter, 999 Main street.

REVISED VERSION.

By the Press Agent.

Oil painting of the star, made by a noted artist of the French academy. Three months' time required in posing for the painting of this masterpiece.

Old fashioned organ, once owned by a great-aunt of Harold Lockwood's. This was the same organ behind which Lockwood's aunt hid when the Yankee army invaded Atlanta in 1862.

Oriental pajamas, same as used by a former diplomat of the United States in service at the Chinese emperor's palace at Shanghai.

Set of expensive cut glass, specially designed for use in this picture by Tiffany and furnished at an enormous cost.

Antlers, from a handsome buck shot by Harold Lockwood while on a recent hunting trip in the northern California wilds.

Tapestry loaned by the grandmother of the leading woman, whose great-grandmother was once connected with the court of Napoleon Bonaparte of France.

Of great interest to picture goers will be the news that Thomas Meighan will play the leading rôle with Billie Burke in her first Famous Players Paramount picture, "The Mysterious Miss Terry."

S. Rankin Drew, son of Sidney Drew, the Metro comedian, has passed his physical examination as ambulance driver and expects to leave for France within a short time. He will join the American ambulance corps.

It is with relief that we hear that Marguerita Fischer has recovered from her illness which has for some time kept her in the hospital. She has begun work on a new Mutual-Pollard photoplay, "Little Miss Missionary."

Following are the story requirements for a Lasky five reel production:

First—Fundamental idea of interest to the average auditor.

Second—Logical premises, logical sequence, logical conclusion.

Third—Characterization, action.

Fourth—Dramatic value in thought, commonly known as the mental punch.

Fifth—Dramatic value in situations, or the physical punch.

Sixth—Constant growth, progression of the story.

Seventh — Beauty, harmony, simplicity, color. By simplicity is meant for the story to run along in one straight channel and not have a number of branches.

Eighth—Picturesque value.

Ninth—Novelty in treatment.

Jack Byrne has arrived in Chicago to take charge of the Rothacker Film Manufacturing company's scenario department. He also becomes first assistant to the vice president and studio manager, N. J. Baumer. Mr. Byrne has had more than six years' experience with various motion picture concerns.

Mabel Hikes Justice is in town to be present at private showings of her feature drama, "Who Shall Take My Life?" which film by Selig is an argument against capital punishment.

William S. Hart is going on his first vacation. For the first time in nearly four years he will doff his western makeup and travel approximately 9,000 miles, visiting various of the larger cities, where he will appear at the theaters showing his pictures and greet his admirers. We know a bunch of about six men who will probably be camped on his heels while he's in Chicago.

Lionel Barrymore will give up acting for a while to direct his sister, Ethel, in forthcoming Metro productions.

Dick Willis, one of the world's best known press agents, is almost as good a poet as I am. Following is a little thing written by him in a moment of inspiration:

I've oft been asked if I will kindly pen a little rhyme
Upon my favorite artist in the moving picture line.
I beg leave to state with emphasis, I certainly will not;
If pressed for reasons I must say I think it bally rot.
The pages of the magazines are full of silly verse
And fulsome adoration, some at length and some quite terse.
Admirers write such awful foolish, maudlin, mundane fluff.
Let's take at random some of it, then analyze the stuff:
"King Baggott is the man I love; I would that he were mine."
Why, woman, don't you know that King's been married quite a time?
"George Walsh of Fox is my ideal," a skittish dame will rave. He Has a charming wife, mam, and a really, truly baby.
"Dear Margarita Fischer is the girl I'd like to hook."
Well, Harry Pollard caught her first, so elsewhere you must look.
"O wed me, Howard Hickman," is another maiden's wail.
But Howard can't; he's married to sweet Bessie Barriscale.
Proposals by the dozen to Miss Cunard weekly pour.
She's wedded, gilded youth, avaunt, she cannot ask for Moore.
A merchant from the middle west a fortune says he'll blow in
On Mary Pickford, but she thinks she still will go on Owen.
To William Farnum girls will write, inclosing love and kisses.
And every night he chuckles as he shows them to his missus.
"O Henry, will you fly with me?" You silly little thing;
To Gypsy Abbott Henry still remains her lord and king.
To capture Chester Conklin is another woman's plan;
Tut, Chester is a model and most virtuous married man.
Another: "Cleo Madison, write fondly, Cleo, speak."
Alas, Miss Cleo Madison is also Mrs. Peake.
A girl advises Herbert Rawlinson she'd like to meet him;
But if he did it's likely Mrs. Rawlinson would beat him.
And others slop all over Ince's marvel, Charlie Ray,
Not knowing his certificate's safely tucked away.
By gings, they go the limit, all these foolish, half baked kids;
You'd think the artists stood in line, just waiting for their bids.
So—read this warning carefully, or maybe you may rue it,
And when you want to write mash notes, think twice, and then don't do it!

Lou Tellegan, Lasky director, is to umpire a baseball game played by the tragedians and comedians of the Los Angeles film companies, which is to be played for the purpose of raising funds for the local Red Cross. Mr. Tellegan is said to know absolutely nothing regarding this American pastime. It is respectfully suggested that he wear an armor plate while officiating.

The beauteous Grace Valentine is to be featured by Ivan in its forthcoming production, "Babbling Tongues."

It is surprising to think that Bessie Eyton, the Virgina Carvel of "The Crisis," was an extra girl.

THIS KNOCKS 'EM OUT OF THEIR SEATS" IN VAUDEVILLE

MAJESTIC.

Eddie Emerson and Jerry Baldwin:

All you do from morn' to night is talk about something to eat.

Yes, that's all I do, but I don't get it.

Well, you know a certain doctor went sixty days without food.

I don't care; I'm not trying to break a record.

What would you do if you had $5,000?

If I had $5,000 I would buy a submarine, load it with beans, and then blow it up with catsup.

Say, by the way, how is your sister?

My sister?

Yes, that blue eyed blonde.

Well, who ever heard of a blue eyed blonde nigger?

Here, don't push me that way. I'm not a Ford.

MAJESTIC.

The Avon Comedy Four:

Waiter: "The customer complains that this coffee tastes just like mud."

Chef: "That is right. Tell him it was ground this morning."

My wife likes me.

O, I know a lot of women that like monkeys.

Here, have a chair.

Can't you use it any more?

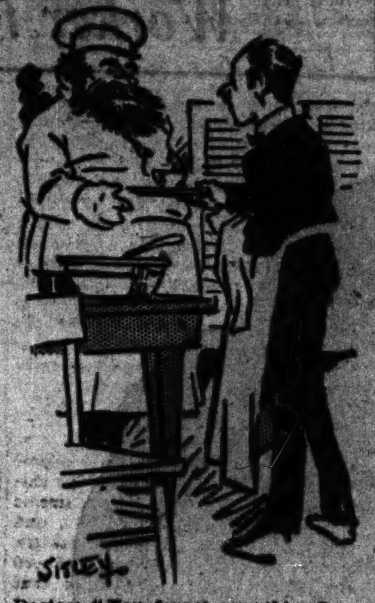
Doctor: "When you eat, do you chew?"

Patient: "No; I smoke stogies."

Doctor: "Do you drink much coffee?"

Patient: "Strong coffee is my weakness. I drink twelve saucers."

Patient: "While you are at it, take a look at my teeth, see how my smart tooth is."



Doctor: "You forgot something."
Patient: "What?"
Doctor: "My fee."
Patient: "What for?"
Doctor: "For my advice."
Patient: "Well, I'm not going to take it."

McVICKERS.

Ferguson and Sunderland.

"But please remember this: Woman is like ivy—the more you are ruined the closer she clings to you."

"Yes, and ivy is like woman. The closer it clings to you the more you are ruined."

"O, you brute!"

Want to see the real thing in men's hose?

The real thing is never found in men's hose.

Will you lend me a pair of your stockings to hang up next Christmas?

What shall I tell Santa Claus to put in them?

Well, you know what belongs in them?

Naughty, naughty.

How is it I don't see as much of you as I used to?

Because I lost over thirty pounds.

All this talk is making me dry. Let's have an affinity cocktail.

What's an affinity cocktail?

You drink it with your sweetheart and your wife's the chaser.

What kind of a man are you, anyhow?

That's for you to figure out.

You look worried.

Something is preying on my mind.

It must be pretty hungry.

Come in without knocking.

Haven't got a cigaret about you, have you?

Since when do you go in for weeds?

Ever since I've become a widow.

That was a good husband you had.

Which husband do you refer to?

Why, the last one, of course.

He isn't going to be my last one, if I can help it. Sometimes I feel very lonely.

Feel lonely, eh? I'll make you a present of a monkey.

Thanks; that's just like you.

How long is your husband in his grave?

Six feet two.

No, no; I mean when did he die?

Just eleven weeks ago.

He died only eleven weeks and yet I'm told you're already playing the piano again.

Yes; but I only use the black keys.

How many husbands have you had?

I recall Charlie, Willie, Oscar, Leo, Michael, Hugo, Fred, Otto, Dan, and Algernon.

Better stop a minute and catch your breath.

And yet of all the husbands I had none of them ever deceived me.

How do you know?

They told me so themselves.

Tell me something about your last husband.

He was a great favorite with the ladies.

Did you ever catch him flirting?

That's how I caught him.

MAJESTIC.

Ben Ryan and Harriette Lee:

I could tell you by your teeth. They are beautiful. Take them out and let me look them over, will you?

I was on the stage once.

What did you do?

Nothing; only a fellow threw my cap on and I had to go on for it. Be my sweetheart, will you? When your birthday comes I will buy you a nice present, or would you sooner have the dollar?

I am an expert dancer.

Who told you?

No one; I admit it.

THE BARRIER

Millions of people have read "The Barrier"—thousands have seen it on the stage.

Now, under the supervision of Mr. Beach, the whole exciting story has been made to live and breathe in motion pictures.

All the vigor and virility that have given the novel such remarkable popularity are in the picture.

It's a continuous succession of thrills.

In a land where law is practically unknown, and right of might largely prevails, there is every opportunity for dashing adventure—for encountering the unusual and mysterious.

Caring for War Orphans Favorite Bachelor Charity

By Mme. X.

WHEN spring finally arrived in this part of the world it was certainly "all of a sudden," and with a good deal of a bang last Tuesday afternoon the belated visitor landed on us. Foliage on our trees and shrubbery came out overnight.

It was as expeditious as the women working steadily, swiftly, and with increasing skill in the innumerable centers for making Red Cross supplies. The more summery temperature added considerably to the comfort of the sons, brothers, cousins, sweethearts, and friends in the nearby training camps who are now going through the preliminaries of military training.

Alas, that the social chronicler these days has little to set down but accounts of preparations for war! In truth, for nearly three years the war and its development have monopolized the attention of most society folk to an absorbing degree. They have identified themselves with the many and various war relief works.

The bachelors—especially the most inveterate of them—seem to take particular pleasure in the vicarious paternity offered them by the organization run by Mrs. Walter Brewster and Mrs. Arthur Ryerson which enables each subscriber, by the payment of the by no means exorbitant sum of $36.50, to become foster parent of a French child whose father has perished in the war. Paternity at $36.50 a year is certainly an inexpensive privilege, especially when you take into consideration the fact that this relationship entails none of the usual cares and pains, such as walking the floor nights with the wailing infant or teaching it the advantages of a "hanky" over fingers, or having to apply witch hazel to a swelling bump.

Chicagoans Adopt 1,600 Orphans.

These local celibates usually follow up their adopted children with letters. Return missives come from the widowed mother or some near relative, often containing photograph of the adopted youngster. Sometimes the bereaved mother—with what unexpressed hope it is not for us to suggest—includes her own likeness in the picture. Full many a manly Chicago vest pocket contains a pathetic little note, written in painstaking, cramped chirography, from the unknown child telling of the father who died "pour la patrie" and expressing in stilted French gratitude to the American foster parent.

Over 1,600 children have been thus adopted in Chicago. In many cases their American protectors intend to continue their care until the child grows up and to look up the child of their adoption on the first trip to France. There is nothing that could bring the two republics so close together as this particular enterprise.

The entertainment at the R. T. Cranes' house last Thursday evening brought in a tidy sum for this undertaking. "Joe" Smith devised and engineered it, taking a leading rôle himself. John Carpenter played the piano accompaniment and Miss Ruth Draper thrilled the company to the core and brought tears to many by her recitation of "Vive la France."

Elderly childless women also are fond of adopting French war orphans. Younger ones like to tuck little notes into the pockets of the surgical shirts and hospital pajamas they make for French wounded or to play godmother to some poilu in the trenches. The correspondences ensuing from these enterprises are stimulating to the imagination and excellent for the French.

Named for Well Known Women.

The names of some of our Chicago grandes dames are familiar to the fighters on the French battle line because of the ambulances which bear these names. There's one given by Arthur Meeker that is inscribed "Grace Mary Meeker," in honor of his wife. Lawrence Armour has given another which carries his wife's name into the thick of the fight. The honored name of Mme. Cyrus McCormick was on one of the first ambulances to be sent from Chicago to France.

The vivid associatino of American names among far away people is evidenced by the tale of the American newspaper man named McCormick (one of the nobles, but by no means rarest names on our annals) who landed in Vladivostok on his way to study the war in Russia. He's no kin to the Chicago McC.'s. As he gave his name to an official on arrival, a bystander rushed up and, kneeling, kissed the hem of his coat, being under the impression that he was thus paying homage to the inventor and purveyor of the great reaper.

Big Shipments of Supplies.

The record of some of the achievements of our local committees of women is amazing. The French war shop at 60 East Washington street, under the capable administration of Mrs. Russell Tyson and Mrs. Benjamin Carpenter, shipped last year 2,000 cases to the smaller French hospitals, 800 of which are on the lists of the French wounded emergency fund. In these cases—which were packed largely by Mmes. Arthur Ryerson, Keith Spalding, Swift, Fernald, and J. Lewis Cochran—were sent 4,104 garments, and 222,908 bandages, all cut out and made at the war shop by voluntary labor. Besides these, the cases included bedding, surgical supplies, rubber goods, drugs, comfort kits, and miscellaneous gifts.

Society Leader Active Worker for Red Cross.

One of the first women always urged to work for every big cause which has headquarters or a branch in Chicago is Mrs. Morris L. Johnston. There are few who are possessed of more tact, more grace, and more of the simple sincerity that, combined, make the wheels go without squeaks and the help come without grudges. Mrs. Johnston is among those who are working in behalf of the Chicago chapter of the American Red Cross, and will continue in the work until she leaves next month for the wilds of northern Wisconsin, where she and her family will spend the summer.

Since Jan. 1 the shipments have doubled, even tripled, in number, while the offers of help have almost swamped the directors of the shop, so eager are we growing to show our friendship for our gallant, suffering allies.

Mrs. Russell Tyson's wonderful ability and energy, however, are not entirely concentrated on the remarkable achievements of the French war shop. The Eli Bates settlement house in West Elm street has long been one of her chief concerns. This summer, through the kind coöperation of Mrs. G. S. Steward and her son, Julian R. Steward, of Plano, Ill., their sixty acre farm near there is to form a summer home for the boys and girls of the settlement. Already the Boy Scouts of the settlement are going down there week-ends to start the gardening and farming—two of the specialties of the place.

Among the women who have contributed money to make this summer colony possible are Mmes. Ogden Armour, B. F. Ayer, Jacob Baur, S. E. Barrett, Landon Rose, Arthur Meeker, Chauncey Keep, William B. Hale, Swift Fernald, W. S. Ennis, W. D. Storey, Dorr Bradley, Miss Barrett, Dr. A. R. Edwards, and Mrs. Tyson herself. The value of such an outing to the children who profit by it cannot be measured in dollars and cents.

Fresh from a conference in Washington with the secretary of the treasury on the subject of the woman's national Liberty loan committee, Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, whose remarkable combination of vitality and ability is imperiled and undermined by the inaction and torpor of peace, stepped off the train last Tuesday just in time to organize and push for the homestretch the big Red Cross drive which had been straining for a fortnight for the 250,000 membership mark.

At a meeting of the Woman's City club that afternoon she formed committees to collect new members in railway stations, theaters, shops, movies, and baseball parks.

Mrs. Robert McGann and Mrs. R. T. Crane are in charge of the terminals; Mrs. Joseph Coleman, Mrs. John Borden, and Mrs. Julian Mason of theaters; Mrs. Potter Palmer Jr. and Mrs. John H. Winterbotham of shops, and Mrs. James B. Waller of movies. Mrs. George McKinlock is going to call in the services of girls listed at the Red Cross registry at 67 East Madison street, and Mrs. Harry Channon has charge of the band, which will daily at 4 p. m. fill the atmosphere of Grant park with patriotic melodies, so moving that no one can resist the appeal to join the Red Cross army.

Others who are working with Mrs. Fairbank to make this final campaign a success are the Mrs. James Keeley, Cyrus H. McCormick, George Higginson, Fletcher Dobyns, James T. Harahan, August Magnus, H. F. Williams, and Miss Agnes Foreman.

The most spectacular invocation to joint the Red Cross will be made at the Auditorium next Tuesday evening, when the great patriotic pageant will be presented, which can't fail to stir the smoldering embers of love of country and duty to your brother man. Wallace Rice, under the supervision of Mrs. Trout and a committee of women, is getting up a really promising show with music and banners and tableaux.

In years to come we shall look back on these stirring times and realize that at least once in life's span we touched the high water mark of patriotic emotion. Mark one thing: people are gradually learning the words of "The Star-Spangled Banner" and "America." There is not nearly as much humming as formerly. Personally our preference is "The Battle Hymn of the Republic" as a national anthem, both for words and song—but don't tell those loyal Chicago great-granddaughters of Francis Scott Key, Mrs. William P. Martin and Mrs. Allen Haines, though it's a safe guess that even they don't know all the words of all three verses of the "S. S. B."

To return a moment to the woman's national Liberty loan committee, Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank voices a plea from this committee that the women of Chicago who desire to subscribe to this loan—and it is the duty of every one to do this if possible—should make their subscription through this committee. It will furnish blue subscription blanks (the men use white ones), which can be presented to any bank. Pledges which have already been made to banks for these bonds can be fulfilled through these blanks, and the woman's committee will get the credit for them. This committee does not handle either bonds or money, but hopes to aid materially the taking up of this bond issue, and has several projects to make the subscription eminently a popular loan.

The successor to the late Chester M. Dawes' post of general counsel for the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy road, Owen M. Spencer of St. Joseph, Mo., has not only taken Mr. Dawes' place in the offices in West Jackson parkway but has also taken, completely furnished, the Dawes house in Rush street. The Spencer family consists of Mr. and Mrs. Spencer, a son in college, and a daughter at boarding school who will make her social debut next autumn, if our society continues to function in such conventional directions as debuts, dinners, and dances.

Foreign Society Entertains Soldier.

In London and Paris there is much going on socially, but its mainspring is not the young girl. It is the soldier back from the trenches. He must have distraction and amusement to enable him to keep his sanity. So theaters and restaurants are open for him and for him the women of the once gay world wear their prettiest frocks and make themselves most attractive. Thus, fortified with the stimulus of a social environment which fêtes and makes much of him, he goes back to the grim business of war with renewed intensity of purpose.

What curious bits of information and gossip float back from those centers of our closest attention! Here's one gleaned from a chatty letter. This is an age when a deft tinting of cheeks under a coating of powder and a deepening of the lips' rosy hue is fairly universal, even over here. In the English and French capitals it has long been a habit of women, young and old. But it has become the established convention in Paris—and, I think, also in London—that it is extremely bad form to do this when wearing mourning. We may no longer, à la Old Testament, tear our hair and scatter ashes on our bowed heads, but it is not permitted to cover the pallor of grief and the haggard lines of bereavement with paint and powder.

Outdoor Meeting of Garden Club.

Meanwhile there are quiet interludes in life, interludes almost disconnected with the war. One of these was the first outdoor meeting of the Garden club of Illinois last Tuesday afternoon in Mrs. V. K. Spicer's entirely lovely garden at Kenilworth. The company gathered there from Chicago, Winnetka, Glencoe, and Lake Forest.

Being born under a lucky star, as well as having a touch which makes flowers spring from any soil, Mrs. Spicer, with some natural pride, introduced her fellow club members to a plaisance (isn't that what Chaucer called it?) where, in spite of five weeks of steady northeast wind, jonquils, hyacinths, crocuses, violets, lilies of the valley, and every other spring flower that grows here, was blossoming as hard as it could, filling the air with fragrance and the eye with joy.

The company sat out on the grass under the trees and listened to a paper from the hostess on flowers that grow from the crannied walls of England's historic ruins. As she is one of the frequent and popular contributors to the "Line o' Type," and even has two pseudonyms, she is as skilled with her pen as with her spade.

But the war touches even garden clubs. The annual meeting of the National Garden Club association, which was to have been held here on the north shore in June, has been given up, though the garden clubs are planning united action in the direction of conservation and development of the food producing resources of gardens.

From Maine to California flower gardens are being turned into vegetable gardens. William Carrington, formerly of Chicago, who has one of the show country places of Connecticut, has sent word from Santa Barbara, Cal., where he and his wife are planning to spend the summer, to turn all his acres of flower beds into beds of vegetables.

Summering in California.

By the way, the Montecito valley, near Santa Barbara, is going to be almost as popular with Chicagoans as a summer resort as it is for a winter refuge. Mrs. Howard Gillette is remaining there. Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Coleman go there early in June. The Robert McGanns expect to go back there for July, while Mrs. Ogden Armour is arranging a trip there in August. The McGanns and Mrs. Armour are going out to look after their respective houses now in process of construction there.

Eastward bent are the Edward Blairs, with Bar Harbor as usual their destination. Being of the independent and [illegible] mind of the youth of today their daughter, Miss Edith Blair, has taken, not far from them, and furnished in a simple but "tres chic" manner a little old cottage. Pink geraniums and violet petunias will adorn its window boxes and flower borders.

Their son, Seymour Blair, has been for some months now composing symphonies and concertos in George Twose's secluded farm in the Berkshires, Mr. Twose himself being at present in London, deeply engaged in war relief work.

Never did the Arts club offer a more entertaining exhibit of pictures than the two at present adorning its walls, one being the ultra modern paintings by Bror Nordfeldt, one tim eof Chicago, and the other being the devilishly clever prismatic, cubistic pictures by Paulet Thevenaz.

PREPAREDNESS IS NEXT TO CLEANLINESS

During the warm weather the odor of perspiration is often annoying. It is not always removed by frequent bathing. You cannot feel sure that you are not bothered in this way unless you use some toilet solution.

You may free your mind of this thought, for the entire season, for 25c. How? By making a "Toilet Solution" yourself, and by ordering it direct. In this way you save the dealer's profit and all unnecessary expense, and receive one pint of a delightful toilet water, or the quantity that should sell for $2.00 at retail. It can be made in two minutes, simply by mixing.

This is just a small way you may economize.

Write your name and address on a postal card (or sheet of paper), with the letters "T. S." (for Toilet Solution), and mail to Zwastika System Co., (not inc.), P. O. Box 824, Chicago, Ill.

It isn't necessary to send the money with the order. We would prefer that you follow the "Zwastika System," wait until you receive the goods, then place your money in the mailing tube and return at our expense. There will be no extra writing for you; we will include a self-addressed and stamped label for return.

By returning the mailing tube you save 2½c for us.

Your credit is good, you belong to "U. S. A." "Do it now," and "be prepared" when the hot days come.

Grass Rugs of Rare Beauty

THE story of the Grass Rug is an interesting one. It goes to prove once more that very few of the products of nature are without their uses.

Wire grass, which grows on the wild lands of Minnesota and in parts of Wisconsin, was one kind of fodder that cattle refused to eat, but it had its uses, and today this same long, tough, wire grass is being utilized to adorn the homes of the land, in the form of perfect rugs—

DELTOX GRASS RUGS

At first these rugs were used solely on porches, but gradually made their way inside and now you'll find them in every room in the house.

Handsome designs, good colors, and in all sizes—they add a cozy home-like look wherever placed.

Deltox Rugs are beautifully woven. They show no knots or sharp protruding ends, which was the common fault of most of the so-called "Grass" Rugs of earlier days.

Spots may easily be removed by a damp cloth.

And they are so sanitary—clean and easy to keep clean. Dust and dirt sift through them and may easily be gathered up when rugs are lifted. They need no beating.

A new Deltox is shown this year. We have christened it

The DELCRAFT Grass Rug

—a double warp, mixed weave, mottled effect grass rug, shown in many handsome designs and colors.

All Deltox dealers will carry a line of Delcrafts. Don't fail to see them both.

Wool rugs are almost prohibitive this year, because of the extremely high price dealers must ask for them. Let Deltox Grass Rugs take their place in your home. You will find them on display in all good stores where rugs are sold.

DELTOX GRASS RUG COMPANY

DELTOX RUGS can be purchased from all the leading Floor Covering and Department Stores. See that the word DELTOX is on the label.

NEWS OF THE CHICAGO WOMEN'S CLUBS

Federation Head Asks Women to Buy Liberty Bonds

ILLINOIS women were proud of their part in national affairs last November when they cast their votes for the president. There are many state affairs in which they cannot as yet take an active part, but nationally they have real power.

Illinois women have proved their patriotism by their gift of sons, a gift greater than the women of any other state have given, and they have organized themselves into units for Red Cross work with an efficiency and a thoroughness which leaves nothing undone.

Now they have an opportunity to take a definite and personal part in the affairs of the nation at war, to show their patriotism by the side of Illinois men as they showed it last November. Every woman in Chicago—in Illinois—can buy one of the Liberty loan bonds. The Illinois clubs are making a special appeal to their members to take, if they are financially able, some part in the raising of the loan.

Mrs. Martin Kent Northam, president of the Federation of Clubs of the Tenth congressional district, has sent out this letter to the president of each one of the clubs in her district:

> The women of the country have again been called upon to co-operate with the government. It is needless to say that all of the women of the United States are as one unit in their efforts to aid the government in this hour of preparedness. Everywhere they are doing their part earnestly and cheerfully and contributing not only time and energy but money as well.
> One of the most essential requisites in this crucial hour is money. Our government needs it not only for its own preparedness but has pledged itself to aid the allies financially as well as materially.
> One bill already approved by congress is the issue of $7,000,000,000 of government bonds, bearing 3½ per cent, maturing in thirty years. The government has wisely made these bonds in small enough denominations to put them within the reach of almost every household, particularly as only 2 per cent is required upon subscription, 18 per cent June 28, 20 per cent July 30, 30 per cent Aug. 15, and 30 per cent Aug. 30, the bonds being dated June 15. The interest on the bonds is payable semi-annually.
> No better security could possibly be offered, and I therefore suggest that every woman take as much of this issue as it is within her means to do, not only from an investment standpoint but also for patriotic reasons.
> I am therefore making the request of you that you suggest to every member in your own club to make application through any one of the national or state banks with a view of making such an investment.

Indications are that there will be a demand for the bonds among the members of the federation.

DOWNTOWN CLUBS

The executive committee of the Woman's City club will meet at the club rooms tomorrow at 10:30 a. m. The bathing beaches and public comfort stations committee will meet at 11 a. m. At 12:30 p. m. there will be a luncheon in Field's narcissus bridge room. Supt. of Police Hermann F. Schuettler will speak at 1:30 p. m. on "The Police Department of Chicago." Walter L. Fisher, ex-secretary of the interior, will address the Tuesday morning citizenship class on Tuesday at 11 o'clock on "Government Management of Industry and Public Utilities in Time of War." The committee on police, police stations, and jails will meet at the clubrooms at 12:30 p. m. Luncheon will be served. The monthly meeting of the civil service committee will be held on Wednesday at 11 a. m. On Thursday at 2 p. m. the schools committee will meet at the clubrooms. Mrs. Leonard Reid will give a report of the schools of the Twenty-sixth ward.

There will be a demonstration on salads by Miss Hagerty at the School of Domestic Arts and Science, 6 North Michigan avenue, tomorrow at 2 p. m.; on Thursday especially for cooks, at 2:30 and 7:30 p. m., and on Friday at 10:30 a. m. On Tuesday "home preparedness day," there will be two lectures, one at 10:30 a. m. on "Vegetables," by Miss Knowlton, and one at 11:30 a. m. on "Vitamins," by Miss Clausen. There will also be an open meeting on Tuesday at 2 p. m. "Less Expensive Meats" will be discussed by Mrs. Helen Ruggles.

Miss Sarah Blumenthal will give an address on "The Volunteer in Social Work" at the last regular meeting of the Willing Workers' Woman's club on Wednesday at 2 p. m. in Corinthian hall, Masonic temple.

Senator L. L. H. Austin, chairman of the speakers' bureau of the Red Cross campaign, will speak at the meeting of the Republican Woman's Association of Illinois at the Chicago Woman's club tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock. Other speakers will be Mrs. Grace Wilbur Trout on "The Constitutional Convention" and John W. Gorby of the National Security league on "America's Opportunity." There will be election of officers of the association.

On Saturday the Daughters of the British Empire will hold its annual Victoria day luncheon and reception at the Auditorium hotel at 1 o'clock. The speakers will be the Rt. Rev. Charles P. Anderson, Samuel Insull, H. Percye Millar, the Rev. W. H. Cawardine, S. J. Duncan-Clark, Col. Milton J. Foreman, and Horace Nugent, British consul. The patronesses are:

Mesdames—

Mrs. George Cooke-Adams, state regent, will preside at the meeting. The proceeds of the luncheon will be added to the fund for the Home for Aged British Men and Women in Chicago, on which the order will concentrate its efforts at the conclusion of the war. Mrs. James C. Gill is chairman and Mrs. William J. Shanks is secretary.

Deer Grove, the first Cook county forest preserve, will be the object of the walk which the Prairie club will take next Saturday. The club will leave the Northwestern station at 1:20 o'clock and return to Chicago at 6:40. The length of the walk will be five miles and the expense 85 cents.

Mrs. Carter H. Harrison, Prof. and Mrs. Andrew McLaughlin, and Mrs. Fannie Bloomfield Zeisler will be the guests of honor of the alumnæ of the University of Michigan at a luncheon at the Chicago College club, 16 North Wabash avenue, on Saturday. Prof. McLaughlin will speak on "International Relations After the War."

The Perboyre Art and Civic league will meet today at 3 p. m. in the clubroom at the Art institute. This will be the last indoor meeting of the year and an elaborate program will be given. Miss Kate Meade will lecture on "Celtic Art." Judge Harry Dolan and Wallace Rice will speak. There will be a pageant and flag drills in which twenty children will participate.

Miss Alice Hyatt Mather will speak before the Hayt School Parent-Teacher association tomorrow at 2 p. m. Election of officers will follow the program. On Wednesday at 2 p. m. the Woodlawn Mothers' Round Table will be addressed by Charles L. Owen, assistant curator of the Field museum, on "The Hopi, Our Snake Dance Indian." On Friday at 8 p. m. the McPherson Parents' association will give its first literary and musical entertainment in the new assembly hall, Lawrence avenue and Lincoln street.

The alumnæ of St. Patrick's academy will give a luncheon in the Rookwood room of the Hotel La Salle on Saturday. The guests of honor who will address the alumnæ are Miss Ursula Noyes of the American Red Cross and Hans Merx, the director of Roman Catholic church music in the archdiocese of Chicago. Miss Marie Crowley will be in charge of the day.

The Rev. Jenkin Lloyd Jones of Abraham Lincoln center will talk on "Internationalism," at the regular meeting of the Rothschild & Co. Employés' Social club Thursday evening in Room 512 Masonic Temple. This will be an open meeting, to which friends are invited. In addition, the entertainment will consist of a musical comedy, produced by members of the club, and a short sketch. Dancing will follow the entertainment. Many novelties will be introduced at the club's May party and dance on Saturday evening in the Empire room of the Grand Pacific hotel. The club's own orchestra will furnish the music.

At the annual meeting of the Chicago Woman's Musical club the following officers were elected: President, Miss Marie Edwards; first vice president, Mrs. Jeremiah Hallissy; second vice president, Mrs. Grace Leach Orcutt; recording secretary, Mrs. Charles D. Waterbury; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Byrde Kitson Schwarz; treasurer, Mrs. Grace Cooke De Camp.

Wallace Bruce Amsbary will give a lecture on "The Poet-Seer of Lockerbie Street" on Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock before the Writers' guild on the fifth floor recital hall of the Kimball building.

The state court officers of the Daughters of Isabella at their last meeting decided to eliminate the dinner-dance scheduled to take place tomorrow evening. The biennial state convention takes place tomorrow at the Hotel La Salle.

Those interested in the advancement of patriotism are invited to meet tomorrow at 2 p. m. in room 803, Masonic temple. In addition to the regular program there will be a talk on "Conservation of Food."

The Gen. Henry Dearborn chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, will hold its third annual meeting and election of officers and directors in the Francis I. room, Congress hotel, on Tuesday at 2:30 o'clock. Reports will be given of the Continental congress, held last month in Washington.

Mrs. Wilber MacDonald Brown was re-elected chief of the Pennsylvania Colony club Wednesday afternoon at the Auditorium hotel. The other officers elected are: Mrs. Thomas Bouchier, record-keeper; Mrs. Frank J. McCann, purse-holder, and Mrs. P. H. Schmits, historian. A beach party at the home of Mrs. Gustave A. Brand is the big midsummer affair planned by the club.

The Massachusetts colony of the Illinois Colony club will hold its regular meeting and annual election of officers on Thursday at the Auditorium hotel. Luncheon will be served at 12:30 o'clock.

SOUTH SIDE CLUBS

The members of the Fifty-fifth Street Homemakers' guild will meet at the Vocational Art institute tomorrow at 2 p. m. for a canning bee. Strawberries and rhubarb will be preserved and canned in a variety of ways. Each member furnishes her own fruit and sugar.

Mrs. James K. Hooper, 4649 Woodlawn avenue, will entertain the woman's board of the Jackson Park sanitarium on Thursday afternoon from 3 until 6 o'clock. It is the annual birthday fête of the board and each guest contributes as many pennies as she is years old toward the cause. The sanitarium will be open to the public June 25.

To mark the twelfth month of its existence the Players' workshop, 1544 East Fifty-seventh street, will give four plays this week, as follows: "The Myth of the Mirror," a Japanese pantomime adapted by Gretchen Riggs; "How Very Shocking," by Julian Thompson; "No Sabe," by Elisha Cook; "The Pot Boiler," by Alice Gerstenberg.

Chicago Teachers' day will be celebrated by the alumni association of the Chicago Normal college all day Saturday at the college. There will be special drills and exhibitions.

A charity whist party will be given by the Orphan Helpers' club this afternoon at 2:30 p. m. at the Hyde Park Masonic temple, 5047 South Michigan avenue.

NORTH SIDE CLUBS

The Rogers Park Woman's club is now open for all kinds of Red Cross work and will be a central community head for all organizations in the territory extending from Devon avenue on the south to the city limits on the north, and from the lake west to the drainage canal. The central committee is formed of Mrs. Samuel Horner, chairman; Mrs. C. F. Crane, secretary, and Mrs. W. K. Pattison, treasurer.

The board of managers of the Ravenswood Woman's club for the ensuing year consists of the following officers: President, Mrs. Charles F. Hille; first vice president, Mrs. F. R. Thompson; second vice president, Mrs. Arthur Hay; recording secretary, Mrs. Armand La Berge; corresponding secretary, Mrs. F. D. Lyon; treasurer, Mrs. William H. Bennett.

who was recently here. Miss Katherine Dudley secured the former and Mrs. John Carpenter the latter.

A disciple of Van Gogh, Gaugin, and Cezanne is Nordfeldt, and a close adherent to their point of view. Thevenas brings an iridescent charm and gift of likeness to his cubistic portraits which tickles the fancy of the beholder. His likeness of Miss Elsie de Wolf is unmistakable. One longs to possess some of his utterly Persian interpretation of modern life. Go to see the show to know what some painters are thinking today, war or no war.

WEDDINGS

A number of Chicago relatives and immediate friends will go to Washington, D. C., this week to attend the wedding of Miss Laura Delano, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick A. FUTURE EVENTS

A summary of war relief work and patriotic response to a country's call will be given on Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock in the great benefit entertainment to be held at the Auditorium theater by many of the city's organizations, which will include in the cast over 1,000 people. A half century of progress in the care of wounded on the battlefield will be visualized in two tableaux. Final rehearsals for the entertainment, which is the first climax of the drive for 250,000 members of the local chapter of the American Red Cross, will be held tomorrow afternoon.

ods of the Red Cross are brought out. The picture is in two scenes and is termed "The Red Cross of Today." The first scene shows the interior of Mrs. J. Ogden Armour's shop, which is the headquarters of the unit composed of the Michael Reese and St. Luke's hospital corps. More than 150 people participate. The cast is selected from the 800 or more workers in this shop. Cutting gauze, rolling bandages, and all the stages in the preparation of the surgical dressings will be pictured in detail. The next scene shows the battlefield with the ambulance rushing on the stage with members of the medical reserve force giving first aid treatment to the wounded.

The annual luncheon of the Starrett Alumnæ association will be held on Saturday in the French room of the Blackstone hotel. Miss Mabel Ripley will be in charge.

About Music and Musicians

By Frederick Donaghey

CAMPANINI, if he give German opera at all next season, will mount but three or four works: "Parsifal," perhaps, and "Tristan" would be of the brief list. Results on the Ring this season were not encouraging: the tetralogy consumes a great deal of money in the preparation, and does not much more than pay out with all seats sold. None of this season's Ring was a sell-out; and the other Wagner operas, also, failed to draw compensation, although the performances were at least as good as last season's, and well worth the fee, save that of "Lohengrin." "Königskinder" were foolish without Farrar; and Chicago seems to have lost its appetite for "Hänsel and Gretel." Campanini has not, so far, engaged again any of the singers who have been looked upon as German specialists—the Maclenans, Clarence Whitehill, et al., although it is said that Marcia Van Dresser, who sang in nothing else than Wagner, and mighty little of that, is again to be of the Auditorium roster. He managed, with the assistance of an occasional outsider, to give the German operas without German singers: even Beck resented being called one, and insisted that he was Hungarian.

The Metropolitan Opera directors are said to have voted nine to six that the German works be retained in next season's répertoire. They had been eloquently urged that patriotism dictated not only the abandonment of the Wagner, Mozart, Strauss, and Humperdinck operas, but the boycotting of German singers, as well. Gatti-Casazza is quoted as having told his employers that they were within their rights in dropping the German répertoire, but that, if they did so, they would require a new manager. I recall that, in his first two seasons in the Metropolitan, the reviewers accused Gatti-Casazza of planning to turn the institution into an all-Italian resort, and of neglecting the German pieces. The complaint now is that he does not give enough French opera.

Karl Muck is to remain with the Boston Symphony, it seems; and the management takes the trouble to deny that it ever threatened to disband the organization in the event of war because the membership is preponderatingly German. Dr. Muck is, in program-making, unregenerate: a recent concert was devoted to Wagner, Liszt, Strauss, and Beethoven.

Meanwhile, the German singers now in the United States are not cheerful. Gadski has been through the formality of making public a letter in which she "resigned" from the Metropolitan: a great deal of the anti-German fire was directed against her because of her being the wife of Captain Tauscher. Her stage-career has been wellnigh entirely in this country. Matzenauer, too, thinks a public statement about the proper thing just now, and, so, issues one: it relieves a tremendous anxiety in assuring the country that she will not mix in the war. She is, perhaps, the most useful of the Wagner singers now in activity.

Another, Frieda Hempel, is so worried about the Galli-Curci conflagration and Lucy Gates' success that she is exhuming and printing quotations from articles written in praise of her singing before she came to this country.

John McCormack has placed himself under bond to sing in the Metropolitan; and Mrs. Maclenan [Florence Easton], also, has been hired for next season. McCormack last Sunday night drew $14,000 into the New York Hippodrome, with himself as the sole attraction, and divided the receipts between French and Irish relief-funds. He paid the rent, a thousand dollars, from his pocket; and his manager met the other incidental costs of the recital. This is believed to be the American record for a one-man affair.

Another cold kept Galli-Curci last week from singing in Yonkers, on the rim of New York City, whence she is barred by her arrangement with Campanini.

Campanini has mailed to the Metropolitan's subscribers his bid for their trade in the four-weeks season he is to give there next winter. His charges are the Metropolitan's—one dollar to six. His stay is divided into six series of four performances each: four Tuesdays, four Wednesdays, et-cetera, but only three Mondays. He will start there on the Tuesday following the close of his Chicago season on Jan. 19.

Miss Florence Macbeth

She will have the coloratura parts in the summer's répertoire of operas in Ravinia Park. She has been singing in the Auditorium company, participating this season in "The Tales of Hoffmann" and last season in "Rigoletto" and "Lucia." Her Olympia (the doll) in the first-named opera is, perhaps, her best rôle.

Anna Fitziu and Maude Fay are to sing next season in Campanini's company. The former no longer, perhaps, requires identification as the Anna Fitzhugh of "The Wizard of Oz." Maude Fay was scheduled to sing on the final night of this season in a "pop" repetition of "Lohengrin" with Mischa Léon, a tenor with an intense yearning to get into the Chicago company: the performance was put aside for one of "The Barber" with Galli-Curci at the five-dollar scale.

Teresa Carreño is, in a report from New York City, said to have been stricken with paralysis, but to be recovering. She had been advertised to come to Chicago to teach through the summer. F. Wight Neumann has her booked for a recital next season.

Godowsky, who inaugurated this season's recitals in Chicago on Oct. 15 and took part with Alice Nielsen on Monday night in the last of importance, is scheduled to open next season's on Oct. 14.

A story that Fritz Kreisler would take up Franz Kneisel's work and continue the quartet bearing the latter's name is authoritatively denied. Kreisler's immense vogue as a soloist could hardly be translated into terms of prosperity for a chamber-music organization: not in the United States, at least. Willem Willeke, 'cellist of the Kneisels, is to enter the field as a rival of Casals, combining for his first season, at least, with other soloists.

Sheet-music is war-taxed a cent a copy by stamp. Publishers are seeking a way to make the consumer pay it on the low-price and marked-down editions.

Nijinsky's tour of the United States this season as star of the Ballet Russe is said to have involved the use of $260,000 in the process of making up the deficit. The poor business done last season by the troupe without Nijinsky was alleged to be due to his not appearing until after the engagement in Chicago; but the losses then were in the minor sum of $210,000.

Nijinsky is said to be denied the right of dancing with the Ballet Russe in the countries of the Allies: for one reason, because he did not go home to Russia for military service when the war broke out; for another, because he staged and took part in a ballet based on Strauss' "Till Eulenspiegel" in the United States.

The musicians' union objected to its members' taking part in the New York City performances of an operetta because of the use, on the stage, of twelve fifers from a militia regiment. The latter were dropped.

NEW YORK SOCIETY

Mme. X

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—The lawns of Newport are to be put to a lowly use which they have never known before. They will be given over this summer to the cultivation not of orchids but of corn and vegetables. Word has reached the 400 that it is up to the citizens of this country to raise a little food on which to maintain ourselves and they are entering into the spirit of the adventure.

This last word of mine seems to me to be correctly chosen, for an adventure you would think our war to be, from the sending of troops to the planting of vegetables, if you could read the story of it in the sparkling eyes of our women of fashion. Here at last is something for them to do—than which nothing else has been so badly needed. They have a job, and it is nothing less than to help the nations of the earth to preserve themselves. They are going to plant potatoes and onions on the beautiful lawns of Newport as one of the measures.

The Graves Point Fishing club of Newport has also decided to come into the game. It will turn over several acres of its ground on the Ocean drive to the plow. Indeed, it is offering to do as the vacant lots committee of some of the large cities urged the owners to do before the war, it is parceling out its ground to Newporters who would be pleased to do their bit by using—or furnishing—a little elbow grease in gardening, but have not yet brought themselves to the point of sacrificing the neat green and the cultivated rusticitity of their lawns for the nation's cause.

They will come to it later, of course, and meantime the chief social activity of the season, as thus far indicated, will be to meet in parties to hoe and dig and spade. Among the members of the Graves Point club are the men of some of the smartest families of Newport. Their wives will all help in the work. J. Pierpont Morgan, the elder, when living used to fish there and some of the present members are Whitney Warren, E. Livingston Beeckman, Cornelius Vanderbilt, T. Suffern Tailer, Lispenard Stewart, and Stuyvesant Le Roy. Mrs. French Vanderbilt and Mrs. Tailer are among the beautiful women who will actually wield the hoe themselves. Mrs. Vanderbilt, as I have mentioned before, goes one step further and yields a son, whose father was the late Alfred Vanderbilt, to the awful demands of this war.

People who have passed any time in England can scarcely be anything but amused to read that the British commission stopped at the residence of the Astor family. What did they think of the wonderful comfort of it? The elegance, I am sure, they could enjoy without the slightest feelings of strangeness. But the bath tubs, the lovely, dry warm furnace heat, the brilliant artificial lights, placed where you could really see something by them, must have been the marvels of this trip to them.

I am well acquainted with one American woman who pays a large part of her husband's large income for a palace in London belonging to one of the titled gentlemen running this war, and while she has the wondrous art galleries, the wide sweep of rooms, the wine cellars, the massive dining service, she likewise always has a cold in her head from the absence of heat. Her American guests suffer from the absence of bath tubs.

I am always thinking of that Astor residence as of a human being, and taking a half malicious pleasure in reflecting on the tales that it could tell. Its one time mistress, Mrs. William Astor, as I frequently tell you, was, with Ward McAllister, the person who made up the list of the four hundred. It is pleasant to reflect that down those stairs which she, an American empress, trod, our English aristocracy and some of the young men of England who are not so aristocratic, have within the fortnight taken their way on missions far different. They have been here to ask us to help them preserve a democracy for which this old house does not stand. It is the stronghold of aristocracy of our country.

I think I have not told you that the Astor residence is really two huge houses that can be thrown into one. They have the same entrance, and in one of them the late John Jacob used to live, while his mother, Mrs. William, occupied the other. The two houses form a crescent in the avenue, and the straight side is closed from the street by wrought iron doors lined with plate glass, inside of which hang heavy velour curtains. The halls of both houses are alike. At the rear of them are a large picture gallery and a ballroom which opens into both houses. The occupants always throw the two houses together when they entertain. Near the entrance way are double doors which lead from one Astor house to the other, and these when open throw the two houses into one.

There is one society item a little out of the ordinary which I feel that I ought not to omit recording this week. Little Finley J. Shepard has "hit the trail" at one of the Billy Sunday meetings! He and his mother, who was Miss Helen Gould, went up together to give themselves, he having first, with bright eyes, watched the revival proceedings from the warm softness of his mamma's lap.

A world of music rolled into one at the Coliseum

Will you take a little pleasure trip to it?

NAME me the kind of music you like best, and I will take you with me to the place in the Coliseum where that kind of music is being played or sung.

Tell me whether you love operatic music, symphony, dance, patriotic music, and I will guide you to the exact place on the floor where that sort of music is being rendered. Ask me any question of music that you wish to learn about and I will direct you to the expert who can answer you, who will advise with you about your child's musical education, about the instrument you ought to have in your home, about the kind of records that will help to make your phonograph more educational, cultural and inspiring, about the music rolls that will tremendously develop the worth of your player piano, about the kind of music you ought to have played at home, the name of the composer you've been wondering about, the aria in the opera you've been unable to get out of your head.

In the balcony is the Chicago Grand Opera Orchestra, under the direction of Eduardo Sacerdote, etc.—picked soloists, Chicago men.

Extra Special

In another part of the balcony Tuesday night the great Community Chorus of 4,000 voices, under the direction of Henry Purmort Eames, pupil of Paderewski—with Apollo Club, Marshall Field Chorus, church choirs and school clubs co-operating.

Here in one section of the balcony will be the Committee of Chicago's Musicians.

Each Day a Famous Grand Piano Given FREE

Here on a little dais on the floor a number of famous artists will play for you face to face in an intimate sort of way.

Here in every music room along the floor is a different kind of concert for you, or a different sort of educational idea. Here is a concert hall with great pianists playing in comparison with their own player piano records. Here are noted singers and instrumentalists singing and playing in unison with their phonograph records.

Here will be the music students competing for honors.

Come prepared to spend a full afternoon or evening of music, every moment crowded with interest, and come prepared to carry away with you a marvelously enlarged understanding of present-day instruments and present-day music.

Every afternoon and evening, up to May 26th. 100 different entertainments. Admission 50c. All seats free.

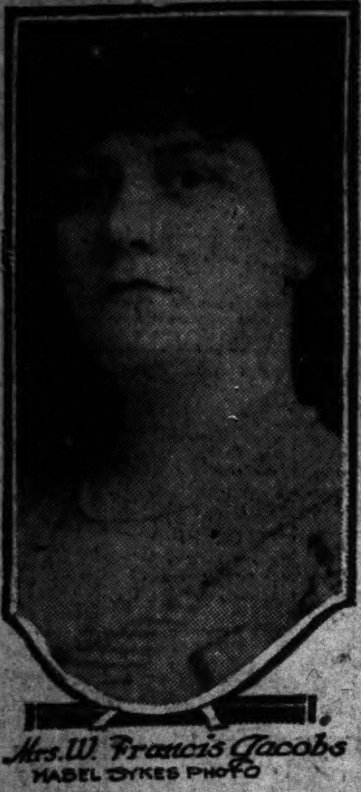
NEWS OF CHICAGO SOCIETY



Mrs. W. Francis Jacobs
MABEL SYKES PHOTO

Proceeds from the card party which will be given by the woman's auxiliary of the St. Elizabeth hospital on Tuesday evening at Northwest hall will be given to the building fund of the hospital. Mrs. W. Francis Jacobs is recording secretary of the auxiliary.

The first tableau, "The Sanitary Fair," shows a picture of the women of the civil war times picking lint for bandages. Through the windows are seen the soldiers in their own regimentals on their march back to rejoin the hosts at the front. This is a representation of a picture now hanging in the national galleries at Washington. The tableau is under the direction of Mrs. J. Albert Cook and Mrs. Anna Woodward, and is sponsored by the Illinois Athletic club.

In the next tableau the modern meth-

These two tableaux, the climax to a series of seven pictures, are under the direction of Mrs. Heaton Owsley and Mrs. L. E. Frankenthal. The captains of the shop who will participate with their helpers in the scene are: Miss Louise Herrick, Miss Mary Newberry, Miss Clara Kretsinger, Mrs. Carter H. Harrison Jr., Miss Constance MacArthur, Mrs. James Defreese, Mrs. E. F. Carry, Miss Stella Webber, Miss Bertha Belden, Mrs. Arthur Ryerson, Mrs. Josiah McRoberts, Mrs. John Rouse, Mrs. C. Lehme, Mrs. Norman Williams, Mrs. Percy Ullman, Mrs. Edward Morris Jr., Mrs. Sidney Long, Mrs. Arthur Spiegel, Mrs. Edwin A. Foreman, Miss Elizabeth Waller, Mrs. E. Rosenfeld, Mrs. Albert Loeb, Mrs. Joseph Frank, Mrs. Henry Strauss, Mrs. J. T. Harahan, Mrs. Harvey Austrian, Mrs. Henry Kuh, Mrs. M. H. M. Smith, Mrs. Max Epstein, Mrs. Julius Lowenthal, Mrs. Karl Meyer, Mrs. A. T. Pflaum, Mrs. Isaac Abt, Mrs. G. N. Glaser, Mrs. L. T. Willmer, and Mrs. Edward Morris. Mrs. Edith Harrison Manierre and Mrs. Carter H. Harrison will assist Mrs. Heaton Owsley. Miss Gertrude McCarthy will head a group of twelve of the younger workers dressed in Red Cross costume to secure enrollments in the audience.

The program opens with "The Call to the Colors," a spectacular production requiring 250 people, including children and veterans of the civil war. It is directed by Mrs. James Goodwillie. The next tableau is "The Great Union Flag," in charge of Mrs. Jacob Baur. More than fifty appear in this group, which includes Miss Mary Pitkin, Miss Phyllis Plummer, Mrs. Mitchell Follansbee, Mrs. Augustus S. Peabody, and Miss Marie Rozet. The third number is the "Betsy Ross" tableau, staged by the Women's City club, under the direction of Mrs. Edward L. Murfey. Mrs. Malcolm Fay will be Betsy Ross.

The Chicago Political Equality league's part in the pageant will consist of a tableau on the subject of conservation, arranged and staged by Miss Grace Hickox. The committee in charge of the arrangements for the league is headed by Mrs. Harry Clay Coffeen.

Mrs. Grace Wilbur Trout is general chairman of the committee in charge of the pageant. There will be no admission fee, admission being by ticket only. Boxes are being sold by Mrs. Arthur Ryerson. The cover design of the program is by John T. McCutcheon. The music is directed by Mrs. Louis E. Yager. Francisco Daddi will sing the songs of the allies, by courtesy of the Illinois Athletic club. Mrs. Cyrus H. McCormick and Mrs. J. O. Armour have both volunteered to introduce grand opera stars. One of these will be Miss Helen Stanley. She will sing in the costume of the colonial days.

Mrs. John Alden Carpenter, assisted by Miss Katherine Dudley, will have charge of the tableaux and decorations. Miss Margaret Dobyne is chairman of the ticket committee. Mrs. S. Frackleton is chairman of enrollments, Miss Carrie Neely, chairman of the ushers, will have a force of Junior league girls working under her. Miss Agnes Foreman, Mrs. Lyman Walton, Mrs. George Dixon, Mrs. Philip S. Doane, and Mrs. G. A. Soden are among the other women who have been working. D. F. Kelly is chairman of the finance committee. There will be speeches by Red Cross workers between the pictures. It is hoped that at least 8,000 members will be enrolled. Those who are already members will be asked to sign for one friend.

A concert will be given on Tuesday evening by Miss Janet Miller, child pianist, and a number of other children who will play a "toy symphony" at Central Music hall for the purpose of raising funds with which to equip an ambulance at the French front. Mrs. Archibald E. Freer, Mrs. Chauncey McCormick, and Mrs. Arnold Chapman are in charge of the entertainment. Another entertainment will be given on Friday evening at the same place, when there will be dances by children, moving pictures showing the work of the ambulance service, and musical numbers by children.

Another brilliant social event of the week will be the benefit concert to be given by Ysaye, the violinist, and his son, Gabriel, who will play at the Auditorium theater on Thursday evening for the fund of the queen of Belgium and for the woman's section of the Navy league, under whose auspices the affair will be given. Among the box holders are Mrs. George Pullman, Mrs. R. T. Crane, Mrs. J. J. Mitchell, Mrs. G. F. Griffin, Mrs. William Randolph Hearst, Miss Marjorie Ward, Mrs. J. Ogden Armour, Mrs. Frederick D. Countiss, Mrs. Louis M. Stumer, Mrs. Jacob Baur, Mrs. Hathaway Watson, Mrs. Julius Rosenwald, Mrs. J. T. Harahan, Mrs. C. H. Morse Jr., and Mrs. W. J. Chalmers.

A bargain sale of garments from the Bandbox shop will be held on Wednesday at the home of Mrs. David R. Forgan of Evanston. Assisting in the sale will be Mrs. Halstead G. Freeman, Miss Mabel Linn, and other helpers in the shop.

There will be a reception at the Cordon on Friday afternoon from 4 until 6 o'clock, when the members may meet the newly elected officers.

Cards have been sent out by Miss Nixon announcing a sale of Italian embroideries and baskets to be held on Wednesday from 10 to 5 o'clock at the residence of Miss Ethel Wrenn of 1500 Astor street. At 11 o'clock and again at 3 o'clock there will be a short talk on the new movement in artistic dressing in Italy, and costumes from the Fortuny and Gallenga studios will be shown.

The South Shore Country club links will celebrate the formal opening of the women's golf season on Wednesday. The new bridge tournament for members will continue on Monday afternoon, with Friday as guest day. The South Shore May party is scheduled for Thursday and the last "Frolics" of the season will be held on Saturday.

A distinguished list of boxholders heralds the events of the Chicago North Shore Music festival, to be given in the Northwestern university gymnasium in Evanston on May 28, 29 and 31, and June 2. The occasion will be one of social importance as well as the great annual musical event which it always proves to be. Among the boxholders are Samuel Insull, James A. Patten, I. K. Friedman, L. B. Kuppenheimer, Miss Cornelia G. Lunt, Harold H. Swift, Mrs. D. H. Burnham, William L. Brown, M. Cochrane Armour, James Simpson, J. C. Shaffer, C. L. Jenks, Mrs. J. W. Kepler, Harrison B. Riley, Frank S. Cunningham, Edwin S. Mills, T. W. Robinson, Mrs. T. C. Keller, John E. Wilder, F. W. Harnwell, E. M. Skinner, Conrad H. Poppenhusen, William S. Mason, Joseph F. Ward, W. A. Illsley, F. J. Scheidenhelm, Oscar H. Haugan, Lyman H. Drake, E. J. Buffington, John H. Hardin, Edith Ringling, A. E. Cable, Mrs. John C. Spry, Rollin A. Keyes, Julius Rosenwald, Charles G. Dawes, L. G. Blessing, Mrs. W. A. Gardner, William Francis, A. F. Banks, Louis Winchet, Irwin Rew, Dr. M. C. Bragdon, Peter C. Lutkin, Arthur B. Jones, W. A. Dyche, F. A. Hardy, H. P. Pearsons, M. H. Wilson, Prof. N. Dwight Harris, Mrs. John N. Dole, F. H. Armstrong, Charles F. Fishback, A. H. Gross, J. F. Oates, Carl S. Williams, Mrs. H. H. C. Miller, Mrs. Henry Date, and Mrs. George M. Sargent.

Plans are already being made by all the outdoor loving people to forget the city on Memorial day, which comes a week from Wednesday, and get into the country. The much heralded dunes pageant will be given on that day, both afternoon and evening, on a spot near Porter, to which there will be easy access both by the steam railroad lines and the electric lines that go along the south shore of the lake. A number of large municipal organizations which stand for preserving the beauty of the country and fostering art in the city are backing the pageant, which has for its object the saving of those wild stretches of sand dunes from being turned into commercially exploited territory.

The country and golf clubs will all have special programs of sports and entertainment on Memorial day, and every motorist in the city will be "on the wheel" if the day is what May 30 usually is. In the evening there will be dinner parties and dances at the clubs, and many of the members will plan to take their families out of the city for the entire latter half of the week and the week-end, where their clubs afford sleeping space.

The alumnæ of St. Patrick's academy will give a luncheon at the Hotel La Salle on Saturday. The guests of honor, who will make addresses, are Miss Ursula Noyes of the American Red Cross and Hans Merx, director of Roman Catholic church music in the archdiocese of Chicago.

A social will be given by the Twenty-eighth Ward Socialist Woman's club on Thursday at 2 o'clock at Rockwell hall, Milwaukee avenue and Rockwell street.

Graduating exercises of the class of 1917 of the Illinois Training School for Nurses will be held on Tuesday afternoon, May 29, at the West End Woman's club, 37 South Ashland boulevard. A reception from 4:30 until 6 o'clock at 509 Honore street will follow the exercises.

Mrs. E. S. Beatty, Mrs. E. Cobb, Miss Abbie B. Gantz, and Miss Dorothy Dent, the committee in charge of the entertainment of the visiting women who will attend the national conference of the Western Efficiency society at the Auditorium hotel, from Wednesday to Saturday, will assist at a musical tea to be given by Carson, Pirie, Scott & Co. on Thursday at 3:30 o'clock. On Friday there will be an auto ride through the parks and boulevards.

Mrs. Henry E. Lyons of 4310 Grand boulevard will entertain next Sunday afternoon and evening for her granddaughter, Pauline L. Hens, and Miss Rose Fischer, whose engagement to her son, Ellis, has been announced.

At the Chicago bazaar for St. Monica's church, to be held at the Coliseum from May 28 to June 2, Mrs. T. J. Sullivan as general woman's chairman will have charge, and others helping will be Mrs. S. J. Fisher, Mrs. John E. McNichols, and all those in charge of the booths. A number of card parties and dances are being given by the chairmen to secure supplies for their booths. The Rev. John S. Morris, pastor of the church, is in general charge, and J. J. Collins is chairman.

The Ranleigh club, which has been organized by Miss Alice King, and which is a unique town and country club within easy motoring distance of Chicago, will open on June 1. The club is located in the former "House That Jack Built," on the Desplaines river, and it is expected, judging from the membership of fashionable motorists, that it will be the scene of many jolly motor dinners and dances during the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. William Wilharts of 5200 South Park avenue will entertain this afternoon for their daughter, Ruth, whose engagement to Samuel E. Hirsch, son of Dr. and Mrs. Emil G. Hirsch, was recently announced.

The women's auxiliary of St. Anne's hospital will give a benefit card party tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Garfield park refectory. Mrs. Charles J. Heaney is chairman.

The Evangelical Lutheran Young People's league will meet this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at Eckhardt park.

The B'nai Abraham auxiliary will give a minstrel cabaret at its temple at 1114 South Marshfield avenue this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. There will be a dance after the entertainment.

A vaudeville program will be given this afternoon at the Auditorium theater as a benefit performance for the American Theatrical hospital. A long list of names of fashionable people is announced as boxholders for the affair.

The women's auxiliary committee of the Angel Guardian Orphan home will give a card party this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the home at 2001 Devon avenue.

The Northwest Young People's auxiliary of the Marks Nathan Jewish Orphan home will give a dance this afternoon at 3 o'clock at Humboldt Park hall, Le Moyne street and California avenue.

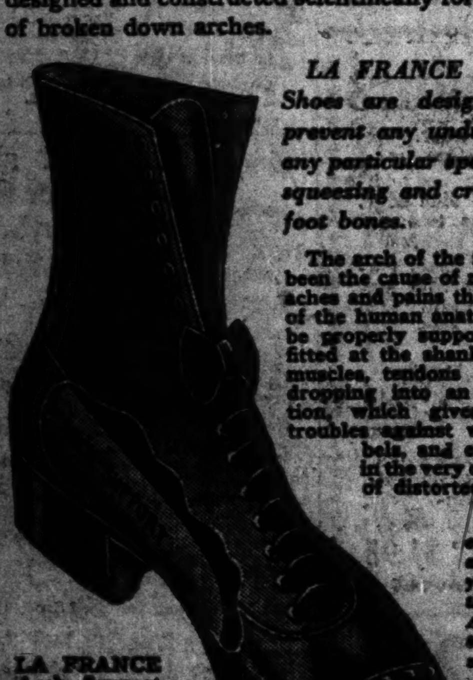
LA FRANCE—the Correct
Arch Support Shoe
for Women

This shoe has proven its superiority because it is designed and constructed scientifically for the correction of broken down arches.



LA FRANCE Arch Support Shoes are designed so as to prevent any undue pressure on any particular spot, and to avoid squeezing and cramping of the foot bones.

The arch of the foot has perhaps been the cause of more untraceable aches and pains than any other part of the human anatomy, and should be properly supported and snugly fitted at the shank to prevent the muscles, tendons and bones from dropping into an unnatural position, which gives rise to the troubles against which nature rebels, and eventually results in the very common affliction of distorted or flat feet.

If you have weak or broken down arches, the sooner you put on a pair of these LA FRANCE Arch Support Shoes the sooner you should find relief.

LA FRANCE Arch Support Shoes are made of fine selected quality imperial vici kid—the soles tanned by a special process that assures flexibility—Goodyear welt sewed. Complete range of sizes and widths. They are moderately priced, the pair,

PERSONALS

The new knowledge of the needs of the army and the needs of the fighting nations has served to open American pocketbooks wider than ever for home as well as foreign charities. It is good that France with all her sorrow is not being made to suffer through an economical streak on our part now that we are at war. The funds continue to pour in for French charities. Miss Carolyn Wilson, formerly correspondent in France for The Tribune, has been lecturing during the last month for Mrs. Edith Wharton's fund for tubercular soldiers and has just sent Mrs. Wharton $2,300, nearly enough for the upkeep of four beds for a year, as the product of her month's lecture.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer H. Adams, who have been spending the last few weeks at Virginia Hot Springs, have taken an apartment at the Glenview Golf club for the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. William C. Pullman of Lake Shore drive will open their summer home near Green Lake, Wis., where they expect to go before long.

Mr. and Mrs. William J. Chalmers expect to spend the summer at Watch Hill, R. I., where they have taken a house.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Dixon will spend the summer in Oconomowoc, Wis., where they expect to go after the marriage of their son, Alan, to Miss Janet Miller.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank I. Pearce of 3627 [illegible] boulevard have gone to their country place at Fox Lake.

Miss Anna Morgan, who is visiting in Washington, Atlantic City, and New York, expects to be home in about ten days.

Miss Florence Westerlund of Buena Park will leave tomorrow for Washington, D. C., to attend the commencement exercises of the National Park Seminary. Later she will go to Allentown, Pa., to visit her sister, Mrs. L. A. [illegible] Jr.

Mr. and Mrs. Harlan K. Bolton will occupy the home of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore White Smith at Naperville for the summer.

Dr. Frank Billings and his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. George R. [illegible] Jr. of 242 East Walton place, will move to Lake Forest next month.

Wall Papers "Slashed"
Ninth Floor—Dearborn Street

Slashed, and deeply so; in fact, to half actual value—because a leading Chicago wholesale house wouldn't receive these 20,000 rolls of fine imported wall papers, most of which are English, so late in the season.

In the lot are two-tones, grass effects, Eltonbury silk fibers, plain 30 inch oatmeal papers in all colors, nursery papers, dainty bedroom stripes, chintz effects and florals. An economy event the home decorator should not overlook. For quick clearance we have divided them into two huge groups:

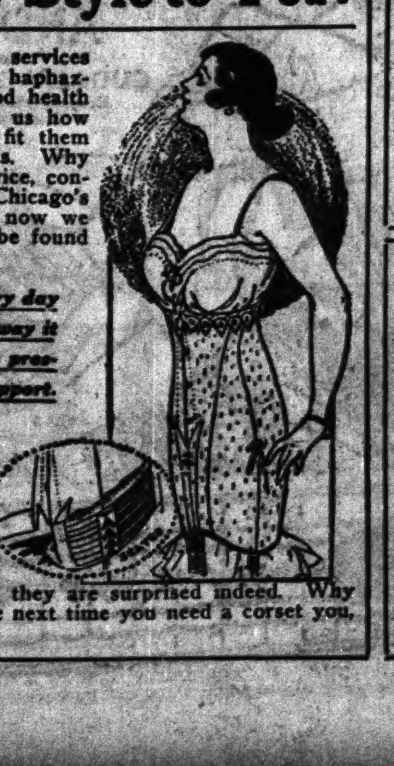
Does Your Corset Mean Only Style to You?
Third Floor—Center

It shouldn't, of course, and need not, either, if you will only enlist the services of our corps of experienced corsetieres to aid you—Don't choose corsets haphazardly to your own great discomfort, impairment of good looks and good health—Never a day passes now but at least several women stop in and tell us how grateful they are to us for persuading them to have our corsetieres fit them properly—especially so those women who were fitted to Nemo Corsets. Why don't you let us fit you, too? Please remember that for this fitting service, conceded to be the very best in all Chicago and recommended by many of Chicago's leading physicians as well as modistes, no extra charge is made—and now we want to tell you more about the famous Nemo Wonderlift Corsets to be found here in a complete variety of sizes in each of the styles.

The Self-Help Nemo Wonderlift Corset, at 5.00, can help you make every day of your life one of your "well days." Do you ask how? Simply by the way it supports the internal organs. Every organ held in its natural place. No pressure on nerves or blood-vessels. Complete hygienic and comfortable support.



Nemo Corsets No. 554—for short stout figures............
Nemo Corsets No. 555—for taller stout figures............
Nemo Corsets No. 556—for slender to medium figures...
Nemo Corsets No. 558 as illustrated—for slender to medium figures, girdle top..............................

Nemo Wonderlift Corsets are quite different and ever so much more helpful to most women than any corsets they have ever worn before that they are surprised indeed. Why not let us show you wherein they are different, then we know that the next time you need a corset you, too, will want Nemo Service.

Lay Corner Stone of Congregational Church, Oak Park

By the Rev. W. B. Norton.

PUBLIC curiosity has been awakened concerning the laying of the corner stone of the First Congregational church of Oak Park which takes place with services at 10:30 and 3 o'clock today. The pastor of the church, Dr. William E. Barton, has requested Willis S. Herrick and Senator Henry W. Austin, who were present as boys at the corner stone laying of the church which was built in 1873, to open the box which was deposited in the corner stone at that time and display the contents. As it is not known what the box contains its opening is expected to cause some surprises.

The church house will be dedicated at 10:30. Dr. Barton will preach. A joint service of the church and Sunday school will be held at noon. At the corner stone laying at 3 o'clock Judge Jesse A. Baldwin and others will speak.

The Rev. Frank Fitch of Prophetstown, Ill., has acepted a call to the Third Congregational church, Oak Park, and is expected to begin work there Sept. 1.

The Rev. F. W. Gunsaulus, pastor of Central church, will preach the sermon tomorrow night at the Wellington Avenue Congregational church at the installation of the pastor, the Rev. Van Ogden Vogt.

Chicago, Oak Park, and Evanston ministers will participate in the dedication of the First Methodist Episcopal church of Waukegan today, and in the exercises of the week Bishop Thomas Nicholson, the Rev. L. F. Lesemann, the Rev. John Thompson, and the Rev. C. K. Carpenter will be the Sunday speakers. President Charles M. Stuart of Evanston will speak at the banquet Tuesday evening, May 22, and the Rev. Alro A. Brown on young people's night, May 25. The church cost $50,000, and will seat more than 800. The basement will accommodate 500 at a banquet. The Rev. J. W. Funston is the pastor. The Waukegan church organization is among the oldest church organizations in northern Illinois.

The Rev. John J. Dennison

The Rev. John J. Dennison is pastor of St. Mary's of the Lake Roman Catholic church, Sheridan road and Buena avenue, which will be dedicated at 11 o'clock today by Archbishop G. W. Mundelein. Father Dennison has been pastor of the church for sixteen years and has seen the congregation grow from a small parish of sixty families to one numbering over 600. Archbishop Mundelein will be met by a band and escort of various Catholic societies at Sheridan road and Waveland avenue. The dedicatory sermon will be preached by the Rev. John Webster Melody D. D. In the evening Bishop A. J. McGavick will officiate at pontificial vespers and the sermon will be preached by the Rev. T. F. Burke, C. S. P. The parochial school will be blessed at noon following the dedication of the church.

Today will be observed in many churches as Anti-Cigaret Sunday. The observance is a part of the work of the clean life campaign which is being carried on in the public schools and in the churches under the auspices of the Anti-Cigaret League of America, of which Miss Lucy Page Gaston is founder and superintendent.

The Chicago Methodist Social union will give a banquet next Friday evening at the Auditorium hotel. The Rev. Joe Bell will tell his experiences in connection with enlisting in the civil war when a boy, and the Rev. Clarence True Wilson of Washington, D. C., will speak on his experiences as a temperance campaigner.

The Rev. James E. Freeman, D. D., rector of St. Mark's Protestant Episcopal church, Minneapolis, Minn., will be the speaker tonight at the Sunday Evening club in Orchestra hall. His subject will be "The Logic of Life."

The cornerstone of the St. Edmund's parochial school in Oak Park will be laid at 3 o'clock today by Bishop A. J. McGavick. The pastor of St. Edmund's is the Rev. John J. Code. The building which will be built of Bedford stone will be modeled after the Palace of Justice in Rouen, France. It is expected the school will be ready for occupancy by Sept. 1.

The Rev. James S. Ainslie, pastor of the Argyle Community church, which meets in the Argmore theater, Argyle and Kenmore avenues, will read at the service this morning a letter from his son-in-law, Lieut. Hugh Donnan, who was in the charge when Vimy ridge was captured. The letter describes the charge.

Edward A. Steiner of Grinnell college will be the speaker at First Voters' night at the Auditorium theater the evening of May 28. The Rev. John Timothy Stone will present the first voters' pledge. The meeting will be held under the auspices of the Young People's Civic league.

Girls! Use Lemon Juice on Skin! Make a Good Complexion Lotion

Any girl or woman can easily prepare a quarter pint of lemon massage lotion cheaply. It is splendid!

At the cost of a small jar of ordinary cold cream one can prepare a full quarter pint of the most wonderful lemon skin softener and complexion beautifier, by squeezing the juice of two fresh lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of Orchard White. Care should be taken to strain the juice through a fine cloth so no lemon pulp gets in, then this lotion will keep fresh for months. Every woman knows that lemon juice is used to bleach and remove such blemishes as freckles, sallowness and tan, and is the ideal skin softener, smoothener, beautifier.

Just try it! Get three ounces of Orchard White at any pharmacy and two lemons from the grocer and make up a quarter pint of this sweetly fragrant lemon lotion and massage it daily into the face, neck, arms and hands. It should naturally help to whiten, soften, freshen and bring out the roses and beauty of any skin. It is truly marvelous to smoothen rough, red hands.

Genuine Orchard White bears the name, Edward Wesley Co., Cincinnati, Ohio.

A Cooler, More Restful Sleep

A Slumberon genuine hair mattress makes the coolest bed, because it is self-ventilating; it is the most restful because the hair always remains springy—it does not mat. It is more satisfactory in everyway than mattresses made of any other material—and it is more economical.

"The Mattress of a Million Little Springs"

Slumberon

Sanitary Hair Mattress

is made of high-grade all curled hair, covered with extra quality, heavy ticking which prevents hair from working out. The Slumberon will not absorb or retain moisture, which makes it most suitable for out-of-door sleeping. With all its advantages Slumberon is priced only slightly higher than cotton. Full width; weighs 40 pounds. Price, $25.00.

Out-of-town Buyers: Ask your dealer to show you a SLUMBERON. If he doesn't handle them write us and we will send you the name of a SLUMBERON dealer near your home, together with our valuable booklet, "Correct Sleeping."

The Movie Stars Are Coming!

Announcing

A Series of Rotogravure Portraits of Movie Stars To Be Given FREE With The Chicago Tribune-Starting Next Sunday.

Starting next Sunday, May 27th, the movie stars will come to you—regularly, each Sunday—in your own home. Each Sunday, there will be given FREE with every copy of The Chicago Sunday Tribune five handsome rotogravure portraits of your own movie favorites.

As a supplement of The Chicago Tribune, each Sunday, you will be given an artistic rotogravure portrait, size 9 x 11½ inches, of one of your movie stars, all ready for framing. In addition, there will appear in the regular rotogravure section of The Chicago Sunday Tribune four new poses of other movie stars done in beautiful sepia-toned finish and uniform in size and arrangement.

The Chicago Sunday Tribune is the only Chicago newspaper offering its readers a rotogravure section. Interesting photographs of events and personages from all over the world appear in this section weekly. Costly equipment, owned and operated by The Chicago Tribune, is maintained to make this rotogravure section a real work of art.

Be sure to get next Sunday's Chicago Tribune. The first movie supplement of this series will present a new portrait of Charlie Chaplin. Smaller portraits of four other movie stars will appear in the regular rotogravure section. Succeeding issues of The Chicago Sunday Tribune will contain equally artistic portraits of other movie stars. You'll want to see every one of them—and save them. Their size and arrangement makes them convenient for framing or for keeping in your movie-star album. Get the entire series—a new set each week

ART By Louise James Bargelt

Modern Trend Shown in Some Weird Pictures

THE exhibition which opened at the Arts club last week is interesting because it leaves one with an abiding impression of what the very modern in art means. Bror Olsson Nordfeldt is there and so is Paulet Thevenaz and there are some small bronzes by Jane Poupelet.

The first two show dynamic, somewhat astonishing canvases, the soul struggles of artists striving to swing from the hackneyed forms of art as our modern poets have swerved from classic meters to the more plastic medium of vers libre. If by any chance they puzzle you, these weird looking pictures, rest assured this emotion is one the artist raises gladly in your mind. For then, sayeth he, there is perchance something new, or at any rate "different" in them and he, of course, is the competent exponent of that same welcome novelty.

Thevenaz is a Swiss, resident of Paris for some years, and vociferously does he claim allegiance to an old school which goes back to Plato's time and the old Greek culture. He is, he says, a rhythmatist! In his creed the happiness or the sorrow, the weal or the woe of an individual depends entirely on whether or not his life is in the right rhythm. If you happen to be in the right one, the world smiles and all is well. If you are not, whatever is is wrong, and there is no use in striving like a fly in a net against the ill fitting aura of your rhythm waves.

As for the exact status quo of this Thevenaz, a Teutonic indexing of his talents and eccentricities, you will have to go to some wiser mind than mine. Though, for the benefit of those statistically inclined, I might say that he is a representative of the "modern moderns," and that never in the history of painting has there been an innovation which has suffered so from public ridicule as this of the ultra modern school.

It came quickly, too, this leaping of the gulf twixt the old and the new. In the early nineteenth century classicism was peacefully dreaming its dreams when Turner and Daumier and others of the same impulses commenced smashing at the pillars that for centuries, unchallenged, had reared themselves up for artistic adoration. But little did they dream, heretical though they were, of the extremes their own heresies would plunge them into. Cezanne came, and others followed, each new, each striking out at different angles, until the evolution of modern painting has been so precipitous that even the most revolutionary have found it difficult to keep abreast of the new schools and new movements which have sprung up with funguslike growth.

Now these moderns themselves elude a definite analysis. Their wagons are hitched to stars, but their feet are firmly planted to the present. This "now" of ours is their camping ground, and anything "different" is apt to prove a fetish before which they bow.

Abuse of Thevenaz is fruitless and of no avail. He revels in its deliriously. It is what he feeds upon. So therefore spare your breath.

But, lest the unwary be caught unaware when they chance to visit his exhibit, I shall warn here against letting these pictures split and rend conjugal bonds. I overheard this bit of conversation between two mated beings at the Arts club the other day, and, while I'll not say with which party I sympathized, the reader will take sides when he becomes a viewer of the galleries' contents.

She (ecstatically)—O, I must have one of T—'s landscapes. They are wonderful.

He (brutally)—The same roof won't shelter us both.

She (reproachfully)—But think of its colors—above our fireplace.

He (grimly)—Choose between us.

And I noticed that they were not speaking as they took their departure.

His portrait work is virile, this man Thevenaz's. It seems he takes the crystal for standard of working. You might buy one, I think, of some one else, but you wouldn't care for one of yourself, though he has a number of noted people among his victims.

As for landscapes there is much beauty of coloring in them and one's eye, running over these colors, is fascinated as by a kaleidoscope. You get a distinct visual pleasure out of the canvas, but there is a sad lack of any esthetic enjoyment. If it is true that all art should be looked at through half-closed eyes, these landscapes and decorative pieces might convey much greater meaning if one drank in the glory of their coloring in a long look and then shut one's eyes completely, allowing the imagination full scope as far as the idea and general form are concerned.

Nordfeldt, on his part, is alive to the decorative quality in his landscape. He thinks in strong colors and sharp, hard lines. There is a metallic brilliance in his nature pictures, while his still life paintings please by their sheer charm of color.

A hundred painters in every country these days are hard at work tearing down old idols, striking resounding blows at the gods artistic which have been handed down to us for generations. The battles against formalism and the confining walls of academies and schools are still being waged and with greater violence than ever before. Where it will all end no imagination is agile enough to picture.

The exhibition of the creations of Stanislaw Szukalski at the institute opened yesterday. Szukalski is a familiar name to Chicagoans, and whether one likes him or likes him not he succeeds in making himself talked about and discussed.

After the annual exhibition of students' work, which closes on June 15, the galleries will be filled with loan collections from various private individuals for the summer months.

G. W. Eggers, acting director of the institute, has written a letter to the instructors and students of the school, urging them to fill adequately the place open for the artists and the school in this time of war and stress. Art, being one of the swiftest educational agencies, should exist now, not for the sake of art, but for the sake of the republic, and should devote itself to the tasks of exhortation and instruction.

Chicago needs right now, he goes on to say, a hundred posters, brilliant and impressive, to remind us of our old pledge of our lives, our fortunes, and our sacred honor. Then, too, we are in need of another hundred to recall to young and old the fragrant smell of the soil and the value of garden plots. Still others are needed to disseminate valuable information on economics and the stern need of practicing them. In these various ways Mr. Eggers lays emphasis on the ways in which art students and artists alike can join hands in service to the nation.

In the photograph and lantern slide department of the Art institute library some 300 new slides of recent European and American sculpture are being added to the regular slide collection for the Scammon lecture course this coming year.

The exhibit of the Spaniard, Zuloaga, is still open at the institute and continues to attract large crowds to its galleries.

The annual William H. Tuttle prize of $100 has been awarded to Charles P. Gruppe for his "March Day, Chicago," which is now hanging in the twenty-ninth annual exhibition of pastels, water colors, and miniatures at the institute. It was while Mr. Gruppe was in Chicago during the display of his pictures at the Art institute this spring that he painted this picture.

The prizes announced by the jury for the best selected pieces of work out of the 164 paintings, sculptures, and cameo carving in the Art Students' exhibition at the institute are as follows:

WILLIAM O. GOODMAN PRIZES.

First—Eugene M. Fransen, group of paintings.

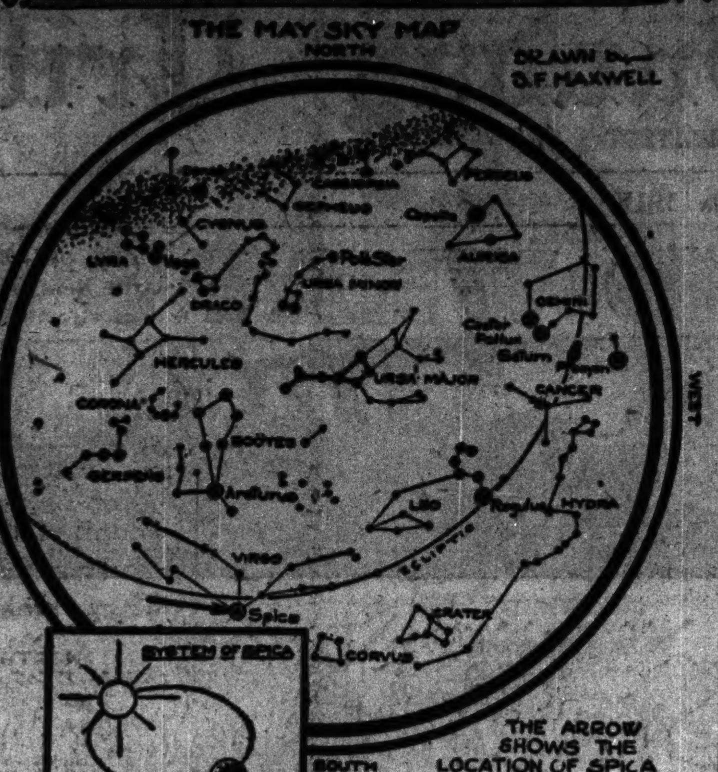
ASTRONOMY



THE ARROW SHOWS THE LOCATION OF SPICA

SPICA.

VIRGO is the typical spring constellation. In autumn the sun enters it in passing from the northern to the southern hemisphere. Six months later, in May, when the sun is in the opposite part of the sky, it is a brilliant configuration in the southern heavens all night long. The north pole of the milky way lies just north of Virgo. It is a curious fact that the spiral nebulæ cluster about the poles of the galaxy. The clear, starless regions near Spica are filled with these whirlpool wisps.

Spica is the brightest star in Virgo. It is almost exactly of the first magnitude and is remarkable because its distance is so great that the best modern instruments are baffled in all attempts to measure it. As the earth moves forward about the sun, the nearer stars apparently describe small circles in the opposite direction, exactly as objects appear to travel backward to a person on a moving train. The size of this parallax circle, as it is called, determines the distance of the star. All parallaxes are small, denoting that the stars are enormous distances away, and for some stars it is so small that it cannot be measured. A start as bright as Spica having no parallax, signifies that in reality it is a giant in space.

Although telescopes alone can reveal so little of Spica, except negatively, there is yet a second avenue of approach, the spectroscope. With it we study neither size nor mass, but composition and motion. The atmosphere of Spica is hotter and less dense than that of the sun. It is composed mainly of hydrogen, calcium, and magnesium, the basic elements of water, lime, and talcum.

In addition the spectroscope reveals conditions which, had they been slightly different, would have made Spica the most spectacular variable star in the sky. Revolving about this bright sun, some 13,000,000 miles away, is an immense dark star, the two completing one revolution every four and one-half days. Because of too great a tilt of their orbits, the acolyte passes above and below Spica, and never comes exactly between it and the earth. Were this inclination less, Spica would appear as a variable of the Algol type, but much brighter than Algol and incomparably superior as a celestial phenomenon.

Why They Laugh in Vaudeville.

RIALTO.

Follette and Wicks:

I feel like crying.

Why should you cry?

Because Jack Morton's wife is dead.

Well, what of it? She was no relation of yours.

I know she wasn't, but it seems as if everybody is getting a change except me.

I'll teach you to flirt with young girls.

You don't have to; I know how already.

I ought to get even by flirting with every man I meet—but I haven't got the face to do it.

No; your face would scare them away.

Is that so? Then perhaps you didn't see that man smile at me just now as we passed.

That's nothing. The first time I saw you I nearly laughed my head off.

So this is my reward for being a good wife. I cook and cook and cook—and what do I get for it? Nothing.

You're lucky; I always get indigestion.

Pslams of Life by J. P. McEvoy

AN IMAGIST WOULD CALL THIS

"PALE PURPLE QUESTION DESCENDING A STAIRCASE."

How puerile and futile, inept and inutile,
  How profitless, empty, and stale,
How bootless and vain and how drab and inane
  Is our life in this vaporous vale.
We rise and we work and we eat and we drink
  And we sleep 'till it's time for our call,
And then once again we rise, work, eat, and sleep—
  And what is the use of it all,
      At all?
  Oh, what is the use of it all?

Oh, cosmic monotony, pallid and gray,
  You fill me with exquisite pain,
For always the nighttime is followed by day,
And Sunday by Monday and April by May,
  And sunshine by tempest and rain.
And after the winter come spring and the summer,
  And after the summer comes fall,
And after the fall come winter and spring—
The same old routine, deadly thing!
  Oh, what is the use of it all,
      At all?
  Oh, what is the use of it all?

"No sub-solar novelty," Solomon said,
  And Sol was precocity plus.
The newest inventions (Oh, blushes dark red!)
Were swiped from some nations unutterably dead
  Who swiped them from others—cuss! cuss!
So therefore why bustle, get het up, and hustle?
  'Tis useless—for Solomon said it—
There ain't a thing new that a live one can do—
  The dead ones have got all the credit.

. . . .

And now leading Pegasus back to his stall,
  Oh, what is the use of it all,
      Dog-gone!
  Oh, what is the use of it all?

The Car of Greatest Beauty

EMPIRE

On the Boulevard, at the Club, in any company anywhere, the Empire's distinctive beauty stands out conspicuously.

But not alone upon its handsomeness does the Empire depend for its appeal. With its virile energy and eagerness for work; its docile flexibility in crowded streets; its ease of operation and its stamina, you find the Empire a most desirable car to own and drive. Investigate and satisfy yourself that the Empire is the car you want.

The Pride of Possession

Viewed as the reward of merit, eliminating false aspects, man's pride in his possessions is a virtue, not a fault.

In the better things of life this sentiment often decides the matter of happiness, for contentment dwells with the man who contemplates with satisfaction that which is his own,—his family, his home, his business, and his motor car.

Certain it is that the pleasure of motoring is less keen when the owner must make excuses for his car, and does not feel just pride as he mentions it by name.

The purchaser who gets his name near enough to the top of the waiting list to be able to secure an Oldsmobile, experiences to the full the pride inevitably accompanying the possession of an automobile which stands out prominently among America's 1917 fine cars as the best value of the year.

The accomplishments of the Oldsmobile factory for nineteen years are synonymous with the big events of automobile history. The mature and harmonious judgment of the competent is built into the Model 45 Oldsmobile.

Please compare Oldsmobile values only with those of the best motor cars, measuring power and performance with power and performance, finish with finish, trimming against trimming, equipment with equipment.

You are offered a wide selection of body types, all built upon the dependable Oldsmobile chassis: seven- and five-passenger touring cars, embodying comfort, luxury and refinement,—these are indeed ideal family cars; the Club Roadster, a popular sporting model,—fellowship for five; the Standard Roadster, rakish and roomy,—an extra seat for two makes hospitality a privilege.

Advantages of the eight-cylinder motor: Without excess weight; an abundance of power that is smooth, sustained and responsive. Sumptuous appointments; superb riding qualities; the realization of your greatest expectations under every load or road condition. These cars truly fulfill every promise inevitably pledged and always associated with the name "Oldsmobile."

We are eager to demonstrate any of the 1917 Oldsmobile offerings and to prove convincingly our trustworthiness

BATAVIA SECURITY TIRES
GUARANTEED FOR 4000 MILES

Exactly as they add to your pleasure in looking at your car, so do they add to your confidence in driving it. Their middle name is "Security."

First, they give you security against the skid; second, against inordinate expense; third, against slowness; and fourth, security against wasted power.

Batavias were the first indented tread tires in the country—and they still are.

"THIS KNOCKS 'EM OUT OF THEIR SEATS" IN VAUDEVILLE

RIALTO.

Dave Jameson: The other day an intoxicated gentleman wandered into a barber shop, and after being shaved sat down in the bootblack chair. "Do you get paid wages?" said the souse. "No, sir," answered the bootblack, "I work on a percentage—60 per cent is mine." "Shicksty p'cent yours?" said the souse, "shicksty p'cent?" "Yes, sir." "If you take in a hundred dollars you keep shicksty?" "Yes, sir." "If you take in a thousand dollars you keep shicks hundred?" "Yes, sir." "And hundred tousan' you keep shicksty thousand?" "Yes, sir." "My, my!" said the souse. "What are you going to do with so much money?"

Men are like cigars. Often you cannot tell by the wrapper what the filler is. Sometimes a good old stogie is more popular than an imported celebrity. Some men are all right in the show-case, on display, but are great disappointments when you get them home. No matter how fine a man is, eventually he meets his match. A two-fer often puts on as many airs as a 50-center. Some men never get to the front at all except during campaigns. Some are very fancy outside and are selected for presents. Others have a rough exterior, but spread cheer and comfort about them because of what is inside. But all men, as all cigars, good or bad, two-fers, stogies, rich or poor, come to ashes at last.

M'VICKER'S.

Billy Glaser: I have more hard luck than any other man living. Why, just to show you what hard luck I've got, the other morning I got up after being up most all the night and, looking through my pockets, I found that I had 10 cents. Now, I needed a shave and I needed a drink and I didn't know what to take, so being a little bit of a sport I said to myself: "Now, I'll toss up this 10 cent piece to see what I will have. If it comes heads I'll have a drink, and if it comes tails I'll get a shave; so I flipped the coin and to show what hard luck I have, I didn't catch it and it rolled in the sewer.

Now, talking about more hard luck, I was in Philadelphia one day and I wanted to get to New York and when I got to the station I met an old friend of mine whose name was Flanigan and he was going to New York also. So we bought two tickets for New York and got on the train and we rode about ten miles when the conductor came through the car for the tickets. So we showed him our tickets and he looked at them and said: "Why, young gentlemen, you are on the wrong train." So we got off the train at the next station and took the next train that came along. Got on board and rode about ten miles further when the conductor came through and asked for tickets. We showed him our tickets and he looked at them and said: "Gentlemen, you are on the wrong train." Now, this made my friend Flanigan mad to be put off two trains and he started to curse and swear something terrible; in fact, I never heard a man use such profane language in all my life. But we got off at the next station and took the next train and took a seat in the smoking car and my friend Flanigan was still cursing and swearing. Now, right in the seat ahead of us was a minister of the gospel and he heard Flanigan cursing and swearing and turned around and said: "Young man, do you know you are on the road to hell." Flanigan said: "Begorra, we are on the wrong train again."

MAJESTIC.

George M. Rosener [characterising an Englishman]: At the bar the other day I told a chap I knew the king very well. He said I was full of "bull." How do you suppose he knew I had beefsteak for dinner? Another time this same chap said to me: "You poor fish, you're nutty." Why, any one who studies natural history knows a fish couldn't be nutty.

I think your trolleys are beastly funny. The other day while riding in one I saw positively the homeliest woman I ever saw in my life. In fact, she was so homely I couldn't help staring at her. Finally her husband, or, rather, companion, exclaimed, "Rubber." "O," said I, "is she? Good God, I'm so relieved. I thought she was real."

Speaking of electricity, your modern inventions are marvels. In every room on one wall is a button. Press that button and a bawth tub springs out and one can take a bawth. At a dinner party my host was showing off his invention. While at dinner he pushed the button and out sprang the tub. That wasn't so bad—but I was in it. To cap the climax some one put on the graphophone "God Save the King," and I had to stand up!

[Characterizing a veteran from the civil war]: I want to get married. Guess I'd better marry an old lady. Old ladies are old, but, anyways, if they should take a notion to bite you they can't because they haven't any teeth. [Watching the parade of old companions.] There they go, 250 of them and only one in step. He has only one leg. If the music wasn't in time he'd be out of step, too.

RIALTO.

Cecil and Mack:

Why do you wear such loud socks?

To keep my feet from going asleep.

And what peculiar shaped trousers you have on.

(Aside) I can't tell her that they belong to my brother.

They are certainly a fit.

(Aside) Yes, if ever I try to stoop in them I'll have a fit. (Dropping handkerchief and then trying to attract his attention to it by coughing.) A-hem.

That's a bad cough you've got.

Do you think so?

Yes, you ought to do something for it. I'd like to take my handkerchief for it if you'll be kind enough to pick it up.

(Aside) I can see my finish. (Bends down several times part of the way, but not far enough to reach handkerchief.) (Angrily) You want to marry me, don't you?

You bet I do.

Well, then, if you don't stoop right down and pick up that handkerchief you'll lose my hand.

(Aside). And if I do stoop I'll loose my pants.

Well, are you going to pick it up?

Yes, my love. (Stoops and picks it up. As he does so tearing of muslin is heard.)

What was that?

What was what?

That peculiar sound.

I never pay attention to anything that goes on behind my back.

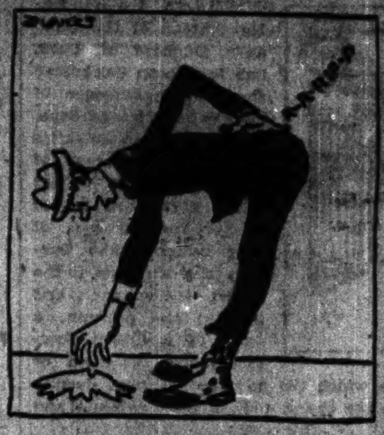
How foolishly you talk.

Isn't it windy today?

Why, there isn't a breath stirring.

(Holding hand over trouser seat)—Well, I feel a draft.

I promised to buy my little brother a pair of trousers.



Did you?

Yes, but I think I'll let 'em rip.

(Aside.) Mine have ripped already.

Why Not Be Sure?

Even if it cost you good money to have an expert test your battery regularly, you'd have it done, just to be sure that it wouldn't suddenly quit cold.

But for the asking at the Willard Service Station, you can get a Willard Service Card that entitles you to semi-monthly hydrometer tests by our battery experts. And the hydrometer test is the best insurance against battery trouble.

If you do run into trouble, however, we can do your repair job right, and—no matter what make or model of car—we have a rental battery for your use while the work is being done.

Come in at once for a Service Card—then use it regularly.

Have Woodwork and Furniture Harmonize

If you have handsome new furniture, don't spoil its effect by a cheap, out-of-date finish on your woodwork. It can have the same beautiful, dull rubbed finish your furniture has—and at very slight cost. Lucas Velvo-Tone Finish—a wonderful new wood finish—in one operation stains, varnishes and produces a rich, soft, hand rubbed effect like that of all high priced furniture. You can easily do the work yourself. Use it on old chairs and tables, too; on all furniture with the old fashioned and unattractive highly varnished or flat Mission finishes. Velvo-Tone comes in nine shades—Old Oak, Golden Oak, Fumed Oak, Weathered Oak, Mahogany, Cherry Fruit, Zarina Green, Black Flemish, Natural.

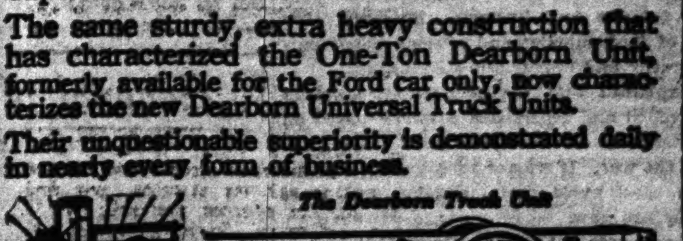
DEARBORN TRUCK UNITS

are now made to fit ALL cars—capacities One and Two-Ton.

The same sturdy, extra heavy construction that has characterized the One-Ton Dearborn Unit, formerly available for the Ford car only, now characterizes the new Dearborn Universal Truck Units.

Their unquestionable superiority is demonstrated daily in nearly every form of business.

The Dearborn Truck Unit



$350 and up

Dearborn Truck Units attach rigidly and securely, becoming an integral part of the chassis on which they are employed. We simply employ the power plant of the pleasure car while the Dearborn Truck Unit carries the load. They will carry a 50% overload safely.

80% of the load is carried on the Dearborn Rear Axles, Heavy Springs, Prudden Artillery type Rear Wheels with guaranteed hickory spokes and felloes.

Other Dearborn "quality specifications" are Bock Heavy Duty Roller Bearings, Baldwin Roller Chains, Baldwin Steel Sprockets, Jack-Shaft and Back-Rod Hangers HOT-riveted to frame—not merely bolted.

—Stephen Decatur.

EVOLUTION, NOT REVOLUTION.

The United States is making ready for a great foreign war. It is inevitable that the transformation of a loosely knit, peace loving republic into a solid engine of national power should be somewhat convulsive.

Millions of workmen cannot be changed into soldiers without somewhat upsetting labor conditions. Billions of money cannot be raised without somewhat upsetting the orderly process of finance. Constructive industry cannot be suddenly turned on a vast scale to destructive ends without violent readjustments.

THE TRIBUNE recognizes the necessity of making over the economic and social structure of the nation on an almost revolutionary basis to successfully meet the issue of war with Germany. It does not underestimate the difficulties of the work. But it fears that as at present outlined and already partly carried out at Washington, the transformation is too rapid, too radical, to be safe or wise.

There is danger that in preparing to meet a foreign war congress and the administration may create a domestic situation which will increase our difficulties and delay our winning of the war.

THE TRIBUNE would be happier if it had full confidence in the wisdom—it does not doubt the patriotism—of the southern statesmen who control congress. It watches with something like alarm the apparent ease, for instance, with which Representative Kitchin, the Democratic floor leader, announces that it will be necessary to increase the sum to be raised by the current year's taxation from $1,800,000,000, as originally estimated, to $2,245,000,000. It notes that this sum is within half a billion dollars of the total national debt of the United States at the close of the civil war. And Mr. Kitchin easily suggests that one-fourth of this additional sum may be raised by further increasing the surtax on incomes over $40,000.

When to income taxes running as high as 70 per cent are added taxes on the profits of corporations, on practically all their products, with increases in wages, in transportation charges, and in the cost of raw materials, it becomes a question whether many established businesses may not be taxed out of existence.

THE TRIBUNE does not question the sincerity of business men, who, in protesting to congress, declare themselves ready, if necessary, to give up all their profits, if only they may be allowed to pay their running expenses and keep their industries alive. It sees much homely wisdom in the plea of the protestant who told a congressional committee that "you may have all the milk. Only let us keep the cow."

This is a war of liberation. It is waged to vindicate the principles of democratic government; to make the world a safe place to live in for our posterity. It would seem that posterity, with much justice, might be called on to stand a larger part of its cost in treasure. The present generation must inevitably pay the bill in blood. But we are told that great bond issues are always followed by periods of dangerous inflation and speculation. And in the face of that statement we already have the greatest single bond issue in history.

Not alone in financial matters is the administration program revolutionary beyond the present realization of the people. The railroad systems of the nation are already in the hands of a single man. The president is asking for the power of a dictator over the production, distribution, transportation, and price of all foodstuffs and other basic commodities. He demands more absolute and uncontrolled power than was ever before concentrated in an individual. The fact that he does not propose to use this power except in case of necessity is not altogether reassuring. No man is wise enough to be intrusted with a blank check signed by the nation and covering all its resources.

We are told that a food dictatorship must be at once established to curb the tremendous increase in the cost of all the necessities of life. Presently we discover that the unheard of price of wheat is chiefly due to the huge purchases of grain for future delivery by our allies, Great Britain and France. Out of that situation has grown a genuine food hysteria, involving the hoarding of food supplies and offering opportunities for greedy and unpatriotic speculators.

It is explained that the presidential program of uncontrolled and centralized power is based on the experience of all the other great powers involved in the war. If we are wise, runs the argument, we shall avoid their mistakes and start where they are now.

The reasoning is not sound. Great Britain is a compact, homogeneous country, no larger in area than a couple of our average states. Germany would not fill the shoes of Texas alone. What works in either might not—probably would not—prove at all practical in the United States, with a widely scattered, heterogeneous population and a territory covering half a continent.

This war is likely to be long and full of at present inconceivable demands on the resources of the country and the patriotic devotion of its people. It is certain that the people will meet them with splendid spirit as they arise. But in a democracy like this it is necessary that they be educated, to some extent at least, to the need and the wisdom of each successive step. It is doubted if at present they begin to realize what has already been done, to say nothing of what is proposed and on the way to realization.

To wait for fifty years without making the first step towards preparation for war, and then in six months to overturn the whole economic and social structure of the nation, is a dangerous method of procedure.

THE WILL TO WIN.

The will to win has many avenues for its progress. None equals that which the man with a rifle takes. But the others are not insignificant. They are easier to take, but many a person has to take them who, granted his wish, would have taken the rifle road.

The will to win must permeate all classes of American citizens. It must bring into concerted action all the power and energy of the American republic.

This nation now becomes an ant heap with each ant at work for the community, indifferent to personal considerations, danger or fatigue. The work will take courage and money. We know that it can get both courage and money from the American people.

By thrift and self-sacrifice, bravery and determination, the war will be brought to the conclusion this nation asks that it reach. The bond issues offered the people by their government will be taken. The auxiliary work of the army which needs financing will be financed. The Red Cross will get its members and its funds. All this will be done judiciously and without hysteria, without empty gestures and with complete resolution to end the affair in the fashion in which it must be ended for the security of the United States.

All we want out of this war is victory and security, a moral uplift and physical resurrection. And we have the will to get victory.

NO SILLY SEASON.

There will be no silly season. There will be no sea serpents, no two-headed babies, no six-legged chickens. Fillers kept in type for silly season emergencies will gather dust from now on. War has its horrors, but they have banished one of the leading summertime horrors of peace. It is not only because war is so tremendously important as to make fillers ridiculous, it is because war is so tremendously newsy as to crowd fillers out of business.

Who will miss the dear departed? For ourselves, we could say, feelingly, "We don't care if you never come back!" We have not noticed that our brains went slack in summer, or that the brains around us did, or that an insult to ordinary intelligence was less resented then than when the snow lay four feet deep. People buy newspapers in summer for news. When they get trash instead of news they take it that they have been swindled. They do not read the trash. They can't. They read only its headlines, and they read these in bad temper.

But if fillers have vanished, are we not to be confronted with now and then an emptier? Emptiers occur frequently in the French and Italian press—sometimes as much as a column and a quarter of space left blank. Italian editors print "Censura" in the middle of the blank space. French editors print nothing there. The reader perfectly understands that the censor has interfered at the last moment. On occasion, this interference lends a new and quite startlingly brilliant humor to an article. Not long ago Gen. Zurlinden contributed a piece to Le Figaro, in which, after a lengthy discussion of war problems, he set out to tell exactly what should be done. "Here, at all hazards, are my conclusions," he wrote. Between that and his signature extended eight inches of blank paper. To transatlantic readers this constituted the most interesting part of his entire article.

If there exists among our contemporaries a journal that still feels the need of fillers, or thinks it does, we strongly recommend the adoption of emptiers. They are cheaper than fillers and much more readable. Besides, they come in all lengths—that is, if you make your own. Why not? Why wait for the censor?

It is a great relief, this banishment of the silly season, and we trust it has gone for good. Nobody loves it, largely because there never was any silly season except in theory. In practice there was and always will be a state of things both in summer and winter that justifies a noted humorist's tribute to his favorite magazine: "Assumes that the average man is a good deal above the average—which he is!"

KEEP THEM AT HOME.

Large numbers of students in state universities in the middle west, our own among others, are said to be leaving to take service on Canadian farms; some are reported to be entering dominion regiments for the war. These young men, representing the best youth of the country, have been educated at the minimum expense to them in agriculture and the other sciences. Many of them are expert engineers. Practically all have had military training up to a certain point.

Farmers in Canada are offering them good wages and steady employment. Meanwhile our own farms are suffering and will suffer from a dearth of skilled labor. So far as we have heard the government has made no labor census for the present year, and neither employers nor would-be employés have any means of getting in touch with each other.

The draft will carry off untold thousands of young men who otherwise might be available for farm labor. These emigrating students, many of whom are under the draft age, should stay at home. If they do not wish to join the officers' reserve corps, they can be used on United States farms. At any rate their abilities should be on call for home duties.

OUR BLIND LEADERSHIP.

[From the Minneapolis Journal.]

"I shall vote for it with my eyes shut," said Claude Kitchin, chairman of the ways and means committee, when explaining to the house the provisions of the new revenue bill, and particularly that unscientific and inequitable section which abolishes the free list and provides a horizontal increase of 10 per cent in duties on all imports.

This is the sort of statesmanship the seniority system of promotion gives us in congress. Mr. Kitchin, a parochial statesman from North Carolina, heads the committee merely because he is the senior Democrat thereon in length of service.

Mr. Kitchin has none of the qualities of leadership, none of the grasp of the underlying principles of taxation in relation to war finance, that would entitle him to superintend the formulation of the greatest revenue bill in the history of the country.

He expects to vote with his eyes shut. He expects the house to be equally blind. And doubtless he hopes that there will be enough statesmanship in the senate to correct the more disastrous of his committee's mistakes before the bill becomes law. Is the house to abandon to the senate once more its constitutional character as the originator of revenue legislation?

BONNELLES, the admirable chateau of the Dowager Duchess of Uzes, has long been celebrated for the magnificence of its extensive gardens. Situated on the outskirts of the state forest of Rambouillet, of which 40,000 acres are rented by her for purposes of stag hunting, the gardens are, throughout the spring, the summer, and late in the autumn, a mass of beautiful flowers, many of them of great rarity, in which the dowager duchess, despite her devotion to the chase, took a great interest and pleasure.

Ever since the beginning of the war the dowager duchess has converted the whole of the big chateau into a hospital for the very badly wounded—for what are known as the "grands blessés." And now she has done away with all her flowers and has devoted all the splendid gardens to the raising of vegetables with the object of alleviating the shortage of food.

It is only another of the patriotic sacrifices made by this great lady of France, whose son, the fourteenth Duke of Uzes—the premier duke of France—is serving at the front as a captain of the First regiment of engineers. Her son-in-law, Duke Honoré of Luynes, a captain of the Seventeenth regiment of chasseurs, and his eldest son, Charles, Duke of Chevreuse, are also serving their country in the trenches against the Germans. The dowager duchess may be regarded as the matriarch of the great world of France, and as a wonderful old woman of the masterful type, who to a great extent dominates the French aristocracy. She is exceedingly rich as heiress and descendant of old Widow Clicquot, and still owns the great champagne business founded by the latter.

The world famed widow was the daughter of a Baron Ponsardin, who had acquired a fortune as a cloth manufacturer. In the midst of the revolutionary turmoil at the close of the eighteenth century she married a banker of the name of Clicquot at Reims, her native city. He was an amateur wine grower. She was left a widow at 28, and being an extremely clever and energetic woman, developed the banking business of her husband and converted his vineyards from a rich man's hobby into a regular wine growing concern. This prospered to such an extent that it eventually swallowed up and absorbed the bank.

The widow had an only daughter, married to the Comte de Chévigné, author of the famous "Contes Rennois." Their only daughter became the wife of the Comte de Rochechouart-Mortemart, and the only child of this union is the Dowager Duchess of Uzes. She is very proud of her Mortemart father, whose ancestry, like that of the Levis-Mirepoix, is asserted to antedate the deluge.

The D'Uzes, although their dukedom ranks as the first in France, is by no means the oldest. In fact, the precedence of the Dukes of Uzes as premier nobles of France dates only from the reign of Louis XIII. That monarch, being tired of the eternal squabbles for precedence at the court of Versailles, which he was always being called upon to decide, and entertaining, moreover, some doubts as to the validity of some of the titles borne at his court, decreed that all persons possessing nobiliary dignities should register them at the office of the keeper of his great seal at Versailles after proving their right thereto by documentary evidence.

Louis XIII. also commanded that the dukes should enjoy their precedence in accordance with the order of their registration, and that the one who recorded his name first was to have the "pas" ever afterwards over the peers who arrived later.

Knowing this, the Dukes of Uzes and of Luynes set forth almost simultaneously to drive from Paris to the office of the keeper of the great seal in the palace of Versailles, and each strove to get there before the other. The Duke d'Uzes, finding that the Duke de Luynes was on the point of winning the race, deliberately caused his coachman to drive into the Luynes equipage, upsetting it and its occupants into the ditch, then, whipping up his own horses, he reached the registrar's office in time to be enrolled there as the first peer of the realm.

The feud which long existed between these two great ducal houses of France, arising from this contest, has been ended by means of several marriages, notably by the fact that the present Duke d'Uzes is married to the sister of the Duc de Luynes.

Capt. Robin Loder, who has recently succumbed at Alexandria to wounds received in the course of the invasion of Palestine, was the only son of Sir Edmund and Lady Loder, and leaves a little boy of 3 by his marriage to Miss Muriel Hoare to inherit the family baronetcy and Sir Edmund's very large fortune. The captain, who was at Eton and Trinity college, Cambridge, spent the greater part of the year in America and Canada in 1911, and made many friends while on this side of the Atlantic.

Sir Edmund has been one of the champion rifle shots in England, and Leonardslee, near Horsham, in Sussex, has one of the most beautiful and largest parks in the south of England, where he has acclimatized all sorts of foreign animals. There kangaroos, emus, Patagonian hares, Chinese deer, and American prairie dogs roam at large in a portion of the park devoted to their existence and which is appropriately known as Paradise. A feature of it is the large and thriving colony of North American beavers, whose clever engineering works are a source of never ending interest. Leonardslee figures in one of the adventures of the redoubtable "Pycroft" of Rudyard Kipling's later books.

The big fortune of Sir Edmund originated in the enterprise of "Honest Giles" Loder of Austin Friars, who at the age of 24 emigrated to Russia and embarked in the tallow trade, amassing millions. There are some who insist that the Loders are of Russian-Jewish origin. But this is denied by themselves, and they claim that their family originated in Dorsetshire, several hundred years ago. Honest Giles Loder's wealth was so greatly increased by his sons that his descendants, although tolerably numerous, are all well off.

Old Giles' eldest son, the late Sir Robert Loder, was created a baronet in 1887, on the occasion of Queen Victoria's golden jubilee, and a year later was succeeded by his son, the present head of the family. One of Sir Edmund's brothers—namely, Gerald Loder, member of parliament for Brighton—is married to Lady Louisa Beauclerk, a sister of the present Duke of St. Albans. Another brother was the late Maj. Eustace Loder of the Twelfth Lancers, the well known racing man, steward of the Jockey club, and winner of the Derby in 1906 with Spearmint.

OUR PACT AGAINST MALARIA.

THE Harrison act, to repress with a view to ultimately suppressing the drug traffic, grew out of an international agreement. The United States was one of the last nations to act in keeping with the agreement among nations. Having started they will not stop until the end sought has been accomplished.

The second Pan-American Scientific congress passed a resolution that all American republics should inaugurate a well considered plan of malaria eradication based upon the recognition of the principle that the disease is preventable to a much larger degree than has thus far been achieved. This congress was so nearly an official body that Hoffman in "A Plea and a Plan for the Eradication of Malaria Throughout the Western Hemisphere" says: "The United States and all Pan-American countries obligated themselves singly and collectively to join in an effort to eradicate malarial diseases from the western hemisphere."

The first government to act in accordance with this agreement is Peru. Dr. Hoffman quotes from a report of the bureau of domestic and foreign commerce of Peru statements to the effect that the campaign against malaria is divided into four sections—viz.: the treatment of patients, the protection of people living in places where malaria is recognized as endemic, the destruction of mosquitoes, and the drainage and special treatment of swampy lands.

The government will import annually such a quantity of quinine (made from Peruvian bark) as may be considered necessary, and this drug will be imported free of all customs, duties, and port charges. Individuals and institutions may purchase of the government at cost price for their own use and for the treatment of all persons under their charge.

All proprietors of estates, all railways, corporations, and other organizations employing labor are under obligations to furnish medical assistance to their employés either directly or through proportionate contributions to charitable dispensaries, and inspectors will be appointed to see that this part of the work receives due attention. Unemployed persons will receive free quinine from the government. For the protection of persons living in swampy districts houses must be equipped with mosquito-proof netting and rice or other crops requiring flooding must not be cultivated within a certain distance of habitations.

The government will at once begin the work of draining the lands where malaria is most prevalent and all private owners are given from one to four years to complete the sanitation of their lands. Where drainage is impracticable swamps are to be treated with crude petroleum to destroy insects and their larvae. A course of study on the prevention of malaria is to be introduced in all the public and private schools of Peru.

The national committee on malaria has been formed in the United States. Hoffman suggests a very elaborate plan for the consideration of that committee. Funds are to be supplied for malaria work on a coöperative plan between the national and local governments on much the same basis as is the provision for coöperative agricultural extension work. The amount to be expended is to be divided into thirds, the federal government paying one-third and the state and county or municipal authorities two-thirds.

Another precedent for such appropriations by the national government is the appropriation by congress of moneys for federal aid in the construction of rural postroads. The amount appropriated began as $5,000,000, and is to increase continuously without further appropriations, so that the sum of $75,000,000 will have been spent by 1921.

There seems warrant enough in both precedent and law for this appropriation by the federal government, and there can be no question as to both the legal and moral right of the state, county, and municipal governments to furnish their quota.

There only remains the question of advisability. To be decided as advisable it is necessary that there should be an affirmative answer to the following questions: Is malaria of sufficient consequence to make it worth while doing anything about it? Is there reason for thinking that malaria can be eradicated? Are the plans proposed reasonably certain to succeed? Is the cost within reason?

The malaria mortality in the United States is 2.7 per 100,000 inhabitants. There are parts of the United States where the mortality from typhoid is lower than that. The malaria mortality of some of the more malarial states is as follows: Mississippi, 60.7; Alabama, 34.5; South Carolina, 27.8; North Carolina, 24.4; Missouri, 14.5; Kentucky, 8.7; Virginia, 7.5. This does not include such highly malarial states as Arkansas, Louisiana, Florida, Georgia, and parts of Texas. In Sunflower county, Miss., the rate is 306; in Dunklin county, Mo., 296; Fulton county, Ky., 180.6; and Greensville county, Va., 130.

The malaria death rate in many sections is much higher than is the consumption death rate in the worst infected parts of the world. In no part of Austria is the consumption death rate comparable with the figures above cited. The lowest malaria death rate is found in children 5 to 20 years of age. The highest rates are in men and women in the prime of life. The six heavy malaria rates are June, July, August, September, October, and November—the months when there is the heaviest demand on agricultural labor.

But the death rate from malaria is not the best index of its importance. Malaria is essentially a disabling, rather than a fatal disease. When the time comes that malaria no longer produces any deaths it will still rank as a source of the greatest physical disability, as one of the greatest sources of economic loss. It has been stated, and I think without exaggeration, that if malaria were exterminated from the south the per acre value of its agricultural lands would increase 25 per cent and the effectiveness of its labor even more. The first question then is to be answered in the affirmative.

Malaria has been exterminated from many parts of the world in which it was prevalent in earlier, but well known historic times. Malaria has been exterminated from many parts of the United States. Northern Illinois sixty years ago was as malarial as the Yazoo delta is today. The malaria rate of Havana in fourteen years was reduced 96 per cent, of Manila 79 per cent, of Rome 46 per cent, of Bahia, Brazil, 21 per cent. The rate in Italy fell from 41 per 100,000 in 1894 to 10 per 100,000 in 1908. Some drops in American cities in fourteen years were as follows: Key West, 98.8 per cent; Richmond, Va., 91.1; Washington, 88; Wilmington, N. C., 81.9; Baltimore, 80.3; Jacksonville, Fla., 80.1; San Antonio, 77.1; New Orleans, 74.7; Nashville, 60.7; Charleston, 50.5; Memphis, 48.8; Atlanta, 46.6; Savannah, 40.8; Norfolk, Va., 21.5, and Louisville, Ky., 19.6. The fall in the United States army has been from 380 per 100,000 in 1901 to 25 in 1915.

The evidence is conclusive that there is a strong tendency downward, and moderate effort will bring about a total eradication of the disease in the cities and a great repression in the rural districts. A few years of effort will suffice to entirely clear the rural districts as well.

Are the plans proposed reasonably certain to succeed? Many methods for the control of malaria have been tried. Practically every plan succeeds. In Bolivar county, Miss., they are treating all the malaria carriers until they are cured. That method is succeeding. In Arkansas they are screening all the houses. That method is also succeeding. Elsewhere they are making use of minor drainage—such drainage as is possible without heavy expenditure of money. That method is also succeeding. In Panama they combined many methods, but the head and front of their method was mosquito suppression through drainage and oiling. That method is succeeding.

The fact is that the control of malaria is so easy that almost any method that is given any sort of a trial succeeds. It cannot be said that this commission has any plans, but on it are men who have been active in the carrying out of each of the plans. It is reasonable to expect that when they evolve a plan it will be one that will succeed.

The answer to the last question is likewise in the affirmative. The international health commission has been experimenting chiefly with the cheaper methods. For instance, the carriers can be cured at a per capita expense of 45 cents. In a community that is only moderately infected this might not mean a heavier taxation than 10 cents per capita. The present chill tonic bill is higher than that.

The expense of screens where cotton mosquito netting is used for cheaper homes is little. Perhaps 50 cents a head would cover that expense. Minor drainage is inexpensive. Major drainage, of course, runs into money, but then as an offset it immediately increases the sale price as well as the productivity of the land. The stocking of ponds with fish and ducks not only costs but little, but adds materially to the supply of meat.

Since the answer to these questions is in the affirmative the question arises, why have our people been so slow to begin? One answer is that they were afraid on account of the expense. When they have studied the figures from Panama they have found that the cost per acre of ground was more than the value and earning power of the land would stand. Ten cent cotton would not pay for such expenditures as have been made in Panama. Experiments made within the last two years indicate that heavy expenditures are not necessary, though they may be advisable. The indications are that malaria can be eradicated with a small expenditure of money. The question as to whether a slough shall be ditched or a piece of low ground reclaimed can be decided on the basis of the value of the land.

One of these experiments indicates that one thing that is needed is low priced or free quinine. A great deal of malaria is due to the rather general use of chill tonics. There is no use in trying to prevent the use of these by law. If quinine is sold at cost or given away according to the necessities of the case the use of chill tonics will cease.

The experiments indicate that the greatest need is to get everybody informed about malaria and interested in it. The greatest need is for every malarial person to persist in the use of quinine until he is completely cured—not freed from symptoms. This means education. Just as important as the appropriation of money is popular education and propaganda work in general.

CHRONIC PHTHISIS.

W. E. H. writes: "About ten years ago I was taken with pleurisy, which afterward developed into a cough, and I began spitting from my right lung. Doctors said consumption and advised going to Arizona. I went and stayed two years; got no relief. Have been back some five years. My coughing and expectorations continue. They are a thick slime and possibly half a pint in twenty-four hours. Never any blood.

"I think my right lung is almost gone. Am short of breath at times. My appetite is good generally, sleep well, general health otherwise good. Have but little strength. My weight is about thirty-five pounds below normal.

"Now, what are my chances? Left lung apparently all right. Am — years old. Will that stump of lung left heal, or is it a case fo the undertaker? Your opinion will be appreciated."

REPLY.

Your chance of recovery is slight. Your chance of living some time is good. Your disease has probably settled down into a chronic phthisis, which disease in a favorable climate may continue for years. Be very careful of your sputum. You are highly infective.

ITCHING BETWEEN TOES.

R. G. writes: "I am a girl 16 years of age. For the last year or two I have been troubled with a burning and itching feeling in my feet. Between my small toe and the one beside it there is no skin. I have used various powders without any apparent results. What is the cause of this, and what can be done to relieve this pain?"

REPLY.

Wear loose shoes and light stockings. Wash your feet each night. If the space between your toes is very raw clean it with grease until the rawness has subsided. After that use water and soap. After washing thoroughly dust with any dusting powder. This form of eczema generally yields to a daily foot bath.

FIREMEN'S EYESIGHT.

Chicago, May 15.—[To the Friend of the People.]—Are firemen in the city fire department that wear glasses and have imperfect eyesight, and always have had, competent to drive horses? How do they get into the service? M. L.

When a man makes application for entrance into the fire department of the city of Chicago and is examined physically his sight must be perfect before he is accepted for the mental examination. A fireman's eyesight does not improve with age; on the contrary smoke sometimes creates havoc in that respect, some of our men having gone blind altogether in the performance of their duty. I am aware of the fact that we have a number of drivers in the service who wear glasses, but that is no detriment to their skill as drivers. Officers commanding companies in the department are very quick to discover whether or not a man is competent to perform the duties of his position, regardless of what it is and just as soon as a commanding officer feels that a man is incompetent there is no delay in reporting same to headquarters. The civil service commission has charge of and conducts all examinations.

THE FARMER AND PRICES.

Gilman, Ill., May 16.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Says THE TRIBUNE editorial: "Yet the farmer, with wheat at $2.70, corn at $1.50, and all his production on the highest price levels, is easily the greatest beneficiary of war conditions in the country." This is not so to such an extent that you will not find a corn belt farmer who would not prefer to return to conditions as they existed before the war, when high prices for corn ran from 70 to 80 cents and for oats from 50 to 60 cents.

It's what a bushel of grain will buy that tells the tale. The farmer, with an increase in grain of from less than 50 to 100 per cent goes into the market to supply his needs and is obliged to pay 400 per cent increase for flour, 400 for navy beans, from 400 to 600 for potatoes, and so on down the line, the increase in practically everything he wants being higher than the increase in grain. Notwithstanding high prices for grain, the farmer received no more for the 1916 crop than for that of 1915, this being due to the partial failure of the 1916 crop of corn and illustrating one of the uncertainties of farming.

READING MATTER FOR GUARDS.

Cedar Rapids, Ia., May 16.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—All over the country are members of the national guard doing their bit in guarding the railroad bridges and on behalf of these I would ask that you insert a small notice in the W. G. N. asking the traveling public when they are through reading the daily paper or magazines to hand them to the brakeman, who will see that they are passed along to the boys on the bridges. I know that they will all appreciate your kindness. I have been doing this for some time now and will continue as long as they are out there and I buy THE TRIBUNE every day.

SAVE THE CANS.

Chicago, May 17.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Why all this fuss about a shortage in cans for canning [illegible] tables? Did it ever occur to you that practically all of the cans used for canning can be used more [illegible] These cans can be gathered [illegible] kitchens, and, at a very [illegible] can be made to be used for [illegible] canning.

Because a tin can has been [illegible] is no evidence that it has no [illegible] can is just as good after it has been used once or twice as it is when it is new. By removing the top [illegible] been cut by the can opener, [illegible] can be done very quickly and [illegible] and the cans sterilized, they can be used for this year's canning purposes.

It is the unnecessary waste of [illegible] and everything else in this country which is making food prices so high. [illegible] they don't want to use the cans [illegible] time for canning purposes, [illegible] melted and made into [illegible] weights, and the profit in this [illegible] is enormous. [illegible]

PARASITES.

Chicago, May 17.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—On the golf courses in and [illegible] Chicago and in and about all [illegible] there are hundreds of young [illegible] ployed as caddies. We may [illegible] this caddie service as a luxury [illegible] simple. Our stalwart golfers [illegible] take it upon themselves to [illegible] own clubs, retrieve their own balls [illegible] in fact, perform all of the [illegible] the caddy.

Every club, hotel, and [illegible] the country should dispense with the [illegible] of washroom parasites, bootblacks [illegible] manicure ladies. We can all brush [illegible] own clothes, black our own shoes [illegible] clean our own nails, and we would [illegible] fit ourselves materially by [illegible] these functions ourselves. [illegible] time thousands of individuals [illegible] released for the productive [illegible] which they are so badly needed. J. E. [illegible]

AS SEEN IN ENGLAND

By Austin Harrison in "The English Review"

WHEN the German general staff set out upon its bid for European dominion in 1914, without a doubt it left out of account the new world and, incidentally, the vital significance of sea power. The attack upon France was to be of a hurricane swiftness, leading to a smashing decision long before England could raise land forces important enough to render her ally effective assistance—certainly long before the trade arteries kept free by the British navy could be utilized with serious military consequences to the ends and achievements of German arms.

But the German staff had also misjudged the readiness and artillery efficiency of Russia, and so once more the eternal laws of war—one of which is that a campaign wrongly started cannot be retrieved—operated with catastrophic result to the German plan at the historic battle of the Marne, the negative issue of which has conditioned the positional stagnation on the western front from that date till the German retreat in March of this year.

That retreat, in itself proclaiming the German abdication of victory on the west, is the result of sea power, of our use of what the Americans style the differential neutrality of the United States.

The entry of America into the war, carrying with her the support of South America, leaves Germany at war literally with the world. History knows no analogy to such a situation. In defying civilization Germany has raised civilization against her. As a tragedy of human folly, Germany's position is an epic beyond the compass even of a Napoleon. In challenging world power she has provoked against her the power of the world.

In the first month of the war I wrote (September, 1914): "All that Germany has achieved in world power she will lose. The war will knit together not only the English peoples but the entire English speaking world. It is impossible for America not to feel the repercussion of the great European disaster; it is inconceivable that she should not respond to it. She will. As blood is thicker than water, so this Teutonic invasion, which is nothing less than an onslaught on civilization, will kindle in the entire English speaking world that union of spirit and sentiment which hitherto has been lacking—the brotherhood of a common civilization, built up on the pillars and altar of freedom.

"Instead of the consolidation of the Germanic peoples—the object of the kaiser's war—it is the English speaking peoples who will perforce be welded together, united in a common cause. One of the great principles which this war will bring before humanity will be a united standard of civilization, the standard as set by England in support of France. In this trust England and America will be as one."

At the time—the words were actually written during the battle of Mons—the idea of so long and terrible a war spreading to America, forcing her in her own despite to come in to save old Europe, was considered grotesque, so little did we understand the task which faced us; and if I quote them now it is because, though there is little today to add to them, there is much need of their consideration.

At this hour we will do well to measure the motives of America's action, which has a moral significance that we, in the heat and passion of war, have somewhat lost sight of, which now at all costs we must regain and reaffirm. For America's attestation is our attestation. It is her war as it is our war—the war of liberation from the shackles and effete survivals of feudal, theocratic civilization—and in entering it she seeks to end it. It behooves us very earnestly to understand this impersonal gage of the new world, thrown down in the cause of a common democracy now and for the future, even as we in the finest gesture of our age took up the sword as guerdon.

Probably no nation ever declared war so judicially or more judiciously, in which respect Mr. Wilson's policy has established a precedent which may well form a historical landmark in the gentle art of making war. Mr. Wilson, who staggered old Europe with his pronouncement that America was "too proud to fight," who yesterday was the butt of the globe, today takes his place as the spiritual head of the new scientific civilization, the very Christ of European liberties. We who ridiculed him now acclaim him as redeemer. "That clinches it," says the man in the street. Hey, presto! Here we all are grovelling at the president's feet, just as a few weeks ago we lampooned him for a most pedantic and ridiculous old gentleman.

We think in extremes, that is all. But Americans do not think in extremes; quite the contrary, in fact; and we shall make another gross mistake if we cradle this fresh comic press illusion that now Wilson has "bucked" we have little more to do than to get out the flags.

America's declaration of war is in reality an extraordinarily interesting event. For one thing, it denotes a complete break in the American attitude which hitherto has regarded Europe as outside the sphere of new world interest, even as the Monroe doctrine proclaimed the Americas to be outside the pale of Europe. Her action thus links up the old and the new worlds in a way never before conceived of, attesting a singleness of civilization or moral purpose, heralding a new era of human progress.

Americans, who are almost pedantically juridical in their relations with mankind, have spoken of their differential neutrality, which means, of course, that they have been supplying the allies with war materials to such an extent that even the adjective "benevolent" cannot legally be used to cover the case. A glance at American exports will show the immense military service rendered to us, in which connection "The Economist" published the following statistics March 17:

Explosives—	1914.	1916.
Cartridges	$ 6,567,122	$ 55,163,904
Dynamite	1,213,600	4,172,175
Gunpowder	289,398	263,423,149
All other........	1,966,973	392,875,078
Total........	$10,037,887	$715,575,306
Firearms	5,146,867	42,125,169

The export of explosives has thus been multiplied seventy-one times since 1914. Indeed, it is no exaggeration to say that without the American munition supplies there would have been no battle of the Somme, and that we could not possibly have produced the explosives and material which have enabled us to obtain the necessary superiority over the Germans.

We may state it openly, now that America has declared war, that without this help the cause of Europe would have been lost; indeed, recognition of this truth here is essential to the common partnership before us, for an entirely erroneous view has been held here concerning America's contribution, stupidly fostered by an unintelligent censorship, thereby giving rise to an utterly false estimate of America and to no small amount of ignorant ill feeling.

America's object is to emerge from the war as a member of a securer international order founded on a league for peace, and this is the meaning of America's hostility to German ambitions. She has gone to war to crush out the kaiser's philosophy of violence and to remove it from the tenets of civilization, to help raise old and shackled Europe out of her medieval gyves and superstitions, to establish a higher code of national and international comity.

In this policy she has been guided by events, and had Europe been strong enough to resist the Germanic invasion alone doubtless America would have stood aloof, but without America Europe would in all probability have succumbed. America has been our arsenal, our nursery, our emporium. That is the meaning of German submarine ruthlessness; that is the reason of American intervention.

America has not come in on a "knock out" policy—that is what we have to know. She has not joined cause with us to aid and abet a transvaluation of imperialistic power, to eviscerate Germany for some other nation's benefit. Her business will be to end this war and seek to put an end to the atmosphere of war, however problematical this may today appear or however distant in its realization.

Such is her reason of statesmanship as a fighting ally. She identifies herself with our civilization. She will fight for Europe to regenerate Europe, to free and democratize her. And she will do this essentially as an English thinking responsibility in the spirit and in memory of Lafayette, who gave to her the freedom of the new world.

The entry of America following on the Russian revolution gives the war a spiritualism which distinguishes it from all other wars. It has become a crusade. Everywhere doors are opening; all over the world men are conscious of an intellectual growth which is the one great hopeful sign in this gigantic madness. We see this in all directions. In Russia the suppression of drink led almost fatalistically to the benign or sober revolution which swept away forever the forces and principles of theocratic Russia and the machinery that survived of the "holy alliance."

The madness of Europe armed to the teeth has culminated in its inevitable delirium. Europe is at war to close the pages of history as written by the Carlyles and hero worshipers of kings and battlefields in order that a new Europe may arise, more scientific, more just, more immanently democratic, more social in the service of man.

The spirit of Attila must be crushed—such is the higher purpose of the war. Till then there can be no relaxation of resolve or effort. The fell work of war must continue, must endure at all costs for the sake of the humanity that will follow us, that it may progress and unfold upward. Perhaps the strangest thing in all this is its inevitableness, the certainty of such a conflagration as the result of the old European system of armaments and secret diplomacy or international game played in the vested interests of kings and ambitious statesmen, and latterly of outrageous commercialism.

It is this vicious system of antiquated Europe, with its false symbols and negational tyrannies, that America has taken up arms to help destroy. Her trumpet is the blare of democracy. It would have been difficult for her to align herself with the western powers under a czarist Russia, but now that Russia has emancipated herself, the truth of America is free to strike for an integral freedom.

What we can descry already is the coming of democracy—the significance, that is, of man as opposed to the old insignificance of privilege with its unlimited power of evil. The war will give us that, or it will give us nothing at all. The alternative is unthinkable. We have to win this war, or there will be no salvation. By winning I mean correction. We have to compel the Germans to renounce their policy of conquest, their doctrine of violence, their medieval stratocracy; and when we have accomplished that task our Anglo-Saxon part will have been done.

But we must be careful not ourselves to get engulfed in the maelstrom. We have grave things to settle here, foremost among which is Ireland. If we are wise we will treat Ireland in the spirit of the hour, or we must expect to be treated by her with that spirit. In these conclusive, liberating times the past is no precedent.

We also have to think afresh, to start out anew, to give that we may receive. Like love. Like war, for which men give of their highest. The Irish question is in reality but an historical legacy; it is no longer a modern, a scientific problem, and but for the vanity and littleness of politicians it would long ago have settled itself, fusing in the evolution of things. Unfortunately, Ulster became a conservative, aristocratic cry associated with the battle of the lords, yet it is not an English conservative interest; it is merely a political interest vested with a spurious and equally antiquated religious temporalism which the war has proved to be fictitious.

It is our English association with Ulster which has again divided Ireland—minority politics. Today this wretched pseudo-aristocratic mock religious question is an affront both to our intelligence and to our cause. It has no reality in our imperial composition. If the prime minister cannot muster courage to solve it, assuredly it will solve and dissolve him, for its solution is written on the wall.

The war may be prolonged into another year, but that the German plot will now be broken may be regarded as humanly certain. Germany cannot hope to defy the world. By our positive victory at Arras we have given proof of our power to force the struggle to its bitter end, if need be, so that it is just possible the Germans may accept the inevitable betimes and admit their failure.

Personally, I am doubtful so long as the German people believe in their leaders, which is the real point, and not in the least their allegiance to the monarchy, for there are many kings in Germany, and nothing is more foreign to the German mind than the sense or sanction of democracy. But taking the long view today, we can see Canossa. We can see an ending of the war, which will not leave things as they were; which will clear out the dungeons and dunghills of old Europe and lead us constructively saner to the democratic liberties of the new world.

The Wood Thrush.

THE real voice of spring, of spring when the shad bush speckles the oak woods and stands in fairy finery against the filmy green of new buds just showing green, is the voice of the wood thrush.

Early spring, before the hepatica have raised themselves above the brown, dead leaves, the voice is that of the meadow lark; but now, when the bluebird sings in ecstasy and when the catbird is intoxicated with the sound of his own outpourings, the real melody of violet time and lilac time comes from the throat of the wood thrush, greeting the morning or saying good-night to the day.

In human experience there is much joy and much sadness and in the notes of the wood thrush there is all of human experience, a lyric expression of what sentiment and perceptive human beings feel as they awake fresh to begin the day or as they sit at west windows to watch the curtains of the night being drawn upon the colored death of the day.

As the day begins and as it dies the wood thrush sings the song of human experience and people know that in its exquisite sadness is the song of themselves.

'Super-Tramp' a Diary of Author's Romantic Life

Last week's best sellers in a leading Chicago bookstore were:

WAR.

"Italy, France, and Britain at War" (Macmillan), by H. G. Wells.

FICTION.

"Mr. Britling Sees It Through" (Macmillan), by H. G. Wells.

"The Dark Star" (Appleton), by Robert W. Chambers.

"The Light in the Clearing" (Bobbs-Merrill), by Irving Bacheller.

"The Hundredth Chance" (Putnam), by Ethel M. Dell.

"The Road to Understanding" (Houghton-Mifflin), by Eleanor H. Porter.

"The Gun Brand" (Putnam), by James B. Hendryx.

POETRY.

"Poems" (Scribner), by Alan Seeger.

William H. Davies

FOR unrivaled simplicity of literary style and for casualness of life without equal I commend to you William H. Davies' "The Autobiography of a Super-Tramp" (Knopf). Despite its indecently high price, despite the fact that bread is 15 cents a loaf, and most of all despite the fact that it's an autobiography, acquire the book to have and to hold. You'll find in it more real life, more of the actual casualness of meetings and partings, and more of the fundamental happy-go-luckiness that is in every one's heart than in any volume you have ever seen.

Life never offers explanations. But every book you read does. Have you ever noticed that? One of the most tragic moments in any one's life is when he finds that he has been expecting life to be the way it is in books, even in the best and most philosophic books. Mr. Davies doesn't philosophize; he puts down simply what happened, not even what he thought about it, and every page is literally vibrant with reality.

He is an English poet, "The Tramp Poet" he is called in England, and there is the same sincerity about his verse that fills this remarkable volume. His "Poems," extracts from five or six volumes which have been published in England, is available, here, published also by Alfred Knopf.

The romance of his life is a thrilling one. He decided to come to America, and when he reached New York he fell in with a tramp who persuaded him that there are easier ways of living than by working for one's daily bread and jam. For years, five or six, I imagine, he tramped from the Atlantic to the Pacific or journeyed back and forth across the Atlantic on a cattle boat, an out and out hobo, glorying in his freedom. Then he went back to England, intending to settle down and write—he had always wanted to write. He couldn't stand it and started out for the Klondike. One night going through Canada he slipped from a car that he was flipping and his foot was cut off. His leg had to be amputated. He tells the story of that experience, which any other man would have proclaimed to be the turning point in his life, as though it were the record of a handout dexterously acquired.

Back in England, he decided to go to London and write. He lived in the cheapest of lodging houses on a legacy of 10 shillings a week, minus 2 shillings a week which he gave to a "very poor friend," writing for a year and never selling a thing. He tried in every way possible to get his poems published, and finally found that by tramping England for almost a year he could save enough money to have a cheap edition printed at a local shop. With a stump to take the place of the wooden leg which he had got in Canada, he "walked the country," ostensibly selling shoelaces, but in reality begging just enough to keep himself fed and housed.

He proudly had his poems printed and sent them around to the literary men of London. He was hailed as a real poet of the Herrick - Wordsworth - William Blake school. He found himself, especially through George Bernard Shaw's patronage, a famous person indeed. He was last year put upon the civil pension list by the English government for his service to letters, and he now draws $500 a year pension. He lives simply, but he is gorgeously happy in having realized his ideal. Romance? Unrivaled!

One of the festival days of the year when I was a little girl was May day. I lived in a small town and in a pasture just back of our house was a treasure chest of spring flowers. One of the keenest memories of my little girlhood is the day that I was laughed at for picking up a little spray of those evanescent star drops of pink. We called them spring beauties which some one had thrown down. It was a drooped, sad little flower and I stroked it and talked to it. The memory of that laugh has kept me from talking aloud to flowers, but somehow they've always seemed like "folks" to me. The thought of May baskets filled with wild flowers hanging on door knobs—it's a humorous picture for our town, I admit. But we do miss a lot by not being friends with the wild flowers. Why not get really acquainted with the flowers? The public library has a list of books about them and an exhibit of colored prints and actual blossoms. You'll find the list helpful and the exhibit surprisingly instructive.

Word comes from England that W. H. Hudson is writing his autobiography and that it is not like any other autobiography under the literary sun. It is promised by Alfred A. Knopf for the fall. In the meantime "Green Mansions" (Knopf) has gone into a seventh edition. "Green Mansions" is one of the necessary exceptions to prove the rule about best sellers.

"The Preacher of Cedar Mountain" (Doubleday-Page) is Ernest Thompson-Seton's first novel. After all these years of factual nature writing Mr. Thompson-Seton has fallen into the pleasant ways of fictional nature writing and the fall hasn't jarred any one's nerves.

It was Rupert Brooke's voice which told the news of James Elroy Flecker's death to J. C. Squire, who wrote the introduction to "The Collected Poems of James Elroy Flecker" [Doubleday-Page]. Rupert Brooke and Flecker had been friends at Cambridge, and when in January, 1915, his friend succumbed to tuberculosis in Switzerland, Rupert Brooke wrote for the London Times: "Mr. Flecker was of unusual appearance and unusual gifts of mind. Normal scholarship did not interest him, but he had an extraordinary capacity for language, European and oriental. His conversation was variegated, amusing, and enriched with booty from the byways of knowledge. He was always and restlessly drawn by his mind along such paths. He sought beauty everywhere, but preferred for the most of his life to find her decoratively clad. He loved England, Greece, and the east always, and with more passion than affection. He had great vitality, screened by his uncommon sensitiveness and scholarship qualified by a picturesque romanticism."

Rossiter Johnson, whose "The Fight for the Republic" (Putnam's) has been one of the most popular books of nonfiction of the season, is an unquestioned authority on history. He has written two histories, one of the war of the secession and a short history of the Spanish-American war, and he was chosen to write the chapter on Gettysburg for the additions to Creasy's "Fifteen Decisive Battles of the World."

Rudyard Kipling, who has for twenty-six years been a faithful member of the Incorporated Society of British Authors, is now a member no more. He has resigned because he finds himself "unable to subscribe to an undertaking which invests in a committee the right to say what I shall or shall not do with my work," and that undertaking is that the members of the society shall not contribute to any charity book that has not been previously approved by their own committee of management and by the Publishers' association. There has been much charity book publishing in England these years of the war, and some regulation of the demands upon authors has been finally decided upon as necessary by the society. Hall Caine and Maurice Hewlett have supported Rudyard Kipling in his contention, but they have not resigned from the society. Agin him are G. B. S., Barrie, Arnold Bennett, Wells, and 150 others of high repute. With his letter of resignation he inclosed a check for £100 for the pension fund. "A Diversity of Creatures" [Doubleday-Page], which has just been published, is the first regular book from Kipling's pen since "Rewards and Fairies," which came out nearly seven years ago. "A Diversity of Creatures" is a collection of stories and poems.

"The President's War Message" has been published both by Edward J. Clode and by Doubleday, Page & Co. for the benefit of the American Red Cross. All of the publishers' profits in both cases are to go for war work. The Clode edition in cloth sells for 25 cents and the Doubleday-Page editions sell for 50 cents and $1 in cloth and limp leather.

"Cinderella Jane" (Doubleday-Page) is Marjorie Benton Cooke's latest best seller. It's the story of an all around handy girl in Greenwich village who handily knew Oscar Wilde well enough to play a Salome in a great pageant and save the day for an artist who married her because she was so handy to have around. It is the conventional village story. There are readers in Red Oak, Ia., and Sauk Center, Minn., who believe in the divine right of the printed word, so I refrain from saying that Cinderella Jane and her development into a personality and a famous hostess in a ravishing studio aren't always the certain results of going to New York with a longing to write in your heart and acquiring a key to a garret in the village.

"Asphalt" (Knopf) is Orrick Johns' first book of published verse, I believe. He is a St. Louis man, the one who won the Lyric Year prize in 1912, you remember, for which over a thousand poets competed. The poem which won that prize, "Second Avenue," is included in "Asphalt," although most of the verse in the volume has been written within the last year. "Asphalt," the first section of the book, is the poetry of the down and outer, the scurrilous language, the ribald phrase, the picturesque oath. I've never met its equal.

"Scraps of Paper" (Doran) is a collection of the official proclamations of the German army which were posted up in Belgium and France as those countries were occupied by the invaders. They are actual photographs of the notices printed in French on one page and translated on the opposite. They were collected by an Englishman who wanted "the folks at home" to understand just what it meant to be under German military rule. The pamphlet was imported from Hodder & Stoughton, the English publishers, as an answer to those who say, "O, it wouldn't be so terrible if the Germans did invade America and rule us. They're efficient, and it wouldn't do America any harm to have a little lesson in that virtue."

The London Underground railways, which also controls the motor omnibus lines, recently offered a prize for the best couplet illustrating the need for safety first. A competing couplet which has become as famous as the popular "Little Willie" nonsense jingle of a decade ago, which appeared under the caption of "Ruthless Rhymes for Heartless Households" (I'm almost sure), is this pathetic plea of painstaking papas:

"What is that in the road, mamma, that looks like strawberry jam?"

"Why that, my child, is your careless pa, run over by a tram."

PRIESTS IN WAR

By Sterling Heilig

PARIS, April 2.—A well known managing editor writes me: "Remember that from time to time articles which reflect the soul of France make a strong appeal to American readers." So here goes.

Many have marveled at the heroic courage of French soldiers. There may be several explanations, but a principal one is certainly as follows. The French government put a gun in the hands of every young priest, brother and church student. Between 20,000 and 30,000 are at the war. They are not chaplains. They are simple soldiers, by universal military service law, without choice, in the name of equality. They look like soldiers, they are soldiers.

A form crawls among the wounded on the battlefield at dusk and murmurs: "I am a priest. Receive absolution. Be at peace."

And there you are.

Men feel differently about these matters in bloody war. A young missionary called back to the army from Pamiers put it in a single word in a letter to my next door neighbors:

"You heard that I had been appointed officer-adjoint to the colonel? As such inevitably I would have no freedom. Well, the officers themselves went to the colonel. 'The abbé belongs to us,' they said. 'We want him to be with us under fire, to risk our lives gayly in all security, because we know that a priest is beside us, ready at first call.'"

The military service law for priests, of course, was not passed (in 1906) with any such object, but purely in the name of equality of all citizens; and Deputy Grossau, in parliament, has just disclosed in this sense that of 25,000 priests who have been "fighting" 2,500 have been killed, while of 600 Jesuits who returned to France from practical exile to take their places in the army 120 have fallen, and so on, for Christian brothers and other suppressed communities. But this other secondary result, which is so striking, comes, you might say, unexpected.

You take a man of God and put a gun into his hand. If he refuses he is a deserter and is treated as such. Their bishops told them to obey the law of equality. In return their companions, the poilus, began to obey another law—the law of human nature.

In his section, from the start, the priest-soldier came to be the soul of the bunch. The chiefs noticed more confidence and "go" in companies where he happened to be. He seemed to centralize the moral force of the men around him, "as if it were an emanation from his person," according to an early report.

"We priests simply can't fear death," says he of Pamiers. "The men see that we have an advantage, and it is contagious."

Quite different from the careless attitude of peace; instinctively the men give them or tacitly invite them to assume their logical position.

"I love this life," wrote the Abbé M——, become sublieutenant, "and I seem for the first time to be fully a man! (The abbé was killed in September, 1916.) O, the tightening of the heart before the combat, when you see all those eyes resting on you in mixed fear and friendship, seeming to say, 'We look to you. We know that many of us will be killed.' (He himself fell ten days later.) There is a courageous resignation, without sadness, very beautiful. I would not give this short period for all the rest of my life. It is such a joy, in the constant presence of death, to see souls lift themselves, approach to God, and to feel, as much as one can feel, that most of those who fell were in a state of grace, raised to the highest moral level which they should attain, united by their humble resignation to the divine sacrifice. I would support the worst of miseries to always feel this thing."

Now you begin to perceive—what came, you might say, almost as a revelation to the French—the military importance of 20,000 or 30,000 young priests, brothers, etc., amid the troops, dressed and armed exactly like themselves and having, legally, but simple soldiers' situations, while retaining in fact (and known to all) their priestly powers and ardor.

At the Grand café, the waiter, Adolphe, came back on a week's permission from the front. A changed man, bronzed, trained down hard, all the restaurant fat gone, calm, poised, sober, cheery but thoughtful, straight eyed, a strong man who knows his worth. He used to be the joker of the Grand café and up to every trick. He told quite simply how he won his Cross of War.

"We were eleven in the trench," said Adolphe. "All our officers had been killed except the sergeant, who was a priest, and we were waiting for the signal to leap over and charge. The sergeant said, 'Now, boys, you know I am a priest. Say your act of contrition and I will give you absolution.' So we knelt and did it, and he did it, and we all jumped out together. We went eleven and came back four, and the priest was not among us."

I want not to expound, but merely quote.

"The priest chases fear of death by his example, and the absolution he can give," the boy from Pamiers puts it. "And forward the music, the heart is at peace. Rare are those who die without absolution, if not individual at least collective, given to them all together in common before the combat."

In danger of death, you understand?

So, for communion. In spite of the strict rule of fasting soldiers are allowed to receive it after they have eaten. Before combat, in hesitation, this one detail of opportunity decides many. 'Danger of death, danger of death. . . .

If all this clashes with your previous ideas of Frenchmen, or men in general, or other matters, remember that war is a great dissolver, human nature a big thing. No backstairs entrance to eternal life is being preached. Who wants to sin in face of hourly death?

The boy from Pamiers was marching with his section to the trenches. A soldier, a peasant, edged in and marched beside him, saying: "I would like to take communion tomorrow morning. One never knows what will happen here. Can't I make my confession now?" The priest said: "Go ahead." They walked together; the man, walking, said his prayers and then, for his confession, just pronounced three letters—"R. A. S."—which is the telephone and wireless formula, in war, for rien a signaler, or "Nothing particular to report."

"What!" said the priest. "You mean that you've done nothing wrong; have nothing on your conscience?"

"What could I do wrong, here?" asked the soldier of France [who, remember, is in his own country, fighting off the invader]. "I am too dog tired with marching, grubbing, and battle. When I get a time to rest I sit and think about my wife and kids home on the farm, or else I sleep. That can't be wrong."

The priest said: "No, that can't be wrong," and gave him absolution, as they walked.

Nights of sleeplessness in the trenches [according to Adolphe], when "the priest of Quimper" and two friends recited the rosary aloud, the entire trench gave the short responses.

"The priest of Quimper used to hear confessions all night long," says Adolphe. "He would start at one end of the trench, and, forward march, he'd clean 'em all up!"

And this is Adolphe!

For more technical exactitude I quote the Abbe Joseph D—— of Blois, a sublieutenant.

"Above all, here [in war]," he says, "the priest is the minister of the sacraments of penance and communion: penitence, which reconciles the soul with God, and communion, which makes heaven entire descend into the soul and permits a man to look death in the face. That is why they want us here. The priest-soldier is the religious [illegible] of the battalion."

To supply this [as to courage] I must point out that the men are not all the time thinking each of his own personal religious state, but all gain confidence from what they see of these things, also in others—in particular, their officers.

"The day we quit the second line our captain went to communion," says Adolphe, "and one who was a kind of leader in the bunch, not a hard character, you know, but, all the same, he was a butcher out at La Villette before the war, said, and we most of us agreed and no man called him down. He said: 'I'm not afraid to go under fire with a captain who went to communion the same morning.'"

All of which, of course, is fully realized by the chiefs.

As you can imagine, the priest-soldier's first idea is always to improvise a church somewhere. Now, it is the habitual thing, when other facilities lack, for captains to offer their personal cave dugouts for the purpose. And I know of communion masses or requiem masses for dead soldiers held in great half ruined churches where two generals and 150 officers of all grades sat in chairs of the principal nave, while 1,000 men crowded, standing, in the laterals, under the organs, behind the altar, everywhere . . .

It is no new thing.

It began with the German invasion.

My next door neighbor, D——, not noted for piety before the war, told me as his first story how in the cathedral of Reims, during the night before the irresistible German advance which preceded their retreat of the Marne, seventy priests in their soldier clothes stood or sat on the floor, hearing confessions of endless lines of soldiers all night long, preparing for battle.

The latest word of it is found in the blood stained diary of Mme. Cheron's grandson, who was not out of the seminary during the battle of the Marne, who went front with the class of 1917, still a student for the priesthood (a slender, timid youth we all knew well), and was killed on March 3 of this year.

"Picking up wounded within sixty yards of German trenches," runs the last entry. "Blood and groans! How shall we have force to drag them all so far? Mysterious grace of God which surrounds me! The trips are long. In stops to rest I pull out my crucifix; they want to kiss it. They squeeze my arm with their bloody hands. One boy is murmuring continually, 'Mamma! Mamma!' . . . Stupidly, I sobbed along the road. A priest hurried up, the Abbé C—— of Angers. 'You are carrying my brother,' he said. When we stopped in the woods the brothers talked. 'Adieu,' the wounded one was saying. 'You will tell them——' When he died the Abbé C—— continued giving absolutions. I went with his brother's body."

You wanted the soul of France.

You've got it.

AUTOMOBILES Conducted by SHEPPARD BUTLER MOTORCYCLES

Algonquin Trip Provides a Jaunt Off Beaten Path

FOR motorists who wish to take an enjoyable one day's trip into the country and return to the city in time for an early supper or to fill an evening engagement, the little tour outlined in the accompanying map makes an attractive jaunt. It constitutes an ideal trip for those who are in the habit of following the beaten paths and who wish to vary the monotony by driving over the byways as well as the highways.

All of the roads included will be found good providing a rainstorm does not come up and make the few dirt stretches a trifle slippery. By following this route the tourist may make a circle trip without having to double back on his course and when he returns home will have covered less than ninety-five miles.

In starting out the motorist is routed over a rather unusual trail, by which he may avoid much of the heavy Sunday automobile traffic found on the principal exits from the city. The exit recommended includes Jackson boulevard, Sacramento boulevard, and Grand avenue, by following which River Grove and the "back door" route to Elgin is reached.

In going to Algonquin nine out of every ten motorists follow the beaten path that leads out Lake street and through Addison, Bloomingdale, Ontarioville, and Elgin. In this case the tourist will return by following the Grant highway through those towns after having made the outgoing trip over a comparatively little traveled route that runs through several quaint little villages a few miles to the north of the main highway between Chicago and the Fox river metropolis. These villages include Wooddale, Itasca, and Roselle.

If the tourist keeps his eyes open there is much of beauty and interest to be seen along the way and a camera should be included with the equipment, to say nothing of a basket of lunch and some vacuum bottles for use at any one of the thousand and one picnic spots.

From Elgin the route runs north along the east side of the Fox river to Algonquin, a pretty little town located in the bottom of a bowl formed by wooded hills. Algonquin gained fame a few years ago as the scene of hill climbing contests that put the town on the American motoring map. It derives its name from "Algoomaking" (at the place of spearing fish), and is rich in Indian lore of the Algonquin tribe. Many mounds of the aborigines are still to be seen in the vicinity.

Camp Algonquin, an institution for needy invalids and aged people, has for several years been maintained here by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

Turning about on his homeward trip, the tourist may have an opportunity to test the high gear ability of his machine when he climbs one of the stiff grades leading out of town. The return trail leads along the west bank of the Fox and again enters Elgin, from which the motorist returns to Chicago over the Grant highway.

Gossip of the Auto Trade

Harry Newman, distributor of the Hal Twelve, reports what he believes to be a record run for a brand new car of 135 inch wheel base. This was made recently by a Hal town car, just out of the factory, which carried five passengers from Cincinnati to Dayton, O., sixty-two miles, in just two hours and on but five gallons of gasoline.

The Doble Steam Car company of Illinois is now permanently established in a new building at 2250 Michigan avenue. Several sales of the new Doble-Detroit are reported in the Chicago territory, though the factory is not yet ready to make deliveries.

Concerning a much discussed topic of the moment, W. J. Foss, commercial manager of the Pierce-Arrow Motor Car company, ventures this opinion: "War will not frighten the motor car industry. This has always been an industry of gameness. It took gameness to manufacture the first cars, and it took gameness to ride in them. It is significant of the industry now that it faces the prospect of war unperturbed."

George M. Dickson, president of the concern which builds the National, wants to establish a school for the development of army fliers in Indianapolis. "In the automobile factories of the city," he says, "there are at least 2,000 men who have the courage and motor knowledge which qualifies them for flying. These men are testers and former testers; many of the latter have become race drivers or mechanicians and the majority are now classed as skilled automobile mechanics."

Figures tabulated last week at the Reo factory indicate that up to April 18 a total of 15,055 pleasure cars and 4,566 trucks had been turned out during the year. Despite a 15 per cent increase in sales over the same period in 1916, Manager Herman Staebler of the Chicago branch reports that he can't possibly get enough machines to meet his needs.

"Look at Canada," urges J. M. Cram, president of the Chicago Allen company. "She has sent to the front more men and raised more money in proportion than we could possibly be called upon for in the next five years. Yet she is buying more automobiles than in any former period. The same condition will obtain in the United States if every man not engaged in actual war work sticks to his job."

VOICE of the MOTORIST

Rock Island's Place in the Sun.

Rock Island, Ill., May 8.—[Automobile Editor of The Tribune.]—I read with much interest your Sunday comments on travel and routing, and while they are very good I hope they are subject to correction.

Several times I have read your directions to tourists to the southwest, over the Chicago, Kansas City and Gulf highway. After they arrive at Moline, Ill., you direct them to drive straight to Davenport, Ia. Is it possible you do not know there is no way from Moline to Davenport except through Rock Island, by way of the government bridge connecting Rock Island and Davenport? If so, why do you misdirect your readers by passing up a city of 35,000 population? It may save them much trouble and annoyance to keep them on the right road. J. K. ANDREWS.

NOTE—The generally accepted and most direct touring route from Moline to Davenport is across an island containing the government arsenal and does not pass through the city of Rock Island. Recently, however, the war crisis has led the government to close the island to tourist travel, making it necessary to drive through a part of Rock Island. "The Tribune" was right when these touring directions were given. Mr. Andrews is right now. Seems fair enough.

Gasoline's Days Numbered?

Iowa City, Ia., May 9.—[Automobile Editor of The Tribune.]—Never before has there been so much complaint among motorists about the poor quality of gasoline as that registered last fall and since that time to that of the present. It is not the fault of gasoline motor construction, to which some of the oil concerns wish to attribute it. I have made a careful survey of gasoline and find that no "standard" has been laid down by our government, by which the refiners and those wholesaling oils must make a test and live up to it.

The bureau of mines will tell you not to complain too bitterly about the low grade of gasoline, as it will have a tendency to put the price for good oil where it is almost prohibitive to use it. That is all "bosh."

The government must take a hand in this matter in behalf of the consumer. The consumer wants to know what he is buying. If it is a good grade of kerosene he wants to know it and pay for it accordingly. No satisfaction is given the consumer by the wholesaler or retailer regarding the grade or test of gas offered for sale.

It appears there is just one solution of the fuel problem in behalf of the consumer, and that is another kind of fuel. That fuel is going to be steam. Within the next three to five years the steam car is coming into its own. True, steam cars of the past have been somewhat crude in many ways. Mechanical experts will solve this problem. When they do it will mean a cheap fuel, steam.

Kerosene will be used for making the steam, or some other low grade oil. The steam car will mean fewer parts, less weight, simplicity of operation, doing away with gear shifting, etc., smoothness in running, coupled with quietness and less wear and tear on mechanical parts.

The proposition of safety against explosion will be solved and the steam car of the future will be "fool proof" and handled with as much, if not greater, efficiency by the new car owner than the present gasoline car.

ROBERT N. CARSON.

The Kerosene Carburetor.

Chicago, May 10.—[Automobile Editor of The Tribune.]—Kerosene as a fuel for automobiles is not a new proposition. Not long ago an interesting serial story appeared in a popular weekly, woven around the invention of a kerosene carburetor. As a matter of fact, there have been a number of practical kerosene carburetors produced.

The whole problem is largely a question of economics and convenience. When the demand for gasoline was small the proportion taken from the crude oil also was small. As the demand increased, new methods of production have increased the proportion of gasoline at the expense of kerosene, and doubtless still more efficient methods will produce a satisfactory fuel from a still greater proportion of the crude oil.

If the demand should shift to kerosene, the incentive for an improved method of manufacture would be removed and the kerosene would have to bear a much greater proportion of the income to be derived from the crude oil. Hence the low cost of kerosene is due solely to its limited use.

Furthermore, the proper burning of kerosene is a function of the motor rather than of the carburetor. To atomize kerosene is no more difficult than to atomize gasoline. The heat required for vaporization would necessarily be greater, and the capacity would therefore be much less. Large motors would have to be provid[illegible] a given power, because of the higher temperature at which the mixture enters the cylinders. Unless water is used with the kerosene the liability for the collection of carbon on the piston is much greater.

Taken all together, the uses of kerosene on the automobile would not be an unmixed blessing.

CHARLES HATFIELD.

STEPHENS SIX
"The Car With The Punch"

If there is a Stephens Six in your garage you will be happy as a boy in springtime with marbles bulging his pockets. You will hear a note in Spring's seductive call to join the motoring brotherhood of the Great Out-of-Doors.

The Stephens Six has the speed to race the playful winds of May, the enthusiastic responsiveness to play tag with April rainbows, a beauty that blends with the splendor of May.

The powerful six-cylinder motor runs smoothly and quietly. Perfect balance and extra long springs make your trip a ride of comfort and ease. As Spring liberates you from Winter's lethargy, so the Stephens Six liberates you from automobile worries and troubles.

Every day is a perfect day if you own a Stephens Six.

Heap big mileage!

Mileage Makers

Every Savage mileage maker gets full credit for good work because all work is "keyed" to the serial numbers on the tires. We know in every case just who is responsible for "Heap big mileage."

This plan creates a strong sense of personal responsibility and pride among our workmen, and there is keenest rivalry to see who can produce most mileage per tire.

You can help us to produce even greater mileage for you if you will send The Savage Tire Corporation, San Diego, Calif., full details of all Savages that run over 7000 miles.

Please be sure to give Serial Number, size of tire, date of purchase, and actual number of miles run.

To help show our appreciation for this co-operation, we will send an inner tube patch free of charge to all who report, "Heap Big Mileage."

Chicagoans Plan Stirring Events for Motor Derby

CONSULS of five nations with which America is now allied in the war—Horace D. Nugent of Great Britain, Antonin Barthelemy of France, Count Giulio Bolognesi of Italy, Dr. Cyrille Vermeren of Belgium, and Antoine Volkoff of Russia—have been asked to serve on the executive committee which will distribute the war cause funds received from the military and motor fete to be held at the Chicago speedway on June 16. Three thousand Chicago high school volunteers will take part in the patriotic spectacle, "An Attack on the Treuches," and two automobile races will be run, the 100 mile event for nonprofessional drivers and the third annual 250 mile auto Derby.

Although the executive committee is not complete as yet, the list of those who have agreed to serve already includes Mayor Thompson, William B. [illegible], Thomas E. Wilson, John Maynard Harlan, John G. Campbell, Judge Marcus Kavanagh, John Crerar, John D. Shoop, Harry A. Wilkie, Capt. E. Z. Steever, U. S. A.; John F. Smulski, George A. Critten, Fred W. Upham, Charles H. Wacker, Everett C. Brown, Judge George B. Carpenter, Charles A. Comiskey, Edward F. Dunne, and Carter H. Harrison. Congressman Clifford Ireland of Peoria, a member of the contest board of the American Automobile association, also is a member of the executive committee.

As now outlined, the program for "War Cause day" at the Chicago speedway is as follows:

11 a. m.—Start of military parade from Grant park; start of 100 mile nonprofessional automobile race at speedway.

12 m.—Military parade disbands at speedway.

1 p. m.—Finish of nonprofessional race.

1 to 2.—"An Attack on the Trenches" by sixty companies of Chicago high school volunteers.

2 to 2:30.—Band concert and military review.

2:30—Start of 250 mile auto Derby.

The nonprofessional race has aroused so much interest that it promises to rival the derby itself for headline honors. Chicago's motor row has a question of speed supremacy to decide and to date four different makes of cars—two Mercers, a Disbrow Special, a [illegible], and a Hal Twelve—have been entered. There is little doubt that there will be a team of Cadillacs on the starting line, for C. H. Foster, the Chicago Cadillac distributor, is not inclined to overlook an opportunity to profit this season as he did in last year's amateur event, and Bob Maypole, local agent for the Stutz, may decide to revive an ancient feud with the Mercer. The entry of the Haynes probably will result in the nomination of an Apperson, as these two companies have an old dispute to settle, and the entry of a Peerless would not be a surprise or that of a Chalmers unexpected.

David F. Reid, president of the Speedway Park association, is confident that the auto derby will attract as many racers as the classic of twelve months ago, when twenty-one cars were sent away by Starter Fred J. Wagner. There are at least twenty entrants waiting to sign entry blanks, including the Hudson company, which will nominate two cars, with Ralph Mulford and Ira Vail as drivers, Barney Oldfield, Earl Cooper, Eddie Hearne, Otto Henning, Ralph De Palma, J. C. Hoskins, who has engaged Dave Lewis to pilot his Duesenberg, and Billy Taylor, whose Stutz took first honors at the Uniontown speedway week before last.

The entry blanks have been held up because of an alteration and the failure of the A. A. A. contest board to sanction the new form. They are now in the hands of the printers and will be distributed this week.

There is a possibility that the Chicago derby will be the final automobile race of 1917, for the A. A. A. contest board is seriously considering a plan to refuse any sanctions after June 16. Moreover, many of the drivers and mechanicians have volunteered for military service and are due to report at aviation schools and training camps for army chauffeurs in July.

1917 Banner Roads Year.

According to a writer in the American [illegible], a greater amount of constructive highway legislation has been enacted by the legislatures of the several states in 1917, as a result of the passage of the federal aid road act, than ever before in any single year. Following this discussion is a summary of what the states have done in a way of lawmaking to meet, and to secure assistance in highway building under the terms of the federal act. Widespread preparations for active and comprehensive road improvement are clearly indicated.

BALLAD

To Be Sung at Twilight.

When Sherman said what war was
He'd never owned a car.
He'd never had four punctures in a row;
He'd never had a tank run dry
And had to walk back far
To get some gas to make the old thing go.

He'd never had a blow-out
In the only spare he had,
Or shot a bearing—due to lack of oil;
Or worked to get adjustment
On a tire that was bad.
He'd never slipped a fan and had her boil.

He'd never had a driver
Who was—well, a trifle smart,
Who recommended buying junk at par.
O, Sherman knew what war was,
He had been there from the start,
But, remember, he had never owned a car.

Florida Motorists Organize.

The Florida State Automobile association, an organization of motor car owners and users of the state, has just been formed to better local motoring conditions, get behind good roads legislation, post the roads of Florida, and give touring information to prospective visitors. Headquarters are at the San Juan hotel, Orlando, where maps and road data are being prepared. Florida now has hundreds of miles of brick and beach roads and there are more to be built.

Experts Here June 1.

The annual election and midsummer meeting of the midwest section, Society of Automotive Engineers, will be held June 1 at the Chicago Automobile club. The feature of the session will be the deferred report of J. G. Vincent, chief engineer of the Packard Motor Car company, on the recent United States government tests of new aviation motors.

Auto Sales in Canada.

In spite of the war Canadian farmers spent $2,000,000 more for automobiles last year than during the preceding year. The war crop of wheat gave Canadian farmers a large profit, and many of them put some of their gains into new cars.

Test Barrier Today.

The ponderous wooden barrier installed at the Lake street bridge to prevent heedless motorists from driving into the river when the draw is open is about ready for action, and is to be submitted to an official try-out this morning, the bridge being closed to traffic in the meantime. The barrier is a movable affair, designed to yield under the impact of a speeding automobile and bring it to a gradual stop. If it proves a success it will be installed at all bridges where it seems to be needed.

GOSSIP OF THE AUTO TRADE

L. K. Cooper, Maxwell distributor in Chicago, has completed elaborate arrangements for his part in the Maxwell dealers' economy competition, to be staged on Wednesday through the United States and Canada. Dealers everywhere will borrow used Maxwells of their owners, equip each with a tank containing one gallon of gasoline, and test their prowess in driving the cars as far as possible on that amount of fuel. A championship cup and $5,000 in prizes have been offered.

The rise in automobile prices continues on its merry way. Thomas J. Hay, local distributor of the Chandler, joined the procession last week with the announcement that all Chandler models will cost $200 more next month. "We've been expecting it," he added. "What surprises us is that the company was not forced to take such action long ago."

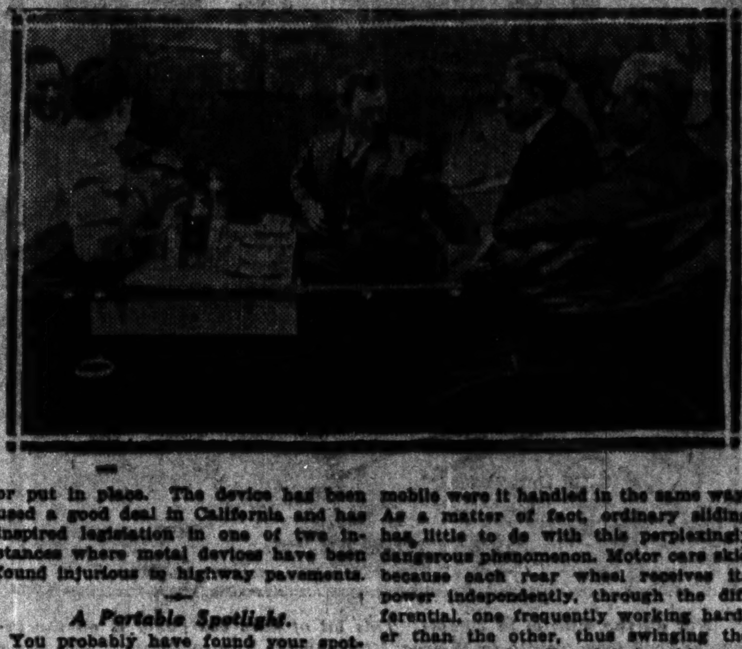
An enthusiastic Scripps-Booth owner contributes to the literature of motor car economy a report sent to the Chicago distributors of a recent run in a Scripps-Booth from Chicago to Attica, Ind., by way of Terre Haute, a distance of 360 miles. Although a speed of fifty-four miles an hour was reached and the average was above thirty, the distance, says the driver, was covered at a rate of 26.66 miles to the gallon of gasoline.

W. B. Kenyon, western distributor of the Stewart truck, has moved to permanent headquarters at 1714 Michigan avenue. Mr. Kenyon is known to fame as the first man to sell a four cylinder truck in Chicago.

W. G. Pancoast, Chicago distributor of the Owen Magnetic, vouches for this: José G. Collignon of Mexico City took a shine recently to the Owen Magnetic and bought one, directing that it be elaborately equipped with slip covers, spare parts, and all the fixin's. When it was ready the factory at Cleveland notified him that traffic was tied up and there was no car available for shipment to Mexico City. Nothing daunted, the purchaser wired to New York, bought an ordinary box car, set a crew of carpenters at work fixing it up so it would carry an automobile properly, and blandly delivered said car at the factory. He got his automobile.

The Lexington Motors company, Chicago distributors of the Lexington, have turned to the lecture platform as a means of making known the outstanding features of the car they sell. The lecturer, Joseph Severance, is giving daily talks at the firm's salesrooms, explaining the intricacies of the Moore multiple exhaust system, a new feature of the machine designed to assure thorough scavenging of the motor cylinders. It is claimed that tests have shown power increase of 22.8 per cent through use of the device.

THE LITTLE THINGS THAT HELP

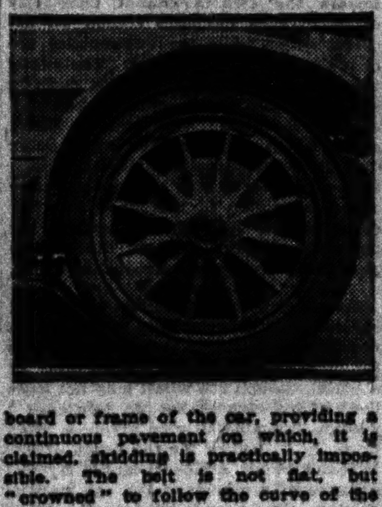


Lunch in Your Car.

Ants, bugs, and other uninvited visitors rob lunching on the grass of most of its romance, in the opinion of a Chicago inventor. This being the case, he has devised a little collapsible table of heavy sail cloth canvas, which stretches across your touring car immediately behind the front seat. Rubber clamps hold it firmly, without marring the body paint, and a steel rod and ratchet wheel are provided to stretch the surface tight and smooth. When removed, it rolls into a little bundle about the size of a tightly rolled newspaper. The idea, of course, is to drive under some big tree's shade and lunch without getting out of the car. Regular sizes of the device cost $3.50; Ford sizes, $2.50.

Lay Your Own Road.

A former TRIBUNE newsboy, now a resident of Seattle, has perfected a novel anti-skid contraption which operates on the caterpillar principle, laying a little road before the motor car wheel and picking it up afterward. It consists of a broad belt of sturdy cloth fabric which encircles the rear tire seven-eighths of the way around and passes over a spindle or pulley attached to the running board or frame of the car, providing a continuous pavement on which, it is claimed, skidding is practically impossible. The belt is not flat, but "crowned" to follow the curve of the tire, and is quickly and easily removed or put in place. The device has been used a good deal in California and has inspired legislation in one of two instances where metal devices have been found injurious to highway pavements.



A Portable Spotlight.

You probably have found your spotlight useful in investigating engine troubles at night, but wished you could use its powerful rays where you needed them instead of merely in front of the point were it is clamped. Possibly also you enjoy the convenience of a "trouble light" with its extension cord, but find its light a bit too faint to be effective. You may now, if you wish, have the advantages of a spotlight and trouble light in a single device. It's simply a spotlight of the ordinary type so constructed that you can remove it from its socket, unreeling a twelve foot cord, which permits the brilliant rays to be applied wherever they may be needed. The price is $8 with a rear view mirror and $7.50 without.

Power Where You Want It.

Many uninformed motorists have a vague idea that skidding is due merely to side-sway, and that an ordinary wagon would skid as much as an automobile were it handled in the same way. As a matter of fact, ordinary sliding has little to do with this perplexingly dangerous phenomenon. Motor cars skid because each rear wheel receives its power independently, through the differential, one frequently working harder than the other, thus swinging the car to one side. To minimize this, and to prevent heedless spinning when one wheel fails to get traction, a special type of nonstall differential is offered for installation on any type of car. It is so constructed, according to the maker's claim, that when one wheel gets into trouble all the power of the engine is thrown to the other wheel. With spinning eliminated, skidding is greatly reduced.

Cantilever Shock Absorbers.

They're trying the experiment now of building shock absorbers on the principle of compound cantilever action. These strange looking little devices are made to fit any make of car using full or three-quarter scroll elliptic rear springs. Minor actions of the axle are supposed to be transmitted to the cantilever bars and absorbed by the tension springs of the shock absorbers. They're sold at $25 a pair.

Urge Wider Use of Convicts for Highway Upkeep

"TO spend $100,000 to build highways and then to leave the roads without any provision for maintenance is folly equal to that indulged in by the farmer who buys $1,000 worth of farm machinery and then refuses to build a shed under which to keep it."

Thus Gov. T. W. Bickett of North Carolina in his inaugural address points to the fact that it is not only necessary for a state to build good roads but also to keep them in good shape and to improve them from time to time.

In North Carolina convicts have been employed on the roads since 1881, but the counties have been required to hire them from the state and to pay for them out of the county funds. The counties have, therefore, been parsimonious in their expenditures on road improvements. Gov. Bickett suggests in his message that county commissioners be compelled to levy an annual maintenance tax, to be spent by the state highway commission for the upkeep of the roads.

The national committee on prisons and prison labor has repeatedly emphasized the value of employing convicts in road making. In North Carolina and other agricultural states this method of employing the convict is particularly advantageous because of the scarcity of labor at this time.

The war brings the matter of the employment of unskilled labor on roads before the public again. Unskilled labor has become scarce and expensive, yet the present crisis demands that the roads of the country be maintained in good shape to insure rapid transmission of products. The national committee on prisons and prison labor has begun a movement for the mobilization of the convicts of the country in a national and state service for the building and upkeep of good roads.

In this effort the committee will have the support of the American Automobile association through its good roads board, which includes a member from each one of the 600 odd clubs contained in the national body of car owners.

The Joy of Big Power Without the Burden of Big Expense

Two Power Ranges

Make the Eighty Horsepower Peerless Eight Inexpensive to Operate

All the world now knows the Peerless for a car of the most remarkable contrast and variety of performance.

The fascination of its performance has dwarfed the importance of that other great virtue of two power ranges—economy.

Peerless "All that the name implies"

Peerless Eight

In the "Loafing" Range

Many a lesser powered six—even many a four—must concede economy laurels to the Peerless Eight for its sparing use of fuel.

Yet you have all the soft, smooth, lively performance which you would expect in an eight of the utmost class and distinction. The Peerless, in its "loafing" range, gives you everything you would ask of your car in everyday, ordinary driving.

In the "Sporting" Range

But when you want a world of power or a tremendous burst of speed—when you want emergency performance which only the super-powerful cars of the ultra class can give you, your Peerless Eight will respond to your complete satisfaction. You have only to open the throttle wider to call upon her "sporting" range and utterly change her whole character. The response is immediate—capable—thrilling.

Let us show you in the Peerless Eight the joy of big power without the burden of big expense.

Don't Let Panic "Get" You When That Fire Comes

By W. H. Stewart, Jr.

When gasoline takes fire it is a serious matter, but the most dangerous accessory to a fire is the one you least expect, panic. The average person has such an unreasoning fear of gasoline that he loses his head completely. The first few fires will leave one completely unnerved for a time, but after a little experience in fighting them panic will disappear and self-control will be gained. This does not mean that one should delay or move more slowly, but should know what to do and do it quickly.

The novice stands aghast as the first burst of flame comes from the carburetor. The experienced man jumps for the nearest preventive. At least one small fire extinguisher should be on every car. The large chemical devices are too bulky and cannot be placed in any desired position, whereas the ordinary instrument may be stowed away in a small space. The best place is beneath the hood on the carbureter side. This is where the first starts, and may be reached by raising the hood. Some carry them on the running board, but this is objectionable on account of theft liability. If placed under the seat or secured by a lock they are not readily placed in service, and the machine may be badly damaged meanwhile.

Always turn off the gasoline at the tank to stop feeding the flames. Ordinarily there is not more than two ounces in any float chamber, and this will not last long. All the parts about the carburetor are metal and not easily harmed. It is well also to use the self-starter to turn the engine. This will draw flames into the manifold. Quite often the whole fire may be extinguished if this is done in time.

A greater danger arises from permitting an accumulation of inflammable material in the drip pan. Once this becomes fully ignited the situation requires prompt and efficient action. The work of extinguishing should begin right here, leaving the carburetor till the last. Otherwise the burning gasoline at the bottom will continue to ignite that at the carburetor.

So, remember, always start at the bottom and work upward. If there is a flame on the ground beneath the car, use the self-starter with gears in mesh to move to another position. Sand is good if available, but never throw sand on the carburetor or any other parts of the machine. It falls away, leaving gasoline free to burn, and also gets into the mechanism, doing incalculable harm. On a flat surface sand is excellent, or any other dry powder. Even flour has saved many a home where gasoline has been used carelessly.

The old method of covering the fire with a rug or carpet is good, but the extinguisher is better. This covers the fluid with a layer of heavy noninflammable gas which smothers the flame. Finally, be cautioned never to throw water on burning gasoline. It tends to spread the flame.

Every one knows that any kind of a fire is dangerous, but, if the above suggestions are employed under self-control, the flame starting from a carburetor backfire will be efficiently stopped at the source.

Welcoming the Motorist

Western communities along the Lincoln highway are exhibiting exceptional business foresight in providing many welcomed conveniences for the automobile tourists of the coming year.

Particularly is this true of the establishment of free camp sites and accommodations which tempt the travelers to remain an added length of time over that originally intended.

Camp sites of this character have been established at many points west of the Missouri river, the latest being that at Reno, Nev. Electric lights, running water, buildings for cooking, and many other conveniences are to be in readiness for automobile travelers during the coming summer at the site selected just to the west of the city on the Truckee river.

"LEAVE HOPE BEHIND"

Is to Apply No Longer to This Particular Section of Motoring Inferno in Michigan.

Not all the mud is in Illinois. This bit of deep sea going is on the infamous road from Toledo to Monroe, Mich., on the way to Detroit. But cheer up, if you're driving that way, for a concrete highway, it is announced, will replace the mire by the middle of this summer. Work on the last section of the road has already been started.

Exhaust Echoes

"We believe that the decisive test of the Standard car is on hills," says Ben Schnur, the Chicago distributor. "There is one notable ascent which the Standard eight readily negotiates on high with an untinkered stock gear ratio, and which, as far as we know, no competing eight can make in the same manner. This is the Hermit lane, in Fairmount park, Philadelphia."

Mr. and Mrs. George Holloway of Oakland, Cal., celebrated their golden wedding in novel fashion the other day. When they were young they crossed the plains by ox team over a trail which cut the path for what is now the Lincoln highway into Gilroy, Cal., where they met after making the journey separately. To commemorate the trip they made it again, this time in a 1917 Mitchell, which they agreed was a bit of an improvement over the earlier conveyance.

Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Burdick, who own a little ranch near Los Angeles, Cal., are so proud of the home made camping outfit with which they have equipped their Dodge Bros. car that they have written the factory all about it. The collection comprises a fireless cooker made out of a candy bucket, a specially built oil stove, and a tent, made by Mrs. Burdick, which completely houses the car, forming a bedroom on one side of the machine and a dining room and kitchen on the other. The whole thing weighs only 145 pounds.

F. B. Stearns of Cleveland, O., president of the company bearing his name, visited Harry Hollingshead, the local Stearns-Knight distributor, last week. "The war cloud," he said, "hasn't affected our affairs a bit."

The Franklin Automobile company reports that the number of Franklins shipped from the factory at Syracuse, N. Y., during the six months ending May 1 shows an increase of 146 per cent over the previous six months. Despite the increased production, it is announced, the company has on its books more than two and a quarter times as many unfilled orders as at this time last year.

A seven passenger Paige touring car was sent out recently to see just how far it would go with a normal load on a gallon of gasoline. It made just seventeen miles. No special measures were taken in the way of preparing for the test, except to see that the cylinders were free from carbon and the plugs clean.

Two thousand employes of the Studebaker corporation at Detroit staged a stirring patriotic demonstration the other day, details of the arrangements being entirely in the hands of the girls employed in the top factory. Factory officials knew nothing about the doing until permission was asked for an extension of the noon hour to permit a presentation of the complete program. There were speeches, a parade, and a rally for Red Cross contributions.

The MOTORIST IN COURT

Is the owner of an automobile liable for an injury caused by the negligence of the person driving his car, if the driver is not in his employ or engaged in his business at the time, even though the owner is in the car when the accident occurs? The New York Court of Appeals says no. The unusual combination of circumstances developed when a woman was driven through Rochester, N. Y., in her own car, but by her husband's chauffeur. A man was struck and badly injured, and sued the car owner for damages. The chauffeur testified that he was not in the defendant's employ, but had received his orders, including those with reference to the trip being made when the accident occurred, from her husband. "The plaintiff," ruled the court, "cannot recover. The reason underlying this rule is the general one that a party injured by the negligence of another must seek his remedy against the person whose actual negligence caused the injury, and that such person alone is liable."

On the subject of "kid" drivers, New Jersey's Supreme court handed down a decision the other day ruling that where owners allow their cars to be run by minors the owners cannot have any cause to seek damages should an accident occur while the automobiles are in possession of the minors. The ruling was based on a Supreme court decision of more than ninety years, wherein a man had loaned two boys a riding chair, which they wrecked while going in a direction opposite to that in which they promised to go. If there was any cause for action in this case, said the chief justice, it was not against the boys, but on the part of the latter's parents against the owner of the vehicle.

Several previous decisions have been reversed in a recent ruling that an automobile manufacturer may be held liable for damages caused by the breaking of a wheel, though the wheel may not have been of his own make. In this case a verdict for $15,600 was given a Glen Cove, L. I., widow for the death of her husband in an accident caused by the collapse of a wheel on the car he was driving. It was admitted in the testimony that the wheel in question had been made from dead wood that had rotted to an unsafe condition. Instead of splintering, as does sound wood when it breaks, the spokes sheared off evenly. The defendant, one of the largest Detroit manufacturing concerns, contended unsuccessfully that the car maker must place his reliance on the manufacturer of wheels, having no way to test the wheels received without destroying them.

A used car buyer in Boston has collected damages from an automobile dealer for failure to deliver his car at a specified time. The dealer had agreed to take another customer's old car in part payment for a new one, permitting him to keep the old car until the new one arrived. Then he took an order for the used car, to be delivered on the date he expected the new car to arrive. The new car failed to appear, the used car's owner refused to give it up, and the second purchaser sued, asking damages for nonfulfillment of contract. He got two-thirds of the price agreed on.

New Cord Tire.

The Firestone company is the latest to bring out a cord tire, a general public announcement of which will soon be made. It has been tried out for months in a series of experiments.

PLACE AUX DAMES!

Presenting the Only Woman Automobile Demonstrator in Chicago—She Teaches More Men How to Drive.

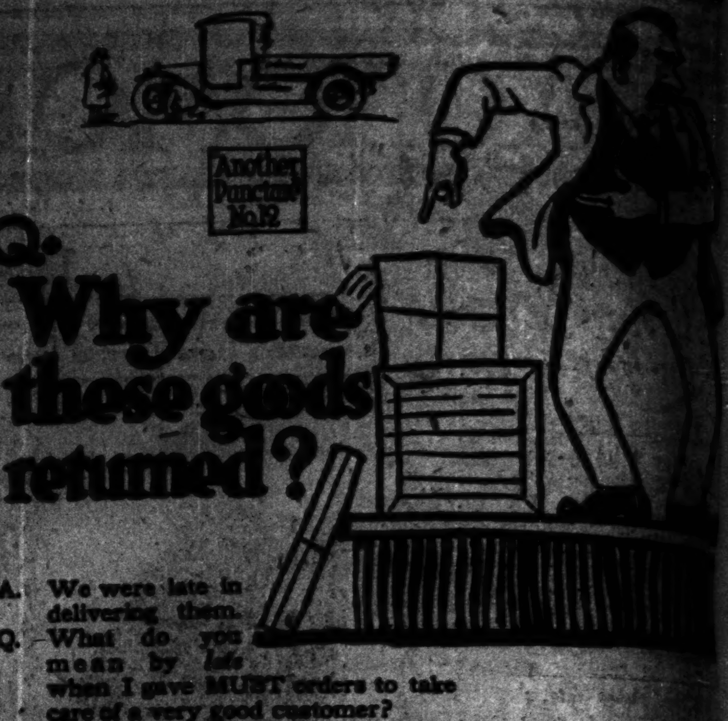
This, ladies and gentlemen, is Mrs. Lamar A. Phipps, who probably will teach you to run your new car if you live on the south side and the spirit moves you to buy a Buick. She is the only woman automobile demonstrator in Chicago and has forsaken the frivolities of society to tackle this hitherto masculine job simply because she likes it.

"And she's turned out to be the best demonstrator we ever had," testifies James E. Faget, one of the owners of the south side Buick branch, where Mrs. Phipps is employed. "We didn't hire her as any spectacular stunt. She just came in and said she thought she could do the work, so we gave her a chance to prove it. She's made good, has taught 75 per cent of our customers to drive since she's been here, and has proved so efficient that her services are in demand all the time. Most of her work is in teaching men to handle their new cars.

"Now I'm looking for an automobile saleswoman. The army is going to take most of our men, and has taken two already. If you know of any one, send her along."

Mrs. Phipps was an enthusiastic horsewoman and amateur driver long before she thought of making a business of her motor car knowledge. She hadn't much to say for publication.

"Why," she smiled, "it's just my job. Of course, I like it or I wouldn't be doing it."



Q. Why are these goods returned?

A. We were late in delivering them.
Q. What do you mean by late when I gave MUST orders to take care of a very good customer?
A. Couldn't be helped—we ran into a succession of blow-outs and by the time we finally got straightened out, the customer wouldn't accept delivery.
Q. How can we overcome this dangerous state of things?
A. From what other drivers tell me I would suggest equipping our delivery wagons with Lee Puncture Proof Tires. The steel armor discs in them prevent the puncture of ordinary tires. In fact I got a Lee Tire and Lee Inner Tubes to come back with today and you will receive a bill and full information from

BATTERY SERVICE STATION
VESTA

BATTERY Service Stations are necessary. Vesta has them everywhere, and they give free service to all makes of batteries. But Vesta requires less service than any other battery for three very special reasons.

VESTA DOUBLE LIFE STORAGE BATTERY

THE Vesta Indestructible Isolators lock the plates apart. This prevents short circuits caused by the plates touching. Vesta Impregnated Wooden Mats prevent "treeing." That is, the passage of metallic lead from one plate to another. They prevent short circuits from this cause.

Titanium—the latest Vesta improvement—precipitates all impurities in solution—giving the battery greater power and greater endurance. Vesta has these three features exclusively—all are patented. Investigate the Vesta—Read our service guarantee.

It is very seldom necessary to make an adjustment on a Vesta Battery; however, when it is necessary, adjustment is made on a basis of 18 months' service.

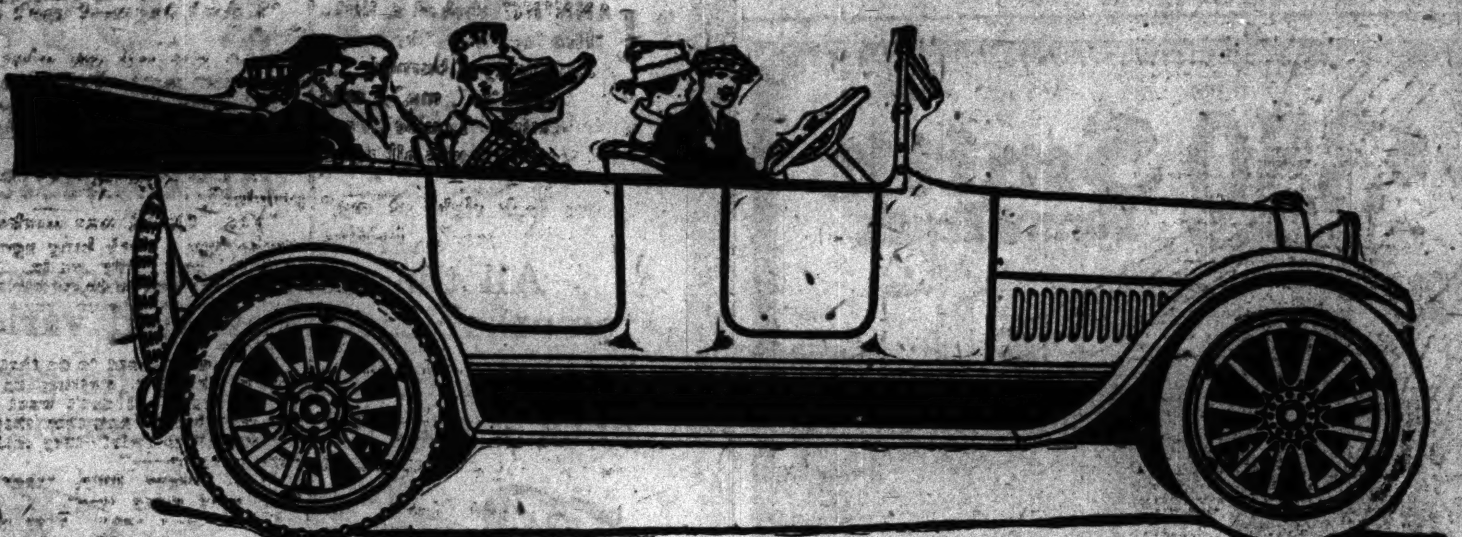
Studebaker



The Studebaker SIX
What You Get for Your Money

WHEN you buy a Studebaker SIX, you get the best work of one of the largest automobile manufacturers in the industry.

You get a car which has been perfected by four years' experience with the same basic design. Each year improvements and refinements have made it a still better car.

These improvements and refinements are based on the experience of 300,000 Studebaker cars in the hands of owners in all parts of the world.

The Studebaker SIX is not an experiment—it is an evolution.

The Studebaker SIX is made of carefully selected materials developed, perfected and tested in the great Studebaker laboratories.

The workmanship in Studebaker cars is experienced, painstaking and carefully supervised. The inspections are rigid and exacting in the extreme.

What is true of the Studebaker SIX is also true of the Studebaker FOUR. Both cars are of the same basic design. Many of their parts are interchangeable—that is why it is possible for Studebaker to offer so good a car at so low a price.

The quality of Studebaker cars is evident in their finish and equipment.

Studebaker bodies are obviously substantial in construction. The crowned fenders are of heavy gauge steel.

The paint and varnish work is excellent. The upholstery is not only genuine leather, but high grade genuine leather. The cushions are soft and comfortable. The auxiliary seats are folding armchairs. The front seats are adjustable, and the right hand one reversible.

But the real proof of quality is durability. Studebaker cars stand up and give long, continuous service under the hardest usage.

Studebaker cars are guaranteed by the manufacturer for one year against defective workmanship and material. When you buy a Studebaker you get proved quality, proved economy and the guarantee of a great manufacturer.

Let us demonstrate to you the many points of Studebaker quality and economy.

Questions and Answers

By High Speed

Owing to the large volume of inquiries for automobile routes and the relatively small amount of space in which to answer them, readers wishing immediate replies are advised to inclose a 2 cent stamp with inquiries so they may be answered by mail. Only routes and answers to questions of general interest will be published.

Will you please inform me thorugh your department of questions and answers as to the best and shortest route between Chicago and Custer Park, Ill.? I understand there is no bridge over the Kankakee river between Kankakee and Wilmington. READER.

Custer Park is in a rather isolated position and is not easily reached by automobile, as none of the main routes pass through the place. You might go either by way of Wilmington or Kankakee, but the first named way probably would prove the better. This is on the Chicago-Bloomington route. Take Michigan boulevard to Garfield boulevard and go west to Halsted street. Turn south to Ninety-fifth street and then west to Western avenue. Here turn south and go through Blue Island, edge of Tinley Park, Mokena, New Lenox, Joliet, Elwood, Wilmington, and Braidwood, 73.4 miles from Chicago. At Braidwood make inquiry as to the best road to Custer Park. It might be advisable to continue to Braceville, five miles beyond Braidwood.

Contemplating a tour from Chicago Heights to Lancaster, Pa., I should like to be advised as to the best route. Is the route marked and would a new driver have any difficulty in following it? How long should such a trip require? T. E. A., Chicago Heights, Ill.

As both Chicago Heights and Lancaster are located on the Lincoln highway, you should by all means use that route, which is the best and most direct between the two places. The route, which is excellently marked, goes through Valparaiso, La Porte, South Bend, Goshen, Fort Wayne, Lima, Bucyrus, Mansfield, Canton, Pittsburgh, Bedford, and Gettysburg. The distance is 750 miles and easily could be driven in five days.

Will you please publish the best automobile route leading to the Indiana sand dunes, where the pageant is to be held on Memorial day? Please also state how one might reach the scene by train. W. H. B., Chicago.

The best detailed route, together with a map and pictures showing the location of the sand dunes, was published in "The Tribune" on Sunday, April 15. Port Chester, a small place on the lake shore near Chesterton, Ind., and the site of the coming dunes pageant, also may be reached by the Illinois Central and New York Central railways and the South Shore electric line.

We are about to start on a southern tour and would like to get a little advice from you. We are familiar with the route from Chicago to Louisville, but would like to know the best way to reach Mammoth cave from that city. Please publish the answer in THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE. F. L. B., Chicago.

Mammoth cave may be reached by following either the Dixie or the Jackson highway. Both routes are good and each has its particular scenic advantages. The Dixie highway route is the shorter and is used the most. This route runs through St. Helens, [illegible] Meadowlawn, West Point, Elizabethtown, Upton, Bonnieville, Munfordville, Woodsonville, Horse Cave, and Cave City to Mammoth cave, a distance of 96.6 miles. The Jackson highway goes over the Bardstown road through Mount Washington, Bardstown, New Haven, Hodgenville, Buffalo, Hardyville, Bear Wallow, and Cave City to Mammoth cave, a distance of 117 miles. The roads both ways are hilly and beautifully wooded. Many tourists prefer to use the Jackson highway owing to the fact that the Lincoln memorial farm is located between Hodgenville and Buffalo.

Of late I have experienced a lot of trouble when I throttle down my motor for even a short time. Wen I open it up again the motor chokes and often stops entirely. What can be the cause of this and how should I proceed to remedy it? JAMES BRADY, Monmouth, Ill.

The trouble undoubtedly is with the carburetor, which evidently is in need of adjusting. It is likely, too, that it needs cleaning out. In these days of poor gasoline dirt quickly collects and interferes with the proper feeding of the fluid. Either take the carburetor apart yourself or have the work done by an expert. Look to the float and float valve and make sure that they are working all right. I also would advise you to try a new air valve spring.

REPUBLIC TRUCK TIRES

Test This Tire Beside Any Other

REPUBLIC TRUCK TIRES are made of Prōdium Process Rubber.

We know that this process prolongs the life of the tire.

We know they wear down evenly and smoothly.

We know they are springy and responsive.

We know they are practically immune to cutting and chipping.

We believe they are the best truck tires made.

We would like to have you prove this for yourself by testing one alongside of any other make of like size.

Republic Truck Tires are laminated. They are built up ply on ply on a steel channel base and vulcanized into a solid mass. There is no single splice to give out under road pounding as is sometimes the case with machine tube-made solid tires.

"THE KNIFE"

A Story of Marvelous Adventure
From the Extraordinary P

Kate Failing to Recover Her Balance, "Billy" Meredith Brings Bristol Into Manning's Presence to Question Him, While Louise Takes Charge of the Helpless Miss Tarleton.

READ THIS

KATE TARLETON, a beautiful young Virginia heiress and fiancée of Dr. Robert Manning, a famous physician, credited with many discoveries through vivisection, is found a prisoner at the rendezvous of crooked clairvoyants. She is a victim of acute aphasia and is unable to account for her movements since luncheon with Dr. Louise Meredith, assistant to Manning. Kate has always had a vague veneration for fortune tellers. Before her marriage to Manning she goes to New York on a lark and had hinted that she proposed to consult a fortune teller. How she got to the den of thieves, her exact condition of mind and the kind of drug used by her captors are questions which "Billy" Meredith, noted criminal lawyer, Dr. Manning, himself, and Dr. Louise Meredith are trying to solve. Meredith and his assistant have Kate's captors securely bound and gagged and are now devoting their efforts toward reviving Kate.

(Now to the story!)

PART I.

BY WILLIAM F. KIRK.

Messrs. Shubert present Eugene Walter's greatest play, "The Knife," now playing at the new Bijou Theater, New York City.

MANNING choked a little. His face was like snow, and his eyes burned.

"She talked to me," said Kate, indicating Louise once more. "She said I was all right. She told me."

"Try to look right at me," said Manning gently, holding both her eyes open.

"I am looking right at you."

"Does your head ache?"

"No, not now. But I was very, very sick—and I want to go to sleep again."

"You have been sleeping a long time," said Manning.

"Oh, yes," the girl replied, "a very long time."

Manning stood back and looked at her critically. Louise bent forward. "Well?" she questioned him.

"A heavy opiate," said Manning. "I don't know the exact nature of it. It isn't morphia. Some sort of Oriental drug, maybe, Kate!"

No answer from the drowsy girl.

"She doesn't answer! She doesn't know me!" burst out Manning. "Kate! Kate! Don't you know who I am? Don't you know me—Bob Manning? Can't you see me? I'm here, darling, right at your side! Oh, Kate!"

"Why, what have I done?" queried the dazed girl, "and why do you act so?"

"Say you know me, dearest—Bob Manning, the man you are going to marry!"

"Why!" faltered Kate, "it's all so different—so strange! And I don't want you to call me dearest. I don't want anyone to call me dearest. I won't have it!"

Kate Suffers Loss of Memory.

"Wait a minute, Bob!" said Billy, very kindly. "You're not acting quite like a doctor now, you know. Let me talk to her. These things aren't altogether new in my experience."

Putting Bob aside, he s[illegible] down before Kate and took hand.

"I'm your friend," he [illegible] gently. "I'm your friend."

"Are you?" said Kate [illegible] detached way. She [illegible] straight before her with th[illegible] of a sleep-walker.

"Yes, yes. And this is [illegible] is my sister."

"I don't know—I can't quite think."

"Can you tell me what you remember last? Try to think."

"I think I was somewhere eating—and then I—then, I left."

"In a big place, with lots of people?"

"Yes. Oh, it was weeks and weeks ago. Very long ago."

"Now," said Billy softly, "I am going to ask you to do something for me. I want you to put your hands over your ears, so you can't hear for a minute."

"But I don't want to do that!" exclaimed the girl, starting up with sudden fright. "I don't want to be so I can't hear. And then they said—it was all so awful—they said they were going to——"

"Yes," urged Billy, "they said they were going to—"

"Oh, I don't know. They said was all right. But my Mam[illegible] would know! My Mammy w[illegible] know!"

"Yes, your Mammy would [illegible]" said Billy in the same [illegible] voice, "she would know, [illegible] there while you were eat[illegible]"

"No, no! She would do [illegible] for me. She would do [illegible] for me. I wouldn't b[illegible] way!"

"Now," said Billy, "w[illegible] ing to be quiet, you a[illegible] your friend, you know [illegible] I can tell fortunes."

"Tell fortunes?" cr[illegible] girl.

"Yes," said Billy, [illegible] member, but I car[illegible] eyes and tell who [illegible]

"Oh, I believe [illegible]" said the girl. [illegible] believe it. I—"

"LET ME THINK—"

"DURING your talk did she say anything about fortune tellers?"

"——let me think——Why, yes, she said she was dying to go to some fortune teller."

Billy rushed over and rang the bell.

"Bob," he said slowly, "this seems to be about the only clew. We will start this investigation on the hypothesis that Kate Tarleton has been the victim of some kind of crooked play."

"Why, Billy," began Louise, "you don't believe—"

SITUATIONS WANTED—MALE.

Executives and Managers.

SITUATION WTD—I AM LOOKING FOR A better future than is offered by my present business connection. I want to enter an established business in a subordinate capacity, with the idea of working toward a position of responsibility as fast as my ability and my knowledge of the business warrant. I have an excellent education, a good mind, know how to work, am young enough to take orders cheerfully, old enough to execute them intelligently, and have judgment enough to act on my own responsibility if necessary. I might consider an opening with a young business, conservatively managed and showing a healthy growth, which can use additional capital up to $10,000 for legitimate expansion. I positively will not make any investment, however, until I have had an opportunity to size up the situation from the inside. Salary to start, not less than $25 a week. If I am not worth that much to your business, the position is hardly likely to be worth while. Address T 392, Tribune.

SITUATION WTD—A REAL ADVERTISING MANAGER WANTS A JOB!

He has executive experience and ability that will insure maximum results.

He has efficient ability to write forceful, conservative copy that sells.

He has practical ability to design and "layout" advertising matter second to none in the country.

He has a thorough knowledge of art, engravings, and printing that will save you many dollars.

He is 30 years of age, with 14 years' practical experience. If you want him, address C G 437, Tribune.

WANTED—MALE HELP.

Salesmen, Solicitors, Etc.

WE WANT MEN WHO DO NOT NEED A searchlight to recognize opportunity. Success is within your reach if you really want to accomplish something. There are larger and more certain opportunities for you with our organization than with any other institution of its kind in the country.

This advertisement is a guiding post for men who really wish to succeed and to double and treble their present weekly earnings. We want men who have not set a limit on their abilities, but rather men who can be developed into excellent managerial positions. A connection with this organization would assure you of immediate earnings of $50 or more weekly. Previous selling experience is not necessary to qualify for this position, as our instruction classes thoroughly equip you with all necessary selling ammunition. You would have the personal co-operation of an efficient sales manager who would have no other purpose but to guarantee your success. All we ask of you is to show a determination to succeed—our co-operation will do the rest. No investment required, no traveling, all local work. You would be representing one of the largest and most financially responsible institutions of its kind in the country.

Telephone Randolph 10 for an appointment, or call Room 856 First National Bank Bldg. Open Monday evening until 8:30. Ask for MR. SWENSON, General Manager.

WE WANT A BRIGHT COLORED GENTLEman to act as real estate agent; must be a good talker; salary and commission. Address C G 567, Tribune.

YOU SUBDIVISION MEN WHO ARE dissatisfied with the general methods of your present surroundings and are still bent on staying in this business might be interested to know that we are just breaking into high class subdivision work with and are looking to create a select force of 50, not more than 60, high grade men.

Affiliating with us now means that you are in on the ground floor and working for an old and wealthy establishment that abhors the idea of employing thousands of "hit and miss" men whose presence generally speaking means an enormous overhead in office space, etc. It will be the selected "firsts" that will get this additional overhead in the shape of profits. Ask for Mr. Forde, Room 1024, 29 S. La Salle-st.

Agents.

AGENTS—MEN AND WOMEN— THREE GALLONS OF FULL STRENGTH LAUNDRY BLUING IN CONDENSED FORM TO CONSUMER FOR 30 CENTS.

This proposition is the result of our thirty-five years' experience with laundry bluing in Europe and America. We have gone through a bitter struggle; it is well we did; today we have no competition and are the only firm on the American continent offering three gallons of full strength perfect laundry bluing in condensed form to consumer for 30c. We can supply all demands for goods promptly. We want agents of both sexes with references and some selling ability to sell our product in their territory to housewives. Owing to the exorbitant prices of dyes, caused by the war, the housewife pays at present about $1.50 to $2.00 for three gallons of laundry bluing. Our three gallons of perfect laundry bluing in condensed form sells to the consumer for 30c. An iron bound guarantee of $1,000 forfeit if it fails. Agents' profit, 100% and up. To workers we furnish free sample and give exclusive territory. Good for $25.00 to $75.00 a week, and is permanent; repeat orders sure. One minute demonstration convinces the most skeptical housewife. Preparedness paid us well. If you also believe in it, write for your territory at once. Apply in writing only for appointment.

THE R. FINGER COMPANY.
LARGEST CONDENSED BLUING MANUFACTURERS IN AMERICA.
1504-10 [A] LYTTON BLDG., CHICAGO.

NOW IS THE TIME TO DO YOUR GARDENING.
You cannot appreciate the value of a large piece of ground until you have actually made your own garden. The healthful exercise is well worth your efforts, besides giving choice vegetables for the table, otherwise out of question at present prices.

On first payments of $100 to $500 down, you may own a brand new home, modern throughout, with bath complete, electricity, hardwood floors, etc., monthly payments do the rest.

We have a house to suit the needs of any family, income, or taste, from $2,000 to $4,500.
Both frame and brick.
All on wide lots.
Some quarter and half acres.
In a fast developing neighborhood with schools, churches, and markets right at your door.

We will take your lot or half acres in exchange as first payment, also use of the lot adjoining your purchase will be given free until sold.

This is your opportunity to own a good home.

JUST FACTS THAT'S ALL
THE GREAT OPPORTUNITY AROUND CHICAGO IS IN HOLLYWOOD

DO YOU WANT A HOME? HOLLYWOOD is an established community and has a new $150,000 high school now under construction. Do not confuse it with new, raw subdivisions.

DO YOU WANT A GARDEN? HOLLYWOOD lots are all large, none less than 50 feet wide, with a depth of 150 to 300 feet. The soil is about 12 inches of black loam with a subsoil of clay.

You can have A HOME,
A GARDEN,
A SMALL FARM,
All in one.

Don't these prices strike you as being mighty cheap?

A HOME LOT WITH A BIG GARDEN 50X150 TO 300 FEET IN RIVERSIDE
[The Suburb Beautiful].

Why live in a flat and beg some one for a small piece of ground for a garden, or why buy a garden out in the prairie, away from neighbors, schools, stores, and churches, when you can get a big lot right in an old established community that prides itself upon having most beautiful surroundings?

This is a place where city and country meet. No factories. No smoke. No noise. No saloons. Just an ideal home spot.

Large lots. Convenient steam and electric transportation. Parks. Golf and tennis clubs. Boating.

WATER. SEWER.
GAS. ELECTRICITY.
PAVED STREETS.
CONCRETE WALKS.
ALL PAID FOR.

For a short time we will sell these lots for $800 TO $1,250.
and make exceptionally easy terms.

Riverside is on the C. B. & Q. Ry., 11 miles from the Union Station, and has two electric lines connecting with the elevated railways. Our Riverside office is just north of the depot and is open every afternoon, including Sundays.

REAL ESTATE—FARM LANDS.

Michigan.

Less Hollerin' & More Hoein'!

THIS IS THE WAY a popular cartoonist expresses what Uncle Sam needs today. MANY people are "hollerin'" about the necessity of producing large crops to win the war. SOME are getting busy and helping produce them. MANY people are "hollerin'" about the high cost of living and how much of their wages they have spent for food. SOME wise people are starting to produce more food and will get the benefit of the high prices. Are you "Hollerin' or Hoein'."

MR. J. OGDEN ARMOUR, the packer, says "A continuation of the great prosperity that has ruled this country for two years is assured. There is an abundant demand for everything the workers of this nation can grow. . . . the buying power of the public is greater than ever before." This means a continuation of high prices and a consequent rise in land values. NOW is the time to buy land and start "Hoin'."

EVERY WAGE EARNER AND FARM RENTER can buy fine land in the Michigan's Fruit and Clover Belt. THE SWIGART TRACT contains more than 50,000 acres in Manistee, Mason, Lake, Wexford, Antrim, and Kalkaska Counties. You can have your pick at $15 to $25 an acre; $5 to $25 down for 10 a., $10 to $50 down for 20 a., $25 to $100 down for 40 a., balance in small monthly or yearly payments. I employ expert farmers to help you start and show you the best farming methods for our district.

THIS IS AN OPPORTUNITY. MY Michigan lands will earn good money for you and their increase in value will make you independent. They grow fine beans, potatoes, wheat, rye, clover, vetch, corn, fruit, etc.

Conditions for raising stock and poultry and for dairying are excellent. There are fine schools, churches, and towns, and the climate is healthy.

NEXT EXCURSION to the lands next Tuesday, May 22d. PRIVATE CARS. Return trip from Chicago, including meals, berth, and auto trip over the land, $12.95. ACT QUICKLY and join us.

FULL INFORMATION can be had for the asking. 72 page booklet with 115 illustrations free. If you will call at my office I will tell you all about my easy payment plan, show you samples of 1916 crops, and stereoptican views. Office remains open Monday night and Saturday afternoon.

REAL ESTATE—FARM LANDS.

Texas.

FOR SALE—NEW FARM OPPORTUNITY IN ONE OF THE GREATEST STATES IN THE UNION. A new line of the Santa Fe is tapping a rich and fertile prairie section of Northwest Texas, near the Oklahoma line, where already many farmers have MADE GOOD in a big way with wheat, hogs, and live stock. Here, if you ACT NOW, you can get first choice—get in on the ground floor of a great opportunity. You can get in AHEAD of the railway—ahead of the people whom the railway will bring—ahead of those who act more slowly than you do. This is the chance of a lifetime for a man of moderate means. A certain number of thrifty, farseeing farmers can acquire good land at an astonishingly low figure and on long, easy terms. If you have confidence that a great railroad, like the Santa Fe, would only recommend what it considers a good thing, and because it wants to see new territory developed and wants newcomers to PROSPER and PRODUCE—then write me TODAY for particulars about this district. Mild climate, social advantages, schools, churches, telephones, good roads. Everything there but enough men with their families. Will you be one of the fortunate first comers to reap the advantages of a section that has been minutely inspected by a Santa Fe agricultural agent and pronounced RIGHT? Write me NOW and let me send you a copy of the special illustrated circular we are getting out. C. L. SEAGRAVES, 1105 Railway Exchange, Chicago.

AUTOMOBILES—GASOLINE.

WE HAVE, AMONG OUR OTHER good bargains, three in particular that are worth thirty minutes of your time in close inspection, and if this inspection fails to convince you of their value, you need not look further for bargains.

STEARNS-KNIGHT EIGHT — This touring automobile is the same as new in every respect, except that it is not new. The depreciation has been absorbed by the original owner and his loss can be your gain. You can save a lot of money on this car if you like the Knight Motor and the eight cylinder idea.

HUDSON SUPER SIX—Here is a car that would cost new, if bought now, with its equipment, over nineteen hundred dollars. It is a seven passenger and has five Rudge-Whitworth wire wheels—has gone nearly thirty-nine hundred miles, no more—and the motor was tuned last week by the Chicago Hudson agents at a cost of $51.86, and is in beautiful running condition; has extra Silvertown Cord tire and tube and spotlight. The price on this is $1,200, no more, no less.

H. A. L. TWELVE—This car is new in that it was never sold to a customer, being used only by us for demonstrating work. The accrued mileage is nominal and its condition is above criticism. The price is $1,750, and it also cannot be criticised.

IT COSTS NOTHING TO LOOK.

In 1916
The Tribune Printed

78% More

Classified Real Estate Advertising

Than Any Other Chicago Paper, Morning or Evening

Think what that statement means. It means that The Tribune printed almost TWICE AS MUCH Classified Real Estate Advertising as the paper nearest to it. And furthermore the official figures show that The Tribune's volume of such advertising was more than two and a quarter times as much as the COMBINED VOLUME printed by the other Chicago morning and Sunday papers.

And in addition to that The Tribune is the only Chicago newspaper which showed a GAIN in Classified Real Estate Advertising for 1916 over 1915.

When one newspaper leads all others by such a tremendous margin it proves beyond all question the exceptional potency of that paper as an advertising medium. It shows beyond all question the power of that paper to get results. It shows beyond all question that that one paper is the one the people who want to BUY real estate always turn to.

If you really want to sell your real estate, not merely advertise it—if you want to sell it in the shortest space of time and with the least expense—you'll do as all those others do who have learned by long experience, you'll place your Real Estate advertisement in THE TRIBUNE.
